Council Awaits Information

Industrial Rezoning Opposed

Objections to proposed rezoning of a 40-acre parcel of land west of Ninth Avenue for industrial purposes were heard at a public hearing Monday night conducted by the Tawas City Council.

The property, purchased last year from the Hughes family, adjoins the city's industrial park. Although zoned industrial when part of Tawas Township, under state boundary commission rules, any land obtained through annexation automatically reverts to a class A residential designation.

A number of property owners from the Margo Street area entered objections to the rezoning with opinions split as to their reasons. Some objected to location of industry there, while others feared that the land might be utilized for the city's secondary sewage treatment lagoons.

Interested persons were invited to attend a meeting Friday morning, 10 o'clock, at the city hall to participate in a discussion with Harry Bacon of Edmands Engineering Company. Bacon is to update the new city manager, Lowell Thomas, concerning steps undertaken to provide eventual secondary sewage treatment. Edmands also has prepared a plan for utilizing the 40 acres as an industrial site.

Under terms of a federal grant for expansion of the water system in Tawas City, East Tawas and Baldwin Township, the city acquired the property for industrial development purposes. The city's new 500,000-gallon water storage tank is located at the west end of the city's present 18-acre industrial park and the two parcels are contiguous.

Since acquisition of the property, city officials have discussed the possibility of using the new site in a dual role for both industrial expansion and as the location for sewage treatment lagoons. Mention was made, however, at a recent meeting of the water board that additional property may have to be secured as a 1,000-foot clear area must be maintained around the lagoons.

The city council has taken no action as yet on Edmands plan to plat the property into industrial sites. Due to the fact that total development would probably cost $350,000 or more, because of water and sewer construction, the council directed the engineer to prepare a plan whereby remaining lots in the present industrial park, along with potential sites of proper elevations in the 40-acre site, would be served with water and sewer.

During discussion, Carl Babcock, a former member of the planning commission, pointed out that a natural barrier—the Detroit and Mackinac Railway's main line and a Consumers Power Company high tension line—separate the rear of lots on Margo Street and the city's recently acquired 40-acre parcel. He said that natural barrier ranged from a depth of 199 feet to about 250 feet. In addition, a wedge-shaped parcel of land between the railroad tracks and the rear of Margo Street lots also exists.

Judge Allan C. Miller, a Margo Street resident, asked the city to consider utilizing the first 200 or 300 feet of land comprising the former Hughes property for a green belt area. He had less objection to a lagoon system separated from the residential area by the required 1,000 feet of open space and green belt than he had to an industrial park which could be located adjacent to the tracks. He also questioned a need for expanding the industrial park.

Coun. Hugo Keiser said that the reason for the proposed expansion of the industrial park was that a number of inquiries had been received concerning locations for light industry. He pointed out that the present park, plus some land in the new site, were the only industrial areas in the Tawas area served by both water and sewer. He said that industrial expansion was a prerequisite for receiving the area-wide grant for water expansion, which has now been completed. He felt that the city may have to purchase additional property for its lagoon system.

Other Margo Street property owners expressed alarm that location of industry or sewage treatment facilities would lower the value of their property, one of the newer residential neighborhoods in the community.

Council Approves Hospital EDC Project

Initial approval to an Iosco Economic Development Corporation request certifying a preliminary project designation at Tawas Hospital was given Monday night by the Tawas City Council.

Kenneth Myles, attorney, said this was the first step in procedures to apply for Economic Development Administration bonding.

The formal resolution adopted by the council specifies that the Iosco EDC would prepare project plans and then submit them to both the city and Iosco County Board of Commissioners for approval.

Myles explained that the request originates through the EDC from Tawas Hospital and an outside developer, who are planning construction of a doctors' office building on property northwest of the hospital. He said the EDC, if the project is approved, would issue bonds and secure financing for the construction. When completed, the building would be leased to a corporation. The site is presently on hospital-owned property.

The attorney said this proposal was among two presently under consideration by the EDC. The second is for a Big Boy Restaurant at East Tawas.

The project, he said, was designed to increase employment in the area, plus providing additional medical services.

Although not a part of this application, Myles said the city could expect that application would be made for a commercial exemption on the property under a 1978 statute which permits cities to grant exemption on one-half of property taxes for new construction. Apparently the property would lose its present tax exempt status under hospital ownership and the actual site of the building would be taxable.

