

Stasik Sells Marina to Frankenmuth Man

Sale of the Bayview Harbor Marina at the mouth of the Tawas River is announced this week by Stanley Stasik of East Tawas, who purchased the property two years ago.

New owner of the marina is Gary Collier of Frankenmuth, who is being assisted in the operation for the present by his brother, Joseph. During Stasik's ownership, the property was improved considerably with new buildings, a parking lot and general repair to the facilities.

The former marina operator and Jerry Everitt, owners of Century Real Estate, have moved their office from the marina to 325 Lake Street in Tawas City. The firm is a nation-wide organization, but each office is independently owned.

MICHIGAN CANOE Racing Association memorial monument on River Road has been renovated during the past two weeks and is to be rededicated in a program scheduled for Sunday, September 17. Work on repairing damage caused

Vandalism Repaired

Monument to Canoeists to be Rededicated Sept. 17

To some people, it may seem like a losing battle, but not to Harry Curley of Oscoda. He has attacked renovation of the Michigan Canoe Racing Association's memorial monument on River Road with determination.

A rededication program for the monument is scheduled for Sunday, September 17, 2:00 p. m. Erected in memory of departed canoe racers, the program is to include placing of wreaths.

The object of serious vandalism problems since it was first dedicated more than 10 years ago, Curley has a personal interest in the monument: His son, Gerald, is one of five persons for whom the monument was originated.

The pile of masonry with twin metal paddles affixed to the top is a memorial to canoe paddlers who either lost their lives in the sport or died from other cause.

Gerald Curley drowned 25 years ago this summer while practicing for the annual AuSable River marathon, while Henry Feldhauser of Grayling drowned while attempting to save another paddler in a later race. It was also dedicated to Gerald L. Lauwers, former marathon champion of Tawas City, who died in an automobile accident, along with Arthur Furtaw and Edward Dumont, Oscoda paddlers.

Curley, assisted by his son, Franklin, and Jack Throop of Lincoln, spent the past two weeks in repairing and improving the monument and surrounding grounds.

New signs were erected to replace a bronze plaque which was stolen from the base. New steel paddles were affixed to the top of the monument, the fence was repaired, new guard rails were installed, landscaping was improved and a decorative copper railing was set at the base.

In addition, an old fire escape from the Holland Hotel was converted into a viewing platform overlooking a beautiful bend in the AuSable River, a second platform was installed in front of the monument for use of photographers, steel benches and tables were set in place for the use of visitors wishing to enjoy a picnic on the grounds.

Four iron wheels from an old mowing machine are used for guard posts.

"Everything has been carefully welded together and firmly held in the ground with concrete," said Curley. "We hope this helps to minimize damage, but we know there is going to be some vandalism."

Petition Drive to Ask Referendum

Petitions were to be circulated starting Tuesday morning demanding a citizen referendum on the proposed new city hall-fire hall-library complex in Tawas City.

Following Monday night's council meeting, Lyle Healey, a Fifth Avenue resident, said that 10 percent of the city's registered voter list was required to place the question on a ballot. He said that signatures of only 90 persons were required.

Two weeks ago, the city council took the first step in the program by authorizing the building authority to proceed with the project. That action followed discussion started more than a year ago when the mayor appointed a study committee, followed by formation of a building authority.

While the council majority has approved the project, both Mayor Herbert Cholger and Coun. Robert N. Rollin have voiced opposition.

Councilman Rollin voted "no" Monday night on accepting minutes of the last council meeting which authorized the building authority to proceed with the project.

Because of possible delays due to the time required for holding a referendum, Coun. Hugo Keiser again suggested that the council consider establishing a date for a vote on the question.

Petitions signed by 141 citizens asking the council for a referendum were presented August 21 prior to official action by the council. Under terms of the city charter, petitions requesting the vote may be submitted within 45 days of the council's formal action.

The city was notified in August that Farmers Home Administration had approved a $455,000 loan for construction of the complex over a 40-year period at an interest rate of five percent.

Carl Babcock of the city building authority said that 10 percent of the city's registered voter list was required to place the question on a ballot. He said that signatures of only 90 persons were required.

Lonchar Set for Sentencing on Friday

John W. Lonchar Jr., who was found guilty of first degree murder, is to be sentenced Friday, 2:00 p. m., in Iosco County Circuit Court.

A trial by court was held here July 18-21 in which Lonchar was found guilty of being implicated in the September 11, 1976, slaying of Danny R. Christian at Oscoda.

Two other men, Frederick G. Tomkins and Gary H. McLellan, were convicted in the slaying by a circuit court jury here in February 1977, and were given mandatory life sentences in prison.

