Hottest Primary in Tawas City's History

The hottest primary election in Tawas City's history saw 554 voters going to the polls Tuesday. Three incumbent councilmen were renominated by voters and three other nominees selected Tuesday will square off in the general election November 6, with only three to emerge from that balloting to take office January 1.

Jerry Cotter, former city attorney, was top vote getter in the election with 236 Xs in front of his name on 236 ballots. Running an extremely close second was Florence Upson, who received 235 votes. Running slightly behind in third place was Robert N. Rollin, veteran councilman, who received 208 votes.

The next three nominees were in a close match with Robert Pawloski receiving 176 votes, Joseph (John) Martin received 166 votes and Charles Landon, incumbent councilman, receiving 165 votes.

Eliminated from the running were Lyle Healey, 86 votes; John Majka, 61 votes; Boynton St. James, 143 votes; Wayne Thompson, 83 votes.

Cotter, who had been the target of a last minute campaign by opponents, received 65 votes in the First Precinct, 71 votes in the Second and 100 in the Third. Upson received 65 votes in the First Precinct, 92 in the Second Precinct and 78 in the Third. Rollin had 56 votes in the First Precinct, 77 in the Second and 75 in the Third Precinct. Pawloski had precinct votes of 50, 59, 67; Martin had votes of 56, 64, 46; Landon had precinct votes of 39, 57 and 69.

In addition to the six candidates above, the November general election will see a race between Donald M. Hayes and Lois (Mrs. Randall) Lanski to fill a two-year vacancy on the council. Hayes had been appointed to fill the vacancy until December 31.

Another race in that election will see Mayor Herbert Cholger challenged for that position by David A. Westcott.

City Clerk Rachel Sue McCready reported that 1,080 persons are registered to vote in the city and the turnout Tuesday represented 51.296 percent of the total registration list.

19th Annual Art Show Termed A Success Despite the Rain

Despite threatening weather each afternoon, the two-day Tawas Bay Waterfront Art Show held here over the week-end was a complete success.

A thunder shower which rolled across much of the state did not hit here until late Saturday afternoon, but the more than 200 exhibitors in the show had to cover displays during brief sprinkles of rain earlier in the afternoon.

Luck of the Tawas Bay Artists, show sponsor, seemed to hold out as areas less than two miles away on either side of the Tawas City Park were hit by downpours earlier Saturday afternoon. Bright sunshine greeted visitors both Saturday and Sunday mornings.

The threatening weather had only a minimal effect on curtailing the crowd of visitors and both the city park and county building display areas were packed both days.

Most exhibitors reported that sales were somewhat less than previous years, but blamed that on the national economy rather than on the weather.

The number and quality of oil, acrylic and watercolor paintings were particularly impressive in this year's show, while entries in creative crafts, drawings and photography were expanded greatly in this year's exhibits.

Charles Gatewood of Phenix City, Alabama, won the best of show award with egg tempera painting, "Better Days," and Kurt Papefus of East Tawas won the best of show in the junior division with his color photograph, "Near Digby."

Other first place winners included:

Danny Connors, Twining, oil painting, "Paul;" Thomas Muchow, East Tawas, acrylic, "Katie Mae and Friend," depicting two old fish tugs at the mouth of the Tawas River; Sally Wilson, Flushing, watercolor, "Canadian Spring;" Robert Lewis, Onaway, sculpture, "Birds;" Joseph Cyberski, Ann Arbor, who won best of show last year, jewelry;

John Houston, Honor, ceramics and pottery; Roger Tolsdorf, Clarkston, photography, "MacDonald Lake;" Larry Blovits, Grand Rapids, drawing, graphics, pastels and batik; Fred Rehak, Saginaw, creative crafts, birch medicine cabinet; Gerald VanLew, Alpena, woodcraft.

Return to Elective TC Clerk Proposed by Allied Taxpayers

On the eve of Tuesday's primary election, Allied Taxpayers made an unsuccessful first move to call an election to amend Tawas City's charter to return to the former system of electing a city clerk.

Randall Lanski read a petition from Allied Taxpayers asking that a referendum be authorized by the council permitting the people to vote on the question of electing a city clerk rather than the appointive method prescribed by the 1971 city charter.

After a preliminary review of election laws, City Mgr. Lowell Thomas said that it appeared there was sufficient time to place such a proposal on the November general election ballot.

Thomas said, however, that such a change was not consistent with the traditional council-manager form of government. He said that the council was responsible for legislative functions and that the city manager was responsible for administrative functions under the home rule charter adopted by the people.

He said that if people were dissatisfied with the city charter, perhaps it would be best to elect a new charter commission and develop an entirely new charter, rather than to amend the present charter in a piecemeal fashion.

"I have never seen a council so saddled by administrative matters," said Thomas.

"What kind of representation do we have when there is an appointive city clerk, city manager and city attorney," stated Coun. Robert N. Rollin, who moved for the vote by the council to initiate the referendum.

City Clerk Rachel Sue McCready said that all the complaining that she had heard about her performance of duty was that she had followed state laws concerning elections.

A hearing on a writ of mandamus filed against Mrs. McCready is scheduled to be heard Friday before Circuit Judge Leo Corbin of St. Johns in Isosco Circuit Court. Brought by an Alpena attorney representing signers of petitions presented last month, the suit asks the court to rule on the sufficiency of petitions asking for a referendum on the question of returning Tawas City to the three-year election system.

Want to Know Architect's Fee First

Council Asks Price of Complex

In a split decision Monday night, Tawas City Council voted to obtain the cost for preparing preliminary plans for a new city hall complex and, if acceptable, to resubmit a bonding proposal to voters at the November 6 general election.

This action was taken at a special session prior to the regular meeting called by City Mgr. Lowell Thomas. Voting in favor of seeking a cost estimate of preliminary plans were Donald Hayes, James Lansky, Jerry Cotter and Hugo Keiser. Opposed to the move were Robert N. Rollin and Mayor Herbert Cholger. Charles Landon was absent.

In his preliminary presentation, Thomas felt that a bonding proposition could be held at a special election already set for October 2. That election day has been established by County Clerk D. Keith Pappas on petition by Allied Taxpayers, who seek to recall five of six members of the council because of their dissatisfaction with decisions and recommendations of those councilmen.

