Board Points Out Need for Renewal and Building Fund

In a report to voters last week, Tawas Area Board of Education pointed out the need for renewing 12 mills of operational taxes for three years.

Supt. Robert A. Halle said that renewal of the 12 mills would continue to keep student costs low in comparison to other school districts in the state. Out of 530 districts, Tawas is ranked 23rd from the bottom.

In addition, renewal of the 12 mills will still keep this school's millage rate (21.25 total) among the lower five percent in the state.

Renewal of the 12 mills provides about 50 percent of the school district's revenue for each of the next three years. The balance of the revenue comes from other local, state and federal sources.

Halle said that renewal of the 12 mills should allow the board of education to continue to make improvements in the over-all school program and meet other annual expenses.

In addition to the millage proposal, the board of education seeks permission from voters to transfer $210,000 in delinquent tax money into a building and site fund.

Money transferred into a building and site fund can only be used for building improvements. It is the intent of the board of education to use the money to add classroom facilities to the Tawas City Elementary School, thus eventually eliminating the use of portable

Peoples State's Bid Accepted by TA Board

Peoples State Bank's bid on a five-year loan of $59,261.19 to finance purchase of three school buses was accepted Thursday night by Tawas Area Board of Education.

The annual interest rate for the loan is 4.90 percent.

In other business, the board of education discussed proposed methods of enclosing stairwells at the East Tawas Elementary Unit, following guidelines of the state fire marshal's office.

Supt. Robert A. Halle said there were two methods under discussion, which would include utilizing doors to close off the stairwells, plus converting one stairwell into a small classroom or office.

Following military service, he attended Ferris Institute and was later employed by the Addressograph-Multigraph Corporation at Cleveland, Ohio, Detroit and Saginaw. Landfill Contract Up for Discussion by Commissioners

Action on a new three-year contract with Multi-County Landfill is expected to be taken today by the Iosco County Board of Commissioners.

During meetings last week with a committee from the commission, Judson Bowers, president of the landfill company, presented a proposed contract calling for a minimum of $97,665 for the first year, plus an adjusted cost amounting to 70 percent of the actual percentage change in the preceding 12-month period for the remaining two years.

The adjusted cost would be determined and adjusted on July 1 of each succeeding year, based on the increase or decrease of the United States Department of Labor's consumers price index.

The company would provide landfill services to the county five days a week, eight hours a day and would provide services for any four-month period on Sunday, at the pleasure of the board of commissioners.

Bowers told commissioners that his firm has the most efficient and economical landfill operation in all of Northern Michigan, that it is the only state-approved and licensed landfill in the county. "All other facilities are dumps and operating illegally with the knowledge and consent of the board of commissioners and in direct violation of state law," said Bowers.

In 1974, when the first three-year contract was approved, the cost was $75,000. Bowers said the landfill had shown a profit of $17,292 over a four-year period, or a paper profit of $4,323 per year.

He said the corporation would be $2,631.91 "in the red" on July 1.

Bowers pointed out that the county population doubles during the tourist season and his company bore this extra service charge without an adjustment in the contract.

Other owners of the firm are Wilbur C. Roach and Robert Roach of East Tawas.

Hospital Negotiates With Temple Board

A formal written request has been made by officials of Tawas Hospital to the Tawas Masonic Temple board of directors asking permission to construct an addition to the hospital within 18 inches of the rear property line of the Masonic Temple.

This action was taken last week following a meeting between boards of directors of the two organizations.

