Nash Needs to Practice Swedish

Ernest Nash would like to practice speaking his native tongue, but he has been unable to find a Swede around here who can help him. To be able to speak the language again would require a crash course with a little less than a month to go.

On July 15, Nash is scheduled to fly from New York City, New York, to Stockholm, Sweden, for a two-week reunion with family members whom he has not seen in 57 years. Accompanying him will be his son, State Rep. Ernest Nash Jr., and his granddaughter, Tracy Nash, of Dimondale.

It will be his first trip across the Atlantic since 1922. As an 18-year-old, he made the trip as a second class passenger. Next month, the trip will be by jet aircraft, but he insists it will not be in a DC-10.

What worries Nash more than engines dropping off aircraft is that he is going to have difficulty talking with his three brothers and a sister waiting for his arrival at Lulea, Boden and Haddinge, Sweden.

"I am sure that the younger generation of the Nasvall family (the original spelling of his name) will be able to speak English, but I rather doubt if I will be able to converse in Swedish with my brothers and sister," said Nash.

Born on a farm near Niemiholm close to the border with Finland, Nash worked with his father building stone bridges after completing his schooling. He also worked in the woods in that northern part of his homeland, where snow reaches five to six feet in depth during the winter.

When he was 18 years of age, an uncle who had lived in Michigan for 20 years came home to Niemiholm for a visit and the younger decided he would return to the United States with him. He borrowed the money for his passage and crossed the ocean, never to return until he reached his 74th birthday.

"I had quite a difficult time learning English after coming to Bay City," recalled Nash. "I worked as a brick layer on construction of an addition to Bay City Central High School and the nationalities of the other workers were mixed. Everyone spoke in his native tongue—Polish, German and Swedish—and everyone had trouble trying to communicate on that job."

He later worked on a dairy farm near Bay City, and after the death of his first wife, whom he married at Bay City, came to Whittemore in 1932 to work for Theodore St. James and then spent four years taking care of horses on the W. T. Hill Ranch.

He moved to Whitney Township to work for Harry and Lloyd Johnston on Twining Road and married Lulla Anderson in 1941. Since that time, they have lived on Noble Road.

Besides farming, he worked for United States Gypsum Company and later worked for Davison and Rose Construction Company when Tawas Area Junior and Senior High School was constructed. Before the school was completed, he was hired as a custodian and remained at that job for 10 years until his retirement.

Today, he enjoys working in his garden and operates a sanitation service in Whitney Township.

He is looking forward to seeing his family again in Sweden. There may not even be a language barrier, for he probably will recall his native tongue once he is reunited with his brothers and younger sister, who was born after he left home.

New Petitions Required to Call Charter Change

A referendum on the question of amending Tawas City's 1972 charter to return to the old ward political system of selecting aldermen has been sidetracked temporarily, but two proponents on the council indicated Monday night that new petitions would be circulated demanding a vote.

Two weeks ago, the city council passed a resolution to place on the ballot the issue of electing councilmen under the ward system. A review of the state statute the following day revealed, however, that passage of the question by a four to two margin was insufficient to place it on a ballot.

State statute requires that any charter amendment proposed by the council must carry by a three-fifths vote of members-elect, meaning that five votes were necessary to approve the question.

Coun. Hugo J. Keiser, who was not in attendance at the last meeting but was on hand Monday night, said he was not in favor of the old ward system of city politics and he would vote "no" on any straw vote called to place the question before the electorate.

The two councilmen opposing the question at the last meeting were Jerry Cotter and Charles Landon, who again stated they were in favor of electing councilmen at large. Both Keiser and Cotter were elected by voters to the commission which drew up the charter and given an overwhelming, 301-97, approval by voters on November 2, 1971.

Keiser said that the charter commission, after lengthy deliberation, had concluded that more could be accomplished by electing councilmen at large to represent the entire community, rather than under the old three-ward system where councilmen considered only their own neighborhood.

Although the council now has five members from Bay Drive area, Keiser felt that members had devoted their time to the betterment of the entire community and no special consideration had been given to their own neighborhood.

Under the at large election system, Keiser said that people from any part of the community with a candidate could easily place the name on the ballot with a nominating petition.

Mayor Cholger felt that the council was disregarding the wishes of the people by not initiating the referendum. Cotter and Keiser said that councilmen represent the entire community and they would not be influenced by 252 signatures unless valid petitions were presented.

A letter from City Atty. Kenneth J. Myles stated that petitions presented two weeks ago had been prepared improperly and had been submitted too late to hold a special election to coincide with the August 7 primary. Such an election may not be held less than 90 days from the date of filing petitions for a charter amendment in accordance with state law.

City Clerk Rachel Sue McCready had asked the city attorney to rule on three questions which she had concerning the petitions. Two of the petitions were addressed to the city council and not to the clerk, as required by law; petitions did not state what body, organization or persons interested in and responsible for circulation of the petitions, which the state election commission requires; petitions were not verified by the circulator as to the genuineness of signatures, also a state requirement.

In his letter to the city clerk, the city attorney said the petitions were "not in compliance with the statute and may not be considered by you and you shall only certify the sufficiency or insufficiency of those petitions properly prepared and properly filed with you."

In addition, the city attorney pointed out that should the charter question be placed before a referendum of voters, either by citizen petition or council resolution, wording should provide the effective date of the amendment; the number of wards, keeping in mind that the ward boundaries must comply with one-man, one-vote; the method of implementation; the proposition must be passed and submitted with sufficient time to provide for review by the attorney general and the governor prior to submitting the proposition to the electors.

Mayor Cholger felt that the city clerk should prepare a sample petition with the proper wording to meet legal requirements and felt that the clerk was "bucking" the proposal if she did not do it.

Mrs. McCready said, however, that wording of such a petition should be prepared by an attorney in order to meet legal requirements of the state and that those persons desiring the referendum should have the proper wording prepared for their petitions.

The clerk also pointed out that a census would be required to reapportion the city's three proposed wards to meet the one-man, one-vote requirement. Present voting precincts were reapportioned according to registered voters and not by total population.

Councilman Rollin said that the city attorney "had been wrong before" and believed that some deviation in compliance with the state law should be made by the council.

Mayor Cholger said the matter would be dropped for the present, but the city council could expect a court case over the matter. It is expected that proper petitions will be prepared and circulated for a special election on the proposed charter amendment.

Council Votes Improvements Over Tax Cut

Reinstatement of capital improvements amounting to not more than $19,000, which had been slashed from the 1979-80 operational budget, was adopted Monday night by a vote of the city council.

This came about through a memorandum from City Mgr. Lowell Thomas, who was not present for Monday night's meeting.

Thomas and the city treasurer had reviewed city finances for year-end calculation of revenues and expenses and the city manager's letter said he was "happy to report that conservative estimating has resulted in an expected surplus of approximately $19,000 more than estimated at budget preparation time."

