

Fishermen Stranded on Bay Ice

Between 25 and 50 perch fishermen—the numbers vary according to reports—found themselves afloat on a large shelf of ice which broke away from the shore of Tawas Point Friday morning and began floating out into the bay.

Iosco County Sheriff's Department reported that most of the fishermen jumped into the chest-deep water, which was about 40 degrees in temperature and the air at about 42 degrees, and waded back to shore.

Marine enforcement officers from the sheriff's department went out to the floating ice flow to rescue five fishermen stranded more than 100 yards from shore.

United States Coast Guard officials at Tawas Point said that warnings had been issued concerning the unsafe condition of the ice, but those intent on taking advantage of good fishing conditions apparently did not notice the ice moving out.

Wind was not a factor in the shift of the ice and it is believed that water current caused the shelf to start its move.

FISHERMEN seeking brown trout in Tawas Bay last week-end jostled boats through a broken ice floe at the mouth of the Tawas River, shown above. Thomas Curtis of Prudenville still leads the fishing derby sponsored by Tawas Area Chamber of Commerce with a brown trout weighing nine pounds, 5/4 ounces. Robert Delaney of Auburn registered an eight-pound, 15-ounce brown; Charles Drumm, West Branch, landed an eight-pound, 13-ounce brown, fishing from a boat near the Michigan Waterways Commission Dock; Hugo Keiser III, Tawas City, caught a seven-pound, 15 1/2-ounce brown south of the Tawas River. Robert Sutkowi of Bay City caught two lake trout at the Tawas City Park dock, one weighing nine pounds, 15 ounces, and the second weighing nine pounds, 20 ounces. Fishing action is expected to increase this week-end.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Budget Increase Projected for City

Budget preparation time has again rolled around for Tawas City officials and City Mgr. Lowell Thomas presented tentative expenditures and revenue figures he expects for 1979-80 at Monday night's city council meeting.

This is the new city manager's first experience in preparing a budget for this city and information presented to councilmen Monday night was extensive, representing considerable work at city hall for the past few weeks.

Because of a number of expenditures and programs made or initiated during the current year, which were not budgeted at the start of the year, plus the effect of inflation, the tentative general fund budget is $21,061 higher than projected current year expenditures.

To be completed during the next few days is a budget for the capital improvement fund and a budget for the water-sewer department. The latter is financed through revenue from that department.

Councilmen will be studying Thomas' proposal during the next week and a special meeting is to be held April 30 to review his recommendations.

According to terms of the city charter, the council has until May 21 to adopt a budget for the next fiscal year, which is to be preceded by a public hearing.

Thomas' preliminary report indicated that actual general fund expenditures for the current year are expected to be $293,936 by June 31, as compared to a budget of $256,990 adopted a year ago.

Based on his study of those expenditures during the past year, the city manager is recommending adoption of a $315,000 general fund budget, with projected revenues to match. Included in the above budget is debt service, capital improvement fund and streets.

This budget would be financed through a property tax levy of $152,558, as compared to the current year's tax levy of $122,200 raised on a tax rate of 15.1 mills.

Tawas City's new tax base, as reflected by the county equalization department's report, has risen from $13,176,320 to $14,404,601.

During the current year, the council authorized a number of expenditures which were not budgeted last May, including purchase of the former Graystone property at the river mouth and the addition of several new pieces of equipment for the department of public works.

The city treasury started the current year with a surplus of $96,000, including some federal revenue sharing funds, and the surplus expected at the end of the current year is projected between $40,000 and $45,000.

Thomas told councilmen that he would have a recommended street construction program for 1979-80 for presentation at the April 30 meeting.

East Tawas Orders Enforcement of Cleanup Codes

Enforcement of two ordinances was directed Monday night by the East Tawas Council.

Police Chief Donald Docking reported that 120 vehicles were in violation of the city's junk car ordinance.

In addition, Coun. Jacob Montgomery was directed to work with Chief Docking and the building inspector to cause removal of unsafe, uninhabitable and unsightly dwellings scattered around the community.

The council gave formal approval to a $90,000 proposal from the Iosco County Road Commission for the city's purchase of the former road commission garage on West Westover Street.

The city paid $30,000 down on the purchase and is to retire the balance on annual payments of $12,000 over the next five years, specifying a rate of six percent interest on the unpaid balance.

Coun. Ralph Western and the ordinance committee were directed to study a request from Lincoln Street residents for cable television service along that street.

Mayor Robert Bolen proclaimed the first week of May as Knights of Columbus Week in recognition of that organization's 50th anniversary.

City officials are presently working with postal authorities in an effort to relocate postal drop boxes presently located along Newman Street in front of the post office.

The council voted unanimously to present a plaque to Ronald Klinger, who retired from his service on the city council.

Distinguished Public Servant

Rites Held Saturday for Retired Circuit Judge

Herman Dehnke, 91, of Harrisville, one of Northeastern Michigan's most distinguished public servants for more than 45 years, died Tuesday, April 10, at Midland.

He was judge of Michigan's 23rd judicial circuit for 32 years, served the state as a one-man grand juror on several occasions and was a member of the Michigan Constitutional Convention in 1961-62.

Born November 16, 1887, in Henry County, Ohio, he moved to Alcona County with his parents in 1905. He was a teacher in rural schools of Alcona County and then attended Ferris Institute and Valparaiso Law School, graduating in June of 1912.

He married Maude F. Dodge on September 1, 1913, at Harrisville.

Serving as Alcona County prosecuting attorney from 1915 until 1927, he was elected circuit judge that year and served until 1959.

Following his retirement, he served the state as a delegate to the Michigan Constitutional Convention.

Active in many organizations, he was a past president of the Michigan Judges Association, past president of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and past secretary of the National Tuberculosis Association.

A past grand master of Michigan Odd Fellows, he was a member of the Masons, Grange and Harrisville Lions Club.

He moved to Midland about six months ago.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, Theodore H. Dehnke of Knoxville, Tennessee, and Carl B. of St. Cloud, Minnesota; two daughters, Mrs. Gordon (Spray) Clack of Midland, Mrs. William (Grace) Ogden of Traverse City; 15 grandchildren, and seven great grandchildren.