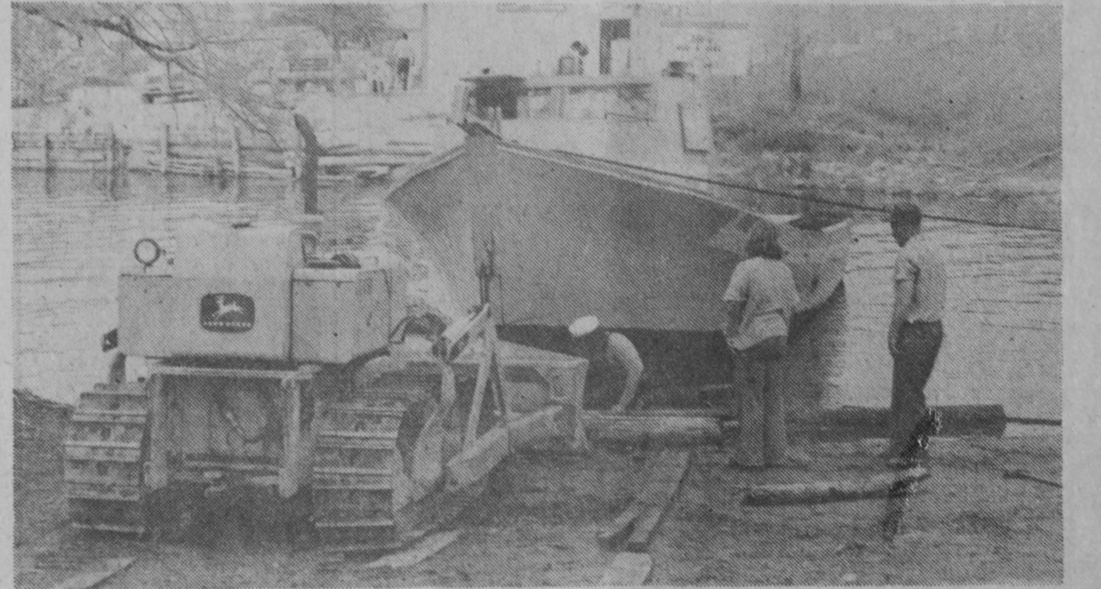

Recently, the Tawas City Planning Commission approved a variance in the city zoning ordinance for hospital construction, subject to approval of the hospital board.

Donald Snyder, hospital administrator, said last week that attempts were being made to work out any problems caused by the construction. He said that the only alternative was to alter plans slightly and to move two rooms in the northeast addition to the hospital.

Snyder said the Tawas Masonic Temple board of directors was concerned with drainage at the rear of the property and said he could identify with that concern.

The hospital spokesman said that some filling would be necessary on Masonic Temple property in order to shore up footings for the hospital addition. Snyder said he had not been aware that this fill was necessary until only recently.

The hospital administrator also stated that it was originally believed the property was zoned commercial, but later learned that it had never been changed from residential.

A BULLDOZER operated by Roland (Bud) Fahselt was used to launch the old Katy May fish tug in the Tawas River Tuesday morning. Owned by Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rehahn of Westland, they were complying with a recent order of the city council to remove the boat from city-owned property at the mouth of the river. The owners plan to refit the boat at Alpena and use it for charter service. The city has been unable to determine ownership of another old fish boat and two scows which have been stored on the property for a number of years. Legal steps are being taken to remove the boats.—Tawas Herald Photo.

vising menus, recording information in diaries and making additive-free foods at home.

Feingold is also very positive about the value of his program. It is possible that the confidence he generates in the child and parents that the program will be effective may influence the child's behavior.

The relationship between food additives and hyperkineses deserves further study. While it is possible that a very small number of hyperkinetic children may respond negatively to artificial flavors and colors, it appears that the vast majority of children do not.

Huron Nature Center Held Fund Campaign

Huron Nature Center recently held its first fund-raising project, a white pine seedling sale. Seedlings were purchased through the Soil Conservation Service, repackaged and then sold locally door-to-door throughout Iosco County and in the Prescott area. Several persons made donations to the center, and several others bought seedlings and planted them on state-owned lands.

Huron Nature Center is a newly-formed, non-profit organization which supports the ideals of conservation and hopes to eventually set up a local nature center for all area residents. Persons interested in further information or wishing to become involved with the center are welcome to contact Donald Smith, 362-8198, or Kathy Currie, 873-4172.

Fireworks Prohibited in Forest

Kenton P. Clark, forest supervisor, announced that with the spring fire season now in progress, the public should be reminded that possessing, discharging or using any kind of fireworks or other pyrotechnic device on the Huron-Manistee National Forest is prohibited.

This fire prohibition went into effect March 28, 1977, by order of the regional forester for the eastern region of the United States Forest Service, pursuant to 36 CFR 261.52 (F).

Clark stated that although it is still legal to buy, sell and use fireworks in Michigan, it is a violation of federal regulations to use them on national forests or on forest service development roads within the state.

The forest service has experienced more fires caused by fireworks this season than in the past several years.

Retired Sheriff Tends His

Burleigh Pine Plantation

Ivan O'Farrell of rural Whittemore, former Iosco County sheriff, has been a history buff for most of his adult life. He is particularly interested in Michigan's lumbering era, as well as the days of the Old West when the one-man sheriff's department provided law and order for a restless and spirited generation.