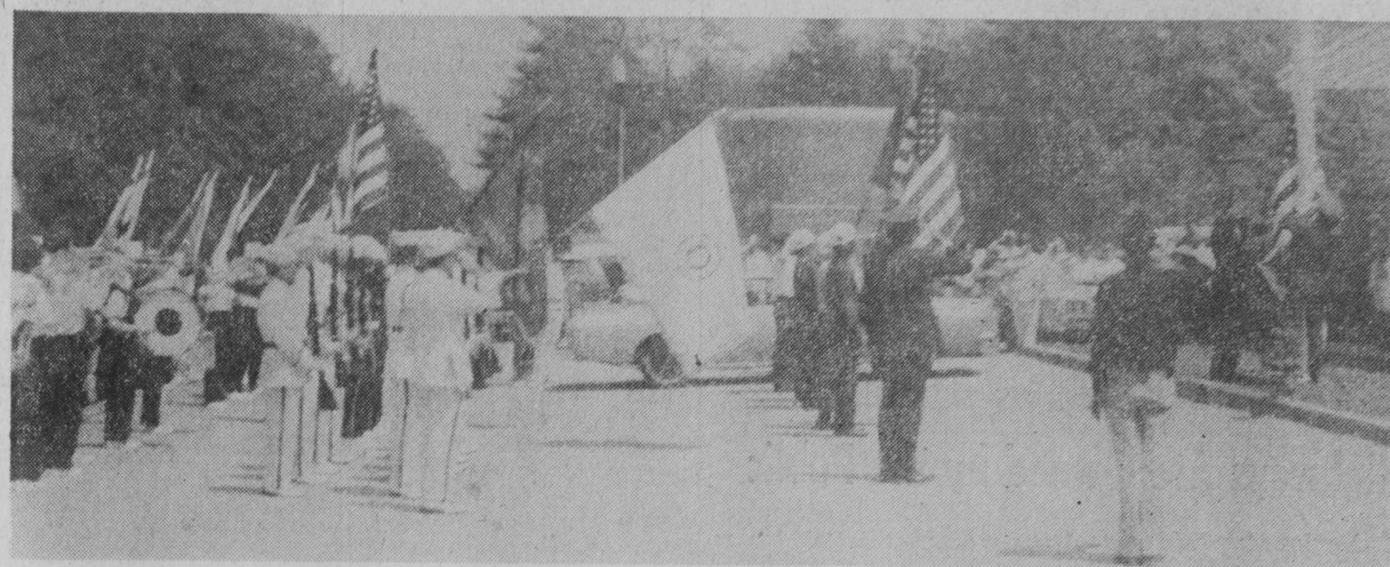

The city manager said this was due to revenues being slightly higher than anticipated and expenses lower than anticipated.

During budget preparation time last month, the council reduced operational expenditures in a number of categories due to the fact that purchase of property at the river mouth last year was financed through tax anticipation notes and the state required payment of those notes in the 1979-80 budget.

This meant that three additional mills of taxes would be required and, rather than to increase the tax levy for one year from slightly over 15 mills to 18 mills, the council combed its budget to reduce operational costs, eliminating a number of capital improvements.

Discussion by the council including the advisability of reinstating $10,000 as the city's share for work on the city park pier, which has been given tentative approval of $10,000 in matching money by the Michigan Department of Natural

Hot Primary Assured for Tawas City

A hot election campaign is expected this summer as Tawas City voters prepare to select candidates for the city council in the August 7 primary election.

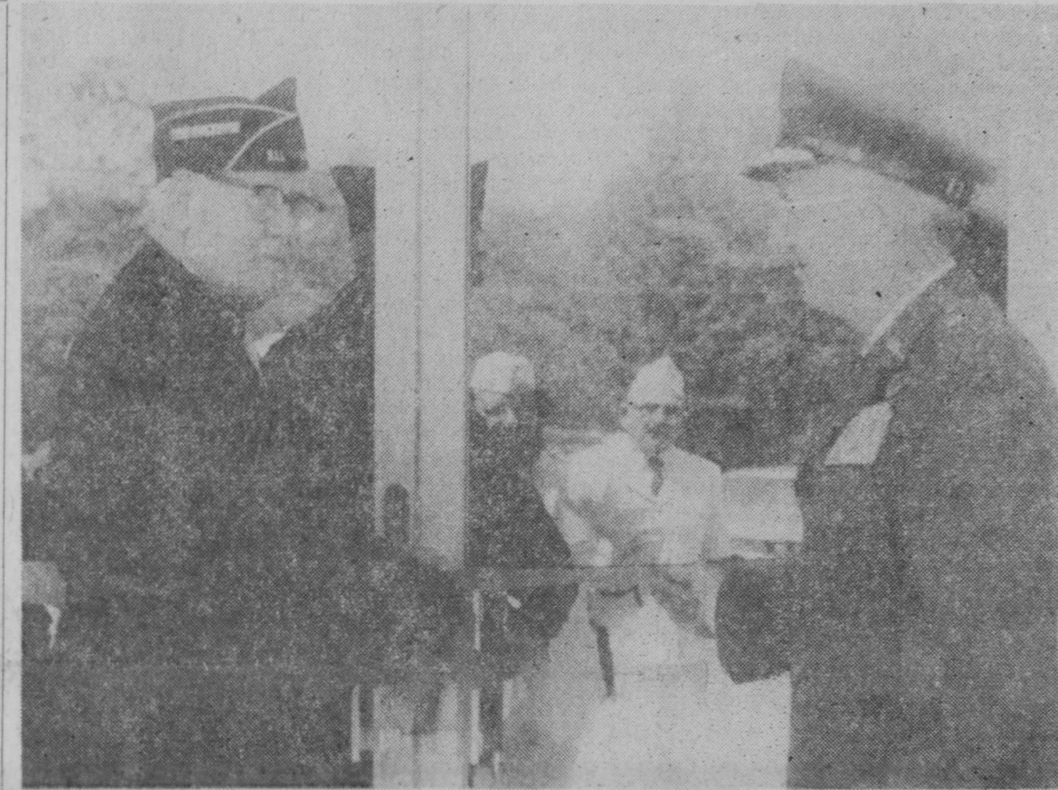

A total of 14 candidates filed nominating petitions to fill vacancies of the mayor and four members of the council.

Need for the primary election was caused by a late flurry of candidates filing for three of the four-year vacancies on the council. Ten candidates filed for those three positions and the six candidates receiving the most votes will oppose each other in the November general election.

Only two candidates filed for the two-year vacancy on the council. Filing for that position were Donald M. Hayes, who was appointed to fill the vacancy of William Ezo, and Lois (Mrs. Randall) Lanski. Herbert Cholger, incumbent mayor, is to be opposed by David A. Westcott.

With only two candidates filing for mayor and two for the two-year council vacancy, those candidates are automatically nominated and their names will not appear on the primary ballot, but will meet in the November general election.

The 10 candidates filing for the four-year council seats and whose names will appear on the primary ballot are Jerry Cotter, Lyle Healey, Charles Landon, John Majka, John (Joe) Martin, Robert Pawloski, Robert N. Rollin, Boynton V. St. James, Wayne E. Thompson and Florence Upton. Cotter, Landon and Rollin are incumbents.

ET Rummage Sale Control Ordinance Set for Hearing

A public hearing is to be held at the July 2 meeting of the East Tawas Council relative to a proposed new ordinance controlling garage sales in the community.