School buses rolled Wednesday morning for the final two schools of Iosco County opening classes for the 1978-79 term. Students were to attend opening sessions today at Tawas Area School and Hale Area School, while Oscoda Area opened Tuesday. Whittemore-Prescott Area School got the jump on other schools of the county by opening August 29.

Threshermen Enjoyed Week-End

HOSTS to nearly 1,000 visitors during the two-day threshing bee held Saturday and Sunday at their farm southwest of Whittemore were Mr. and Mrs. Neil Erickson. They are standing in front of the star attraction of the program, an ancient steam traction engine which provided power to operate the grain separator shown in the bottom photo. A retired employee of Dow Chemical Company, Erickson has spent about 30 years putting together an outstanding collection of farm machinery and tools used during the heyday of farming in this region. Visitors had the opportunity to see the old implements in operation, plus a large collection of steam whistles operated through the above steam engine's boiler. A thresherman's picnic was held Saturday evening, worship services were held Sunday morning and the program Sunday afternoon featured a parade of ancient farm tractors.—Tawas Herald Photos.

Tawas City Contractor Questions Iosco on County Building Bid Irregularities

Attorneys for Edward S. Davison of Davison and Son Builders, Tawas City, last Friday questioned if there were any irregularities in bids for construction of additions and alterations to the Iosco County Building.

A letter from Brent Babcock and James Shotwell, representing Davison, asked the county board of commissioners for its rationale in accepting a bid claimed to be $15,000 higher than the low bid.

Two weeks ago, the council building authority awarded bids totaling $409,284 for the project. MAKO Construction of Lincoln received the architectural trades contract at a cost of $255,684; the mechanical contract went to Bay View Plumbing, Rogers City, at a cost of $118,000; Spark Electric, Auburn, received the electrical contract with a bid of $32,600.

Davison and Son had entered a bid of $292,000 for the general contract and indicated a total bid of $392,000 to include mechanical and electrical costs.

The building authority stated that mechanical and electrical costs were not bid by Davison according to specifications in that figures submitted were not "firm" and the bid form included a notation that the electrical and mechanical costs were for "bookkeeping purposes only."

The county board of commissioners sent a copy of the letter to its legal counsel, Ronald Tyler, for an answer.

In other business last Friday, the commission indicated that it was looking for a private citizen to serve on the East Central Michigan Health Systems. The organization holds monthly meetings at Saginaw and mileage would be paid to the appointee.

Low bid of Quality Glass of Oscoda, $11,192.69, was accepted for performing energy saving work on the county building.

The commission approved a recommendation from the Northern Regional Substance Abuse Coordinating Agency to have Iosco-Ogemaw Mental Health District handle the substance abuse program in Iosco County. Approval has been given by the mental health district to take over the program formerly handled by Tawas Hospital.

The commission adopted a resolution recommended by Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller proposing that the state take over the complete cost of financing the court system to include district court, circuit court and probate court. The resolution stated that rulings requiring professional assistance to indigent persons placed an intolerable burden on local government.

John McArdle, Oscoda commissioner, was appointed to the health and public safety committee and the county representative on the district board of health.

A TRACTOR-TRAILER UNIT loaded with beer went out of control Saturday morning at the Whittemore Road-Sand Lake Road Curve in Sherman Township and rolled on its side. James King, 25, Cochran, Georgia, was treated for minor injuries at Tawas Hospital. The unit, owned by Caravan Cargo of Texas, had just dropped off a load of beer at Grabow Distributing Company at National City. Investigating Michigan State Police from East Tawas, said the remainder of the load apparently shifted, causing the mishap. The load was later transferred to another tractor and trailer unit.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Council Seeks Definition of Junk Cars Under Ordinance

Does the city's junk car ordinance apply to all unlicensed cars not in operating order which are scattered in yards around the community?

A Tawas City councilman who asked the question at Monday night's council meeting expressed the opinion that the ordinance should be enforced uniformly throughout the city.

Coun. Jerry Cotter also questioned if the ordinance would apply to an old Kaiser automobile stored in the back yard of Mayor Herbert Cholger. Cotter said the city could run into some enforcement problems in court if it invoked the junk car ordinance against one property owner and did not do the same in the case of the mayor's old car.

Mayor Cholger was of the opinion that his Kaiser was an antique automobile, that he had been offered considerable money for it and it definitely was not a junk car within the definition of the ordinance. He also pointed out that he spent a lot of time keeping the yard around his home in an attractive condition, that the old car was not bothering anyone and he did not intend to remove it.