Councilmen felt, however, that combining a bonding election with a recall vote would be inappropriate. In addition, it was felt there would be insufficient time to prepare preliminary plans and obtain a fairly accurate cost estimate for presentation to voters.

Sam Dorchen of the architectural firm of Dorchen and Serlin of Oak Park, who prepared concept drawings for a city hall complex proposal which was defeated by only 11 votes last November, was present at the meeting. His firm designed and supervised construction of the new Whitney Township Hall.

Dorchen and the city manager had visited the new fire hall and township office complex in Whitney Township and suggested several ideas for the proposed complex in this community.

The architect said that the estimated cost of the complex defeated in November ranged from $300,000 to $400,000, but suggested several alternatives to lower the cost of construction. He said, however, that this community could not expect to build a building at the $40 per-square-foot cost for Whitney Township's complex due to a 10 percent inflation factor in recent months.

His principal suggestion was to make the complex more rectangular in shape rather than to have separate wings for a fire hall, city offices and library. He said that elimination of brick in construction would also reduce the price.

The concept drawing for the complex presented last year called for 8,500 square feet of floor space and he believed this figure could be reduced to 7,000 square feet if it was desired.

The city manager pointed out that a rectangular building would save on the cost of construction of additional exterior walls and would reduce the cost of operation by saving heat. He believed that a building with 6,500 to 7,000 square feet of floor space would be more than adequate for present and future growth of the city.

Three alternative ideas were presented by Dorchen as the proposed configuration of the building. The structure would be moved closer to Lake Street with the city offices and the fire hall toward the front of the building and the library overlooking the river. One alternative, requiring an easement to Whittemore Street, would permit fire trucks to drive through the fire hall rather than backing into the front door.

Parking would be provided at the rear of the building in one plan and limited parking for the handicapped would be provided in the front. One alternative idea called for a split level structure with the library at the lower level.

Dorchen said he had discussed ideas for the complex with Charles Lehman, the city's planning consultant, and believed that providing parking at the rear of the building would tie it with future commercial development in the western half of the 500 block.

He emphasized that considerable input would be necessary from the council, fire department and community to develop plans. He said that a survey should be made to determine property boundaries and a topographical map prepared to show elevations. He said that the slope of the land toward the river could be used to an advantage through a split level arrangement, which would reduce the cost of fill.

Dorchen said that any estimated cost of construction prepared by his firm would be on the "high side" due to the lack of complete information.

Mayor Cholger felt that additional study should be made toward possibly relocating the proposed complex at an alternate site to permit future commercial growth in the area. Dorchen felt that the present location would provide immediate access to US-23 by the fire trucks, that growth outside of the present business was bound to happen but that the community should look toward renovation of the present business district.

Councilman Rollin felt that he could not make a decision on such an important question with so little information available at present and suggested that, before hiring an architect, the council should know the actual cost of preparing plans. He also believed that bids should be obtained from various architects before going ahead with the project.

City Manager Thomas felt that the Oak Park firm had prepared preliminary concept drawings last year and that the city should "not change architects in the middle of the stream."

Mayor Cholger expressed the opinion that the people would not approve construction of a new complex at the present location.

By a four to two roll call vote, the council authorized the architect to prepare preliminary plans and a "rough" estimated cost of the proposal for submission to voters November 6, contingent upon prior receipt and acceptance by the council of the architect's cost for preparing plans.

East Tawas Seeks Federal Aid for Newman St. Project

Assurances were given Monday night by the East Tawas Council that all avenues were being explored to obtain federal and state assistance in the proposed renovation of Newman Street.

Timothy O'Connor and Donald Mooney, representing businessmen in the district, appeared before the council and expressed concern that the property owners' share of the $350,000 cost was so high that it would not be feasible to present the program to participants.

The two businessmen estimated that the property owners' share of the project would be in the neighborhood of $250,000, or about $50 per front foot for participation.

Mayor Robert Bolen said that letters had been sent to three different federal agencies seeking financial help in the program in order to reduce the local cost and that efforts appeared promising.

The city is faced with a major reconstruction project on Newman Street which has been in the talking stage for a number of years. When originally constructed, the street was filled with slabs and sawdust from nearby mills. The material has rotted over the years and numerous dips in the pavement have resulted.

Due to several reaving projects in the past, the center of the pavement is now at the same level as sidewalks. Another problem is that street drainage is connected directly with the sanitary sewer and overloads the disposal plant.

Plans have been developed whereby the street would be excavated to remove old slabs and sawdust, to be replaced by compacted material. At the same time, a new storm drain would be constructed. This work would be done at city cost with possible federal participation.

Property owners would participate in construction of new sidewalk and curbs. The project would also include modern street lighting, installation of benches and planting of trees.

Word has been received by the city that a coastal management program has given a high priority for 80-20 percent funding for proposed modernization of the street from the US-23 intersection to the Michigan Waterways Commission Dock. It is believed that such a program is about two years away due to unknown availability of federal money.

Mayor Bolen said that the project would require a large contribution by the city, but emphasized the entire renovation of Newman Street was important to the community. He suggested formation of a downtown development corporation to spearhead the project for businessmen.

In other matters, the bid of Lynn Pillsbury was accepted for redecorating an office in the city garage for the police department. The bid was $200 for labor and the city furnish the materials.

As part of the transaction whereby the city obtained the former county garage for city purposes, the council set a public hearing for Tuesday, September 4, to hear objections to the vacating of Fir Street. This short street separates property still owned by the county and would be vacated to enable the county to consolidate its holdings.

Permission was given to hold a Cystic Fibrosis campaign this year, but the council directed that future campaigns of this type would have to be coordinated with the annual community chest campaign. It was felt that such fund raising drives defeated the original purpose of the community chest.

On recommendation of the planning commission, the council revised its zoning ordinance to permit a six-foot side lot line in residential districts rather than 15 feet under the present ordinance.

Edward A. Branner was hired to remove trees and stumps where necessary along city streets.

McDonald's Plan Restaurant Here

Announcement was made Monday that negotiations had been completed with the nationally-known McDonald's Restaurant to open a restaurant west of the Midway Family Center, 1700 Huron Road (US-23), East Tawas. A December 1 opening is planned.

County Increases Fee to Multi-County Landfill Co.

Authorization to increase the annual fee with Multi-County Landfill Company by 7.1 percent was given Wednesday by a vote of Iosco County Board of Commissioners.