Certification of the project was recommended by the city's planning commission.

In other business, the council vacated an alley in Block 19 of Porterfield Addition on petitions of property owners in that area.

Charles Katterman, a First Street resident, entered a complaint concerning a dog nuisance. City officials are to contact owners.

Discussion on the city's junk car ordinance was tabled until the April 2' meeting. Alvin C. Call of Murphy Street presented councilmen with letters from his attorney concerning the ordinance.

The council approved renewal of a $50 annual lease on two lots at the northeast corner of the Mathews Street bridge from the Detroit and Mackinac Railway. The property has been leased by the city since 1973 in order to improve bridge landscaping and to provide an access to the river for fishermen.

City Clerk Rachel Sue McCready reported that the city had received a permit from the United States Army Corps of Engineers to fill in the old boat slip at the mouth of the Tawas River. The city had made application in September.

Discussion was held on a proposed new agreement between the city and Tawas and Alabaster Townships for providing fire protection to those units. Coun. Jerry Cotter said that a $4,000 budget had been proposed under the new budget, an increase of approximately $18,000. He said the major reason for the increase was to provide for an orderly replacement of fire equipment.

Cotter said that past budgets had not reflected the city's true cost for providing housing for equipment, insurance and equipment replacement, which has been borne by the city. He said the department's 1961 penner would require replacement no later than 1983 and it is expected that the cost of a replacement would be approximately $60,000 in four years. He said that the city's (See COUNCIL, page 6.)

New President at Peoples State Bank

At the 52nd annual shareholders' meeting of Peoples States Bank, Chairman Charles H. Schreck announced the appointment of Edmond O. Dodson as the bank's new president and chief executive officer.

Dodson brings 25 years of experience to the bank. His background in the profession includes various officer positions with several Michigan commercial banks. His most recent post was that of senior vice president and cashier of the Metropolitan National Bank of Farmington.

In addition to completing his studies at the Graduate School of Banking, University of Wisconsin, Dodson's education includes many banking schools attended as student and instructor. He has held many civic positions in the communities where he has lived.

Schreck indicated on behalf of the board, "We are happy to have someone with Dodson's background and experience join our bank. We are confident he will be a fine addition to the Tawas area."

The 44-year-old banker is married and has four children. He and his wife, Audrey, are active in the Methodist Church.

Schreck further indicated there were approximately 50 shareholders in attendance at the March 13 annual meeting held at the Holland House.

The shareholders voted a 10 percent stock dividend, subject to regulatory approval and elected the following directors to serve during 1979: Schreck, Paul P. Chevis, Hugo J. Keiser, Harold J. Knight, Howard C. Look, Richard M. Harris, Charles A. Pinkerton III and Dodson.

Authorize Bidding On Carpeting-Fixtures for Co. Building Additions

Authorization was given Monday morning by the Iosco County Building Authority to take bids on office furniture and carpeting for additions to the county building now under construction.

A report from County Treas. Edward Nelkie indicated that the building fund had a balance on hand of $188,542.89 as of Monday, which included $4,749 earned in interest. The balance on the contract plus architectural and engineering fees total $122,130.

John Dye, architect, said that the $66,412.89 balance in the fund would more than cover the cost of $31,000 anticipated for fixtures and $12,000 for carpeting, plus any other contingencies which may arise through electrical and telephone changes.

Sealed bids on fixtures and carpeting are to be opened April 4, 11:00 a. m.

After the project is completed, some work will remain in repairs to the parking lot.

An open house is expected to be held in June. Carlton Merschel, a member of both the county board of commissioners and the building authority, said that both groups were pleased with progress on the project and the fact that the cost was within the budget.

Marian Ulman, county commissioner, has suggested that consideration be given to planting flowers and shrubs in the enclosed court area, along with the location of tables and benches for use by the public and building personnel.

Loading Corn, Woman Pinned in Silo Doorway

A 61-year-old Whittemore woman, Bertha C. Hammond, was treated March 12 at Tolfree Hospital, West Branch, following a farm accident.

Harold Hammond, 73, was backing a vehicle to a corn storage silo and Mrs. Hammond, who was leading corn in a bucket, was pinned in the doorway.