A sample ordinance proposed by the City of Harrison is being prepared for adoption at East Tawas.

In addition to establishing a permit fee of $1 for each garage or lawn sale, the ordinance provides that not more than two permits to the same person or premises would be issued in one calendar year.

The ordinance also provides that should a garage or lawn sale be deemed a nuisance, it could be immediately terminated by council order.

Enforcement of the ordinance would be handled by the city police department.

In other matters, the council initiated a four-step approach to clearing the community of unsafe and uninhabitable residential structures.

The first step would be to conduct a title search to determine ownership of the property, followed by action from the city attorney to settle the matter of removal or renovation with the property owner.

The third and fourth steps indicate that the city would take action in circuit court to resolve the matter of clearance. If such action was successful, the city would clear the property and bill the owner for the cost.

The council assured the Michigan Department of Natural Resources that the city will turn over sufficient parking area in the city park for a 200-car parking lot.

The city was reluctant to approve a 100-car parking lot and it was felt that it would be too small to serve park needs.

The new parking lot would be located on the present lawn of the East Tawas Community Building and it was pointed out that enough area was available so as not to disturb trees.

Property would be turned over to the state under a long-term contract, subject to a reverter clause.

A request from Northeast Radio Engineers to rent the radio tower at the city garage for a repeater station was tabled. A committee report felt that a proposal to rent the tower at a rate of $36 per month, the same rate charged by the firm for maintaining the city police department radio, was not in the best interest of the city.

Mayor Robert Bolen appointed Ronald Klinger, former councilman, to the zoning board of appeals. Dr. Norman Payea resigned from his position on the board.

The council renewed its request to the Iosco County Road Commission to institute steps to replace the Tawas River bridge at Bridge Street. A child was seriously injured on the bridge last week when struck by an automobile.

The city has assured the county (See ET COUNCIL, page 6.)

East Tawas Native Heads State's Asiatic Trade Office

Gov. William C. Milliken Thursday announced the appointment of Nancy A. Hennigar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hennigar of East Tawas, as director of Michigan's Asian trade office in Tokyo, Japan.

She is believed to be the first woman to head the international trade office of any state and the third woman to head a State of Michigan branch office. Others are Margaret Mary (Peggy) Monihan, director of the state's Washington office, and Mary Teresa Peabody-Soper, who heads the governor's Upper Peninsula office.

Miss Hennigar will assume the post on June 25, succeeding Edward S. Dubel, who will be returning to the United States to start his own business.

"I am particularly impressed with Nancy Hennigar's background in East Asian studies, her fluency in Japanese and her considerable work experience in Japan," Milliken said. "Based on our extensive experience in this area, I am confident that Michigan is the first state in the nation to have a woman at the helm of an international trade office and I am pleased to make this move."

As director of the Tokyo office of the Michigan Department of Commerce's Office of Economic Development, Miss Hennigar will be responsible for working with Japanese, Taiwanese, Korean and other Asian firms to encourage establishment of manufacturing plants in Michigan. She also will be responsible for assisting Michigan business firms to export their products and develop markets throughout the Far East.

Miss Hennigar, 28, leaves a position as editor and manager, public relations, with the International Division of Press International in Tokyo. Her job included editing Focus Japan, a monthly economic and trade publication.

Before joining Press International in 1978, Miss Hennigar worked as an English teacher in Hamamatsu, Japan, as a teaching fellow at Yale University and as an archival assistant with the State of Michigan Archives.

She has bachelor and master degrees from Michigan State University in East Asian studies and a master degree from Yale University in Japanese studies.

The office of economic development maintains two overseas offices. The other is in Brussels, Belgium, which works to encourage trade between Michigan and European nations.

Holley Appointed HA Superintendent

Peter Holley, veteran elementary principal, was picked Monday night by Hale Area Board of Education to succeed Wayne Case as superintendent of schools. Case resigned recently to accept a new position with Richmond Community Schools.

The 36-year-old Holley has been elementary principal since 1970 and previously had been an elementary teacher there for two years.

He was given a one-year contract Monday night by the board of education. A total of 62 applications had been received for the vacancy and the board interviewed six candidates.

Holley has received considerable attention in educational circles for his work toward the improvement of student reading skills and the need for parental involvement in education. On April 23, he spoke at the annual convention program of the National School Boards Association held at Miami Beach, Florida.

His first teaching experience was in Detroit Public Schools from 1966 to 1969. He received his bachelor degree and master degree from Wayne State University.

In 1971-72, Holley was enrolled in educational programs concerning school administration at Michigan State University and an administration action series at Central Michigan University in 1976-77.

He and his wife are parents of two children.

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible with liberty and justice for all.

Highways Are Owned by the Public

Michigan residents are expected to be inconvenienced later this week when a threatened protest by independent truckers possibly will cause shortages on supermarket shelves. The head of the Michigan Independent Truckers Association threatened Monday to pull rigs off the road and picket at fuel stops. This corner is sympathetic to the plight of the independent truckers who are faced with possibly going out of business because of the rising fuel costs. Other businesses which rely on motor transportation—from the salesman to the ordinary worker who uses his car for transportation to and from work—are faced with the same problem. The answer, however, is not going to come by eliminating the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit for trucks and passenger cars. This corner does not have information concerning the rate of speed at which diesel trucks should operate for the best fuel efficiency, but it is common knowledge that passenger cars traveling at a higher rate when gassing at more than 50 miles per hour. It has also been proven that the mandatory 55-mile-an-hour speed limit has reduced the number of highway fatalities. Truckers should remember this—despite seemingly high taxes paid by truckers, highways in the state are constructed through taxes paid by the public, the major cost of highway construction in Michigan coming from federal, state and local funds. The general public pays for and should control the highways, not the truckers, and it is unreasonable for truckers to demand higher speeds and higher truck weight limits. The solution to the fuel crisis is not going to be solved by highway protests—it may never be solved until the federal government takes over complete control of all petroleum imports, eliminating the price fixing and price gouging by oil companies. When that happens, some freedom will be lost in this country. In the meantime, a protest which would lower food stocks will only alienate the public further against the trucking industry, a mode of transportation vital to this country.

Armyworms Pose Threat to Michigan's Corn Crop

Armyworm damage has been reported in corn in Gratiot, Clinton, Ionia, St. Joseph, Allegan and Newaygo Counties. Entomologists at Michigan State University suspect that armyworms could also be found now in small grains. The dense stand just makes them harder to detect until they get big enough to start clipping heads of grain. By that time, they are too big to control effectively. Farmers are advised to check corn and small grains now for feeding damage on leaf margins, whole plants chopped off and greenish or dark brown, lengthwise-striped caterpillars near the bases or in the whorls of the plants. Pay particular attention to weedy areas in and near cropland. Armyworms are primarily grass feeders but will eat anything once they start to march. A lot of damage can be caused in a hurry. Last year in Iosco County, almost 10 acres of corn were destroyed practically overnight. By the time the armyworms were done with them, the corn plants were eaten right down to the midribs. Anyone finding armyworms in the fields are asked to contact the county extension office immediately for control recommendations. The call will also enable the office to get word out to other growers in the county. Remember, early detection is essential to control. There is no insecticide effective against the larger worms. They must be hit while small to prevent serious damage.