Services were held Saturday, April 14, from Westminster Presbyterian Church, Harrisville.

Council Drops Amendment; Enforce TC Junk Car Code

Enforcement of a junk car ordinance, which has apparently given the Tawas City Council a siege of its since last summer, again came up for lengthy discussion at its meeting Monday night.

In past discussions, only those persons opposed to enforcement of the city's revised ordinance have been heard; at Monday night's meeting, a property owner expressed the opinion that the ordinance should be enforced.

At its last meeting, the council directed the city manager to prepare an amendment to the ordinance which would permit a property owner to restore old cars out-of-doors and on his own property under a permit system controlled by the city; a three to two roll call vote, however, directed the city manager to cause enforcement of Ordinance No. 189 as written.

During discussion on the proposed amendment, the city manager reported that he had discussed the proposal with the city attorney, who advised that the change would give discretionary powers to the city and the end result would be that the ordinance could never be enforced against any violation.

The city manager advised the council not to adopt the proposed amendment, but suggested that objectionable discretionary powers could be removed from the wording by granting a specific period of time for all cars to be removed.

Coun. Donald Hayes, who proposed the amendment, said that this would completely defeat the purpose of his idea to permit owners to restore cars on their own property under city control as it would permit other junk cars to remain for the same period. He felt some leeway should be given to those persons restoring cars.

The city manager said that, from a practical standpoint, Hayes' proposal would work, but one uncooperative person could test the ordinance in court and it could be thrown out due to the discretionary power.

Arthur Krass, motel owner, expressed the opinion that the junk car ordinance should be enforced because of the growing number of junked cars at two business places in his neighborhood. He said he pays taxes, too, and believed that junk or wrecked vehicles should be kept under cover, as provided by the ordinance.

Mayor Herbert Cholger, who was cited under the ordinance last summer for storing his antique automobile at the rear of his property, said he intends to remove his car due to planned landscaping. He felt, however, that the principal objection was to an accumulation of junked vehicles or anything that would make a yard unsightly. He felt that the ordinance should be enforced to keep the street clean, "but anything in the property owner's own back yard is his own problem."

The city manager said that, although it may be a hardship in some cases for persons restoring cars, he felt that adjoining property owners should have protection against unsightly outdoor storage of vehicles. In the long run, he said, it would be best to enforce the present ordinance.

The mayor felt that diplomacy could be used in asking property owners to remove vehicles in violation of the ordinance, but Coun. Robert Rollin pointed out that several businesses were in violation, that a strong ordinance was needed, that the city had begged violators to remove those vehicles, then threatened legal action when no action was taken. He felt the ordinance should be enforced.

A motion to enforce the ordinance was adopted upon a roll call vote: "Yes"—Councilmen Rollin, James Lansky and Charles Landon; "no"—Cholger and Hayes.

Essentially, the ordinance provides that it is unlawful to park or for an owner of property to permit any junked, inoperable, wrecked or abandoned motor vehicle on any property unless the vehicle bears a valid and current registration and license plate.

District Health Appoints New Medical Officer

Hiring of Paul J. Christenson, M. D., as the new health officer-medical director for the four-county District Health Department No. 2 is announced this week. The appointment was effective Monday.

Lloyd T. Wiegierink, M. D., has been acting medical director and Albert L. Kinstrey, administrator, has been acting health officer since the death of the previous director in 1977.

Interim appointments were required under state law until a full time health officer-medical director could be recruited and hired.

This is the first time in 10 years that the district health department has a health officer-medical director of its own as it had been sharing that position during that span of time.

Christenson most recently was employed in the same capacity with the Ottawa County Health Department and resided at Spring Lake. He will be stationed at West Branch in the main office of the department.

Auto Negligence

Suits Filed in Iosco

Two auto negligence suits have been filed in Iosco County Circuit Court. No specific damages have been demanded in either case.

Jeffrey Drumm, by next friend, Reata Drumm, commenced suit against William H. Look Jr. and William Look and Sons, Incorporated, East Tawas.

Drumm, 18 years of age, was a passenger in a car November 15, 1977, driven by Debra A. Bygden of Tawas City. The car was involved in a crash with the East Tawas firm's wrecker on US-23 at Wheeler Street, Tawas City.

Sylvia J. Balanger and Bernard J. Balanger, East Tawas, filed suit against Allen E. Hilliard, Oscoda, involving an auto collision on P-41 near Lodge Road, Oscoda Township.

New 'First Choice' for Fire Hall Site

The municipal well site at the corner of First Avenue and North Street has been dropped as the first choice as location for a proposed new fire hall, according to a report Monday night by members of a committee appointed by the mayor to make recommendations.

Arthur Ziehl, committee chairman, said he had received a number of calls following the last council meeting when the committee named that city-owned lot as its first choice for a fire department headquarters.

Neighbors, said Ziehl, felt that the single lot was too small as it provided no room for expansion, if needed. The committee investigated possible purchase of an adjoining lot to the west and learned that it was not for sale.

Ziehl told councilmen that if the well house building was removed from the site, the property would possibly be large enough for fire department use, but no decision has been made as yet concerning the future of the well. It had been used for stand-by purposes until completion of the new water system.

As a result, the committee's first choice for a fire barn is the city-owned athletic field directly across North Street at the corner of First Avenue. At one time, this property was considered as the location for a new municipal complex, but considerable opposition was heard. The city has been considering construction of new recreational facilities west of the Knothole League diamonds near the elementary school unit, but no plans are in the works.

Ziehl said his committee had studied at least eight sites. The committee felt the North Street area was the proper location for a fire hall due to its access to high valuation property. He felt that the present lack of a bridge over the Tawas River at North Street and need for a new bridge across Dead Creek on Sixth Avenue would have no bearing on the choice of locations in the North Street area for a new fire hall.

The committee's second choice for a site was the corner of Fifth Avenue and North Street, which was recently sold. The third choice was Lots 6-7 on Fifth Avenue next to Anna Drive. Other sites mentioned included property on the west side of Fifth Avenue at North Street, the former Campbell Store building on Mathews Street. The committee listed the present city hall as its last choice for a fire hall.