This increase, amounting to $1,733.55 per year, is in addition to the annual fee of $97,665 paid for this service.

The commission's action was pursuant to the 1978 contract between the county and the landfill owner. The 7.1 increase represents 70 percent of the 10.2 percent increase in the consumers price index for a one year period provided under terms of the contract.

The increase is to be effective for the period July 1 through June 30, 1980. The additional money is to be paid from federal revenue sharing funds.

According to discussion at the meeting, it is expected that federal revenue sharing will be discontinued in 1980 and commissioners believe that an alternate means of financing the landfill service will be required.

It was stated that there may be a need to hold a special millage referendum or the cost of operating the landfill may be returned to local units of government.

In other matters, the commission approved an appropriation of $10,000 to assist in the operation of the Oscoda Ambulance Service. A request for $14,522 was received, but discussion pointed out that there was not sufficient money in the ambulance fund to pay the full request. According to a report from Oscoda Township, a new ambulance is scheduled to go into service there this week.

The commission authorized the Iosco County Planning Commission to utilize services of Northeast

Community Services and Michigan Planning and Development Regional staff to prepare and submit a request for a federal block grant to assist permanent Iosco County homeowners, particularly the elderly and limited income families, to insulate and otherwise improve the habitability of existing homes.

Authorization was given to pay $13,767.50 from federal revenue sharing funds to the building authority for the lease on the new courthouse expansion. This represents the scheduled amount for retirement of $475,000 in bonds to finance the project.

Authorization was given by the state to this county to commence performance of a contract to undertake a one year demonstration to provide public transportation.

At the same time, the board of commissioners urged the Michigan Department of Transportation to honor its contract with Iosco to deliver six new buses on or before October 1.

The commission voted to proceed with repaving and refurbishing the board of commissioners' room. Since the move of the district court to its new quarters, the commission has resumed full use of its own chambers.

The commission accepted the resignation of Vaughn Bell from the county planning commission. Raymond Andrus of Oscoda was appointed to fill the vacancy expiring December 31.

Authorization was given to Chairman John Webb to sign a contract with United Steelworkers of America on behalf of Union Local 8403 and the 81st District Court on a new contract running from January 1 to December 31, 1979. Arenac County had previously approved the contract.

Objection Heard Over Polling Place Change in City Election

Objection to changing election polls back to the city hall was voiced Monday night at the meeting of the Tawas City Council.

Harold Moeller appeared before the council and questioned the change, inasmuch as the council had not taken action on the matter. He said that, according to state election laws, the legislative body of the city was responsible for establishing the polling place.

City Mgr. Lowell Thomas, who accepted responsibility for changing the polls back to the city hall rather than at the elementary gymnasium, said he had not realized that people would be upset over the move.

He said he had not reviewed election laws to determine if a home rule charter would permit designation of polls as an administrative function rather than a legislative matter handled by the council.

He said that both facilities had been used in the past for voting and that a reconstruction program was currently under way at the elementary school.

If state law requires the council to make the decision on the designation of a polling place, the city manager said he accepted responsibility for the change as he was not aware of those requirements.

Several years ago, following an election night argument over public access to the polling place while ballots were being counted, the city polls were moved to the elementary school through an arrangement with the board of education.

In other business, Wayne Thompson appeared before the council and recommended that a charge be made for the use of the city park for the annual Tawas Bay Waterfront Art Show. He believed there should be a charge of $5 per booth as exhibitors sell their work.

"Taxpayers should get something back from this show," commented Thompson. "The only thing they get back now is a lot of traffic, the expense for policing and the cleanup. The exhibitors benefit from the show, not the taxpayers."

The council voted to hold a joint public hearing August 22, 10:00 a. m., with the Iosco County Board of Commissioners concerning the proposed medical arts center at Tawas Hospital. A new building is being considered there for doctors' offices.

Vacation of portions of Maple and Spruce Streets near the hospital was referred to the planning commission for a recommendation. This action was in line with the first reading of a new ordinance relative to the vacation of streets.

During discussion, Kenneth Myles, representing the hospital board, said that the hospital owns land surrounding both Spruce and Maple Streets and the aim of the street vacation was to move traffic away from the hospital. He said that future plans called for a circular drive to connect with German Street.

A request to vacate portions of Birch Street at the railroad tracks to improve utilization of property owned by Schreck Lumber Company, along with petitions to vacate alleys in Porterfield's Addition were turned over to the planning commission for recommendation.

Application of Iosco Cab Company for a license to operate in the city was granted by the council. Although the vehicle used by the company is old, the city manager said that it had passed an inspection by state police.

The council renewed its trunkline maintenance contract with the state highway department for two years.

Following second reading of an amendment to the city's sidewalk ordinance, unanimous approval was given to its adoption. The amendment permits a 50 percent cost sharing program between the city and property owners for sidewalk construction.

First reading was held on a proposed ordinance regulating construction and related activity in the public rights-of-way.

A recommendation from the sheriff's department to permit parallel parking only on Wheeler Street adjacent to Consumers Apliance was taken under advisement and the city manager is to discuss the matter with the property owner. The sheriff's department saw no reason to erect a four-way stop sign at the intersection of Fifth Avenue and North Street.

A joint meeting is planned Thursday, August 16, with the planning commission.

The city manager was given authority to negotiate purchase of an additional seven feet of right-of-way to widen German Street.

Approval was given to expand the city's share of a $25,000 project with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to study and make site plan for development of the mouth of the Tawas River and shoreline master plan. This project had been approved by the city in May at a cost of $2,816. The new cost would be $5,000, which could be in kind contribution by the city consisting of labor or other contributions.

WIOS Won Two Games to Hold First

WIOS won two games last week to preserve its undefeated record in the Tawas Bay Women's Softball League. The leaders have topped opponents in 11 straight games.

Results of games played last week are as follows: July 31—Tawas Bar defeated Lakeside Bar, 33-0; Tawas Lanes topped Provincial House, 18-5; WIOS won over The Place, 29-0.

Thursday—The Place defeated Jerry's Marina, 11-5; WIOS edged Tawas Bar, 2-0; Tawas Lanes won over Lakeside Bar, 21-6.

Wurtsmith Has Economic Impact on Isco County

Wurtsmith Air Force Base has an economic impact of more than 71-million dollars on the local economy, it was determined recently in a report sent to Headquarters, Strategic Air Command.

