Iosco County Airport is to take part in the 50th anniversary of aviation in June with a brief program sponsored by the Michigan Aeronautics Association.

James Stech, chairman of the county board of commissioners' aeronautics committee, said Wednesday that three different flights of aircraft would be visiting airports of Michigan between June 11-15.

One of the 25-aircraft flights is to participate in the ceremony here Thursday, June 14. Three of the planes are to land here and the remainder will conduct a fly-over during presentation of a special plaque at the airport terminal building.

Stech has charge of local arrangements for the program and invited commissioners, chamber of commerce officials, township and city officials, as well as the public, to attend the 30-minute program.

LIXEY FISHERY of East Tawas began setting its nets in Lake Huron this week, something that members of the family have been doing for more than 100 years. Following considerable research, a new type of net is being used to trap round whitefish.

New Nets Play Changing Role in Huron's Whitefish Industry

Iosco County's oldest industry is scheduled to resume operations this week when the Lixey Fishery of East Tawas sets its trap nets in Lake Huron for another whitefish season.

Brothers Donald, Mervin and Richter Lixey are the last members of a family which traces its commercial fishing heritage in these waters back more than 100 years and the Lixey name is the sole survivor of many fishing families which once comprised an important industry in this region.

With such a tradition behind them, one might expect the Lixeys to be utilizing the same gear and methods which were time-tested by their father and his father before them; not so, according to a recent issue of "Upwellings," a publication of the University of Michigan's Sea Grant Program.

Starting in 1932, the Lixeys and other local fishermen began using deep trap nets; then, in 1950, the whitefish became so scarce this fish company and most others went out of business.

Nine years later, the Lixey brothers went back into business—still using their 40-foot-high nets made of cotton twine and with leads up to 1,000 feet in length.

Like the old-fashioned pond nets used by their father, the submarine trap net, too, has been replaced by new and lighter fishing gear, all developed in an important scientific program conducted here during the past two seasons.

Working with Randy Esbenroder of the Alpena Great Lakes Fisheries Station and Michigan Sea Grant researchers under direction of Dr. David Jude of the university, Donald Lixey designed three experimental nets patterned after their lake whitefish nets, but with smaller mesh. Michigan Sea Grant provided the nylon mesh and the Lixeys constructed the nets using their own spreader bars, ropes, anchors and other equipment.

Two identical nets were constructed, each 10 feet high, with the traditional lead of 1,000 feet. Rather than using mesh of eight inches, the new nets had 3½-inch mesh. A third net, 15 feet high, a lead of 1,400 feet and mesh of 2½ inches, was also constructed. The reason behind this coordinated research was to determine if the modified fishing gear could catch a little-harvested fish, the round whitefish, also called Menominee. The principal question to be answered was whether or not this new gear could harvest commercial quantities of round whitefish without being loaded down with alewives.

Round whitefish are similar to lake whitefish, the mainstay of Michigan's once profitable fishing industry. The round whitefish is generally smaller than the lake whitefish, but the flesh of the two is virtually indistinguishable.

Esbenroder had documented a heavy concentration of round whitefish east of Tawas Bay in Lake Huron. Previously, round whitefish were taken in gill nets set for other fish, but the gill nets were finally banned in 1974 because the nets were unselective and every fish entering the mesh was killed.

The round whitefish has a tiny (See SEA GRANT, page 2.)

A RADICAL DEPARTURE from conventional trap nets is being utilized in new gear which has been tested over the past two years. The round whitefish is a species which has not been caught on a commercial basis since gill nets were outlawed.

Michigan Week Exchange Pairs Tawas City With Imlay City

For the first time in several years, Tawas City will be participating in mayor's exchange during Michigan Week, May 20-26, but this community and its sister exchange community, Imlay City, will not follow the normal program pattern utilized in this annual event.

It all started several weeks ago when city officials decided that this community should again take part in the observance. Tawas City was paired with a smaller rural community in the south-central part of the state, which was ruled out.

City Mgr. Lowell Thomas felt it would be a more meaningful program if this city exchanged mayors with a community of like size, with similar operations and problems.

As a result, Imlay City was contacted and officials of that community suggested an exchange on a two-year basis, a program which proved successful in the past.

Departing from the normal exchange on Monday, May 21, Tawas City Mayor Herbert Cholger will be traveling to Imlay City on Thursday, May 24. Hopefully, the entire city council, city manager and other officials will be accompanying him.

The same exchange program will be utilized the following year, only Imlay City's mayor and other officials will be coming to this community.

Thomas and City Clerk Rachel Sue McCready, who had charge of making arrangements, felt that the swap of officials on a two-year basis would provide an excellent opportunity for all to learn more about the two communities, rather than the normal exchange of mayors.

Both communities have council-city manager type of governments.

Engineer Recommends One Plant for Regional Secondary Sewage Treatment

Adoption of a proposal to provide a central plant for secondary sewage treatment on a regional basis in the Tawas area was authorized Monday night by the East Tawas Council following a public hearing at the city hall.

Governmental units of Tawas City, Baldwin Township, Alabaster Township and Tawas Township are to be notified of the East Tawas Council's interest in the proposal and the four other units are to be asked if they would join in the application.

Twenty months ago, the local units came to the conclusion during a hearing held on the first step for a federal grant that it would be in the best interest of all units, economically, if East Tawas and Baldwin Township would be served by one waste treatment plant at East Tawas, while Tawas City and portions of Tawas Township and Alabaster Township be served by the plant in Tawas City.

Under that plan, secondary waste treatment facilities would utilize aerated lagoon systems at the two locations.

James Curtis of Spicer Engineering Company, East Tawas' consultant, said his recommendation now was that one central facility be considered at East Tawas' existing treatment plant.

He showed plans for an alternate type of secondary sewage treatment facility utilizing an oxidation ditch system which pumps aerated liquid sewage in a circular motion before treatment in a tank. From there, the treated liquid would go to a "polishing" pond before discharge into the Tawas River.

One additional primary treatment installation would be required at East Tawas, plus other facilities. Construction of a force main would be required to connect Tawas City's present primary plant with the new facility.