According to an update from the city manager, the city may not need its current four pieces of fire apparatus in the future, presently housed at the city hall and in a building rented south of the US-23 bridge.

Both Tawas and Alabaster Townships have agreed to extend the current fire protection contract for one year, but Tawas Township is to hold a special hearing April 25 to give consideration to establishment of its own fire department.

This action is being considered by the township due to the increased cost of fire protection under the new contract with the city.

Chopsticks were first used in China in the fourth century B.C. According to research conducted by Chun King, use of chopsticks began because of the way Chinese food is prepared. It is cut into small pieces before cooking necessitating the need for utensils.

Chopsticks reveal heritage of China

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — To those unfamiliar with Oriental terms, k'uai-tzu might sound like the name of a new martial art or next season's replacement for Kung-Fu. But it is actually the name of the second most popular eating utensil in the United States and, by a wide margin, the most widely used eating utensil in the world.

K'uai-tzu (pronounced kwi-zu), or chopsticks, were used in China in the fourth century B.C., long before Europeans stopped eating with their hands.

"Today, chopsticks remain the most popular eating utensil in China, Japan, Korea, Vietnam and other East Asian countries influenced by Chinese culture," says Ralph Perry, Chun King brand manager, "while here in the United States, they rank behind the knife and fork in eating utensil popularity."

Historians believe the use of chopsticks began because of the way Chinese food is prepared. Generally meats and vegetables are cut into small pieces before being served which eliminates the need for a knife at the dinner table.

Usually about eight inches long, chopsticks are normally made of wood or bamboo, although modern ones may be made of plastic. More elaborate pairs are made of enameled wood, ivory or bone, and have even been known to be made out of gold, brass and silver.

"Through centuries of use, chopsticks have also been associated with many superstitions or practices," Perry points out.

Chopsticks have been used as gift items between friends, sometimes decorated with inscribed poetry or painted with good luck designs. A gift of chopsticks to newlyweds suggests a wish that the couple will quickly have children.

"Also, it is still common for a pair of chopsticks to be placed upright in the bowl of rice offered at a memorial service for the dead," adds the Chun King executive. "The chopsticks thus mark the sacredness of the offered rice, and also are a sign to prevent the coming of evil spirits to disturb the peace of the dead."

The word "chop" is derived from k'uai, which means "quick" or "speedy," but many people experience just the opposite when they use them.

But mastering the Oriental art of chopsticks is not difficult, as some believe. All it takes is practice.

Beginners can learn to best maneuver chopsticks by starting with frozen egg rolls, heated crisp and savory.

Funeral Held for Robert Walkowski

Funeral services for Robert A. Walkowski of East Tawas will be conducted Thursday, April 19, at 10:30 a. m. from Jacques and Kobs East Chapel, East Tawas, and at 11 o'clock from St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The Rev. Fr. William Beitz will officiate and burial will be in the church cemetery.

Mr. Walkowski was born January 10, 1904, at Grand Rapids and expired Monday, April 16, at Saginaw General Hospital.

He was a barber in Saginaw for 25 years and was employed at Chevrolet Service Parts for another 25 years before retiring in 1967 and moving to the Tawas area. His wife, the former Helen Novak, whom he married in 1928, predeceased him in 1967.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Donald (Patricia) Pietrzak of Saginaw; two grandchildren, and two sisters, Virginia McWhirter of Melbourne, Florida, and Genevieve Smith of Hollywood, Florida.

Memory Gardens Cemetery.

At a meeting of the zoning board of appeals April 10, an ordinance variance was granted to Immaculate Heart of Mary Church to construct a new rectory in a B-2 business district.

Proposed site of the rectory is the school building east of the church, which is to be razed.

City Mgr. Lowell Thomas said that the variation was consistent with the city's future use plan, which shows use of that property by the church.

A letter from Harold Moeller asked the city to repair or replace a sidewalk on the east side of Whittemore Street at city expense. He claimed the city's snow removal crew had damaged the sidewalk over the years, that the sidewalk had been damaged by cars and trucks and the city had removed guard posts protecting the sidewalk.

The city manager was directed to review the city ordinance. Mayor Herbert Cholger said that the City of Saginaw had taken over all sidewalk maintenance work and believed that such a plan here would encourage property owners to construct new sidewalks.

Consideration is to be given April 30 on a proposal to renew an option on property west of the city hall for a parking lot to be financed through establishment of a special assessment district. This property had been optioned originally by the city for future expansion of the city hall site.

Word from the state highway department reveals that the city's share of a proposed new drainage system along US-23 south of the Tawas River has risen from $48,000 to $136,000. An updated estimate from the state indicates that total cost of the drainage would be $560,000.

This project has been considered for a number of years, but the cost is zooming out of sight. Recent word from the state highway department has indicated that plans for US-23 from Townline Road east are not certain at this point. It was stated that a by-pass may be considered in the proposed highway widening program, but this would not occur until 1986.

Because of the higher cost, the city may give consideration to construction of its own storm sewer system to relieve a drainage problem on Margo Street, possibly on a special assessment basis for financing.

A resolution was adopted guaranteeing use of the city garage for five years in order to become eligible for a $3,000 energy conservation grant for that building. Work has already been completed on the project.

The city manager said City Clerk Rachel Sue McCreedy should get "an A for effort" for sending a letter recently to the state boundary commission asking the state to reimburse $566.90 to the city as the expense for holding the recently defeated merger election with East Tawas. The request was denied by the boundary commission.

According to minutes of its last meeting, the council was called back to order following an executive session and named the city clerk as the full time administrative assistant to the city manager.

YOUR GARDEN

How To Grow Tomatoes

Tomato seeds should be sown indoors about eight weeks before the date of the last expected frost. Sow them one-eighth of an inch deep in flats or pots, and when the seedlings are about an inch tall, transplant them to individual three- to four-inch pots. Keep them moist and in a warm, sunny spot. Seedlings are also available at garden centers. Choose sturdy plants in uncrowded flats.