The Economic Impact Report is a semiannual review of the financial impact a military installation has on the surrounding community.

This review showed that Wurtsmith's financial impact in the Oscoda-AuSable-Tawas area is $71,040,000.

This figure represents the total military and civilian payroll, locally awarded contracts for various services, supplies, food, construction, as well as an economic multiplier which reflects the ultimate purchasing power of each direct dollar spent by Wurtsmith personnel as it flows through the community.

Calculated by the Office of Management and Budget in Washington, D. C., the figure is derived by multiplying the number of jobs created by the base's presence in the area by the average annual salary of the people working off base. The product of this is added to the annual salaries of military and civilian workers at Wurtsmith to give the total economic impact of the base on the area.

According to the report, the presence of Wurtsmith has created 2,976 jobs in the area. Marlene Ponschock, Wurtsmith management analyst, reported that this figure is based on contracts let on base for general maintenance, repair, custodial services. It does not include one time contracts let for items such as new buildings.

In addition to this significant economic impact on the area, the base has also awarded $6,519,000 in contracts throughout the State of Michigan in the first nine months of this fiscal year with Isco County receiving $2,500,000 of that amount.

Hospital Fund Meets Goal

Timothy O'Connor, chairman of Tawas Hospital Development Council, announced Thursday morning that the community had committed $250,000 to the current expansion project at the hospital.

With the Matilda R. Wilson Fund's grant of $150,000 announced two weeks ago, the council has succeeded in topping its current financial goal of $395,000.

O'Connor and Paul Dude, hospital administrator, extended their appreciation to all members of the development council and the community who worked on and donated to the project.

"It has been most gratifying to the hospital board, medical staff and administration to view the concern and teamwork demonstrated by the development council and the community in helping the hospital plan for improved services and by making necessary facilities a reality through their fund raising efforts," Dude stated.

O'Connor pointed out that the development council will continue to take an active role in hospital affairs as it advances. Projects to be addressed by the council in the near future include physician recruitment, community awareness and planning for future services and facilities.

He also stated that many people in the area are still to be contacted and funds would continue to be raised and utilized for the forthcoming surgical suite.

Certificate of need for a two-room surgical suite was approved three weeks ago by the Michigan Department of Public Health. The project will see 2,700 square feet added to the hospital structure and will provide space for two modernized operating rooms, a three-bed recovery room, an out patient dressing room and a surgical prep area.

Total project costs are estimated at $450,000.

Ground was broken a year ago for the current $2,100,812 hospital project. New construction houses a nursing wing with special care unit and emergency room. Work on the addition is expected to be completed in September.

Renovation of the existing hospital is planned after completion of the addition to minimize the amount of interruption of hospital activities.

Although only three additional patient beds will be added in the new wing, expansion of hospital facilities opens the way to meet the growing health care needs of the community through renovation of the existing facility. Renovated areas are to include a new pharmacy, physical therapy, inhalation therapy, X-ray and laboratory.

Commended for their work Thursday morning were executive members of the development council, including Irene Barker, chairperson, annual support, along with subcommittee chairpersons, Robert Richter, Mrs. Carolyn Nash of Au Gres and Margaret Gibbs of Oscoda;

Judith McIntosh, chairperson, special prospects, along with subcommittee chairpersons, Marlin Eaton, Marshall Wood, Mrs. Nash and John Gilbert.

Other chairpersons on the development council recognized were Roger McIntosh, foundations and corporations; Kathleen Furtaw, community relations; Thomas Huck, deferred gifts committee.

AMONG branch lines once operated by the Detroit and Mackinac Railway was the Rose City Division. The picture at left shows a section crew and hand car near Taft (Siloam). The picture at right shows Hale station constructed in 1907 and razed two years ago.

Seventy years ago, the infant automobile industry had a profound effect on the future of transportation in this country. In order to take advantage of new mobility offered to practically every individual citizen by the four wheels of automobiles, a good roads movement swept the country. During the course of time, former two-rut trails were graveled, then paved and finally developed into costly super highway.

At the outset, Americans were unable to comprehend the changes to be wrought in their lifestyle by the automobile over the next seven decades, with new job opportunities offered in manufacturing plants, a movement away from rural areas and increased free time to be devoted to recreational pursuits and travel.