Curtis said the oxidation ditch system required much less space than what would be required for a conventional lagoon system. More importantly, however, was the suggested savings in manpower required to operate one plant as opposed to two plants.

A financial analysis for the proposed program shows that to serve on a regional basis, the total capital cost would be $3,330,000 with a local share of $666,000. The annual operating cost would be $280,030.

The same system designed to serve only East Tawas and Baldwin Township would have a total cost of $1,525,000 with the local share of capital cost at $305,000 and total annual local cost for operating the plant at $187,000.

Under the regional basis, for instance, East Tawas' share of the capital cost would be $1,213,000, with a local share of $243,000, the balance being provided by federal grant money. If the plant only served East Tawas and Baldwin Township, the capital cost to East Tawas would be $1,278,000, with a local share of $256,000. Total annual cost of operating the smaller plant would be $187,000, with East Tawas' share estimated at $187,000.

The central plant would have provisions to treat 3,000,000 gallons of waste daily. A cost sharing formula based on flowage is as follows: East Tawas, 1,400,000 gallons per day; Baldwin Township, 270,000 gallons per day; Tawas City, Tawas and Alabaster Townships, 1,330,000 gallons per day.

City Mgr. Lowell Thomas of Tawas City expressed the opinion that the proposed regional system, as opposed to having two separate plants, would result in saving both capital and operational costs for all units involved.

Edmunds Engineering Company has had no input in the new proposal and Thomas asked that the Bay City firm be informed of the plan. Tawas City has been studying the feasibility of constructing a lagoon system for secondary treatment.

Should the units agree to the regional proposal, the plan would be submitted to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources as the first step in seeking a federal grant.

Iosco's Building Inspection Expands

Building inspection in Plainfield Township will be handled by the Iosco County Department of Building and Safety Inspection effective May 1, according to action taken Wednesday by the county board of commissioners.

This action resulted from a decision at the April meeting of the Plainfield Township Board which requested the county to take over enforcement of state building code provisions.

Plainfield had been one of only three units of the county still handling building inspections. Other units include Tawas Township and East Tawas. AuSable Township discontinued its inspection department earlier this year.

At the present time, the county department has three inspectors and authorization was given to hire an additional inspector, depending upon need. The salary is not to exceed $12,500.

In other business, the board of commissioners formally adopted the equalization report submitted the previous week by John Rose, equalization department director. The total tax base of the county is $251,956,928. This represents an 11 percent increase in real property and an increase of slightly more than one percent for personal property.

The low bid of The Tawas Herald submitted for publication of minutes of the commission was accepted for a period of one year.

A letter from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources indicated that $651.86 had been deducted from tentative marine safety money to be received by this county to pay for the purchase of a speed gun and sound level meter to enforce state legislation which limits the speed limit and sound emission level of watercraft.

The county is to receive $15,109.85 in marine safety funds this year, if money is allocated by the state legislature.

memorials, donations and bake sales. The auxiliary is holding a rummage sale Thursday through Saturday to finance another project, construction of a roof over the north patio of the building. The group hopes to purchase a gas grill for the enjoyment of patients.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Seek Compromise on NHS Expulsion

Three members of Tawas Area Board of Education were appointed Monday night to meet with a faculty committee to resolve a dispute over policies relative to the dismissal of a student from the local chapter of the National Honor Society.

The situation arose when a student was recently expelled from the chapter for disciplinary reasons. Faculty members made the decision.

The student and parents maintain, however, that there are no established rules governing the conduct of chapter members, that situations had arisen in the past where similar action could have been taken.

During an executive meeting of the board of education two weeks ago, the board indicated that as the policy making body of the school district, rules must be established to govern NHS membership; that organization of the national chapter had not been followed in that a faculty council was required to review any instance of expulsion. The board also expressed concern that due process was not being followed and the school district could possibly be involved in litigation.

James Wasyk, faculty advisor to the NHS chapter, pointed out that nomination and induction into NHS was an honor bestowed upon students by the faculty. He emphasized that membership in NHS was an honor, not a right of the student.

The advisor said that a faculty council was not organized in this high school because of its small enrollment, but he pointed out that all faculty members participate in selection of candidates.

For this reason, he said that all teachers should participate in any dismissal and a letter was presented to the board of education signed by all teachers which insisted that the decision to expel the student from membership be upheld. All teachers did not take an active part in the dismissal, but all agreed with the action.

Wasyk also pointed out that 27 of the 28 senior members of the NHS chapter had agreed with the dismissal, that the board of education actually did not have any control over nominations or dismissal of students. He said there was no written policy in the national organization to cover the situation, but simply states that a flagrant violation needs no warning for dismissal.

Wasyk, who has been advisor for six years, felt that the matter had to be resolved immediately, that the faculty needed the support of the board of education. He felt the board of education had no right to (See BOARD, page 4.)

Tawas Township to Discuss Own Fire Department

Tawas Township residents will consider the possibility of supporting a fire department at a special meeting slated for Wednesday (today), April 25, 7:00 p. m., at the township hall.

The township presently contracts with the City of Tawas City for fire protection and due to the increase in the contract, the township board is seeking input from residents for methods of financing the contract or alternative plans.

A DIVER participating in an underwater inspection of nets set in Lake Huron for round whitefish is shown plunging off the Lixey Fisheries boat during the 1978 program. Cooperating in the scientific study were the University of Michigan and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

pointed head and a small mouth which makes it almost impossible to take by hook and line. No fishery or market for the fish had ever really developed, prompting an evaluation of alternative fishing methods.

Using the new nets designed and set by the Lixey's, the Sea Grant Program and the DNR began studying the effectiveness of the new gear in 1977. Research divers took an underwater look at the new nets set in water at depths of 32, 42 and 56 feet, along with the Lixey's traditional lake whitefish nets set from 70 to 100 feet deep.

Every three days throughout the summer of 1977, the Lixey's lifted their nets under the watchful eyes of the researchers. All sport and undersized commercial fish were returned to Lake Huron, which was impossible when gill nets were used. The catch was put in boxes and iced, but not before the monitoring team weighed and measured each fish, classifying the fish according to age and sex.