Dig a hole for each plant—six inches deep and two feet in diameter for early tomatoes, three feet for later ones. In the bottom of each hole, place a two-inch layer of compost or damp peat moss mixed with a handful of fertilizer and some of the topsoil you dug up.

Set any trellises or stakes in the ground before planting.

Set out your seedlings when nighttime temperatures are above 55° F. Set each plant deeply in the ground, burying most of the stem. Immediately after planting, pour in one cupful of a half-strength liquid fertilizer, and protect each plant with a proper collar. If the weather turns cold, cover plants at night with newspaper tents.

According to the experts who write the Reader's Digest Illustrated Guide to Gardening, an easy-to-read authority for gardeners, you should cover the ground with a thick mulch to help keep the soil moist and prevent weed growth.

TASTY TOMATOES can come from your garden to perk up your family's meals.

Summer Youth Employment Program Receives Funding

A Summer Youth Employment Program (SYEP), designed to aid economically disadvantaged youths between the ages of 14 and 21 years, is being outlined by Region 7B Employment and Training Consortium staff at Harrison.

The consortium has been allocated $1,001,958 in CETA funds for operating the program in Arenac, Clare, Gladwin, Gratiot, Iosco, Isabella, Midland, Ogemaw and Roscommon Counties. Region 7B offices in those nine counties will be open from 9:00 a. m. to 12 noon on Saturdays, May 5-12-19, to accept intake applications for the 10-week program. The offices are open 8:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. Monday through Friday. Youths may also register at local schools during May.

This year four components, work experience, vocational education, remedial reading, mathematics and public information programs will be offered to eligible youths.

Participants will receive minimum wages for hours worked with 14 and 15-year-olds working up to 25 hours per week; 16 and 17-year-olds up to 35 hours, and 18 to 21-year-olds up to 40 hours per week.

Work sites for work experience programs will be selected and identified as the plans progress. Vocational education and remedial reading and mathematics programs will be operated by local schools and educational institutions on a contract with Region 7B.

Region 7B Counselors will screen students for CETA eligibility requirements. Eligibility will be verified prior to enrollment.

Two participants (17 years of age or over) from each county will be assigned to the public information program. Recruitment and eligibility for these positions will follow work experience guidelines. Participants will be introduced to the field of photography as well as journalism.

Three public information coordinators and additional counselors will be employed for the summer, as Region 7B staff, to coordinate the efforts of youths participating in the Summer Youth Employment Program (SYEP).

"The SYEP will provide eligible youth with useful work experience to assist them in developing their maximum occupational potential needed to obtain unsubsidized employment," says Roberta Volker, Region 7B administrative director.

Three Oaks Sends Letter to Tawas A.

A letter from an administrator at River Valley School District, Three Oaks, was received this week commending athletes, students and school personnel for their splendid behavior at and after the state class C semifinal game recently at Ann Arbor.

John J. Dooley, assistant superintendent at Three Oaks, said, "We appreciated an opponent like Tawas. Its athletes were well prepared, played a clean, hard-fought game and were certainly a credit to their community and families."

"We were fortunate enough to win the semifinal game, but the character revealed by the Tawas team was exemplary. As an example, when our team returned to the hotel after the championship game, the entire Tawas team met them at the elevator, applauding and congratulating them. Our team could have received no finer accolade from an opponent.

"On behalf of our team, our school and our community, we would appreciate it if you would help us inform your community, as we have informed our community that Tawas Area Schools has some mighty fine people," said Dooley. The letter was sent to Walter W. Schultz Jr., Tawas Lanes, who was a classmate of Dooley.

The letter was also signed by James White, athletic director, and Jerry Schaffer, basketball coach at Three Oaks.

Unique in its application, a scale model home showing the use of all types of trusses from floor trusses to the various types of roof trusses which can be used in the construction of residential as well as business buildings was utilized for instruction and demonstration purposes at a seminar held for dealers and building officials in areas serviced by Schaaf Lumber Company of East Tawas, sponsor and host.

Held at the Redwood Motor Lodge, Lewiston, the seminar was attended by some 55 dealer representatives and 30 county building officials, as well as company personnel. Conducting the all day seminar was Robert Harrison, Schaaf field representative. Included in the afternoon session, Paul Johnson, state building inspector, gave the assembly valuable information as to updated building code requirements and application.

Attending from this area were Floyd Schaaf, Marjorie Schaaf, Kim Otto, Daniel Phillips, Arnold Hoshbach and Shirley Goupil of Schaaf Lumber Company. Representing Schreck Lumber Company were Neil Mochty, East Tawas yard; Robert Hackborn, Lincoln yard, and Keith Egresics, Rose City yard.

Equalization Report Set Today

A total equalization property valuation of $251,956,928 is expected to be adopted today by the County Board of Commissioners. Theoretically, this represents one-half of the county's true cash value and is used as the tax base. The total includes $233,260,744 in real property, 11 percent higher than the previous year, and $18,696,184 in personal property, an increase of 1.0628 percent.

Hospital Goal Narrows

ONE STEP CLOSER to raising the $400,000 for the expansion program at Tawas Hospital was taken Thursday when United States Gypsum Company pledged $10,000 to the campaign. Shown presenting the check to Paul Dude, right, hospital administrator, is Harry Ainsworth, left, works manager at Alabaster. Standing at center is Timothy O'Connor, drive chairman, who reported that $220,000 had been raised toward the goal, which is scheduled to be completed by June 1.—Tawas Herald Photo.

All units have equalization factors for real property and personal property is equalized as assessed in all units, reports John D. Rose, equalization department director.

Although real property in part of the county has been reappraised, individual units followed the equalization director's recommendation to use multiplying factors until such time as appraisal work has been completed in the entire county.

The City of Whittemore led all other units in assessing at a rate nearest 50 percent. Whittemore's real ratio was 46.11 percent and received a factor of only 1.0844. Tawas City was next with a ratio of 44.54 percent and a factor of 1.1226.

Grant Township was hit with the highest factor, about 51.5 percent, based on a real ratio of 33.00, while Oscoda Township was next from the bottom in assessing with a factor of 1.4971 and a real ratio of 33.40.

Factors were provided for each taxing unit by the equalization department, based on sales and a random sampling of appraisals in each unit.