Both Cotter and Coun. Hugo Keiser felt that the ordinance should be defined due to possible future legal problems. Cotter said he had received a complaint about the old car in the mayor's yard and suggested that Cholger obtain a state antique car license plate for the Kaiser or that he put the car in a garage under cover.

The mayor expressed the opinion that he was being harassed by the two councilmen.

Discussion on junk cars arose earlier when Cotter questioned City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz about the status of junk cars on Ninth Avenue along the street right-of-way at Brooks Auto Parts.

Bublitz said that the sheriff's department had been instructed to enforce the city ordinance in the matter and that he would check on progress. In the above instance, use of a city street for storage of junk cars is prohibited by a different ordinance.

Also discussed was enforcement of the junk car ordinance at gasoline service stations, which do not have occupancy permits for garages.

Claims Hearing Required by City

Recent action by the Tawas City Planning Commission in approving a special use permit without a public hearing for construction of the new Tawas Masonic Temple in a residential zone was questioned Monday night.

John N. Brugger appeared before the council and said that adjoining property owners were not being protected under the ordinance as a public hearing was not held.

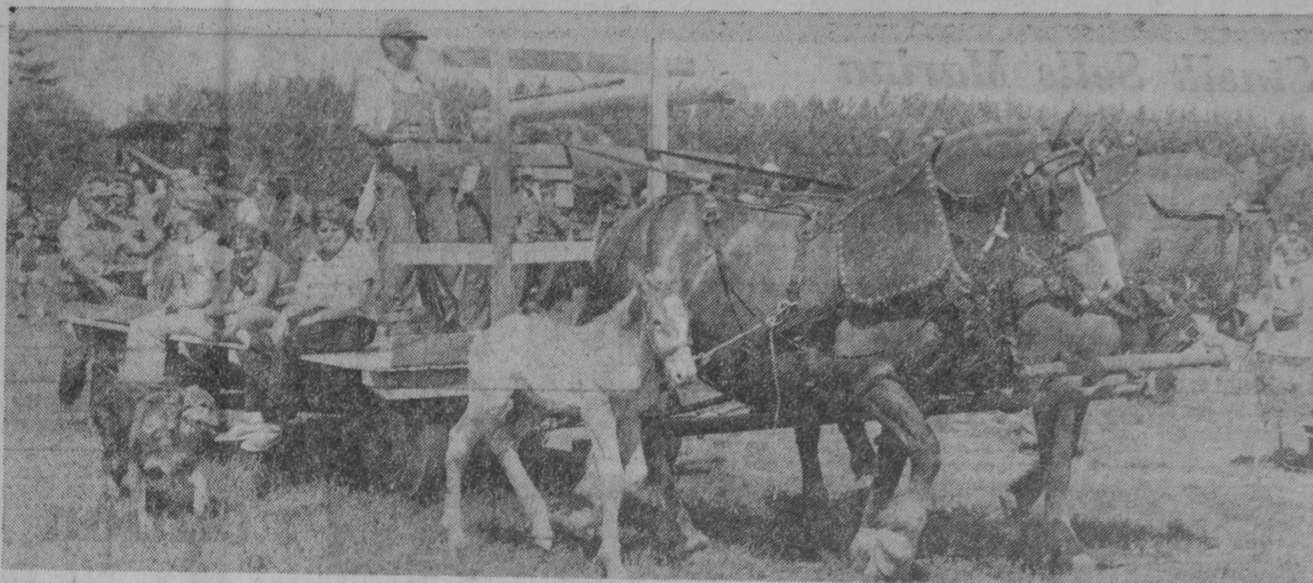

He said that property owners had no opportunity to review proposed plans and that there may be no objection if construction of the new building is in conformity with the nearby Tawas United Methodist Church.

City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz said that the planning commission had approved the special use permit under terms of the city ordinance, as amended, and that no hearing was required.

Brugger expressed the opinion that the Masonic Temple was not a church and that the planning commission had erred in granting the special use permit under an ordinance provision which he believed pertained only to churches.

The special use permit was issued by the planning commission on August 17. The proposed new building is to be located on Victoria Lane. As part of its current expansion program, Tawas Hospital has purchased the present Tawas Masonic Temple located northwest of the hospital.

The city's planning consultant is to be requested to define that portion of the ordinance pertaining to the question.

ing authority has estimated that cost of the proposed complex with 8,500 to 9,000 square feet would be approximately $360,000. Total cost of the project would be increased by $65,000 for land acquisition plus demolition of the present structure.

While the majority of the council favors construction of a new complex and on the present city hall site, both the mayor and Rollin have voiced objections to construction at the present time and also believe an alternate site would be more desirable.