Letter to the editor: If this applies to you, please read.

Thanks a lot for the nice parking lot dents on my six-week-old car. Can't you be a little more considerate of the other person's property? Or shall I be a little less considerate of yours? On the average weekly rate, my car receives .66 dents or yearly, 34 to 35 dents. Can you imagine what it will look like? After a few more dents I just plain won't care and God help you all. Beware, it just might be yours I start with.

Thanks, all you lovely car abusers. Kathy White

May I address a few words to the voters of Tawas City?

I am sure that the vast majority of you folks can think for yourselves and don't need an organized group to tell you what's good for you or for our city. We have such a group in our midst. They are small, but loud, and so it seems that they get all the publicity. Unfortunately, our mayor allows them full rein at most council meetings and in fact, seems to encourage their actions. They delight in controversy, false accusations and all-around trouble-making. In addition, they seem to be against anything and everything that might promote progress in Tawas City. One of those making the most noise is not even a resident of our city.

Their thinking is sort of like the old fellow from the hills of Kentucky who said, "Whatever it is, I'm agin' it." Good honest disagreement is what our way of life is all about, but being against everything just for the sake of being disagreeable is somewhat ridiculous.

At a recent council meeting it was decided to purchase the Adamek property next to the city hall. The mayor and his cohorts did everything they could to prevent a vote and then when it didn't go their way, launched a campaign to recall the council members with whom they disagreed. They are now in the process of petitioning for a return to the ward system. That would necessitate a census and in all probability, a special election. All of this brought about by the group who are endlessly screaming about the "poor taxpayer." I wonder who they think will end up paying for the census and special election.

Carrying their point a step further, one of their spokespersons recently went so far as to insinuate something dishonest in the motives of these councilmen who voted for the purchase. For the record, the planning commission some time ago recommended the purchase of the Adamek property. But then, on another occasion, and for other reasons, we on the planning commission were also called "a bunch of crooks" by one of their group. I guess they subscribe to the old political theory that you accuse your opponent of wrongdoing, then he must concentrate all of his efforts in defending himself, leaving no time to address the issues.

May I state publicly that I resent their accusations, as I am sure the other members of the council and planning commission do. Their tactics will only serve to spread distrust and ill will in our community. They will also probably discourage active participation in our local government by good qualified individuals who do not want to be subjected to that kind of abuse.

Just a few days ago, one of their group, also a councilman, said that "we have to go to court every time we try to get a fair shake." That reminds me of the time I stood watching a parade. One youngster, obviously having great difficulty keeping time with the band, was watched by his proud mother. As he passed, she remarked, "Look, everyone's out of step but my boy."

In closing, let me say this. When we elect a mayor this fall, let's elect one who will conduct meetings in a fair and proper manner, giving equal voice to all sides while maintaining order and decorum. Then, after all sides are heard, and the vote is taken, let all of our council members support the majority and work for the progress of Tawas City.

Robert Pawloski Chairman, Planning Comm.

(Read Matthew 10:26-33)

"Even the hairs of your head are all numbered." (Matthew 10:30 RSV)

Some years ago when I was a pastor in Texas, the chamber of commerce of my city sponsored a parade. Our church decided to enter a float. It is the only float I ever helped build but it did teach an important spiritual lesson. On the side of the float in large red letters we had "Christ Is Risen." Behind the letters was a background of solid white, made up of thousands of white napkins stuffed into the holes of a chicken wire frame. When the float went by, only the red letters stood out.

One difference between persons and God is that we see only the foreground, but God sees also the background. He identifies every single person individually. He is the one who knows the sparrows and the hairs of our head. Most of us may see ourselves in the category of the human background, but God does not see nameless and faceless space fillers. He sees His children, each one loved and each one important.

PRAYER

Our heavenly Father, we are grateful that Your love sees each of us individually as Your children. Help us to share that same love with each other in Jesus Christ. Amen.

Highlights And Sidelights

Levin Critical of Draft Reinstatement

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Sen. Carl Levin, Michigan, criticized a Senate Armed Services Committee decision to reinstitute Selective Service registration. "The case was not proven," Senator Levin said. "The secretary of defense and the acting director of Selective Service—both of whom say we could mobilize our military rapidly enough to meet our national defense needs without registration—were not even called before the committee. They were not even given a chance to defend their position." The Senate Armed Services Committee voted 12 to five June 11 to renew registration in January 1980. Senator Levin voted against the bill. Supporters of the registration bill reported to the senate by the committee contended the Selective Service system should be able to call up men more quickly during a military emergency than the defense department considers necessary.

"The highest defense officials in this country say we can have the required mobilization without it," Senator Levin said. Sec. of Defense Harold Brown and Robert E. Shuck, acting director of Selective Service, have said the government should be able to mobilize enough troops for an emergency if congress finances improved Selective Service data processing capability and training of additional personnel.

Channel Lottery Money to Schools

LANSING—All revenue from the Michigan State Lottery would be earmarked for education under a bill introduced Monday by Sen. Mitch Irwin, Sault Ste. Marie. "Many persons who voted in 1972 to establish a lottery did so with the belief that proceeds from the lottery would be used to help finance education in this state," Irwin said. "My bill would make this belief a reality." Senator Irwin's bill would require that the net proceeds of the lottery, including the unclaimed prizes and earned interest, would be used exclusively to supplement the school aid fund.

"We've been having trouble with school financing due to such factors as inflation and declining enrollments," Irwin said. "It is also important to note that all around us, we continue to see one school millage election failing after another. By allocating the net profits of the Michigan State Lottery to education, we can help alleviate problems such as the reduction or elimination of the extracurricular programs in our schools." Presently, state aid for education in Michigan draws on two sources: The school aid fund and the general fund. The school aid fund is comprised of taxes levied on liquor and cigarettes, as well as a portion of the sales tax. The general fund consists of all unrestricted state taxes and includes state lottery revenues, which comprise three percent of the fund.

From November 1972 through September 1978, the lottery netted almost 550-million dollars for the general fund. General fund revenues are used not only to fund education, but also to fund social services, health and medical care, government services and capital outlay expenditures. "To me, the lottery may be one method of providing stable revenues for K-12 education through the state," Irwin said. "While we search for better alternatives to finance our schools, it is my goal to earmark these Michigan State lottery profits directly to our schools. I think this would help spread the cost of education more equitably and reduce our reliance on property tax for school financing."

Study Hunting-Fishing License Fees

LANSING—State Rep. Tom Alley, West Branch, has called for a special house committee study of a Department of Natural Resources proposal to increase hunting and fishing license fees.

A resolution recently introduced by Representative Alley would create a special committee to review the proposal and report back to the legislature. "I have considerable reservations about increasing the license fees," Alley said. "There are serious questions as to whether they are necessary. Without an increase in services provided by the department, such increases in license fees seem entirely inappropriate." He noted that there have been complaints that part of the fees collected are used for projects which do not benefit the persons who buy the licenses.