His pursuits are not just devoted to the "old days," however, for his full time occupation today concerns the past, present and the future—an enviable combination for any retiree.

In 1957, when O'Farrell had served eight of his 23 years wearing the badge of county sheriff, he began to lay plans for his retirement years by purchasing an old farm northwest of Whittemore. That block of land has now grown to 265 acres.

Much of the property had comprised a farm formerly owned by the St. James family and had been heavily timbered with white pine. In the 1880s, the pine was harvested and sent down Porterfield Creek and into the AuGres River, where the huge logs eventually found their way to sawmills lining the Saginaw River or Tawas Bay.

In the wake of that seemingly brief era of Michigan "green gold" was left vast tracts of land filled with huge pine stumps, being practically worthless for farming purposes unless one was willing to expend considerable time and energy. After several years of prying, blasting and much sweat, the original owners had carved farm fields in the rich soil of Burleigh Township.

Part of the land had never been cleared of stumps and reverted to its natural state. A second growth of white pine soon sprouted in the wilderness, some of them surviving running ground fires and the woodsman's axe.

Several of those second growth white pines, now magnificent reminders of another era, are the pride of O'Farrell, who took particular note of the trees when he was buying the property in 1957.

That same year saw O'Farrell start a project which should have been undertaken in many areas of the state by lumbermen who harvested the virgin white pine. He began planting Norway pine seedlings and now has a plantation of more than 100,000 trees.

Using sound timber management and in less than 25 years since the original planting, O'Farrell thinned his plantation to promote present and future growth by removing every other row of trees. Those with at least a 3 1/2-inch top and 10 feet in length were sold to a fence rail manufacturer—it costs money to pay taxes on acreage.

O'Farrell recently completed the planting of 500 two-year-old seedling nursery stock trees. While 80 percent of his plantation consists of Norways, other species include Colorado spruce, Montana fir, white spruce and Scotch pine.

A neighboring property owner, Leon Putnam, calls O'Farrell's plantation one of the most unique in Michigan as dead branches are removed from the trees to give it a park like appearance. Trails wind through the trees for easy viewing from an automobile. Putnam, presently the county register of deeds who had served many years as undersheriff for O'Farrell, recently accompanied his former boss on an inspection tour of the plantation.

They visited the crowning glory of the W 1/2 of the NE 1/4 of Section 4, Burleigh Township—a beautiful second growth white pine spared from earlier harvests. The tree towers about 100 feet skyward, is 30 inches across at the butt and not a limb is to be seen on the trunk for 60 to 70 feet above the ground.

One could look at such a tree for hours and just dream.

Trees harvested from the property about 100 years ago were larger than this giant, judging from a pine stump located in the E 1/2 of the NW 1/2 of Section 4. The stump measures 40 inches across the butt and probably was somewhat larger when the logger's axe first bit into its rough bark. Even larger stumps are still to be found in this county.

O'Farrell and his wife, Doris, who shares her husband's interest in history, built their home on the site of an old lumbering camp located in view of the plantation.

Tending a plantation of this size keeps one busy and O'Farrell is particularly wary of ground fires. Several years ago, a grass fire which started some distance from his property bore directly down on his beautiful plantation before veering off with a change in wind direction.

One of the former sheriff's greatest pleasures in life is taking friends through his plantation, or showing off those second growth white pine trees and the older stumps remaining from another era. Inspection of the latter always calls for a discourse on some interesting aspect when pine was king in Michigan.

A white pine tree which can be felled in a matter of minutes by an experienced woodsman or destroyed in about the same length of time by a forest fire caused by a carelessly dropped match actually requires from 150 to 300 years to reach full maturity. Man can plunder natural resources quite easily, but to plant, nurture and protect a plantation is something else.

Because of mother nature's way, one has to have a philosophical outlook on life when planting a pine tree—he will not be on this earth by the time the tree reaches maturity.

But, the O'Farrells have two grandsons and, God willing and the trees are protected in the future, they just may enjoy the trees some day.

And, to a man with a sense of history like O'Farrell, perhaps someone a century from now will remember the name of that ex-sheriff who was responsible for planting and nursing those beautiful trees during their early growing years.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE CAREER OF

Herman Dehnke

A cub newspaper reporter having misgivings about understanding technicalities of an important case before the court once was admonished by a veteran circuit judge to use a common sense approach.