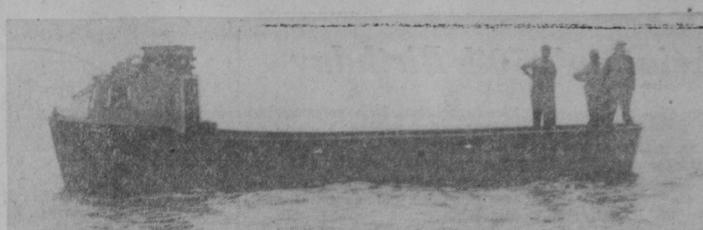

The scientists found the nets were very selective, trapping mainly mature round whitefish. The average fish was about 13 inches long, three years old and had spawned at least once.

It was found that the new small mesh trap nets do not place unusual pressure on the fish population. In 1977, the nets caught about 8,000 pounds of round whitefish, 1,400 pounds of yellow perch and 1,500 pounds of lake whitefish.

The Lixey's broke even on the catch during the first summer experiment and built a fourth net that winter, at their own expense. During the 1978 season, the researchers and experienced fishermen fine-tuned the nets as too many fish were getting tangled up by the gills in the mesh. Smaller mesh was introduced into key areas of the nets and the testing of the new gear last summer proved that the gilling problem had been solved.

With the additional net and deeper locations, the 1978 catch soared to 20,400 pounds of round whitefish, 4,200 pounds of yellow perch and 400 pounds of lake whitefish.

The round whitefish were tested for possible chemical contamination both years and it was found that the fish filets were far below the levels of chemicals allowed by the Food and Drug Administration. No chemical contamination problem exists in Lake Huron round whitefish.

One of the problems which developed was marketing and distribution of this increased catch, as the local market is limited. It is expected that because of ever increasing demands for commercially caught fish, marketing the larger catch should not prove to be a problem.

During the past winter, the new type of net was again altered, based on underwater observations conducted by the diver-scientists.

Under controlled monitoring by DNR biologists, the Lixey's fishing boat, "Queen," sailed out into Lake Huron Tuesday to start a new season by setting the nets.

Richter Lixey told the Herald Friday that they had made plans of their newly designed nets available to a commercial fisherman in the Upper Great Lakes region.

One problem has developed, however. Despite the effectiveness of the new gear and the potential furnish by the round whitefish for harvesting, commercial fishing re-

Gladwin Flying Gs scorched the track here Monday as they defeated the Tawas Area Braves, 116-16, in the season opener.

The visitors won first place in every event and piled up points in runner-up positions.

Scoring points for Tawas were: Matt Bolen, third, low hurdles; Bryant Wilke, third, 100-yard dash; Wilke, third, 220-yard dash; Vern Beaubien, third, two-mile run; Wilke, third, long jump; Gary Birkenbach, third, discus.

Funeral Held for Charles Westcott

Funeral Mass for Charles A. Westcott will be held Thursday, April 26, 10:00 a. m., from Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, Tawas City. Burial will be in the church cemetery. A Christian wake service will be conducted Wednesday evening at Jacques and Kobs West Chapel, Tawas City, at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Westcott was born April 29, 1901, in Baldwin Township and expired Monday, April 23, at St. Luke's Hospital, Saginaw.

He is survived by his wife, Rose; two sons, Raymond of Lake Orion and David of Tawas City; nine grandchildren, and eight great grandchildren. He also leaves a brother, Harry Westcott of Miami, Ohio.

There have been no takers yet for a commercial fishing permit offered in Lake Huron by the DNR. A fishing boat which cost $10,000 15 years ago now costs $50,000 and the price of nets has increased similarly.

As for the Lixey brothers, they are the last in a long line of fishermen. Richter is well past retirement age and the younger Lixey sons and nephews of this large family have turned to different vocations and have not grown up in the business.

It is entirely possible that, at some future date, the family name will disappear from the Lake Huron commercial fishery—it started back in the 1850s when the original French name of Soudrette was changed to Lixey.

reverse the faculty's action, and, if it was done, faculty members said that they could nominate anyone to NHS. Because of the flagrant violation, "we simply took away membership in NHS, the way we interpret it should be," he stated.

Trustee Randall DeWyse said that the board's interpretation of national rules and the local situation was not the same as the faculty's, pointing out that something must be done to protect student rights. Trustee Robert Curry pointed out that the board of education was responsible for all such actions in the district.

Supt. Robert Halle said that the board of education was interested in seeing continuance of NHS, but is concerned that proper procedure be followed. He said there were no written rules and regulations governing membership and the board was legally concerned with dismissal of the student.

Sue Alexander, president of the local chapter, said that when a student is inducted into NHS, common sense dictates that a student must uphold the honor of the organization. She felt it should not be necessary to lay down rules. She hoped that the chapter would not be abolished as it was the most positive organization in school.

KILLERS' CABIN

TWO OF THE TOUGHEST KILLERS in Michigan history, Sam Lieb, left, and Leslie Maurer, right, were captured in Iosco County following a state-wide manhunt. After being convicted and sentenced to life terms, the two men made a daring escape from Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson in 1935. Both were recaptured and returned to confinement. Lieb made a successful escape from maximum security at Marquette Prison in 1950, finally being recaptured after a five-state manhunt.

One of the strangest manhunts in Michigan's history extended from Detroit to Iosco County in December 1932. It all started when a snapshot of a north woods cabin was found in the apartment of suspects being sought for questioning in a murder case.

The manhunt actually started northeast of Detroit shortly after one man was shot to death and four persons were wounded in the hold-up of a St. Clair Shores blind pig.

Older readers will remember that "repeal" was still being considered and national prohibition was being enforced, although illicit beer and liquor were readily obtainable in practically every community through various means.

At St. Clair Shores, four young, but experienced criminals, staged a holdup at a suburban speak-easy. After killing a milkman, who was making a delivery, the deadly young killers robbed the patrons, then wounded three men and the proprietress.

The car driven by the four killers was followed to and then lost on the streets of Detroit. As a result, the Detroit Police Department, assisted by Michigan State Police, immediately commenced a massive manhunt. Before the case was finally cracked, police of suburban towns, the sheriffs of not less than a half dozen counties and the state conservation department had given active support to hunting down the criminals.