The department proposal would raise the cost of an annual over-all sportsman's license from $22 to $50, with general and substantial hikes in the cost of other licenses. "These types of increases are not only questionable, but could be self-defeating," Alley said. "In these inflationary times, such massive increases could actually decrease the number of persons who buy hunting and fishing licenses, which would mean less revenue for the Department of Natural Resources." He added that there have been numerous objections to the proposal by sportsmen in his district and throughout the state. "This is a controversial issue and one that would have a powerful impact on Michigan sportsmen," Alley said. "Before we allow the license fee increases, we must have a thorough and detailed study, including public hearings. We may well find that the proposal is a step in the wrong direction. If the department does have a need for additional revenue, we should explore other methods of getting it."

Free Use Permit Required for Forest Firewood

A free use permit is required to cut or gather firewood on national forest lands for personal home use. These permits are available at no cost to applicants at the district ranger's office at East Tawas. The free use permit allows an individual to gather up to five units (six standard cords, four feet, by four feet, by eight feet, or approximately 15 to 18 fireplace or stove cords) of dead or down wood for personal use at home. Wood taken under these permits is not to be sold as firewood, given away or converted to other products and sold. The permits are valid for one calendar year from the date of issue. The Tawas District is instituting a new procedure for issuing permits this year. Applicants will select one of five zones for which they will be issued a permit. This will allow the permittee to gather firewood from any unrestricted national forest lands within the area of their selected zone.

The zones vary in acreage from roughly 13,000 to 30,000 acres. Previously, permits were issued for very specific areas from five to 50 acres in size. The new system will make more firewood available to individuals while making the issuing and enforcement processes more efficient and less costly. The Tawas District expects to issue between 2,500 and 3,000 free use permits to individuals during this year. A zone map and set of general rules is to be issued with each permit and becomes a part of the permit. The permit, map and rules must be carried with the individual at all times when gathering or transporting firewood. All cutting under the permits must be confined to national forest lands. Restricted areas such as private land, campgrounds and timber sales will be clearly marked on the permit maps. The permits will allow the use of vehicles off roads to obtain firewood material, except where posted to prohibit vehicle use or except where resource damage such as erosion or broken and bent seedlings may occur. The Tawas District Ranger's office is located on the second floor of the United States Post Office building at Newman and Lincoln Streets, East Tawas. Office hours are from 8:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m., Monday through Friday, year around. During the summer months, the office will also be open Saturdays from 8:00 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Enters State Poster Contest

Kelly Kriebel of East Tawas, age 16, is entering an original poster in the 1979 dairy poster contest. This contest is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service of Michigan State University in cooperation with the American Dairy Association and the Dairy Farmers of Michigan.

Kelly received first place in the county dairy poster contest held during 4-H Spring Achievement Day, April 28. Her poster is on display at Lubig-Miller Shoe Store during the month of June, designated as Dairy Month.

Purpose of the state dairy poster contest is to give children between the ages of nine and 19 an opportunity to tell a story of milk and/or milk products. Kelly's poster, entitled "Milk's Nutrients and What They Do For You," describes the nutrients in a variety of milk products.

More Discussion on TC Car Ordinance

A Murphy Street resident was directed Monday night by the Tawas City Council to contact the city manager relative to possible relief in compliance with the city's junk car ordinance.

Alvin Call, who had been cited previously under the ordinance for having two unlicensed vehicles on his property but has now complied, told the council that his daughter who is in military service is to leave soon for Europe and wishes to park her car on his property until her return in two years.

He said that was not permitted by the ordinance as the vehicle would not be licensed, but he felt that some consideration should be given to the fact that his daughter was in military service and had no other place to park her car.

Call had appeared before the council previously on this question and it had been recommended that he contact the city manager concerning a hardship case. Call said he had not been able to meet with the city manager, but the council felt he should do so to clear up the matter.

Call was also critical of the city and felt he was being harassed by the junk car ordinance. He had asked the council to amend the ordinance, but no action was taken.

At Call's request, the city is to investigate what he termed "a rat's nest" in his neighborhood. He said that a nearby house was filled with rats and there was an uncovered well on the property. He felt the city should have an ordinance requiring owners to keep their property clean. He said the health department had been contacted but no action had been taken.

At the last meeting, a Birch Street resident appeared before the council and complained that Call was not complying with the city ordinance by having two unlicensed vehicles on his property.

In other business, Harold Moeller requested the department of public works to fill chuck holes on Whittemore Street between the river bridge and Lake Street.

The council approved the routine transfer of funds to meet various appropriations approved by the council during the past year. Appropriations had been made by the council but not budgeted and past audit reports recommended that transfers be approved at the end of the fiscal year.

During discussion on enforcement of the city's weed ordinance, Mayor Herbert Cholger expressed the opinion that the department of public works should cut grass and weeds on all city property as an incentive for private property owners to do the same.

Discussion was held on the need for a larger green box garbage collection unit at the city park. The council directed the city manager to bring to the attention of the concession operator that a green box should be provided by the concessionaire for his own use.

It was reported that numerous complaints had been received concerning the fact that people were setting garbage bags out on the street several days before the scheduled pickup. The garbage contractor travels on only one side of each street and some property owners are required to carry bags to the opposite side.

Under terms of garbage collection regulations, property owners are not to set garbage bags on the street curb earlier than the night before the pickup.

Sheriff's Dept. Raided Illegal Beer Party

An illegal beer party held Saturday night at the McIvor Union Hall was raided while in progress by the Iosco County Sheriff's Department. The hall had been rented for a family reunion, reported Sheriff George Westcott, but between 200 and 300 youngsters, many of them under age, were in attendance.

Sheriff Westcott said he had learned that tickets for the party were sold to school-age youths earlier in the week and that he had notified several individuals two days earlier that his department would stop the party.

The department sent 23 officers in seven patrol cars, along with a state police car and a pickup truck, to the scene. Seven kegs of beer were confiscated and the building was cleared.

"Most of the kids were cooperative and left," said the sheriff. Ten arrests were made at the scene and at East Tawas, where youngsters who had been in attendance had thrown beer bottles at police cars and along Newman Street.

Westcott said the incident remains under investigation.

Resources. That project would entail tying in steel sheeting installed two years ago to prevent damage and is part of a larger local-state project to complete the dock.

Coun. Jerry Cotter expressed the opinion that additional information was required before the council could take action and it was pointed out that the city manager actually had responsibility for appropriating budgeted money.

The city clerk said that Thomas had realized that responsibility for such reinstatement of the project was his but that he wished to have a consensus of opinion from the council on the matter.

Thomas' letter said, too, that although it would ordinarily be too late to change the tax rate this year, as June 1 is the latest date for millage to be set or changed, uncertainties of the Headlee amendment implementation had resulted in delaying printing of tax statements.

The city manager said the council could either reinstate some of the capital improvements previously cut, or reduce the millage rate.

Some of the capital improvements which could be reinstated, besides the dock, include storm drainage in the Margo area, sidewalks, minor capital outlay for parks and recreation, Court Street improvement and Seventh Avenue improvement. Those projects totaled $22,775.

A five to two vote of the council directed the city manager to use his discretion in reinstating capital improvement projects within the $19,000 surplus on hand.