The following report is based on figures presented by the equalization department for adoption today:

An Amateur Detective Aided Police in Solving Iosco's

MOST BAFFLING MURDER

IN THE EARLY SUMMER of 1936, Iosco County residents were shocked by the brutal murder of the little boy pictured at right. There were no real clues and the case rested for four years until it was finally cracked by Nellie Brooks, left, of Tawas City, an amateur sleuth, who began her investigation after an offhand comment was made to her. The startling results are told below.

The most sensational crime in Iosco County's history—the murder of a 10-year-old boy in June 1936—baffled local and state authorities for four years. Then, in February 1940, there was a startling break in the case when a confession was made.

Although that confession was later repudiated, in 1940 it was admitted as evidence in a circuit court trial here. Both the confession and the trial received sensational handling in the press; in one instance, the bench severely rebuked the defendant's attorney for editorializing on the case through the columns of a newspaper.

The defendant was convicted of manslaughter by an Iosco Circuit Court jury, but the case proved to be extremely controversial. Circumstances surrounding the boy's death aroused much public indignation and much excitement was created four years later over the manner in which the confession was gained.

This featurette deals primarily with the confession and how it was obtained—not through the work of trained police officers—but through the unflagging efforts of a Tawas businesswoman turned amateur detective, who became suspicious over a chance remark made to her in 1939.

The murder of the 10-year-old fairly exploded on the front pages of Michigan newspapers that sweltering June and July of 1936. Because of the shocking details surrounding the mystery, top-notch investigative reporters flocked to the area, all bent on gaining fame by finding some clue to break the case.

Included was a writer for Official Detective Stories, a twice-monthly 10-cent magazine which printed sensational accounts of such tragedies.

The magazine was to offer a reward of $500 "to the reader—amateur detective, private detective, municipal detective or other professional investigator—who supplies information that, in the opinion of the judges, will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person guilty of committing this heinous crime, through presentation of the evidence in full to this publication, Official Detective Stories."

In addition, The Detroit Times and The Detroit News each offered $500 cash rewards for information leading to an arrest and conviction.

The newspaper rewards were never collected, but receiving the $500 reward from the magazine in August 1941—five years after it was originally offered—was Nellie Brooks of Tawas City, a business-

FOUR YEARS AFTER this sensational account of an Iosco County murder appeared in Official Detective Magazine, a confession to the crime resulted and a Tawas businesswoman received the $500 reward offered in the magazine's story. The trial in circuit court proved to be most controversial.

woman intensely interested in criminal investigation.

"Fiend Leaves Few Clues in Get-A-Way," blared the headline in the July 3, 1936, issue of The Tawas Herald. On Saturday, June 27, three men setting for minnows in the AuGres River near the intersection of M-55 and Corriegan Road in Reno Township, found the mutilated body of a boy, who had been missing since the previous Monday.

The youth had been visiting with relatives here for five months on the fateful day of his death. He had accompanied his aunt down to the pasture to get the cows, but then walked off toward the river. When he did not return home for the evening meal, a search was made of the area. He was not found and relatives came to the conclusion that he may have hitchhiked a ride back to Detroit—he had done it once before. State police at West Branch were notified the next morning when a telephone call revealed that he had not arrived at Detroit.

Following discovery of the boy's body four days later, the area was crawling with police officers. Among the first to arrive were Sheriff John F. Moran, Undersheriff Harry Rollin and Coroner W. A. Evans, all of Iosco County; Capt. Joseph F. Kearney, district commander, arrived with a detail of officers from the Michigan State Police Post at Bay City. Joining Kearney was Cpl. Hiram Grimason of the West Branch post and Lt. Philip Hutson, noted manhunter from the state police criminal investigation bureau at East Lansing.

Several hundred CCC boys from Camp Silver Creek assisted investigators by making a sweep through the area looking for clues—stopping when they saw anything out of place, a trained investigator took over.

Under supervision of Cons. Officer A. G. Leitz, the stream was dammed in order that the pool where the body was found might be pumped out to look for evidence. No clues were found, although speculation ran high in newspaper accounts every time something was picked up by the searchers.

The investigation was to continue day and night through the next week and the Herald was to comment in its coverage: "In this crime, which could have been lifted from the pages of Edgar Allan Poe, the killer seems to have planned a shrewd and cunning getaway from the scene."

Hundreds of leads were run down and police officers conducted a painstaking investigation of known deviates, both in this area and other parts of the state. In the excitement, unfortunately, neighbors pointed accusing fingers at other neighbors.

An inquest was conducted by Justice of the Peace H. Read Smith, assisted by Coroner Evans and Prosecutor John A. Stewart, in an attempt to coax out information not previously uncovered. Nothing not already known was learned.

A thorough investigation of every angle of the case was made for several weeks, but the crime baffled officers. Weeks passed and the murder was permitted to rest temporarily in the hope that, sooner or later, persons with knowledge of the crime would volunteer assistance.

There the case rested until February 23, 1940, when state police at East Tawas announced that a confession to the crime had been made by a person who had once lived on a farm not far from the pond where the boy's body had been found.

"The confession was wrung from the defendant through the efforts of Nellie Brooks, a businesswoman of Tawas City and East Tawas, who had become suspicious through a remark made some time ago," reported the Herald. That chance remark was that the person "could tell her about the murder."

Earlier, Mrs. Brooks had befriended the person involved and furnished employment in the Brooks Exchange Store on Newman Street. After becoming suspicious that the subject possibly knew pertinent facts about the crime, Mrs. Brooks informed state police and Sheriff Moran. She then proceeded to learn what the subject knew, requiring about 45 days of her own investigation.

A bizarre angle developed in the case when the suspect apparently wished to sell a story concerning the crime, which Mrs. Brooks encouraged. This led to a trip to Bay City by the suspect, the amateur detective and Grimason. There, the suspect met Captain Kearney, in mufti, who was introduced as a writer.

The suspect then told the story, but Kearney said it was of no interest to him because he believed it had been copied from a story he had "written" for a detective magazine. Kearney said that for the story to have value, he would have to receive information concerning the person who killed the boy. That ended the interview.