Although police were unable to match known criminals with descriptions of the killers furnished by witnesses at the speak-easy, it was not long before officers were hot on their trail and finally captured two suspects at Detroit. Both were positively identified in line-ups—two down and two to go.

The case seemed to hit a snag until an informant provided a tip concerning the known friends of one of the captured killers. Through tracing down leads and painstaking investigation, officers finally crashed into a flat known to be occupied by two suspects identified

A SNAPSHOT of this neat log cabin in a cluster of white birch and pine trees was the only clue to the possible whereabouts of two Detroit men wanted for questioning in a murder. A penciled inscription on the back of the photograph indicated it was located on the AuSable River and investigators turned to the conservation department to find someone who might identify the site.

as Sam Lieb, 22, and Leslie Maurer, 23, both of whom matched descriptions of the wanted gunmen.

The two men were not in the apartment, the only occupants being two young women. The sleuths quickly learned the girls were wives of Maurer and Lieb. A search of the apartment turned up a photograph of the two men, which was quickly dispatched to St. Clair Shores for identification by witnesses.

The young women were anxious to aid the police, but neither could explain the absence of their mates—their husbands had left a few hours earlier without a word of explanation. The suspects were on the run, but their destination was unknown.

Upon further interrogation, one of the girls remembered that the pair might have gone hunting at their lodge somewhere up north. Another search of the apartment uncovered a snapshot showing a lodge, with the inscription, "AuSable River," penned on the back.

It was a slim lead, but one of the investigators, Capt. Donald Leonard of the Michigan State Police, had an idea. He was an avid outdoorsman and, through his position with the state, had contacts with top officials of the conservation department.

A hurried call to Lansing asked for someone in the conservation department who would be familiar with the AuSable River. It was a shot in the dark, but Lansing officials told Leonard to get in touch with Cons. Officer Arthur Leitz in Iosco County.

The conservation department official told Captain Leonard that if the cabin was located in Iosco or Alcona County, Leitz could identify it before anyone else in the State of Michigan. A telephone call to Bay City alerted Capt. Joseph Kearney, district commander of the state police, who was directed to contact Sheriff Charles Miller of Tawas City and have him call Officer Leitz to stand by.

Leonard, along with two Detroit Police Department lieutenants, arrived at Bay City at 2:30 p. m. on Saturday, December 17, where they picked up Captain Kearney, then proceeded to Standish to meet Cpl. Hiram Grimson and two troopers from the West Branch post.

The procession of police cars continued north to Iosco County, where they were met by Sheriff Miller, Deputy Sheriff Harry Rollin and Leitz.

Leonard handed a snapshot of the cabin to Leitz, who had then been employed by the conservation department for six years, but had many more years of experience in the woods of Northeastern Michigan as a hunter and later as a seasonal employee of the United States Forest Service.

It was the uncanny memory of the conservation officer who knew his territory, as few people do, that supplied the final link in the manhunt.

Leitz had traveled backwoods trails of Iosco County on many a night looking for game poachers, but even with that kind of experience, it was a tall order to identify a cabin location from a mere snapshot.

There was a moment of anxious suspense while Leitz studied the photograph, but finally he told Captain Leonard and other officers he recognized the cabin and could take them to it. As it turned out, he had visited the cabin when it had been owned by a local resident.

The officers piled into their cars and headed through Huron National Forest over the old Thompson Trail, then headed east almost to Cooke Dam. Driving without the benefit of headlights for several miles along trails, the officers finally reached a point of debarkation—they would walk the last quarter mile through the woods in darkness in order to surprise their quarry.

Actually, there was no assurance that the two fugitives would be at the cabin, but a dim light appeared through a cabin window in the distance ahead. Leonard spotted Sheriff Miller, Rollin, Leitz and the three state police troopers at strategic locations—all with rifles trained on the cabin—while he and a Detroit officer went to the front door and Kearney and Grimson covered the rear door.

At the sound of a whistle, the four officers crashed through the two doors to capture two surprised men inside the cabin. Maurer and Lieb gave up without a struggle—their loaded rifles propped against the wall and out of reach.

Lodged overnight at the old Iosco County Jail in Tawas City, they confessed to their career of crime, which included 20 holdups of gas stations and small stores in Detroit. Their last holdup at St. Clair Shores was the only one in which they brought firearms into play.

Maurer and Lieb were taken under guard south to St. Clair Shores, then turned over to Macomb County authorities for prosecution. All four men were given life sentences in the Southern Michigan Prison at Jackson.

Within six days after the murder, the Detroit Police Department, with the aid of state police and local agencies, extending north all

IDENTIFYING the killers' lair from a snapshot was a bit like looking for a needle in a haystack, but downstate investigators found the right man to help them when Cons. Officer Arthur G. Leitz was called upon for assistance. It was a slim lead but Leitz, who knew the AuSable River region like the back of his hand, identified the cabin's location and the killers were captured.

Editorials—

To Each His Own Opinion

In the eyes of some local anglers, the Herald editor's comments last week concerning those fishermen who were trapped on a Tawas Bay ice floe were "uncalled for" and "dim-witted." Everyone to his own point of view.

Over the years, numerous fishermen have lost their lives while taking chances on unsafe ice of Saginaw Bay, particularly in the spring of the year when a change in wind direction can break up a solid shelf of ice and send it scudding out into Lake Huron.

Thankfully, no lives have been lost in such mishaps on Tawas Bay, as far as can be recalled, but there have been numerous close encounters. Is it really the responsibility of the coast guard and the sheriff's department to play nursemaid to persons who apparently wish to risk their lives?

The editor will offer no further comments on the subject.

State Eliminates Coyote Bounty

After years of haggling, the Michigan Legislature finally repealed the bounty on coyotes, which has been in effect since 1935.

Although Upper Peninsula trappers, hunters and legislators have thwarted every previous effort to abolish the bounty, the measure was passed by both houses and signed into law a week ago by Gov. William Milliken.

Some hard feelings have been caused between the two peninsulas over this legislation, those of the northern region claiming that a bounty was necessary to reduce numbers of the predators.

The governor was quoted as saying that repeal of the bounty would result in significant savings—$50,000 to $60,000 a year—to the state game and fish fund.