"Although this may be an oversimplification," said the judge, "reasonable laws are made by reasonable people—there is no great mystery to understanding the law, if one uses the common sense and reasonableness which is part of the very human nature possessed by the average person."

Today, Herman Dehnke of Harrisville would object to being compared with a famous associate justice of the supreme court, but what he told the above reporter was quite similar in thinking with what an associate justice once wrote from his lofty seat on the United States Supreme Court.

In retrospect, the reporter—now middle aged—believes that the people of this state missed a great opportunity years ago when they did not elect the circuit judge from rural Harrisville to the Michigan Supreme Court. His "common sense" approach would have been refreshing, but that is politics and water over the dam.

Now past 90 years of age and retired from the 23rd Judicial Circuit bench for nearly 20 years, Judge Dehnke keeps his hand on his law books—only now as a practicing attorney handling probate court matters. According to the Alcona County clerk, he regularly spends a few hours in the law library at the Alcona County Courthouse.

Dehnke, architect of a judicial career that spanned 32 years, brought a refreshing breath of dignity to the bench when he was appointed circuit judge in 1928. Retiring at the age of 72 years in 1959, he could look back on a career which was devoted to the people of his circuit, comprising the Counties of Iosco, Alcona and Oscoda.

In addition, Dehnke frequently was called upon to make evildoers pay the expense of uncovering their illegal actions by serving as a one-man grand juror, a position for which he was best known in other parts of the state.

During the years 1946-49, for instance, he worked 527 days cleaning up gambling and official corruption in Macomb County. There were 93 convictions and the defendants paid $214,225 in fines and court costs.

Corruption was so bad in Macomb County that an editorial printed in the Royal Oak Tribune feared for his life. When asked if he and his team of investigators wished state police protection, especially during the judge's many long trips from Harrisville, Dehnke replied, "judges and lawyers are replaceable—the witnesses are not and they are the ones who deserve police protection."

The judge had particular reference to a state senator, who was a key witness in a Lansing grand jury investigation at an earlier date and had been murdered.

(Despite the judge's concern for his own safety, two state police patrol cars—one preceding and one following the judge's car—always accompanied him on his trips home to Harrisville. He was not aware of the escort.)

On another occasion, Judge Dehnke was ordered into Gogebic County to conduct a grand jury investigation concerning graft and misuse of public funds, despite warnings issued by the auditor general over a period of several years following examination of county books.

An editorial printed in the Ironwood Daily Globe in May 1943, stated: "That there was no apprehension at the start of the inquiry in January was noted by Judge Dehnke, as it must also have been noted by any observing citizen. The judge found during the early part of the investigation that there was an air of jocular unconcern exhibited by many of the officials involved, as if to say, 'nothing serious will happen, this is merely another gesture—one bunch of good with his parents, settling on a farm in the Barton City area.

He began his career of public service as a rural school teacher, receiving $30 a month for teaching, plus $2.50 for janitor work.

After teaching eight years, he attended Ferris Institute in 1907-1908. He then began a course with the Sprague Correspondence School of Law, attending summer school in 1911 at Valparaiso University and qualified for membership in the senior law class that fall.

He graduated from law school in June 1912, and that same year returned to Alcona County to run for prosecuting attorney, losing by 87 votes. He combined law practice with school teaching until 1914, when he was elected county prosecutor.

He was to hold that office until July 1927, when Gov. Fred W. Green appointed him circuit judge to fill the vacancy of Judge Albert Widdis. He was a successful candidate in the fall of 1928 to fill out his predecessor's unexpired term. In the spring of 1929, he was a candidate for the first full term as circuit judge, winning the only election in which he was opposed by another candidate.

While Alcona prosecutor in 1915, he was stricken with tuberculosis. This started a long interest in the fight against TB, serving as president of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and he was national chairman of the 1959 Christmas Seal campaign.

Following his long service on the bench, Dehnke capped his public career by serving as one of 155 delegates to the Michigan Constitutional Convention in 1962.

"My decision to become a candidate for delegate arose out of the hope that it might afford an opportunity, very possibly the last such to come my way, to render a substantial public service to apply on the unrepayable obligation under which the people of Michigan, and more particularly those of this area, have placed in me by their many expressions of confidence in the past," said Dehnke in a message to voters.

fellows being investigated by another!"