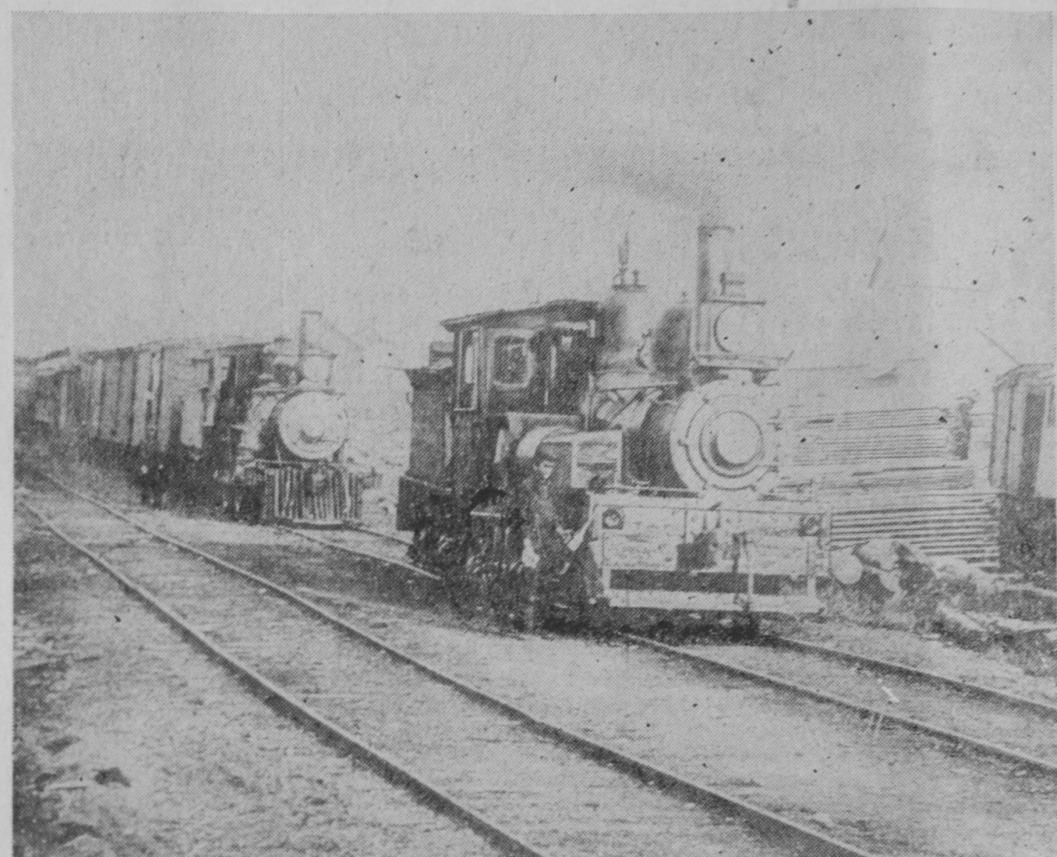

In the process, the nation turned its back on an established transportation system which was at its very height of development when the automobile first became popular. The nation's railroad system had an amazing development for nearly a century; starting with a few miles of rails on which open coaches were drawn by a "teapot on wheels," an efficient network of rails crisscrossed the country to provide a highly efficient transportation system in the early 1900s.

That this was a nation relying on steel wheels traveling over rails was further evidenced by the fact that each city of any size maintained its own street railway system to carry passengers to and from jobs, or to shops and stores in business areas. In addition, major metropolitan areas of Michigan, for instance, were connected by an interurban system of electrically-powered trains which provided fast travel throughout the southern half of the state.

The nation's new love affair with the automobile saw Americans turning their backs on transportation provided by rails and it was not too many years before railroad passenger traffic began to decrease rapidly. Although cross-country traffic was to rely on rail transportation until after World War II, the first railroad system to go under were the interurban lines connecting metropolitan areas, followed by the street railway systems.

As a consequence of the drop in passenger traffic, railroads began a movement toward consolidation of lines and removal of unprofitable branches. It was not long before the country was entirely dependent on rubber tired wheels operating on public highways as the major form of passenger transportation.

Even a rural area like Iosco County was affected by this transformation from rail to automobile traffic. One of the major changes

POSING for a picture at Rose City in 1903 is a Lima-built Shay gear driven locomotive owned by Prescott-Kent Lumber Company. saw the demise of the AuSable and Northwestern Railway, later purchased and operated for a few years by the Detroit and Mackinac Railway, which served that region north of the AuSable River.

When that branch became so unprofitable to operate that rails were removed and the roadbed abandoned, that entire region was left without a means of transportation and few improved roads. The major reason the state began making plans for a new bridge over the AuSable River at Five Channels Dam in 1929 was to offer a transportation outlet for persons "landlocked" by the lack of roads in the interior. This led to the eventual development of M-65 which provided a real avenue of transportation.

Coinciding with talk of a new bridge was the announcement by the railroad company that it was making application to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Public Utilities Commission for abandonment of its Rose City Division.

This action was fought by residents along the route, who contended that sufficient freight traffic was being maintained to warrant a continuance of the division and that its abandonment would be an irreparable damage to that territory.

Eventual abandonment was delayed for a couple of years, but during a hearing held at the old Iosco County Courthouse, H. K. McHarg Sr., president of the railroad, took note of the fact that not a single person present at the hearing to protect the abandonment had bothered to travel to Tawas City by railroad passenger train—the courthouse parking lot was filled with automobiles.

The last scheduled train over the Rose City Division was run Tuesday, April 15, 1930. Extra freights were run over the rails to take care of any unfinished business billed in or out before the following Thursday. When that business was completed, the steel rails were removed.

Train crew on the final scheduled run was Joseph Stepanski, conductor; William Berry, brakeman; John Swartz Sr., engineer; John Klingler, fireman.

The Rose City Division was constructed in 1886 during the tag end of the lumbering era. While much of the pine timber had been floated out to Saginaw Bay on the area's streams and rivers, millions of board feet of pine and hardwood were shipped over the railroad line.

As the forest products dwindled, the railroad became instrumental in the agricultural development of the territory and helped to introduce tourists and sportsmen to the region's beautiful lakes and streams by promoting newly established resorts through distribution of a vast quantity of advertising literature.

This partly replaced the business which was lost when the timber disappeared, but with the advent of automobiles and trucks, passenger traffic naturally began to decrease and soon reached the vanishing point and a large inroad was made in the freight business.

This division left the main line at Emery Junction (now National City) and ran northwest through Iosco County, ending at Rose City in Ogemaw County. It was originally called the Loon Lake Branch when established by the Detroit, Bay City and Alpena Railroad, predecessor of the D&M.

Numerous short spurs branched off the Rose City Division to tap the regions where pine and hardwood timber was harvested, those rails being moved from time to time as the forest work was completed.

In the process, several new crossroads communities sprang up along the line, including Hale Lake Station named after the pioneer railroad promoter in this region, C. D. Hale of Tawas City.

Many cars loaded with logs traveled along the rails every day and a depot was built at Hale in 1907, replacing a former warehouse used as a station. The railroad also provided a source of employment and furnished markets for farm produce.

Another essential service provided by the railroad was the carrying of United States mail and meeting the daily passenger train was the big event of the day for residents of the community surrounding Hale.

The resort areas of Long Lake and Lupton were also served and Rose City at the division's western terminus was a thriving community dependent on the manufacture of products from the forest and from the farm.

Persons who recall the days of travel on the Rose City Division will remember that the daily train was a typical milk run, with stops at many unscheduled crossings along the route to pick up cans of milk or cars loaded with livestock. When the season was right for picking wild berries, it was not uncommon to see the train stop at some secluded spot for a half hour or more on a summer day, with passengers and the entire crew picking ripe strawberries, huckleberries or blackberries.

Life, indeed, was at a much slower pace in those days and a position (See BRANCH LINES, page 4.)

DBC&A Wood Burning Locomotive

A BRANCH LINE known as the Loon Lake Division was constructed through Reno and Plainfield Townships into Ogemaw County by the Detroit, Bay City and Alpena Railway. This new wood burning locomotive and crew posed for a picture in 1888. Frank Allen is the engineman.

This locomotive lacked an air pump and had no brakes, the brakemen being required to turn hand wheels on each car when the train was to stop. The tender is being filled with cord wood piled along the tracks.