A week later, the climax was reached when the suspect made a signed confession before the state police and Mrs. Brooks. Reported the Herald on March 1, 1940: "Without the fine cooperation and assistance from Mrs. Brooks to the officers and the State of Michigan, (See MURDER CASE, page 6.)

SOME OF MICHIGAN'S top criminologists, including Lt. Philip Hutson, ace manhunter from the state police criminal investigation bureau at East Lansing, converged on Iosco County on June 27, 1936, to aid in a murder investigation. Finally, police were completely baffled as to who committed the crime. "Look for a powerful man who lives by or at least knows the lay of this land," was the suggestion of Sheriff John Moran. Capt. Joseph F. Kearney, district commander of the state police who directed the investigation, realized that a dead end had been reached and utilized an idea which paid off four years later. Officers in the above picture are watching CCC boys combing the area for clues. Ace Manhunter Hutson is at far right.

Editorials— Bottle Bill is Working

Michigan's new bottle bill is working, despite reports to the contrary from industry critics seeking to overturn a mandate of the people.

Evidence that the new law is working is easily obtainable by "eyeballing" ditches along roads in Iosco County. There are fewer bottles and cans littering the roadside this spring and the few returnables to be found will be picked up before too long and turned into cash.

A preliminary report released last week by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources estimates that the new bottle bill has also resulted in at least a 4.5 percent reduction in solid waste refuse. A conservative estimate places the savings to Michigan taxpayers at around $15,000,000.

The important thing for industry critics of the bill requiring mandatory deposits on beverage containers to remember is the fact that Michigan voters, by an overwhelming majority, directed implementation of the new law. For too many years, the state legislature failed to follow the wishes of the people and action was required through an amendment to the state constitution.

In the meantime, all citizens should cooperate in the massive state-wide litter removal effort to be coordinated by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs. That program is expected to enlist some 200,000 volunteers from 4,000 participating groups.

Various clubs in Iosco County will be cooperating in this program and every citizen should support it.

Poor Judgment by Fishermen

Friday morning's near disaster on Tawas Bay should set some brains to thinking. The public should demand that governmental agencies—federal, state, county or township authorities—must exercise some control over foolhardy fishermen, who endanger their own lives and the lives of others.

Perhaps nothing in the form of legislation can prevent a recurrence—it might be a matter of again taking away the rights of people—but local fishermen, at least, should have enough common sense not to venture out on the ice of Tawas Bay at this time of year.

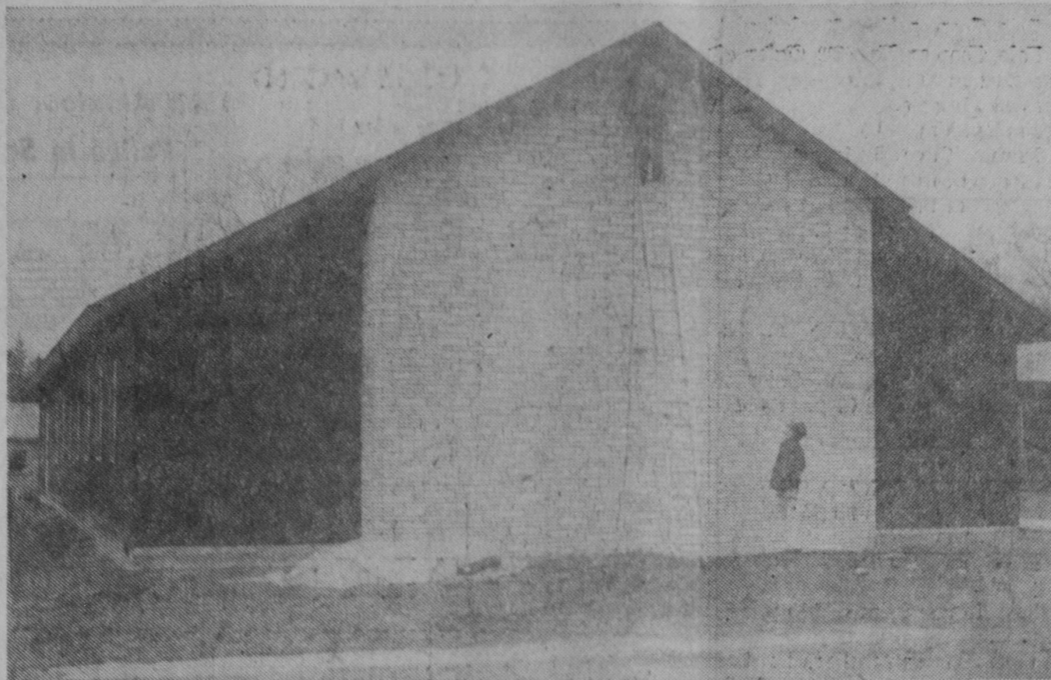

The problem is that fishermen are a lot like lemmings—those little arctic mice which follow each other to their own destruction. In the case of the rodents, it is nature's way to prevent over-population, say scientists; in the case of fishermen, it is caused by one person going out on unsafe ice, observed from shore to be catching fish and then followed by swarms of other fishermen.

All the fish in Tawas Bay and Lake Huron are not worth the life of one person, yet there are those who will venture out on the ice and risk their lives. Some might say, "Let them kill themselves," but that is nonsense and there will be some risking their own lives trying to help others.

A few months ago, this newspaper prepared an article concerning the worst marine disaster on Tawas Bay when, 35 years ago, nine young people were drowned. On Friday, this area could have had its worst disaster in history.

It is nothing new as there has been numerous close calls over the years. One year, the fishermen placed a plank over a wide crack in the ice and then went fishing on the outer edge of the ice. The coast guard had to go out to perform the rescue that spring.

Whatever happens, this corner hopes that fishermen have learned and will remember the lesson. Many good friends could have lost their lives.

"The Pharisees and scribes murmured, saying, 'This man receives sinners and eats with them.'" (Luke 15:2 RSV)

Frequently, what is spoken as a criticism is in fact a compliment.