Under the proposal, the building authority would construct the facility and then lease it back to the city until the bonds were repaid. The cost would be approximately $30,000 annually. The proposed method of repayment has not been finalized as yet.

It is expected that the building authority will present plans and discuss financing at future meetings of the council.

Trespass Act to be Challenged

Ray Kesler, Plainfield Township supervisor, said Friday that he and a committee of property owners planned to "test" the state's recreational trespass act which permits a fisherman to cross private land in certain instances while fishing along a navigable stream.

An opinion received from Frank J. Kelley, state attorney general, held that the act was not unconstitutional.

Provisions of the act exempt from criminal prosecution a fisherman wading or floating on a navigable public stream of a length greater than 15 miles and limits his use to the riverbank as closely proximate to the river as possible. "The fact that a criminal prosecution may not be sustained under the recreational trespass act does not grant fishermen a legal right to trespass upon the lands of another," said Kelley's written opinion.

"The owner of the land has a civil cause of action and a prosecution may be sustained if the owner or the owner's agent notifies the fisherman to depart and the fisherman refuses or neglects to do so,"

said the opinion. Kesler and his committee have maintained that the new recreational trespass act is unconstitutional in that it abrogates the rights of property owners. "We intend to test the law in court through the arrest of one of our cooperating committee members," said Kesler.

Seek Expansion of Boat Ramp Parking

Possible expansion of parking facilities at the city boat ramp on Ninth Avenue is to be studied by City Mgr. Reginald Bublitz.

At Monday night's regular meeting, Louis Wilson, parking ramp attendant, told councilmen that he had to turn cars and boats away over the week-end due to the lack of parking.

He suggested that the city contact the Detroit and Mackinac Railway to learn if the railroad would lease additional property for parking purposes. The present boat ramp site is located on property leased from the railroad and has been expanded twice over a period of years.

The city manager is to contact railroad officials this week in an effort to make additional parking available during the fall fishing season. In other business, the council approved the dates of September 18 through 30 for the cystic fibrosis campaign in this community.

No action was taken on a request to place an advertisement in a brochure being published in cooperation with Tawas Chamber of Commerce.

Annual fall cleanup date was set for Tuesday, November 7. All materials placed at curbs are to be picked up by the garbage contractor and department of public works.

The city attorney was instructed to prepare a new sidewalk ordinance for presentation at the September 18 meeting.

Discussion on the ordinance developed through a letter received at the last meeting from City Clerk Rachel McCready, which pointed out that the sidewalk along Whittemore Street was in a dangerous condition.

The city manager said that replacement of 200 feet of sidewalk along Whittemore Street would cost $1,200. The city has a policy of cooperating with property owners

THE TAWAS In Michigan Vacationland HERALD

94th Consecutive Year of Service

IF ONE NEEDED A REMINDER that fall is approaching, it was supplied last week by swallows and other birds which were testing their wings and swarming on electric power lines in preparation for the flight to warmer climates. The human population was turning its thoughts to a last summer "fling" on Labor Day, but some were insulating homes and getting in a wood supply for the long winter ahead. Children of most Iosco County school districts report back to classrooms today (Wednesday). Goodbye summer, hello fall.—Tawas Herald Photo.

New Student Handbooks to be Studied by Tawas Parents

Parents are reminded by administrators of Tawas Area School that junior and senior high school students will be bringing home this week the 1978-79 revised student handbook.

The rules and regulations contained in the handbook have been approved by the board of education as the official policies which students must follow while in attendance at the school.

Parents are requested to take a few minutes and read the handbook, then sign and return an attached sheet to the school indicating that rules and regulations have been discussed by the family.

It is important that parents take the time to study the handbook as serious questions have arisen in the past because school policies have been misunderstood.

The student handbook covers such areas as academic and general information policies concerning unacceptable behavior of students; detention and suspension policies; expulsion and grievance procedures; athletic code and scholastic eligibility rules; policy for pupils riding buses and rules for bus riding safety; student driving policies.

Under academic information, one of the changes is that 20 credits are required for graduation beginning with the class of 1982. At the present time, 19 credits are required for graduation.

JOSEPH DIMMICK

BUSINESSMAN WHO FOUGHT 1881 INCORPORATION WAS

JOSEPH DIMMICK

CIVIC LEADER

Joseph Dimmick, who was to become a successful businessman at East Tawas, really never intended to locate here when he came to town to pay his property taxes.