Editorial—

A Primrose Path to Chaos

Will Michigan split into two states? The answer could be coming as initiatory petitions seeking that end are in circulation. Included among the 42 northern most counties being considered in the new Independent State of Superior is Iosco County.

Circulation of petitions began August 1, calling for a special election to be held well before the 1980 general election. Signatures of an estimated 32,000 registered electors are expected to be collected to place the proposition before the people.

If the separation is approved by voters, the next step would be to obtain legislative consent to the separation, followed by approval or rejection of a new constitution and finally United States Congressional consent and admission into the federal union.

The initiatory statehood petition drive was announced recently at Mio and a "provisional government" is headquartered just outside of Boyne City. Some months ago, the area's state legislative members were asked to help the movement by producing an act allowing a vote on separation by the counties involved; none of the legislators would do so.

Later, a plan developed by Sen. Joseph Mack attempted to convince the legislature of ISS's worth by asking the area's board of commissioners to adopt resolutions requesting a separation election; 32 of the 36 counties involved ignored the request.

Throughout a good share of Michigan's history, there has been talk of separation; while the Upper Peninsula has often threatened to split away from the Lower Peninsula, there was a movement, and not too many years ago, of creating a State of Wayne, involving the Detroit metropolitan area.

This corner really cannot get excited about the current talk of separation into different states. Senator Mack may be a firebrand in the legislature at Lansing, but he does not have the credentials nor the general regional popularity of a spate of fire-eaters responsible for firing up the people in one section of the country which led to secession of 11 states from the federal union and formation of the ill-fated Confederate States of America more than 100 years ago.

The current separate statehood talk, as it was in the past, is all rhetoric fomented by a few political malcontents who cannot live by a majority vote on any question. It was that way years ago when Detroit threatened to pull out of the state because of the then rural domination of the state senate. Detroit had good reason then for being discontent, but the one man, one vote theory adopted by the supreme court and its subsequent redistricting of the senate changed the entire political picture throughout state and local government.

That one man, one vote concept apparently is the crux of the argument for the current talk of separate statehood.

The current crop of "firebrands" (?) responsible for separate statehood talk is dangling some enticing carrots on a string before the people of Northern Michigan, emphasizing savings at the grassroots level and a "more responsible, functional state government."

Some good ideas are being proposed, including a small unicameral legislature which would meet every two years for not longer than 60 days. The Utopia being promised, however, is pure political demagoguery as many of the proposed changes are intended only to get votes. What is not being said that the one man, one vote majority concept would still control the new state and the more populous areas would still control a state legislature, be it at Lansing or Marquette.

Lower Michigan's boundaries were described a long time ago by its motto: Si Quæris Peninsulas Amœnam Circumspice (If you seek a pleasant peninsula, look about you). The boundaries of that "pleasant peninsula" should remain intact.

Despite the differences of opinion between the "North" and "South" of Michigan, it is unreasonable to talk of secession from this state union—we are one people joined together in a covenant adopted by our Founding Fathers in 1837 and formation of the Independent State of Superior, far from being the promised primrose path, would lead this state and its people to utter chaos.

Know Your Michigan Law

By Attorney General FRANK J. KELLEY

Customers using electronic teller machines—the new bank and business convenience that allows one to complete transactions without waiting in line to see a teller—are covered by Michigan and federal laws.

Because electronic tellers do not recognize faces, or double check signatures of identification, the machines can make it easy for strangers to withdraw money from customer's accounts. It takes only the plastic "credit" card and knowledge of the secret number the bank assigns each customer to get money out of the bank.

The Michigan legislature has recently passed the Electronic Funds Transfer Act which provides that customers are not responsible for unauthorized bank transactions unless the bank can prove that the customer was negligent with the teller card or number.

The act states that customer negligence includes writing the secret number down where others can learn it or passing it on to a friend or relative.

If an unauthorized withdrawal or transaction appears on the monthly bank statement, the customer should notify the bank of it at once. After that notification, the customer cannot be held responsible for any more unauthorized transactions.

Federal law limits the maximum customer loss for unauthorized use at $50. If a customer does not report the unauthorized use within 60 days after receiving the bank statement or within two days of losing the card, the maximum loss is $500.

Electronic machines may have another drawback—it is obviously difficult for machines to stop payment on merchandise that is found to be defective after its purchase.

The Electronic Funds Transfer Act addresses that problem. It provides that customers can return the defective merchandise within four days, providing that the amount of the transaction is over $50. It does not apply to transactions under $50. A written request should also be made to the bank within 14 days after an oral request has been made to reverse the transaction.

To avoid problems or unauthorized uses, examine the monthly statements carefully. Any error must be reported within 60 days and banks are required to investigate the error within 10 days of receiving the report.

TODAY'S Meditation from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide The Upper Room

(Read Psalm 32:6-11) "You are my hiding place; You will save me from trouble. I sing aloud of Your salvation, because You protect me." (Psalm 32:7 TEV)

My hopes and expectations were high! Relaxation and enjoyment was the order of the day, to be spent 150 miles away at a famous amusement park with my two children and a good friend. This day had been planned for months.

Confident that the Lord would surely bless us with sunshine in answer to my prayer for a dry day, we happily set off. Upon our arrival, we dashed through the gates. No sooner had we entered than it hit—a terrific storm with high winds and torrents of rain. I cried out, "Lord, what's happening? You've disappointed me!"

During that seemingly untimely storm, I experienced unending wonder at how God had given us good shelter with His perfect timing. Then two hours later, when the sun began to shine, I realized how much more precious to me the sun was than if the storm had never existed. Once again I realized that real joy and awareness of God's presence are experienced most powerfully as He leads us through a storm and into the light ahead.

PRAYER

O Lord, teach us not to seek exemption from the storms of life, but to seek You in the midst of them. In Jesus' name. Amen.

State Appeals CP Gas Rate Increase

LANSING—General Motors, Dow Chemical and a group of Michigan

James LaBerge, Retired E. Tawas Businessman, Dies

James E. LaBerge of East Tawas, retired Tawas area businessman, passed away Wednesday, August 1, at Tawas Hospital. He was employed by the Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company, was an oil dealer in East Tawas for 38 years until his retirement in 1969. He then sold real estate for 10 years.

Mr. LaBerge served on the East Tawas Public Works Board and Park Board and was a life member and past master of Tawas Lodge No. 274, Free and Accepted Masons.