To this corner, the above quotation is an exaggeration for it would be rather foolish for a hunter or trapper to bounty a coyote pelt for $15 (male) and $20 (female) when the same pelt brings around $50 on the fur market.

Although approximately 2.3-million dollars in coyote bounties have been paid by the state since 1935, the amount of bounty money dropped sharply in 1977, when the DNR began keeping the pelts.

The contention of Upper Peninsula lawmakers that the bounty effectively contained a swelling coyote population remains to be seen. Apparently the DNR does not agree, but the UP folks may have a point if livestock and game are ravaged. The bounty should have been removed years ago in the Lower Peninsula.

Secret Ballot No Longer A Shield

Thanks to the Michigan Court of Appeals, a public "official" can no longer shield his stand from public scrutiny and accountability by calling for a secret vote—even when it is done at an open meeting.

That was the decision last week by the court when it rejected the contention of a township board in Macomb County that it complied with the law when it conducted a secret elimination vote on awarding new liquor licenses. The process was used to trim a field of 27 applicants down to three, who would be awarded licenses.

Because of personalities involved over certain questions which must be decided, plus the fact that extreme measures are often taken by "losers" in the form of economic retaliation, it is often most difficult for a public official to make a choice in such matters.

But that is the American way—if one cannot stand the heat, he must get out of the kitchen.

The court was absolutely correct when it stated: "It can hardly be contended that a vote by secret ballot at an open meeting is any more open than a vote at a closed meeting. In either case, the public official has shielded his stand from public scrutiny and accountability."

The secret ballot ruse has been utilized on many occasions locally and this corner is happy to report that the courts have declared such actions illegal.

Impact Aid Amounts to Double Dip

The statement was made at last Wednesday's meeting of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners that Governor Milliken must be opposed to having military bases in Michigan. Reasoning behind this statement, said a representative of Oscoda Township, was that the governor is pushing legislation which would deduct state membership aid to school districts receiving federal impact aid for students.

The fact of the matter is that the federal congress came within a whisker of eliminating federal impact aid to schools some years ago. And, when one considers the matter, why should the federal government pay such aid to schools where bases are located when those installations provide such an economic boost to the community. Everyone must recall the rhetoric a couple of years ago when it looked as though we would be losing Wurtsmith Air Force Base.

But let's not confuse apples and oranges concerning the governor's proposal. The real question is: Why should one school district get a double dip in both federal-state operational funds? Regardless of what some people think in this county, those youngsters of military families at Wurtsmith are residents of Michigan—and state membership aid is paid to the school district based on the fourth Friday count.

All taxpayers of Michigan help pay the operational cost for educating those military students. Based on the base's economic impact on the school district, the county and the state, as proven when there was talk of closing the base, it is a small price to pay!

On the other hand, there are many school districts of Michigan—including a number right here in this region—which do not receive state membership aid because those districts have too few students and a high property valuation. Not so at Oscoda Area School because the federal students are counted in the fourth Friday census. So, the question is repeated: Why should one school district get a double dip in both state-federal operational funds?

This corner is not knocking Wurtsmith Air Force Base when we say this—far from it. We are proud of our military services and the fact that this county has a long history with the military dating back to the 1920s when Curtis pursuit planes first landed near Oscoda.

The air base has meant a great deal to all of us and that is why this corner could never understand why some people in the upper end of the county tried to kill Highway F-41 a few months ago when it was needed to serve the base, or scream to high heaven when a serviceman stationed at the base votes in a school millage election. It seems as though it is permissible to take advantage of numbers when it means additional money, but do not let them be a part of the community.

Yes, Governor Milliken, this corner agrees if you are pushing legislation to eliminate the double dip in school operational costs. Perhaps such a move would even show the federal government that we really appreciate and want Wurtsmith to remain open; that federal impact aid should be eliminated, because Michigan taxpayers bear the burden.

(Voted operational tax levies for the four school districts of Iosco County are as follows: Oscoda Area School, 10.3 mills; Tawas Area School, 12 mills; Whittemore-Prescott Area School, 13.50 mills; Hale Area School, 14.75 mills. Federal impact aid is considered a payment in lieu of taxes not received from military installations. Tawas Area School receives approximately $12,000 in these impact funds for coast guard and air base families.)

(Read Matthew 6:5-13) "All things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive." (Matthew 21:22)

Sometimes we fail to ask the Lord for something in our time of need because we think He will not answer our need.

As a young college student, I found myself too short of funds to pay for my last term. There seemed no way I could finish my studies to graduate. I asked the Lord to somehow help me find a way to get the money. Shortly thereafter, a fellow student, not knowing my plight, told me that a briddened, elderly, millionaire gentleman needed someone to take care of him at his home for a few days each week. I inquired and accepted the job offer. I then earned more than enough to finish my studies and graduate.

The Lord knows when we need His help. But, He wants us to come to Him and ask for it.

PRAYER

Lord, You are always available to lend us a helping hand when we need it. Give us the insight to ask You for what we need at the right moment of our difficulty. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

The Lord wants us to ask for His help.—Harold L. Reynolds (West Chester, Pennsylvania)

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

During National Volunteer Week, April 22-28, we at Provincial House in Tawas City will be honoring the many volunteers who visit our nursing home regularly and share their lives with our residents. There are also many others—community groups, schools and individuals—who get involved with our facility throughout the year and bring pleasure to our residents while they require nursing home care. All give freely of their time and come away with the satisfaction of knowing that they have made some others very happy.

To all of our volunteers, who provide entertainment, friendship, support and love, we want to acknowledge that your efforts make everything from parties and movies, to games and craft sessions more special. Your presence in our facility tells our residents and staff two things: You care and you are very special.

St. Joseph's Council of Women Met April 19

St. Joseph's Council of Women was inspired with a meditation by Sister Rose Miriam at the Thursday evening, April 19, business session. Subject of the meditation was the Gospel of St. John and the symbols he used to identify with Jesus Christ.

Rose Link, president, led the business meeting in which discussion of equipment for the new kitchen resulted in an affirmative vote for Grace Misener, chairman, to continue with preparations needed.