Some enemies of Jesus lashed out at Him because He received sinners and ate with them. This willingness to identify with sinners was one of the most remarkable attributes of our Lord. Yet, His detractors faulted Him for it.

A missionary told me of a friend in the Philippines who opened the doors to many a spiritual opportunity by her willingness to eat with the people in their homes.

It is not always easy for those of one culture or style of life to eat food prepared by those who are of a different culture. Yet, willingness to do so is a significant mark of identity.

We are all sinners, out of touch with God, strangers in His company. But, God gave us One, as Lord and Savior, who will break bread with us, eat of our food at our table. This is not a mark of condescension, but of love which we are daily thankful.

PRAYER

Our Father, we are grateful that while we are seeking Thee, Thou are always coming to us in the love of Thy Son. We rejoice in His presence with us as we daily break bread together. Amen.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:—Your recent article on the Mormons disturbed me. It contained a number of statements I seriously differ with and think are wrong.

The article states that the Mormon's teaching is consistent with the Bible. It also states that the new Mormon writings in no way contradict the Bible. I am willing to challenge these men to a public debate where it can easily be shown that their teaching is totally opposite to all that the Bible teaches. Let them name the time and place.

They teach completely contrary to the Bible that a person gains heaven by doing good works, while the Bible teaches that a person enters heaven through faith in Jesus Christ.

The Bible teaches that there is one God revealed in the three persons of the Trinity while the Mormons teach that we are all gods.

Mormonism is in no way Christian, even though it uses the name of Jesus Christ. It is not another denomination, but a totally different religion, as different from Christianity as is Islam or the religion of the Arabs.

Sincerely,
 Chuck Cerling

Iosco Has Contract to Hire Parent Aides

LANSING—The Iosco County Cooperative Extension Service has been awarded through the Michigan Department of Social Services an $8,727 services contract to hire parent aides to work with families involved in child abuse or neglect.

The funding is expected to provide protective services to an estimated 20 Iosco County families during the coming year. The contract was negotiated for one year.

Parent aides will work directly in clients' homes as well as at the Cooperative Extension Service office at 438 Lake Street, Tawas City.

Money for the contract consists of 75 percent federal funds and 25 percent state matching contributions.

According to Department of Social Services officials, some 80 protective services contracts totaling two-million dollars are expected to be approved state-wide during the coming year under provisions of the federal Social Security Act.

Many of these contracts involve programs aimed at preventing child abuse or neglect. Other protective services contracts are expected to aid runaway youngsters, prevent substance abuse, help senior citizens and provide a variety of other services.

The number of protective services contracts involving state matching contributions has grown rapidly over the past few years.

This year, protective services contract funds are being distributed under a new system. Each of Michigan's 83 counties has been allocated a specific portion of the state's protective services share of federal funds. The local allotment is based on a formula which takes into account a county's population, the percentage of low-income residents and other factors.

Level of Great Lakes Expected to be Above Long-Term Average

DETROIT—The elevation of Lakes Michigan-Huron at the end of March was about six inches above what it was one year ago and about five inches above one month ago. The end of March level of the two lakes was at 578.70 feet above the mean water level at Father Point, Quebec.

The March monthly mean level was about nine inches above the long-term average and about 18 inches below the all-time monthly mean high for March, which was set in 1973, and about 38 inches above the all-time low March monthly mean set in 1964.

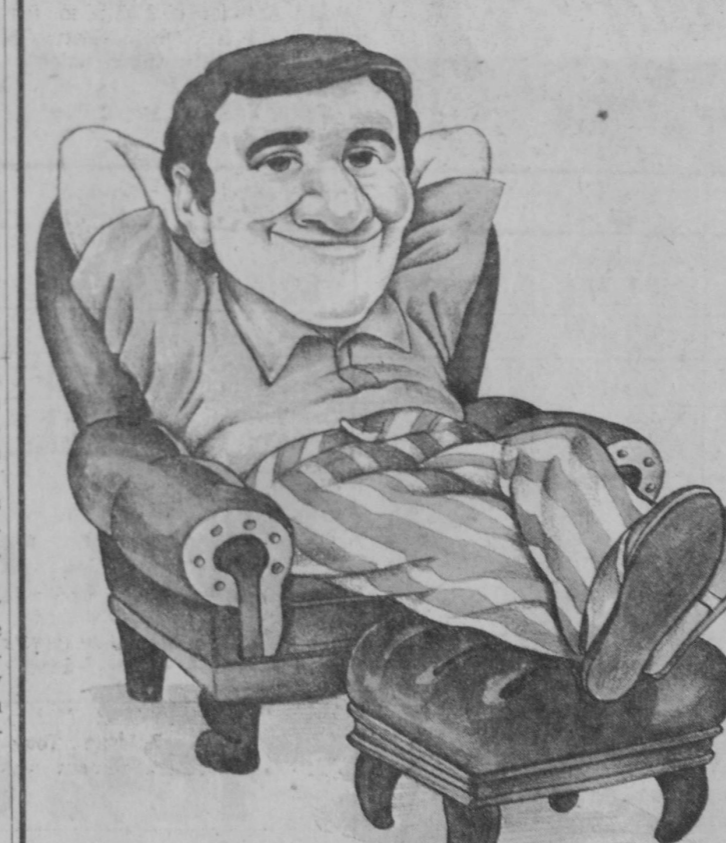

For mariners, the end of March level was 23 inches above chart datum.

The six-month forecast of levels for Lakes Michigan-Huron, as contained in the monthly bulletin of lake levels, shows that the lakes are expected to be above its long-term average level during the next six months.

The forecast shows that at the end of April, Lakes Michigan-Huron will be about five inches above what they were at the end of March. The lakes are expected to continue their seasonal rise into July. At the end of September, the lakes are expected to be four inches above what they were at the same time in 1978. The September mean would be above the long-term average for that month, but 15 inches below the all-time high mean for September, which was set in 1952.

STOP FOR THE WHITE CANE!

LIONS WHITE CANE WEEK APRIL 20-29

Lions Roar Over Annual White Cane Week in State

When 30,000 Lions all roar at the same time, they make quite a noise! That noise is the annual White Cane Week drive and more than 500 Michigan Lions Clubs are already gearing up for the fundraiser to be held April 20-29. The local drive will be held Friday and Saturday, April 27-28.