He had purchased some pine lands along the AuSable River in 1866 and, always an enterprising businessman, decided to "kill two birds with one stone." As long as he had to come to Tawas in 1870 to pay his property taxes, he brought along a quantity of government surplus blankets and clothing remaining from the Civil War.

After unloading this huge shipment from the steamboat which brought him from Detroit, he set up a store in an old barn on Newman Street. Because of the extremely low prices which he offered to the local populace, accustomed to paying the top dollar at monopolistic company stores, sale of his government surplus goods was brisk and Dimmick decided to remain here.

Tawas was never the same after Dimmick rooted here and it was not just the fact that the twin shore towns were beginning a rapid growth after slumbering during the Civil War; Dimmick was to become a civic leader of note and a very outspoken man concerning the direction in which the town was to grow.

Besides operating a large mercantile and general merchandise store, Dimmick was to become an extensive dealer in land.

As an example of his business dealings, a standing advertisement in the old Iosco County Gazette stated simply in bold type: "J. Dimmick! Dealer in Everything!" He moved his stock of goods into several buildings before finally constructing a large frame building on the south side of West State Street in the fall of 1875. That building was to stand for nearly 100 years—long after Dimmick had died and not a person alive remembered seeing him when the building was razed less than 10 years ago for Peoples State Bank's employee parking lot.

A native of Chenango County, New York, and born at Plymouth in 1816, like many young Easterners, Dimmick worked his way west and came to Michigan in 1837, just in time to witness the change from territorial status to statehood. He was a successful businessman at Detroit for 35 years, took an active role in Republican politics and served as a deputy United States marshal and revenue inspector during the Civil War.

Dimmick's entry on the local scene was at a time when the lumbering industry began to flex its muscles in Northern Michigan. The very existence of the Tawas depended on the product of nearby pine forests and speeding the saw logs to the mills dotting Tawas Bay was of prime importance to the economy of the community.

DEEP CUT of the State Ditch in Wilber Township is pictured above. This was an important project in this area nearly 100 years ago and few people living today know anything of its origination. It was the brainchild of Joseph Dimmick, pioneer East Tawas businessman, who foresaw expansion of tillable farm land through its development.

Through his long experience, this transplanted Easterner was a practical engineer of sorts and he was to become one of the town's leading authorities on matters of drains. Never one to be backward about expressing his opinion to town fathers about community enterprises, Dimmick had his first verbal battle with Baldwin Township officials in 1878. (East Tawas had not been set off from the township at that time, but that will be covered later.)

Mill owners along the bay in the mid-1870s conceived the idea of cutting a channel from the Tawas River through East Tawas, running on a line extending south and east of present day Wilkinson Street, crossing Bay Street and entering the bay just east of today's Genii's Restaurant.

Such a channel, believed the mill owners, would reduce the amount of time required for running logs down the river through Tawas City and then towing them back to East Tawas by steam tug, at extra expense. On paper, the idea for a channel had merit, but to Dimmick, it was a hairbrained scheme. His practiced eye told him the lay of the land in that part of town would not permit logs to be run from the river to the bay.

Despite warnings from Dimmick, township funds were duly used to dig the ditch. The enterprise turned into a folly as, instead of the water running from north to south, as supposed, when the last shovelful of dirt on the south end of the cut was removed, water flowed from Tawas Bay north to Tawas River! Not a log had ever shown any salmon-like instinct to "swim" against the current, the channel soon widened from the onrush of water from Tawas Bay and one-third of East Tawas was covered by flood water.

Dimmick never let Baldwin Township officials forget their error in digging that ditch, but he was to become a champion in promoting another ditch four years later—the State Ditch, which was to successfully drain many thousands of acres and open new farm lands in Wilber Township. That drain was not without its faults as eroding soil soon clogged Tawas Lake!

Few, if any, of today's East Tawas or Wilber Township residents have heard of the perseverance demonstrated by Dimmick in achieving his goal of establishing the State Ditch. Farming does not hold the importance to this region as it did 100 years ago, but without the drain running slightly more than three miles in a southerly direction from Section 16, T23N, R8E, that part of Wilber Township could never have been opened to farming; without the ditch today, considerable recreational deer hunting territory would still be flooded.

According to the September 15, 1881, issue of The Iosco County Gazette, Dimmick "fathered" this project in the 1870s and was instrumental in the introduction of a bill in the state legislature to finance (See DIMMICK, page 6.)

Will Strikes by Public Employees Affect Vote on Tax Cut Proposals?

The more this corner reads about so-called "tax cut" proposals to be offered to voters this November as amendments to Michigan's constitution, the more it believes that adoption of either of the two proposals will hamstring governmental operation at the state and local level.