Both Mayor Herbert Cholger and Coun. Robert Rollin said they were in favor of cutting the tax rate from 16.45 to 15.55 mills and voted "no" on the question.

Other councilmen felt that the real problem with the high tax rate this year had resulted in requirement to pay off the tax anticipation notes for purchase of the Graystone property at the river and that for the good of the city they were voting "yes." Approving the measure were Councilmen Cotter, Hugo Keiser, Charles Landon, James Lansky and Donald Hayes.

MICHIGAN AERONAUTICS COMMISSION

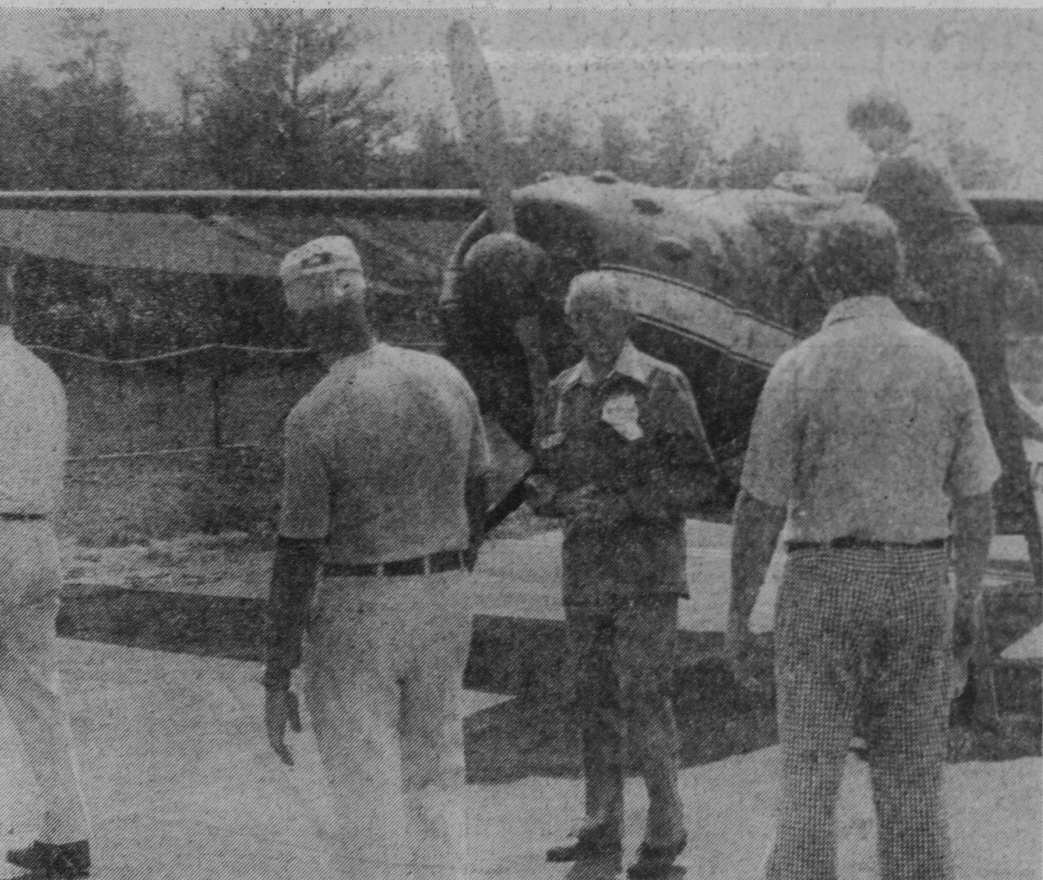

THE 50th ANNIVERSARY of the Michigan Aeronautics Commission was observed Thursday at the Iosco County Airport and other airports throughout the state when 12 aircraft landed here. Purpose of the tour was similar to the first Michigan air tour of 1929 which it commemorated—to publicize the airport network and demonstrate the economic importance of airports to cities. Ceremonies were held at each stop, at which time a plaque was presented to local governmental officials thanking them for establishing an aerial gateway to communities. Fifty years ago, the tour stopped at Camp Skeel, now Wurtsmith Air Force Base.

PRESENTING A PLAQUE thanking the Iosco County Board of Commissioners for its efforts toward expanding and improving the Iosco County Airport was Kay Chamberlain, a member of the Michigan Aeronautics Commission. Shown with Commissioner

PILOTS participating in the tour were introduced to a crowd of 100 persons attending the program. The visitors commended Iosco County for its fine facility, emphasizing that aviation was necessary to industrial development and future of a community.—Tawas Herald Photo.

ACCOMPANYING the tour here was Dr. "Ted" Talbert Abrams of Lansing, a Michigan aviation pioneer who accompanied the tour 50 years ago.

AFTER FUELING, the visiting aircraft took off for their next stop at Harry Brown Airport, Saginaw, and James Clements Airport, Bay City. Approximately 100 aircraft in three different flights participated in the tour, including a replica of the "Spirit of St. Louis." That aircraft was in another flight and did not visit Iosco County Airport.—Tawas Herald Photo.

GORDON LOUD: Archaeologist

Over the years, only a few native sons of Iosco County have risen to national prominence in their chosen career fields. One who received national attention in the field of archaeology was Gordon Loud of Oscoda.

When the name of Loud is considered, older residents of the county immediately associate it with the lumbering era of Michigan; later with politics and development of hydroelectric power.

The family patriarch, insofar as this county is concerned, was Henry N. Loud, an eastern preacher-turned-lumberman, who came to this region in 1867 to found a lumbering dynasty based on white pine, becoming a millionaire in the process; his son, George, also a lumberman, became the only man from this county to serve the district in congress; another son, Edward F. Loud, is credited with the idea of harnessing the AuSable River with hydroelectric dams after the lumbering era was but a memory.

Gordon Loud, the son of Edward F., first received national attention as a rising archaeologist in this note printed in The Tawas Herald on March 30, 1934:

"One of the most important archaeological finds in years was made during February by Gordon Loud, staff member of the Chicago (Illinois) Oriental Institute, at the site of Sargon's place at Dure Sargena, now Khorsabad, Iraq. The find is a clay tablet bearing the names of the monarchs of the Assyrian Empire from 2300 BC to 746 BC. Names of only a few of Assyria's rulers earlier than Sargon II-722 to 705 BC—had been previously known."

Three years later, Loud was to head the famous Megiddo Expedition seeking artifacts remaining from Armageddon, located in the mountains of Central Palestine, across the Plain of Esdraelon from Nazareth.

The very name, "Armageddon,"—a Hebrew word meaning Hell of Megiddo—conjures up wars of ancient civilizations. It is named in Revelation 16 as the place where rulers of the world will fight the last great battle between good and evil.