Born March 8, 1899, in Rose City, he is survived by his wife, Bess, whom he married October 1, 1921, in Whittemore; a daughter, Mrs. Kirk (Ardath) Timm of Bay City; three grandchildren; two great grandchildren, and two sisters, Vivian Pitman of Sebring, Florida, and Avis Carter of Owosso.

Funeral services were held Friday, August 3, from Christ Episcopal Church, East Tawas, with the Rev. Kenneth Near officiating. Burial was in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Tawas City. A Masonic memorial service was held Thursday evening at Jacques and Kobs East Chapel.

businesses have joined Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley in appealing a recent order of the Michigan Public Service Commission (PSC) granting Consumers Power Company a 29.1-million-dollar gas rate increase.

Within hours after Kelley filed his appeal in Ingham Circuit Court, GM, Dow and the Michigan Gas Business Users Committee also filed appeals challenging the rate hike authorized by the PSC.

Kelley, GM, Dow and Gas Business Users Committee are asking the court to overturn a June 27 order of the PSC which enables Consumers Power to continue charging customers for the cost of natural gas manufactured at the utility's Marysville synthetic natural gas plant.

The Marysville plant has not been in operation since March and its license to import the feedstock necessary to operate was revoked by the United States Department of Energy in April. Despite the plant's inoperation—and the admission by Consumers Power officials that the plant will not be needed until 1985, if then—the PSC ordered Consumers to pass the cost to customers the cost of operating and maintaining the Marysville plant adds about 12 percent to the average customer's bill, Kelley said in his appeal.

In his arguments against the increase, Kelley recommended the Consumers Power rates could be reduced by 70-million dollars by eliminating the costs of operating and maintaining the Marysville plant from rates charged to customers. Kelley's recommendation was based in part, on a study done by a certified public accountant who was hired to analyze Consumers Power's finances and operations.

The case has been assigned Circuit Judge James R. Giddings who will conduct a hearing on the appeal at a later date.

Childhood Experiences are Highly Formative

Children's experiences in the highly formative first years of life lay the foundation for their lifelong feelings about themselves. Because of their closeness during this period, parents play a critical role in developing these feelings in their children.

"Children's feelings about themselves relate closely to their assessment to how they measure up to what people expect," explains Joan Witter, program coordinator in family living education for the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service.

If parents establish realistic expectations for their children, self-esteem can grow. On the other hand, if parents' expectations are too high, their children's self-esteem may suffer when they cannot live up to those expectations.

Inexperience in parenting can sometimes result in the establishment of overly high expectations, especially for the first-born child.

Unrealistic expectations can also result when parents try to fulfill their own desires through their children. For example, a child may encounter parental pressure to make straight-A grades, excel at a team sport or become a student leader in school because of his or her parents' unfulfilled goals. Similarly, a parent may try to enforce guidelines experienced in his or her own childhood without considering modern-day realities. To test if you are helping or hindering the development of your child's self-esteem and determine if expectations are realistic, answer these questions:

- Why do I have this expectation? Where did it come from?
- Is it based on my wishes or on my child's needs?
- Does it realistically fit this particular child? (Consider age, temperament and background of the child.)
- What purpose does it serve?
- To learn more about a child's self-esteem, write for a series of three extension publications, bulletins E-1020, E-1021 and E-1022. Single copies of each publication are free. They may be obtained from the MSU Cooperative Extension Service Office, Post Office Box 599, Tawas City 48763; phone 362-3449.

David J. Frysinger, navy boiler technician third class, son of Margaret A. Frysinger, Oscoda, has been awarded the navy expeditionary medal. He is a crewmember aboard the aircraft carrier, USS Midway, operating from Yokosuka, Japan.

He received the medal for his participation in cruises in the Indian Ocean and Arabian Gulf in response to the turmoil in Iran and North Yemen. The medal is awarded to personnel of the navy who have operated under circumstances deemed to merit special recognition. The medal was first authorized in 1936.

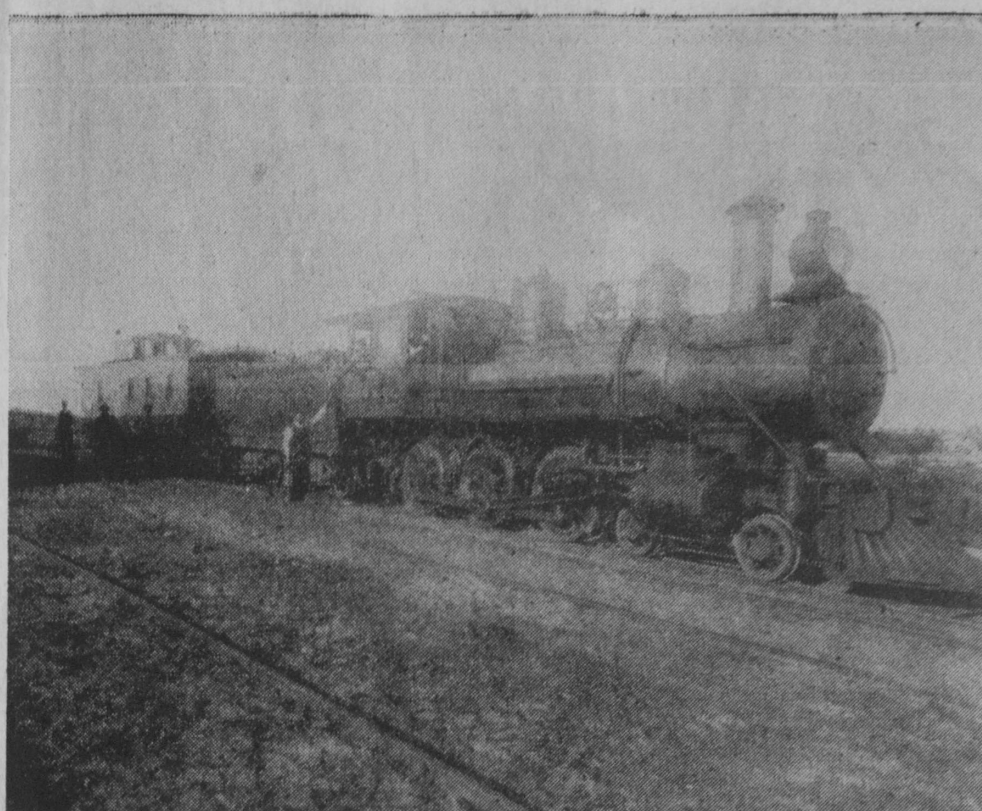

A 1976 graduate of Oscoda Area High School, Frysinger joined the navy in December 1976.