Transferring taxes from property to personal income should hurt the average wage earner in the long run and large land owners will be the major beneficiaries. A second proposal would slash operating expenses of all government, which would be most popular with taxpayers, but not too practical if carried to the extreme.

However, on the face of the increasing number of strikes by public employees across the land, arguments in opposition to the proposals may be drowned out by voices of increasingly belligerent taxpayers, who are incensed by these strikes.

Last week, striking firemen in an Indiana city of 71,000 stood and watched as a fire engulfed a block-long section of its downtown area. Interviewed over television, one fireman said that in the case of a residential fire, striking firemen would make every effort to save lives, "but the house would have to go." That city's police force was ready to walk out on strike, too.

Although strikes by public service employees are not new, such strikes have become more prevalent in recent years. A number of large cities have been hit by strikes of firemen and police and, right here in Michigan last week, school teachers in several districts withheld services and were picketing schools.

Thirty-seven percent of the state's school districts are still negotiating contracts and teachers of one Calhoun County district defied a circuit court order to report to work.

In the Detroit School District, teachers demanded a nine percent wage increase and a fact finder recommended six percent with another one-half percent for improved fringe benefits. The union said that offer was not acceptable.

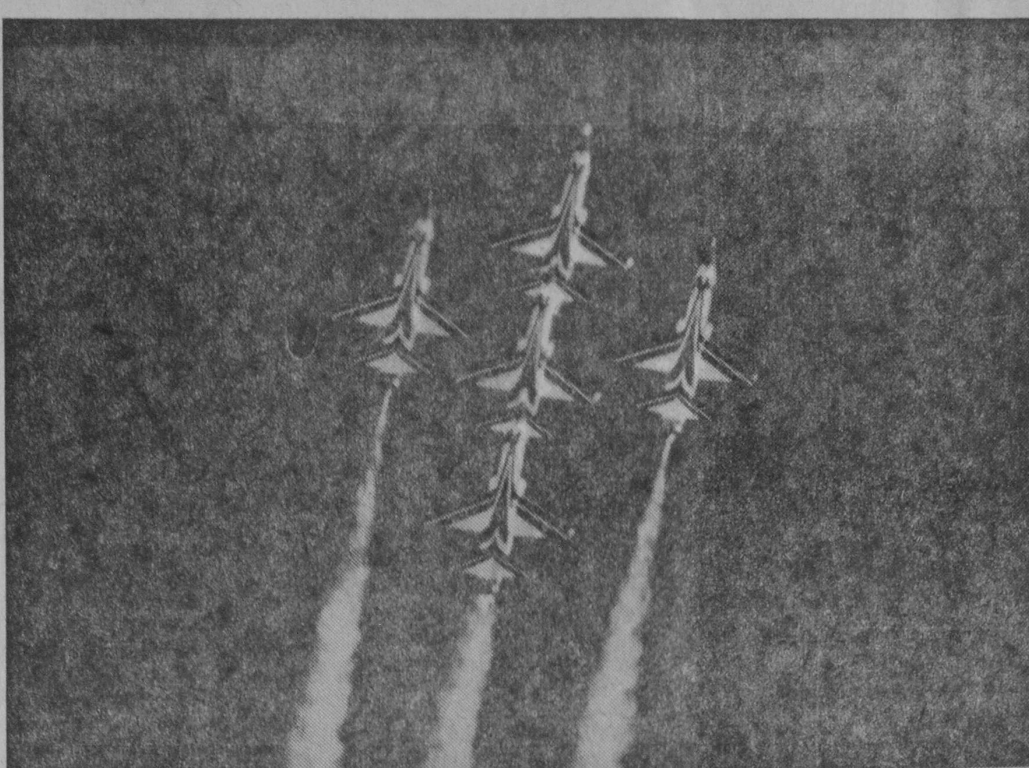

What is not generally admitted is that current contracts with teacher unions contain a clause previously adopted which guarantees a wage increase by means of annual increments.

This country has been backed into a corner by increasing demands by labor in the private and public sector and there really is no end in sight to the world-wide inflationary problem which was heightened in the early 1970s.

The United States has prided itself in its "high standard of living," but the dollar value has dropped dangerously low on the world market, while the Japanese yen and the German mark have supplanted the United States dollar as the "standard."

This fact has become increasingly apparent as Japanese and German imports are expected to reach new highs this fall. No end is in sight as inflation feeds on itself; a rollback in prices and wages is politically impractical and higher wage demands to offset inflation only compounds the problem.

As was stated earlier, the general public is expected to lash back this fall at governmental spending when proposals to amend Michigan's constitution are considered.