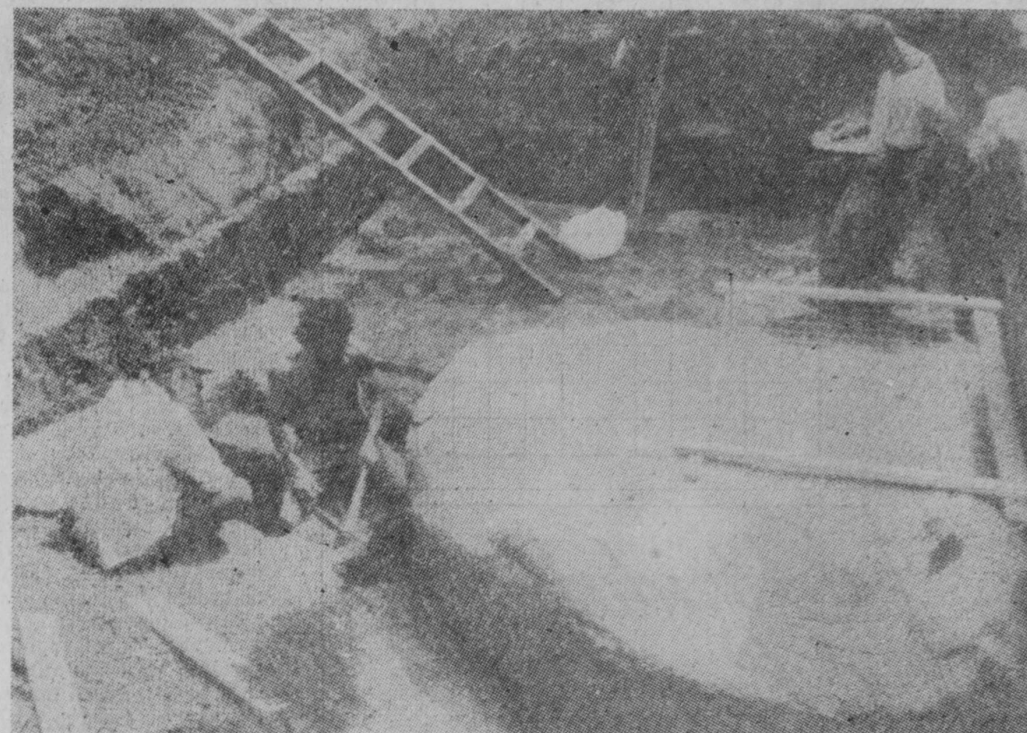

Archaeologists from the Oriental Institute of Chicago found temples, jewelry, art objects and other antiquities at Armageddon.

In November 1937, Loud became a national figure in archaeology when gold and ivory antiquities uncovered by his Megiddo Expedition were displayed for the first time at the Oriental Institute.

"The days of Biblical song and story were reborn into glamorous reality yesterday when the treasures of Armageddon were displayed in a private showing," stated the November 1, 1937, issue of the Chicago Daily Tribune.

Among the several hundred persons attending that showing were Gordon's proud parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Loud of Oscoda.

"Here, for the first time in 20 centuries, was a record of the conquest of Canaan," stated the Tribune. "It lay in some 20 pieces of Canaanite art, the gold fittings from a prince of Megiddo's dressing table, the carved ivories of the walls and the bags of broken silver jewelry, which the institute's Megiddo Expedition, headed by Dr.

A PORTRAIT of the late Dr. Gordon Loud is not available in his hometown of Oscoda, but this recent photograph of young archaeologists at work on a dig is representative of work which Loud performed in another part of the world for the Chicago Oriental Institute. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Loud.

Gordon Loud, unearthed in a subterranean treasury last March." Dr. John A. Wilson, then director of the institute, explained the importance of the collection as he led distinguished guests from one showcase to another.

AS A RISING ARCHAEOLOGIST in 1934, an expedition to Iraq which Gordon Loud accompanied uncovered a clay tablet bearing the names of monarchs of the Assyrian Empire at the site of Sargon's palace. This imposing bronze head is thought to portray Sargon, one of the warrior kings.

Megiddo, or Armageddon, explained Wilson, had been a battleground of nations since the dawn of history. It lies at the strategic crossroads between Asia Minor and Egypt. Eight distinct civilizations had flourished there, according to information published in 19-37.

The hoard uncovered by Loud's team of scientists was that of a prince of Megiddo of 1300 BC, which he swept into a three-room cellar when the Hebrews threatened Canaan.

On exhibit were the contents of his dressing table or that of his princess; a delicate, fluted bowl of white gold from which the cover was gone; 12 beads, part of a necklace, each bead made up of tiny gold granules so small that they must have been soldered together using the 1300 BC equivalent of a microscope for close inspection.

Other antiquities uncovered included cosmetic jars of serpentine and hematite; cylinder seals; delicate gold and ivory combs.

"But," said Wilson, "here is the most valuable collection," and he led the way to a case of bits of carved ivories, pointing to one long strip, which he said was either ivory or hippopotamus bone.

With slow emphasis, the director said "Here is the prince of Megiddo celebrating after a victory. See him there on his ancient winged griffin throne, see the body of a lion, the head of an eagle? His prime minister is giving him a lotus blossom, the symbol of peace and a harpist is playing before him just as David played before Saul. And at the other end, you see him coming in his triumphant chariot, his captives before him."

The idea of learning about ancient civilization from material remains is comparatively recent, although the first widespread interest in this method of learning about the past actually began in the 1400s. During later centuries, scientific applications were added to the field and, by the 1900s, archaeological activities spread throughout the world.

While Loud's work in the scientific uncovering of the past may not compare with such notable discoveries as King Tutankhamon's tomb in 1922, or the accidental locating of the Dead Sea Scrolls in 1947, his 1937 excavations at Armageddon remain one of the milestones in the meticulous science of understanding the unwritten record of ancient times.

Iosco County is indeed honored to have had a native son gain such prominence in this highly specialized field of science.

GORDON LOUD headed the famous Megiddo Expedition in 1937 and located remains of Armageddon in Central Palestine. One of the antiquities discovered was this winged griffin carved from ivory. It was displayed at the Chicago Oriental Institute.

Home Health Care Is Under Medicare

One of the least known benefits covered by Medicare, but one potentially valuable to many people, is home health care, a social security spokesperson said recently.

Home health care can be covered under either Medicare hospital insurance or Medicare medical insurance, depending on the circumstances of a particular case.

Home health care is for people who do not need full-time skilled care as inpatients of a medical facility, but who do have an illness or injury that prevents them from leaving home to receive the health care they need.

People who need part-time skilled health services in their homes can receive home health care from a home health agency. Such an agency can be either a public or private organization that specializes in providing skilled nursing services and other health care services to patients in their own home.

Medicare can pay for such services as part-time skilled nursing services, physical therapy, and speech therapy. For a person who needs one or more of these services, Medicare can also pay for part-time services of an occupational therapist, home health aide, or medical social worker, and medical supplies and the use of medical appliances furnished by the home health agency.

Medicare cannot pay for full-time nursing care at home, drugs and biologicals, personal comfort or convenience items, meals delivered to a person's home, or homemaker services.

A leaflet, Home health care under Medicare, gives more details about this protection and lists the conditions under which Medicare can pay for these services. Free copies can be obtained at any social security office. The address and telephone number of the nearest office can be found in the telephone directory.

questions and answers

Q. I will be eligible for Medicare later this year, and I'm trying to decide whether I will need additional health insurance. What exactly does Medicare cover?