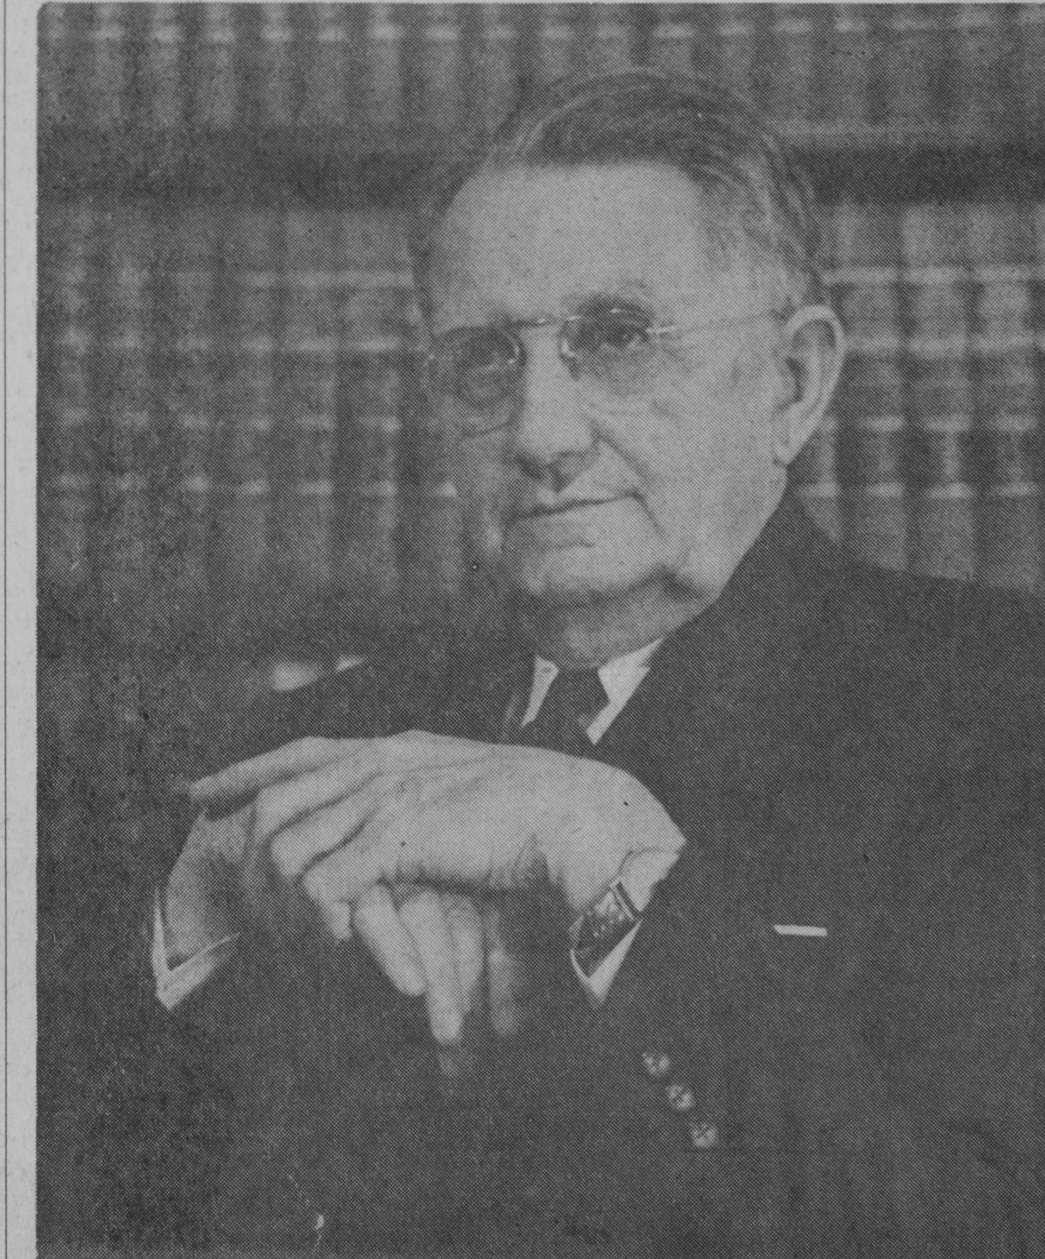

A number of Gogebic County public officials found themselves in the position where they had to agree to make restitution to the county for public funds which they collected. The sum repaid represented a compromise, which the court said was "due to our inability to unscramble the omelets of the past," but public faith and confidence were restored in that county.