Appreciation was expressed to members of the parish for donations to the bake sale. Mildred Bielecki was named to serve as publicity chairman. Date and location of the annual May mother-daughter banquet will be announced at a later date.

First communicants and their families will be honored at a breakfast after Mass Sunday, April 29. Preparations for the spring bazaar were reported in progress.

Lunch was served following adjournment.

Iosco Commission Opposes Proposal to Cut State Aid to Oscoda School

Iosco County Board of Commissioners went on record Wednesday opposing Gov. William Milliken's proposal to reduce state membership aid to schools by the amount of federal impact aid funds received by a school district.

The only school district in this county affected by the governor's proposal would be Oscoda Area School District. David George and James Stech, county commissioners from that district, said that approximately $1,000,000 in state membership aid would be lost.

A resolution presented by George said that the lost school aid would be transferred to other, more affluent areas of the state.

George and Stech said that the "governor's proposal sounds like state government does not want military bases in Michigan." They believed that if Wurtsmith Air Force Base were closed, the economic effect here would be devastating. They pointed out the average annual income of the county was $8,200 and well below Michigan's average. They felt any loss of jobs would only add to the current 14.6 percent unemployment rate.

Some commissioners pointed out that other school districts of the state had questioned the "double dip" in operating funds received by Oscoda Area Schools, pointing out that Oscoda receives state membership aid funds for students counted at the military installation as well as federally impacted funds.

In the case of Hale Area Schools and Tawas Area Schools, neither of those districts receive state membership aid funds because of low student enrollment and high valuation.

Chairman John Webb felt the matter should be tabled for further information, but a motion on the question brought unanimous approval of the board supporting a resolution in opposition to the governor's proposal.

Dangerous Spring Fire Season Is Here

ROSCOMMON—It seems unlikely, but the spring rainy season is also the season of the highest forest fire potential in Northern Michigan.

Ronald Wilson, forest fire specialist for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources in the northern Lower Peninsula, explains the correlation. "Dead leaves on the forest floor are dried out by the spring winds. This dry fuel, coupled with high spring temperatures and low relative humidity, creates an ideal condition for the spread of fire."

Wilson cites careless burning of debris, such as leaves and brush, old boards and boxes, as the number one cause of forest fires during the months of April and May. Forty-nine percent of the forest fires last April were started by debris burning out of control. "The spring cleanup projects of cabin owners often result in a lot of trash to be hauled away or burned," says Wilson. "The problem is that people do not follow safety guidelines by tending their fires until they are completely out."

Any time the ground is not snow covered, a Department of Natural Resources burning permit is required for any outdoor fire except a campfire or a fire in an approved barrel with a metal cover or screen. The cover or screen must not have holes or mesh larger than three-fourths of an inch in diameter, as specified in the law.

A burning permit is free and may be obtained from any DNR field office. Burning permits may be issued over the telephone, which makes it easier to abide by the law. They are granted on a day-to-day basis so that changing weather conditions can be assessed and permits issued only when conditions are relatively safe for an open fire.

There are several precautions to take before igniting a debris pile. Wilson stresses, "Clear an area around the fire and keep a shovel at hand. Have a garden hose hooked up and ready to use, or at least keep a bucket of water nearby. Once you set a fire, do not leave until it is completely out."

The penalties are severe for negligence that allows a fire to escape. Under provisions of the forest fire law, one may be liable for all expenses incurred by the state in the suppression of the fire. Wilfully setting a forest fire is a felony offense.

All sightings of forest fires should be reported immediately to the Department of Natural Resources. Regrowth is slow and prevention of fires is the best way to protect standing timber crops.

State-Wide Cleanup Urged by Milliken

LANSING—Gov. William G. Milliken urges Michigan citizens to join in the largest cleanup ever attempted in his state.

In an executive declaration issued in advance of the kickoff of the massive month-long litter removal project, Milliken said "legions of volunteers" will participate in "a united effort to clean our state from border to border."

Known as Operation Cleansweep, the project will extend from April 14 through May 14 and will involve more than 4,000 groups throughout the state and more than 200,000 individuals. An estimated half-million bags of litter will be picked up over the month-long period.

The project was conceived by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC) as a means of riding roadsides, parks, fields and forests of cans and bottles and other litter deposited before the state's "bottle bill" took effect December 3. MUCC spearheaded the campaign that led to overwhelming voter approval of the bottle bill.

The bill, which requires a deposit on beer and soft drink bottles and cans and bans ring pull tabs, other groups are helping to lead the volunteer effort. They will be working with the Department of Natural Resources, National Guard, county road commissions and municipal park and road agencies to collect litter in public areas and recycle metals and glass while disposing of other materials in sanitary landfills.

Subscribe Now to The Tawas Herald!

The Assembly of God Church, 311 East Lincoln Street, East Tawas, will hold a dedication for its new building on Sunday, April 29, 3:00 p. m.

Guest speakers for the dedication will be the Rev. Ivar Frick, superintendent of the Assemblies of God Michigan District, and the Rev. Gene Hogan, assistant superintendent.

Refreshments and open house will follow the dedication. Former pastor, the Rev. George Krish, will be speaking at 7:00 p. m.

The building program began in 1972 with a few people asking that a building fund be established so they could give toward a new building.

The Rev. Edward Fairbanks, pastor, established a building fund and later that year, on December 1, 1972, he appointed and commissioned a building committee to explore the need for a new church, the feasibility, the site, the type of building and financing.

Appointed to that committee were Walter Cox, Robert Day, Arvilla Fairfield, John Erickson, Joyce Wilson, Mary Draper, Allen Schreiber, Charles Fairfield, Gerald Merrick and Pastor Fairbanks as chairman. At a later date, Alan Lickfelt was added to the committee.

In the summer of 1973, the old Grenke house was torn down to make way for the planned new church. A special business meeting was held on July 23, 1975, and a unanimous vote was cast to hire Eldon Eroh as the architect to draw plans for the new structure.

On Easter Sunday, April 18, 1976, a ground breaking service was held and during the following weeks, men of the church began site preparation. In August, Ken SchAAF Builders, Incorporated, was given the contract to do the rough-in of the building.