THE BEST OPEN HOUSE on record is slated for Wurtsmith Air Force Base on Friday, September 8. Gates open at 10:30 a. m. and are to close at 6:30 p. m. Featured during the program will be the precision flying by the Thunderbirds.

TODAYS Meditation

from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide

(Read Ephesians 4:1-7)

"There is one Lord, one faith, one baptism; there is one God and Father of all mankind, who is Lord of all." (Ephesians 4:5-6 TEV)

As the only youth in a very small church, I decided to seek the companionship of other young Christians in a nearby church on Sunday evenings. Some in my church frowned on the idea, for the other church was of another denomination. But, I went to the other church one Sunday evening and every Sunday evening thereafter for three years. I was, in a sense, a member of two churches.

I listened to and studied all that my friends said. Then, I looked at my own faith to see our differences and similarities. I found that the Bible makes no stipulations about the denominations of those in God's kingdom—only that they believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and live for Him.

I learned from that experience that human beings created denominations—God created the church. So, what if I was a Methodist on Sunday morning and a Baptist on Sunday night as long as I lived as a Christian all week long!

PRAYER

Dear Lord, help us to realize the importance of belonging to Your church and living for You every day. Give us the wisdom and insight to look beyond any denominational barriers to see the wonderful oneness that is ours when we seek communion with others who follow You. In Your name we pray. Amen.

ideas to relieve the brown bag monotony that would otherwise set in after a week of peanut butter and jelly sandwiches. Coming up with a lunch bag surprise once in a while to lift the spirits of the one who is eating that lunch is the desire of every mother.

If all good brown bag resolutions need some support, just think of how important that lunch can be, especially for growing youngsters. They really need a good meal at noon. And if they are skimpy breakfast eaters, lunch becomes doubly important.

There is nothing wrong with that old standby, a peanut butter sandwich. When combined with a glass of milk, a raw carrot and an orange, the nutritional contribution is hard to beat.

For something a bit more imaginative, however, one might try baking pita bread for pocket sandwiches. Or take advantage of the garden with a Vegetarian Deli sandwich.

THE VEGETARIAN DELI

- 2 Slices enriched cracked wheat bread
- 1 Tablespoon dairy sour cream
- 1 Teaspoon horseradish
- Lettuce
- Butter or margarine
- 2 Slices Colby or Monterey Jack cheese slices
- 1 Tomato, sliced
- Sliced fresh mushrooms
- Sliced cucumber
- Salt
- Thin slices onion

Butter bread. Spread bread with sour cream and horseradish. On one bread slice, layer lettuce, cheese slice, tomato, mushrooms, onion and cucumber; sprinkle with salt. Top with second cheese slice and bread. Garnish with corn relish and mixed pickle chips.

NOTE: Other fresh vegetables may be used. These include zucchini, radishes, carrots, green pepper, bean sprouts, red onion and Chinese cabbage.

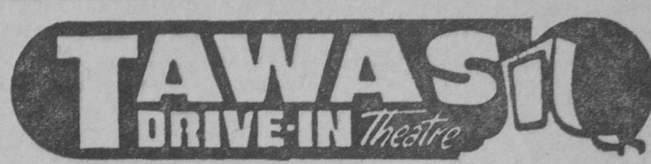

For carried lunches, pack tomato slices separately to avoid a soggy sandwich.

PITA BREAD

- 1 Package active dry yeast
- 1 1/3 Cups warm water (105-115 degrees Fahrenheit)
- 1 Teaspoon salt
- 1/4 Teaspoon sugar
- 1 Tablespoon salad oil
- 3 to 3 1/2 Cups all purpose flour
- Cornmeal (for baking sheets)

Dissolve yeast in warm water in bowl. Stir in salt, sugar, oil and 1 1/2 cups of flour. Beat until smooth. Mix in enough flour to make dough easy to handle. Turn dough onto lightly-floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl; turn greased side up. Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, about one hour. Punch down dough; divide into six equal parts. Shape into balls. Let rise 30 minutes more. Sprinkle three ungreased baking sheets with cornmeal. Roll each ball on lightly-floured surface into circle 1/8 inch thick. Place two circles in opposite corners (diagonally) of each baking sheet. Let rise 30 minutes. Heat oven to 500 degrees Fahrenheit. Bake about 10 minutes or until puffed and light brown. Makes six pitas.

Call us before you move ... you might save unnecessary expense.

If you're planning to move to another home, now's the time to think about how many phones you might need in your new home and what kind of changes you might need in your phone service. A little planning can help you avoid unnecessary installation charges.