Departs for Fisheries Patrol

Michael R. Andrus, coast guard electronics technician second class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Andrus, Oscoda, recently departed for an Alaskan Fisheries patrol. He is serving as a crewmember aboard the coast guard cutter, Boutwell, homeported in Seattle, Washington. During the two-month patrol, Boutwell will conduct surveillance operations with coast guard aircraft to enforce international treaties and United States laws, including the 200-mile fisheries conservation zone.

A 1970 graduate of Lincoln Park High School and a 1976 graduate of Metro State College, Denver, Colorado, with a bachelor of science degree, Andrus joined the coast guard in October 1977.

through traffic generated by shipment of crude oil from oil fields in that area.

Once abandoned, the railroad's former right-of-way reverted to owners of contiguous property. Although portions of the roadbed can still be detected along Whittemore Road, much of the area is now covered by a new growth of hardwood and the roadbed is barely discernable.

This example of one change in Iosco County's transportation system is only a small fragment of the over-all national picture, where the federal government is still abandoning passenger trains despite a growing awareness that a different form of transportation is needed to augment highways due to the fuel crisis.

Strong criticism has been leveled at this country for abandoning its railroad transportation system, particularly when comparisons are made with efficient systems being operated in Japan and in Europe.

Discussion on a return to railroad transportation is heard frequently in congress, but renovation of long neglected roadbeds would require a national expenditure of several billion dollars.

In rural areas such as Iosco County, it is not expected that passenger railroad traffic will ever be revived. Any improvement in public transportation here in the future will probably be furnished by motor buses operating on public highways for which Michigan taxpayers are bonded for many years to come.

Proceedings of Iosco County Board of Commissioners

JULY SESSION

July 18, 1979
A regular meeting of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners held at the county building in Tawas City on July 18, 1979, pursuant to published schedule.

Meeting called to order at 9:40 a. m. by Chairman Webb and the roll called.

Present: Stech (District 1), George (District 2), Merschel (District 3), Ulman (District 4) and Webb (District 5).

Absent: None.
Chairman Webb reviewed the agenda for the day and the business to come before the board.

Commissioner Stech reported in reference to a proposal made at the July 5th meeting for the possible use of a retired sheriff's patrol vehicle for general county use, which he was assigned to investigate, indicating that after having conferred with Undersheriff Basil O'Dell, he is of the opinion that it would be more beneficial to the county to sell the used patrol vehicles, due to high fuel consumption, maintenance, etc.

Architect John Dye addressed the board in reference to the energy grant program, indicating it was the intent of the program to reduce energy loss and to provide jobs, and that there has been a great amount of paper work involved. Continuing, Mr. Dye presented a detailed report on the work that has been completed and the status of the paper work for the various projects, recommending the percentage payment to be made at this time; further requesting 43% of the fee due for his services, as 43% of the grant funds have been received.

In further discussion with board members, Mr. Dye discussed the removal of the podium and the jury box, as well as the installation of new carpeting, in the commissioners' room (formerly district court room); the possibility of installing movable partitions in the employees' coffee room (to possibly utilize some of the space for other uses, if needed); the air conditioning system installed to serve the new district court addition to the county building complex; things still to be completed on the county building complex alteration and expansion project; the paving of the parking lot (indicating the building authority is awaiting a price quotation, that not included in the Mako contract); minor revisions requested by some department heads (indicating the building authority is hesitant to authorize any additional expenditures until the cost of the paving is ascertained).

Jim Turner, area representative for U. S. Senator Carl Levin, addressed the board, indicating they will have two staff persons to serve 18 counties from their office in Alpena, and outlining the services they will provide.

Committee reports were presented by board members.

The clerk reported in reference to a letter dated July 12, 1979, which he received from District Judge J. Richard Ernst requesting that, although the board of commissioners recently approved a full-time position for Roberta Roullo, she be continued as a regular part-time employee of the 81st District Court, subject only to the salary privileges, benefits and obligations set forth in the contract for such a position. In discussion of the matter, the clerk advised that enrollment had already been effected for Mrs. Roullo in both the Blue Cross and the life insurance programs, and that she is working 35 or more hours per week.

Continuing, the clerk directed attention to the appointments to be made to the construction code board of appeals and the vacancy to be filled in the Economic Development Corporation board of directors.

Committees were ordered to their respective duties at 11:00 a. m., the official meeting to stand in recess until 3:00 p. m., or subject to the call of the chair.

Communications received by the clerk's office were referred directly to the chairman for assignment to committees.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Upon call to order at 3:45 p. m., all commissioners being present, Commissioner Stech presented and moved adoption of the following resolutions:

Your health and public safety committee recommends that the offer of $800 submitted by Mr. Tom Green, of Whittemore, Michigan, for the purchase of the 1973 Ford LTD, vehicle No. 7B63A190546, formerly a sheriff's patrol vehicle, be accepted.

Your finance committee recommends that the Iosco County Board of Commissioners approve the disbursement of $1,000 for the settlement of all claims of the pending law suit entitled "Buhl vs. Westcott and Short", said monies to be paid from the contingency account, provided said amount cannot be prudently recovered from our insurance company.

HOW MUCH OF YOUR NATURAL GAS DOLLAR DO WE KEEP AS PROFIT?

ABOUT 3¢

A lot of people think Michigan Consolidated makes 20 to 40 cents profit on every dollar's worth of gas we sell. We do make a profit, but it's only about 3 cents on every dollar. The remaining 97 cents is used to pay our bills. Seventy-four cents goes to suppliers for the gas we purchase from them. The remaining 23 cents is used to pay our employees, operating and maintenance expenses, interest on borrowings, and taxes. Our share of your natural gas dollar isn't very much, but it's vitally needed. It provides the return that investors require to finance new gas supplies and facilities. And these are necessary so we can continue to deliver the natural gas you need—now, and in the future. If you'd like to learn more about natural gas costs, write for our free booklet "Nobody Likes Higher Gas Costs. Including Us" Michigan Consolidated Gas Company, Public Affairs Activity, One Woodward Avenue, Detroit, MI 48226.