Other contractors hired were Moe Electric, SchAAF Plumbing and Heating, Dick Lowell Drywall, Wojahn Floor Covering.

The work of siding the outside, insulating, drywall, finish work and decorating was all done by the men and women of the congregation, who donated many hours of labor.

Pastor Fairbanks supervised and coordinated the construction program.

A cross mounted on the front of the new church was made by Jonathan Fairbanks, son of the pastor, from timbers taken from the Grenke house which was torn down to make way for the church.

The new building has 6,600 square feet of floor space. It seats 190 in the sanctuary with an overflow area seating 200. The overflow is also used as a fellowship area and is divided by folding doors into eight classrooms.

A wing off the fellowship area contains the kitchen, narthex, church office, pastor's study, furnace room, rest-rooms, nursery, toddler room and library-classroom.

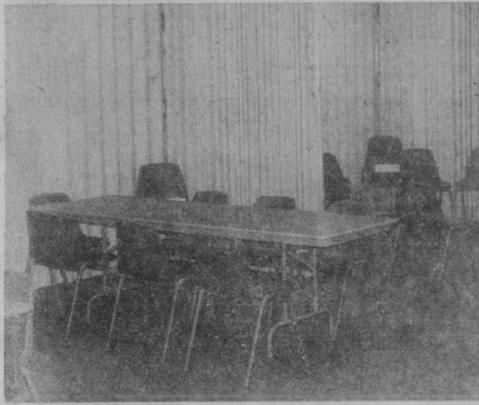

Cost of construction and furnishings was $150,000 with a present indebtedness of $100,000. Plans for expansion call for the construction of an educational wing where the old church stands.

REGULAR MEETING—TAWAS CITY COUNCIL

April 2, 1979
Meeting called to order at 7:30 PM at City Hall by Mayor Cholger.
Present: Rollin, Cholger, Lansky, Hayes, Cotter.
Absent: Landon, Keiser (excused absence).
Others: Mgr. Thomas.
Minutes of March 19 meeting approved.

Art Ziehl and Joe Martin presented report of committee to study location and funding possibilities for new fire hall. They had considered several locations, and recommended City-owned Lot 18, Block 1, Original Plat, by reason of its relationship to future growth area and present valuation on westerly side of river and railroad, although bridges on North Street and across Dead Creek would be desirable. Committee is to submit a written report for April 16.

Complaints from Sandra Coker (flooded basement) and Wayne Thompson (unsightly building on US 23) will be handled by Manager. Alvin Call read a paper on his position against enforcement of Ordinance No. 189. Motion by Hayes seconded by Rollin that Ordinance No. 189 stand as it is; anyone who is cited under it, before paying fine or moving vehicle, should be allowed to come before Manager, stating his position; Manager to decide on an individual basis if that violation shall continue; carried. Although consensus was that Manager should prepare an amendment to the ordinance allowing specific timetable in cases when restoration is being actively pursued, enforcement is to commence immediately.

Fire protection contract committee to meet April 4; report to follow.
John Majka was appointed to Zoning Board of Appeals, term to expire April 1, 1982.
Ordinance No. 191 read and adopted, to be effective April 12, on motion by Rollin, seconded by Hayes; unanimous yes.
Manager reported factors he wishes to have considered before continuing rezoning procedure for annexed 40 acres: survey needed to identify the land owned by City, determination of what is usable and where buffer areas will be needed, and consideration of desirable restrictions.

Public Hearing on 1978 Special Assessment District No. 1 having been duly noticed for this time, Carl Babcock and Allan McCall appeared, explaining their original petition requested sewer for lots 5 - 7 and 14 - 16, and the district as established by Council resolution extended the intent unreasonably beyond the scope of the petition. Following discussion, Resolution No. 3, proposed by Cotter, supported by Rollin, describing district as "The Elms Second Addition except Lots 1, 13, 18-20," and providing the entire cost to be borne by the property owners benefited; roll call vote, unanimous yes. (Full text of Resolution No. 3 on file at City Hall.)

Motion by Rollin seconded by Cotter that approval of front footage figures as suggested on map presented be given assessor to be divided among the total costs; next public hearing can be held May 7. Motion by Rollin seconded by Hayes authorizing Mayor and City Manager to execute contract with Sheriff's Department for police protection to March 31, 1980, in the amount of $38,930 (based on the cost for two deputies); roll call vote, unanimous yes.

Motion by Hayes seconded by Lansky, that Manager Thomas be appointed Street Administrator for Department of Transportation purposes; unanimous yes. (Full text of resolution on file, City Hall.)
Manager reported:
1. Progress in attempting to obtain building maintenance person through CETA slot;
2. HUD pre-application for Community Development Block Grant denied due to lack of funds for other than 15 highest-rated projects, mostly low-income housing applications.
3. Still attempting to clean up dog-litter problem.
4. Intention to attend HEW meeting to learn of programs available to municipalities.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Treasurer's Report for March distributed.

Manager explained that payment of bills is an administrative function after Council has made appropriations for the budget.
Rollin stated his wish to have the matter of ballot wording on agenda for April 16, volunteering to be on a committee to discuss Council's responsibility for proper wording on its own ballots.

Hayes strongly urged grading of Townline Road from US 23 to Bay Drive. He also suggested Supt. Look should attend Council meetings.
Motion by Lansky seconded by Rollin to meet in closed session under provisions of Section 8 (d) and (f) of the Open Meetings Act; roll call vote: unanimous yes.
Following closed session, Council reassembled in open meeting. Motion by Hayes seconded by Lansky, that, pursuant to Section 6.2 (b) and (c) of the City Charter, the City Manager is authorized to establish the position of Administrative Assistant, which position shall be filled by the person designated as City Clerk. The person holding the City Clerk/Administrative Assistant position shall be a regular employee of the City, paid on an hourly basis, and eligible for all the regular personnel benefits of the City; unanimous yes.