"No one proposes to put county government in a straight jacket," commented the judge. "The state has neither the desire nor the money and personnel to keep grand juries in session supervising county officials. It steps in only when irregularities have grown beyond control."

The Ironwood Globe, at the end of the hearings, published these words of Judge Dehnke in bold print: "Citizens must bear in mind that eternal vigilance is not the price of liberty only, but also of good government; and that the fundamental American safeguard against incompetency and chronic lack of good judgment in public office is not a grand jury, but the ballot box."

Dehnke was considered by lawyers of the day as the ideal presiding officer in a courtroom. The opinions which he rendered from the circuit court bench over a period of 32 years have been bound into book form by the Iosco County Bar Association.

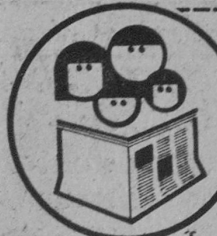

Born at Napoleon, Ohio, on November 26, 1887, he came to Alcona County as a lad in his teens Zoning Codes ARE Important!

Here is a suggestion which should be considered in the future growth of one's community and county: Before making plans to construct a residence, commercial or even a public building, check the zoning requirements for setback lines with township or city officials.

Once final plans are developed, particularly in the case of commercial construction, it often proves costly to change them if it is found that the proposed structure does not meet setback requirements.

As a consequence, the owner takes his case before the local zoning board of appeals and, rather than "hold up community progress," a variance is permitted. When such a variance is allowed, it is forever.

During the past 15 or more years, Iosco County communities have spent thousands of dollars and public spirited citizens have spent considerable time to develop workable zoning ordinances to help guide the future growth of the entire area.

Zoning requirements are for the protection of all property owners—present and future. If the requirements are not workable in too many instances, they should be reviewed and possibly changed to adjust to present and future needs; if those requirements are reasonable and workable, they should be followed to the letter.

Blackfly Bites Can Cause Severe Reaction to Some

Northern Michigan is perfect this time of year for all kinds of activities... from fishing to mushroom hunting. Unfortunately, it is the prime blackfly season, reports Kenneth Kernstock, Iosco County agr.cultural agent.

These small, black creatures bite only during daylight and have the devious ability to crawl in hair, nostrils and ears or through openings in clothing to bite. While the bite is not poisonous, it can cause severe reactions on some persons.

brought into focus because of the current "snag" in construction of the proposed addition to Tawas Hospital. By the time the architect laid the plans before the city planning commission for a site plan review and it was pointed out that the building was to be constructed too close to the adjoining property owner's line, it was too late to make a correction.

Some will argue: "What's the difference in a one-horse town like this—a matter of a few inches closer to a property line should not stop progress."

The city planning commission, which is responsible for passing judgment on site plans, took the only course of action open in this case by approving the plans, contingent upon consent of the adjoining property owner. To date, approval of the adjoining property owner has not been forthcoming.

Under established procedure, the next step is for the hospital to take its case to the zoning board of appeals and it would be a safe bet to predict that a variance will be permitted—no one wants to "stop progress."

No big deal? Perhaps, but referring back to the first paragraph, the entire problem need not ever have occurred in this million-dollar or so project had the hospital planners checked first with the city manager to ascertain local zoning requirements before starting to develop plans.

In the case of the hospital's expansion, another problem exists. Because of the amount of fill necessary to shore up footings, a portion of the rear of the adjacent Masonic Temple property would also have to be filled. Because of this, the problem probably will not go to the zoning board of appeals and a compromise may be reached between the two property owners.

University entomologist, says the bite is irritating and produces a wheal (flat burning area on the skin) which may cause severe swelling.

About the best protection is using insect repellents containing diethyltoluamide (Die-eth-ill-tah-lu-mid) or "deet" and tight-fitting clothing. This includes a hat, long-sleeved shirt that buttons at the neck and long trousers tucked in a pair of boots.

Blackflies hatch from breeding sites in fresh water streams and rivers. Most can fly several miles to feed on victims. Returns from Mediterranean

George A. Ounan Jr., navy boiler technician fireman apprentice, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ounan, Oscoda, has returned from an extended deployment in the Mediterranean Sea.