Call your Michigan Bell Service Representative. Allow enough time before moving for a full explanation of service and equipment options and time to order the phone service you need when you need it. A NEW BLACKTOP DRIVE was constructed last week in front of Tawas Area Junior and Senior High School. In addition to the above project, Central Paving Company also patched the parking lot at that school and added a blacktop parking strip on the west side of Eighth Avenue at the Tawas City Elementary Unit. —Tawas Herald Photo.

Dimmick

the project through the sale of two sections of state swampland per mile of ditch.

The newspaper article reported that Dimmick had accompanied J. B. Haviland of Traverse City, state swampland commissioner, on a tour of the territory which saw "speedy construction of a state ditch that will convert thousands of acres of swampland into the best tillable soil.

The course of Loud and Indian Creeks was changed to flow into the new ditch on the north end and the drain connected with Silver Creek on the south, flowing eventually into Tawas Lake. Property owners on the lower end of Silver Creek were later to curse the ditch as, running straight as an arrow down nearly three sections of land, Silver Creek was soon choked by sand from the ditch's spring runoff!

Development of a large farm by Judge J. B. Tuttle resulted through development of the ditch, along with many other smaller farms in Wilber Township. A sluice dam was even constructed on the drain to prolong some of the spring runoff water in order to float pine logs to Tawas Lake. (A. G. Leitz, retired conservation officer residing in Baldwin Township, reports that remains of the old sluice dam are still visible.)

Dimmick was to have another verbal battle with local officials in 1881. Besides being an active member of the board of education, he had served several terms as supervisor of Baldwin Township and was an outspoken foe of setting off East Tawas from the township and incorporating the community as a village.

At the very time his efforts were bearing fruit on completion of the State Ditch, he was involved in a war of words in the local press.

Differing points of view were published in the local newspaper concerning incorporation of East Tawas and, while letters only bore the pseudonym of the writer, letters signed by "Justice" were distinctly those of Joseph Dimmick.

Giving his views on incorporation petitions being circulated, "Justice" (Dimmick) wrote as follows on July 14, 1881: "A few interested parties, who had an axe to grind, set out on foot: induced a few others to thoughtlessly sign a petition—as they might probably sign their death warrant without examination—and a few others, who Micawber-like, were waiting for something to turn up, and smelling the flesh pots from afar off, proceeded to affix their autographs with acclarity.

"When asked, do you want the people of East Tawas saddled with an annual tax of some two or three thousand dollars simply to gratify a few lazy louts whose principal business will be to audit their own bills and play the devil generally with this community, the gentleman with characteristic modesty, replies, 'incorporation is simply a certain number of citizens acting as one for the benefit and welfare of the community at large and, from time to time, various matters are brought before them for their consideration, and thus the welfare and interests of our village are conserved far better and more effectively than they can possibly be under present circumstances.'

"It is the decided opinion of your humble correspondent," wrote Dimmick, "that the people who are governed least are governed best. Let us continue in our unassuming way—every man doing all that in him lies for the building up of the village by individual effort and, when he has done so, do not, for God's sake, characterize him as doing all for selfish gain and allow yourself to hang back in the breeching, doing nothing yourself but howl 'Incorporation!'

"Does not any man, who has five grains of common sense, know that one dollar judiciously expended by an individual will go farther than two expended by a corporation? Is it not patent to everyone that corporations are considered free plunder? Let us do away with such tomfoolery; let us throw this expensive bauble to the dogs and be content to live in the sphere that God and nature designed for us, and thereby escape the fate of the frog in the fable, who desired to tell how big the ox was which he had seen and illustrated it by swelling to the size of the ox, bursting itself in the attempt."

Dimmick's verbal battles in the columns of the local newspaper with other letter writers signing themselves, "Amicus," "Juxta," "Taxpayer" and "Taxpayer from the Ditch" are rare forms of invective in print. A handbill published by Dimmick opposing incorporation is preserved in the Joseph Barkman collection and now in the Iosco County Museum.

Citizens of East Tawas apparently were of the same mind as "Justice"—he held a public meeting to further his views—incorporation of a village failed by a vote of the people in 1881. Dimmick died on June 16, 1887, four months after voters approved incorporation and named Temple Emery as the first village president.

At that first village election in February 1887, Dimmick was elected a trustee. "The loss of his wise counsel in the beginning of our village government will be felt by the board as well as by the people," lamented his obituary printed in the local newspaper.

If it were possible to communicate with the departed at rest in Greenwood Cemetery, it would be interesting to learn of Dimmick's views on the proposed merger of the Tawas—it would be an understatement to say that he would be outspoken concerning the proposal.