Motion by Hayes seconded by Lansky that the sum of $2250 be transferred from the Revenue Sharing Fund to the General Fund, and that $2250 be appropriated from the surplus and unappropriated funds of the General Fund to fund the Administrative Assistant position for the balance of fiscal 1978-79; unanimous yes.
Motion by Hayes seconded by Lansky that the sum of $2911.22 be transferred from the Revenue Sharing Fund to the General Fund and that said sum be appropriated from the surplus and unappropriated funds of the General Fund to pay Don Oakes for consultative work in connection with locating a City Manager; unanimous yes.
Motion by Lansky, seconded by Cotter that a radio be purchased for City Manager's car from surplus and unappropriated fund of the General Fund; unanimous yes. Meeting adjourned 12:15 AM.

the way to Iosco County, had cracked the murder case.

But despite all the excellent investigative work in the Detroit area, Maurer and Lieb probably never would have been found in their north woods hide-out had it not been for the experience of an Iosco County conservation officer, who knew the woods like the back of his hand.

Lieb was to make headlines 18 years later when he made a successful escape with another convict from maximum security at Northern Michigan Prison, Marquette. The pair hid in the woods for two weeks, then kidnapped a man at knifepoint and made a wild ride through Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin. Lieb was finally captured at Mayville, Kentucky, and returned to Michigan to spend the rest of his life in prison.

Today, most of the officers who took part in the 1932 manhunt are deceased. Sheriff Miller was gunned down three years later when he was called to East Tawas to investigate a multiple slaying.

As for Leitz, he retired nearly 15 years ago after his long service as a conservation officer. He quit counting birthdays after his 39th and still enjoys tramping through beloved old haunts along the Au-Sable River and other wooded areas of Iosco County.

Friends once coaxed him to write his experiences for publication, but his reply was that he had led a rather ordinary life, without much excitement.

An active member of the Iosco

County Historical Society, when he can find time to take off from trapping, fishing, preparing beaver dinners for the men's club of his church, hunting, looking after camps of friends and driving a truck for his son, he likes to use his tape recorder for interviewing

THE SINGERS, under the direction of James T. Alexander, will present its annual spring concert, Music for Spring, at Tawas Area High School on April 29 and at Oscoda Area High School on May 6. Concert time for both programs is set for 3:00 p. m. Accompanist for the chorus will be Sherry Dyer. Features of the concert will be selections from the Sound of Music, sung by elementary students of Pat Casey, teacher of elementary music in the Tawas Area School system. Barbara Erickson of East Tawas will sing the solo selection, "I Don't Know How to Love Him," from Jesus Christ Superstar, supported by Gail Wacker, Janet Howse, Rosemary McDonald, Kenneth Gingrich and Neil Wacker. A trio comprised of Brenda Feltz, Vi Maki and Marilyn Wolden will sing, "Think on These Things." Proceeds of the concert will go toward a summer music workshop for a talented vocal student from area schools. Tickets may be purchased at the door or from any chorus member.

Hale Principal A Convention Speaker

Defines Parent Involvement

Peter Holley, Hale Elementary School principal, was a speaker on Monday, April 23, at the annual convention program of the National School Boards Association held at Miami Beach, Florida.

He spoke at a workshop on the subjects, "Defining Parents Roles for More Involvement in the Schools."

The NSBA convention attracted more than 20,000 persons, including school board members and school administrators from throughout the nation. Headquartered at Washington, D. C., NSBA is a federation of the nation's state school boards associations, which represents 95,000 local board members.

In addition to his regular duties as elementary principal, Holley has written two different educational programs which have received national recognition.

One program, "Hale Elementary School Tutoring Program," has met with outstanding success in the improvement of student reading skills with the aid of volunteers.

Equally successful has been his program, "Summer School for Parents," which emphasizes the need for parent involvement and led to a program that trained parents to work with their children on a regular basis.

In his papers, Holley said the need for parent involvement "became a reality at Hale when declining test scores and lack of community involvement was noted."

Volunteer tutors from the community attended six training sessions for two hours each and then volunteered one hour each week for the school year.

"We are convinced that tutoring can and does help to improve student achievement," said Holley. Now in its fourth year, 75 percent of the original tutors are still involved in the program.

The summer school for parents program provides a method of training parents to work with children and records progress. It also supplies all the necessary materials for loan.

Program components include the training of parents to follow a specific, positive, mechanical method of working with their child 15 minutes a day, five days a week throughout the summer. It also provides all reading and mathematics materials necessary for success.

The program begins early in May when the classroom teachers extend personal parent invitations to attend an orientation meeting. The meeting includes commitment by the parents to attend two evening training sessions. The two sessions train parents by giving specific instruction and application activities which enable them to work with their child. At the completion of the sessions, the parents are given a card that indicates their child's reading and mathematics levels and areas to practice. The card also allows the parent to check out materials at the school during the summer.

Administrators and teachers support the program at Hale School by volunteering their time during the summer months.

"It has been concluded that parents and children, working together in a positive and rewarding home atmosphere, can ensure a successful summer experience and promote better communication between home and school," said Holley.

In addition, an evaluation has indicated that students who participated in the summer program showed no regression in their school studies during the summer break, a factor of vital importance in a child's education.

Plan Armed Forces Week Observance

Tours of air force work areas, a traditional retreat ceremony and speaking engagements are all part of Armed Forces Week activities planned at Wurtsmith Air Force Base May 14-19.

Initial plans are under way to increase community awareness of work activities at the base, according to Lt. Col. Roy Sherrett, Armed Forces Week chairman.

"What we envision," says Colonel Sherrett, "is a number of tours into the work areas around the base.

Everybody knows that we fly airplanes, but we would like to show people how we keep them flying."

The tours, scheduled to take place May 19 between 10:00 a. m. and 4:00 p. m., will begin on a regular basis from the Wurtsmith gymnasium annex. Areas to be visited include supply, transportation, the jet engine shop and other maintenance facilities. There will be tours of squadron operations for both the 524th Bomb Squadron and the 920th Air Refueling Squadron, plus a general tour of the Strategic Air Command installation.

All tours will be open to the public.

Other events programmed include a formal retreat or flag lowering ceremony May 18, 5:00 p. m., under the command of Col. Jesse S. Hocker, 379th Bomb Wing commander.

A large number of air force speakers will also be made available to the public during the week. Those desiring speakers should call or write the 379th Bomb Wing, office of information, Wurtsmith Air Force Base, Michigan 48753, telephone 739-6058.