He is assigned to the combat store ship, USS Concord, homeported in Norfolk, Virginia. While deployed, this ship operated as a unit of the United States Sixth Fleet.

During the four-month cruise, Concord participated in various training exercises with other Sixth Fleet units and those of allied nations. Port visits were made in Spain, France, Italy and Sicily. Concord serves as a floating store for the fleet and is stocked with more than 25,000 general and technical supply items. While deployed, she provided under way replenishment for other sixth fleet ships.

A 1975 graduate of Oscoda Area High School, Ounan joined the navy in December 1976.

trict that the final constitution was a compromise on many important points, Dehnke stated the belief that the document was in the best interest of the state and its people, encouraging support of voters towards its adoption.

The new constitution was adopted by the people of Michigan in the narrowest of margins in 1963 and a recount of ballots was necessary before its adoption was confirmed.

As expected, a number of points contained in the 1963 constitution are criticized today by some people and some sections of the state. But, when one recalls the wide variation in personalities and differences in political views held by the 155 individual delegates, it must be admitted that the 1963 constitution corrected inadequacies of the previous instrument and will continue to adequately guide this state until some future date when another constitutional convention will be called.

It must be remembered, however, that special interest groups and geographical areas of the state could be stronger than in Dehnke's day, which could influence future decisions and compromises hammered out on the anvil of the 1962 constitutional convention might not take place in the next one.

Despite a bout with the flu during the past winter, Dehnke is still alert in mind and body and enjoys talking with his neighbors at Harrisville and with the many friends he made throughout the state during his more than 70 years of public service.

The Herald joins his friends in wishing him well.

One-Mill Repair Proposal Going Before Whittemore - Prescott School Voters

Voters of Whittemore-Prescott Area School may find it confusing Monday, June 12, but the two ballots they receive for a special proposition asks approval of just one additional mill of taxes for repairs for school property.

The actual increase in taxes, however, will be only three-quarters of a mill as the school is reducing the debt retirement millage from the 2.0 mills levied in past years to 1.75 mills.

The one mill of additional taxes will raise an additional $46,000 for each of the three years the levy is in effect.

The confusing situation in which two ballots are necessary to ask approval of one mill results from requirements in school election laws.

One proposition will ask authorization to raise the limitation on taxes by one mill for a period of three years through creation of a sinking fund to be used for construction or repair of school buildings.

The second proposition authorized the levying of the tax authorized by the first proposition.

If not read carefully, a voter could assume that two mills of taxes are being requested, but that is not the case.

Nursing Home Care
Probably Costs You
Less Than You Think

Let's say the hospital care in your community costs $100 per day. In comparison, what do you think would be the cost of nursing home care?

The American Health Care Association, representing nursing facilities across the country, asked this question of a scientifically chosen cross-section of Americans. Here are the answers the Association received:

- 35% said they didn't know.
- 15% said it would be $80 or more.
- 3% said it would be $150.
- 14% gave the correct answer, about $20 to $30 a day.

The fact is, that nursing home rates are comparable to, often less than, hotel room rates! Yet the nursing facility does much more than provide lodging, meals and maid service, it provides special equipment, programs of supervised activities, and professional nursing attention around the clock!

Example: Provincial House, the new skilled nursing facility being constructed at 400 W. North Street in Tawas City. When this facility opens in July, it will be staffed and equipped to provide rehabilitative and convalescent care to persons of all ages 24 hours a day, every day.

However, while the cost of this nursing home care is surprisingly reasonable when compared to hotel or hospital rates, it adds up over the long term. Fortunately, as a licensed skilled nursing facility, Provincial House can offer a wide range of payment opportunities including Medicaid, Medicare, health insurance, and private payment plans.

In the case of a person eligible for Medicaid reimbursement, the nursing home is reimbursed by the Michigan Department of Social Services at two rates. For a "basic" level of nursing care, Medicaid reimbursement is to a maximum of $24.43 per day. For a "skilled" level of care, Medicaid reimbursement is to a maximum of $25.63 per day. The nursing home is paid about $1 per hour!

In 17 other nursing facilities across the state, Provincial House does more than provide quality health care at a very reasonable rate; it provides a good quality of life for its residents. This quality of life is the combination of a comfortable, homey facility; a compassionate staff; and a prevailing attitude of genuine interest. These are priceless ingredients of good nursing home care.