White Cane Week is the principal source of funds for the Lions whose unselfish and dedicated efforts in aiding the sightless have always been rewarded by enthusiastic response from Michiganders.

"The generous help from the people of Michigan has made it possible to sustain our many projects and institutions that aid the sightless," according to a Lions spokesman. "In the more than 30 years since White Cane Week was started, we have provided aid in the form of canes, leader dogs, Braille watches, glasses, eye examinations, sightmobiles and transplants at no charge to thousands of blind persons in this state. With continued support, we will help thousands more," he said.

In addition to gaining monetary support for Lions' projects, a prime purpose of White Cane Week is to make the public aware of two Michigan laws dealing with the visually handicapped. One requires motorists to stop at least 10 feet from a blind person carrying a white cane or led by a leader dog in harness. The other requires all public facilities to permit a blind person with a leader dog in harness to enter and/or use their premises.

WHITE CANE QUEEN - Eighteen-year-old Kristeen Hughes will represent more than 30,000 Lions in Michigan during the 1979 White Cane Week drive, April 20-29. A senior at Three Rivers High School, Kristeen plans to continue her music education at Western Michigan University in the fall. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hughes of Constantine.

25 Years Ago—
April 16, 1954—Tawas Area School site cauldron continued to boil at the regular school board meeting as two factions in the controversy presented their recipes for serving the school package to the citizens on an election platter. The Citizens Committee for Better Schools presented petitions signed by 700 persons urging the board to place the bond issue and the fair-grounds-nursery site for the proposed new school before the area electorate. Petitions signed by 820 persons were presented by a group called School Boosters supporting the school board's original plan for the building on the Neumann-Reinke site.

Murder Case

which was invaluable, I am convinced that the confession would never have been secured." The letter was signed by Grimason, who had been promoted to sergeant in command of the state police post at East Tawas.

In his own mind after questioning the suspect, Kearney was positive that the case had finally been broken. Four years earlier, the veteran police officer realized at the end of the first day of investigation that, with no witnesses and no clues, the murder probably would never be solved.

Acting in concert with the coroner when the boy's body was taken to East Tawas and later referred for an autopsy, Kearney released information to the press containing several exaggerations relative to the extent of mutilation to the boy's body. The ruse worked as the report received sensational coverage and no one but Kearney, the coroner and two others pledged to secrecy were aware of the truth—along with the murderer.

When interrogated, the suspect denied certain aspects of the mutilation, which was certain proof of guilt on the suspect's part, as far as Kearney was concerned.

The confession was repudiated the following day when the suspect obtained legal counsel, but after arraignment in justice court, the suspect was bound over to circuit court to stand trial on a murder charge.

The defendant's attorney went to great lengths to protect his client, even obtaining release from jail under bail while awaiting trial. In addition, the attorney began arguing the case from his point of view in newspaper columns, which drew a sharp order to the newspaper and the attorney to cease and desist.

The defense based its case on the point that undue influence was placed on his client to gain a confession, but the court ruled that the defendant's signed statement was admissible evidence in court. Witnesses appearing on the defendant's behalf often found direct testimony destroyed on cross-examination when it was shown that information being presented did not jibe with known facts of the case, obtained at the inquest and through investigation.

The trial counsel's efforts averted a first or second degree murder conviction for his client as the jury brought in a verdict of manslaughter. During deliberation, one member of the panel suffered a heart attack. The jury was now reduced to 11 members, but was permitted to reach a verdict through agreement between the defense and prosecution.

The defendant was sentenced to 14-15 years in a state penal institution and in March 1941, a motion was made for a new trial, claiming that new evidence had been found. Circumstances detailed at the hearing again were not in accord with known facts obtained at the inquest. Testimony was of questionable accuracy and dates were confused. The trial judge, in denying the motion, ruled that testimony was impeached by failure of the witnesses to disclose at the trial, or earlier at the inquest, what they claimed to know about the case.

The state supreme court granted leave to apply for a new trial in September 1941, but the case went no further.

In the meantime, the Iosco County Board of Supervisors voted, 16-2, not to allow Mrs. Brooks' $350 bill for her investigative services in the case. The county had offered a reward back in 1936, but that was never paid. Later, the amateur detective was to sue the detective magazine over statements printed in its story.

This murder case has to be classed as the most unusual in Iosco County's history and certainly was a trying one for the judiciary, due to sensationalism created by the press during investigation and the subsequent trial four years later, plus the fact that the convicted murderer was a married woman with children!

But it was that kind of a case where public indignation and excitement—both pro and con—ran extremely high. Under similar circumstances today, because of later court rulings, there would be a good possibility that the same case based on the confession would never go to trial.

As for Mrs. Brooks, she continued her interest in criminal investigation but never again stepped into the role of an amateur detective.

Blue Snow Arts Council Sponsors Production

The Meadow Brook Theatre's touring production of "The Adventures of Scapin," brought to Oscoda under sponsorship of the Blue Snow Arts Council, will be performed at the Oscoda Area High School Auditorium on Saturday, May 12, 8:00 p. m. Tickets for the performance go on sale Saturday, April 21, at Gilbert's Rexall Drugs, Oscoda and Baldwin Centre.

"The Adventures of Scapin" reflects a timeless and favorite kind of comedy known as "slap stick." The expression comes from a comic prop called a slap stick. It is made by nailing two pieces of board together at one end. When one actor hits another with it, the sound produced is a sharp crack or slap. It was a non-verbal, improvised and vigorous kind of physical comedy that dates as far back as the Mime Street shows of ancient Rome. Two of the greatest American performers of this type of comedy were Charlie Chaplin and Lucille Ball.

Meadow Brook Theatre's very verbal production of "The Adventures of Scapin" is meant to be all-for-fun vigorous nonsense. It is all artifice, pretense and frolic . . . the theatre celebrating its own merriment. It does not mean a thing beyond the ancient truth that good theatre sometimes has no meaning except fun. It promises to be a most enjoyable evening for those who enjoy good "on-stage" comedy.