A. Medicare hospital insurance helps pay for inpatient hospital care and, after a hospital stay, for inpatient care in a skilled nursing facility and for home health services. Medicare medical insurance helps pay for doctors' services, outpatient hospital services, outpatient physical therapy and speech pathology services, and a number of other medical services and supplies not covered by hospital insurance. For more information, ask for a copy of, A brief explanation of Medicare at any social security office.

Q. At the beginning of the year, I hired a woman to do housework twice a week. I understand that I'm supposed to pay social security taxes on her wages and file a report with IRS. When should I do this?

A. If you pay a household worker $50 or more in cash wages in a calendar quarter, you must deduct social security taxes from the wages and pay an equal amount as the employer. Before the end of the month after the calendar quarter, you must send the taxes and a report of the wages to the Internal Revenue Service. The report, Form 942 (Employers Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees), is available from local IRS offices. The report and taxes for the first quarter of 1979 are due by the end of April.

Q. In 1978, I worked for two different employers. Each employer deducted social security taxes from my pay and, as a result, I paid excess taxes. How do I get a refund?

A. If you work for more than one employer in any year and pay social security taxes on more than the maximum amount—$17,700 in 1978—you may claim a refund of these excess taxes on your income tax return for that year. If you have already filed your 1978 income tax return, or if you have any other questions about getting a refund, contact your local Internal Revenue Service Office.

Ferris President Discusses Estate Planning for Alumni

port June 11 for a conversation with Ervin Wilee of East Tawas regarding estate planning for alumni at the Wilee home. Poor flying conditions called for early departure but a later meeting this summer is in the offing.

Larsen represents the Ferris Alumni Association in development and grants. As of July 1, his work will be expanded to institutional relations including the public. The mailing list numbers 47,000 alumni.

For seven years, he was advisor for the Asian Foundation whose headquarters are in San Francisco, California. While working for the organization, he lived for two years in Singapore and five in the Philippines with his influence spanning 16 countries.

Girl Scouts End Magazine Publication

Girl Scouts of the United States of America recently announced that it will cease publication of American Girl magazine with the July issue. American Girl is the oldest teen-age magazine in America, having been continuously published since 1917.

In announcing the action, Frances R. Hesselbein, national executive director of girl scouts, said that the readership of the magazine has changed dramatically since its founding and that a significant percentage of present day subscribers are nonmembers of the scouting organization. The national board of directors felt it more appropriate that resources of the organization be used to provide programs for its members rather than in serving a predominantly nongirl scout audience.

ENERGY EFFICIENT WINDOW TREATMENT IN SUMMER

As costs of energy required to heat and cool homes continue to increase, the loss or gain of heat through windows grows in importance. In summer, raise shades during the early morning and night hours to let cool air enter the home. Then, help keep the cool air inside by pulling the shades down during the day until the temperature inside is higher than the temperature outside, then open the windows.

For maximum benefits, window shades should be installed inside window frames, approximately one inch from the glass. Try to keep the space between the sides of the shades and the window frames as narrow as possible to maintain a sealing affect.

A closed-top cornice across the top of the window will create a pocket to trap cooled air. Fabric treatments that rest against the wall and touch the floor further insulate the window. Tightly fitted shutters, either louvered wooden ones purchased, or those constructed from 1/2-inch rigid foam sandwiched between two layers of masonite or plywood, do form effective barriers to heat transmissions. Fabric treatments, such as curtains and draperies, that are lined with insulated fabric (a shower curtain liner can be substituted) will provide extra insulation.

Double or triple-pane glass will substantially reduce the transmission of heat through window areas. Weather stripping and caulking windows that do not open and close will cut air leaks. Stuff folded newspapers into cracks around windows that are not in use and make storm windows with plastic tacked to a wooden frame made of crate wood that can be put outside or inside of the windows.

In a two-story house, locate the window fan in an upstairs window blowing out. Close upstairs windows, open the stairway door if there is one, open windows and doors in the area to be cooled. The cool outside air is sucked into the house downstairs, up the stairs and out the fan, cooling the whole house.

For additional free information contact Angela Ferguson Giles at the Isosco County Cooperative Extension Service office, Post Office Box 599, County Building Annex, Tawas City, or call 362-3449, for extension bulletin, "Window Treatments for Thermal Comfort."

MICHIGAN BELL CONSUMER TIPS

Your children could save a life, with a little help from you and your telephone.

If you have children at home, would they know who to call in case of a fire, accident or sudden illness? Be sure you have listed near your phone the numbers of your doctor, hospital, poison control, police, fire department and other emergency numbers. Show your children how to find those numbers, how to dial them (if they don't already know), how to call the operator; let them know if 911 can be dialed for fire, medical or police help in your area. Write down your home address near these numbers, too, so your children or your baby-sitter can give it to people who need to find your home in a hurry. (But, for safety's sake, you should instruct them not to give your address or other information to strangers on the phone.) Your telephone can be a lifesaving help in an emergency. Teach your children how to use it for their protection and yours.

US-23 Communities Form Tourism Marketing Group

Nine communities along the Lake Huron and Saginaw Bay shoreline north of Bay City have formed a new organization for special tourism marketing activities. The name adopted is the Huron Shore Tourism Alliance. It will act as a special committee of the East Michigan Tourist Association.

The communities, all served by US-23, include Pinconning, Standish, Omer, AuGres, Tawas City, East Tawas, Oscoda, Greenbush and Harrisville.

Representatives from the communities have met twice with State Rep. Tom Alley, West Branch, and James H. Hall, president of the East Michigan Tourist Association. The area lies within Alley's district.

Roger Jackson, Tawas Chamber of Commerce manager, was elected to chair the alliance with Arlene McClellan, Oscoda Chamber manager, elected to the secretary's post. EMTA was named to act as financial and promotional coordinator.

The alliance was formed to apply for a special $10,000 tourism project grant from the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce. Local investments of services plus EMTA involvement will boost the total project budget to $18,600.

The project will involve gaining expanded publicity and public relations values and bus tour sales based on the area's natural and man-made attractions, facilities and activities in all seasons of the year. It is expected to begin later this summer.

Specifically, the alliance plans to attract travel writers and photographers, outdoor sports writers and broadcasters and bus tour operators. These groups, in turn, can provide additional promotional values in communicating with the traveling public and offer new transportation methods for bringing people to the area.

Jackson named committees to begin planning the action programs for each of the three groups. Committee recommendations will be acted on at a June 25 meeting in Oscoda.

ONCE YOUR CHILD CAN SAY "HELP," TEACH HIM HOW TO GET IT.

Dialing "O" for the operator in an emergency is so simple even a child can do it.

But you'd be surprised how many children don't know how—only because they haven't been taught.

That's why it's important to teach your children this emergency procedure as soon as they can understand it.

Dialing "O" is fast because there's only one digit to dial.

Dialing "O" is easy because it can be used for any emergency situation.

And dialing "O" alerts an operator who's specially trained to handle an emergency. That's particularly important if a younger child becomes confused or panics.

Older children can be taught to find the emergency service number in the telephone directory. And, of course, make sure all your children know that phones aren't toys and shouldn't be played with.

Any child can get involved in an emergency.

What's important is that they know how to get out of it.