Investigating Iosco County Sheriff's Department officers said the driver's foot slipped off the brake pedal.

ET Council Hears Building Details

Building details for the proposed new Big Boy Restaurant and motel at East Tawas were outlined Monday night to the city council by the city's building department.

Under consideration for Economic Development Administration financing, the proposed restaurant-motel would be located in the triangular piece of property east of the "Y" intersection of Tawas Beach Road and US-23.

The proposal calls for construction of a restaurant plus two two-story motels comprising 58 units.

If approval of EDA financing is received, construction on the restaurant would start May 1 with a scheduled August 1 completion. The motel units would be constructed later.

According to information given to the council, the firm has leased a portion of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway right-of-way to provide additional parking.

In other business, the council approved the dates of May 17, 18 and 19 for the annual boat and camper show sponsored by the East Tawas Business Association. George Kay, president, was given permission to block off the first two blocks of Newman Street during those days for an exhibition area.

Mrs. Thofiel DeMaet, representing the Tawas Council on Aging, appeared before the council and requested the city to consider making available a parcel of land 200 by 300 feet as the proposed site for a senior citizen center.

She said that the present quarters in the American Legion Hall in Tawas City were rapidly growing too small for the senior citizen center located there.

She cited the fact that 319 new persons had been registered there since October 1 and that 315 dinners were served there last week.

Approval of a new plat for Eastland No. 2 Subdivision was approved by the council. Located on Airport Road, the plat provides 27 additional residential building lots. Completion is expected in the near future.

Ronald Klinger was recognized by fellow councilmen. Due to the fact that he commutes to work at West Branch, he is not a candidate for re-election on April 2. Vying for that vacancy will be Wilbur C. Roach and Larry Wingrove.

TAWAS CITY welcomed its new city manager Monday afternoon with a reception at the city hall. Lowell Thomas, who took over his new position Monday, is shown chatting with Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Gullford, two of numerous residents who stopped in to meet Thomas. In the background is Mrs. James Lansky, one of several city officials' wives who served refreshments. Another reception attended by city board members and citizens was held following the council meeting Monday night.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Ecologists May Oppose Plan

AuGres Farmers Select Waterway Flood Control

An alternate plan providing for construction of a floodway following the AuGres River from Turner Road to the city limit of AuGres has been adopted by Arenac County farmers as the course to follow for the proposed AuGres watershed flood control project.

Although the new seven-mile floodway would follow the river, the actual river bottom would not be disturbed, eliminating any potential ecological objection.

The floodway would cut into the bank of the river and extend from 30 to 240 feet. When flood waters rise over the banks of the normal river channel, the enlarged floodway area would carry off water without going over the banks and washing away farm fields.

Farmers must now decide if they want protection from two-year floods or three-year floods. Cost of protection from three-year floods is considerably more and a decision on that matter, along with final selection of a route, plus spoil disposal methods, is to be taken at a meeting April 11.

Long in the discussion stage and often a controversial matter because of involvement with the two upriver Counties of Iosco and Ogemaw, farmers were given a total of 12 alternatives ranging in estimated cost from $3,027,800 to $5,898,920, depending on the route and the desired level of protection.

About 70 percent of the total cost would be paid by state and federal money, depending upon congressional approval. Conservation groups may battle the project and the project could well be delayed in congressional committee.

According to a court ruling several years ago, the local cost would be split so that Arenac County would pay 91 percent, while Iosco County would pay six percent and Ogemaw County would be tabbed for three percent.

Boards of commissioners of the two upriver counties have not agreed to any form of participation in this project as yet. Representative methods, is to be taken at a Service appeared Wednesday before the Iosco board.

Last week, Ogemaw County officials were quoted as being concerned about the fact that Ogemaw residents would not be receiving any direct benefit for its participation estimated at $50,000.

A spokesman for SCS said that it is not absolutely certain at this point as to the percentage of costs to be shared by the three counties—it may be higher or lower than the percentages suggested by the court.

Discussion was held on establishment of a special assessment district in Ogemaw County to pay its share of the watershed project. Benefits claimed for the project in Arenac County include greater crop yields, higher land values, more tax base and road construction which would not wash away.

The SCS officials estimated that about 99.5 percent of the problem caused by flooding every three years in the AuGres River is caused in Arenac County.

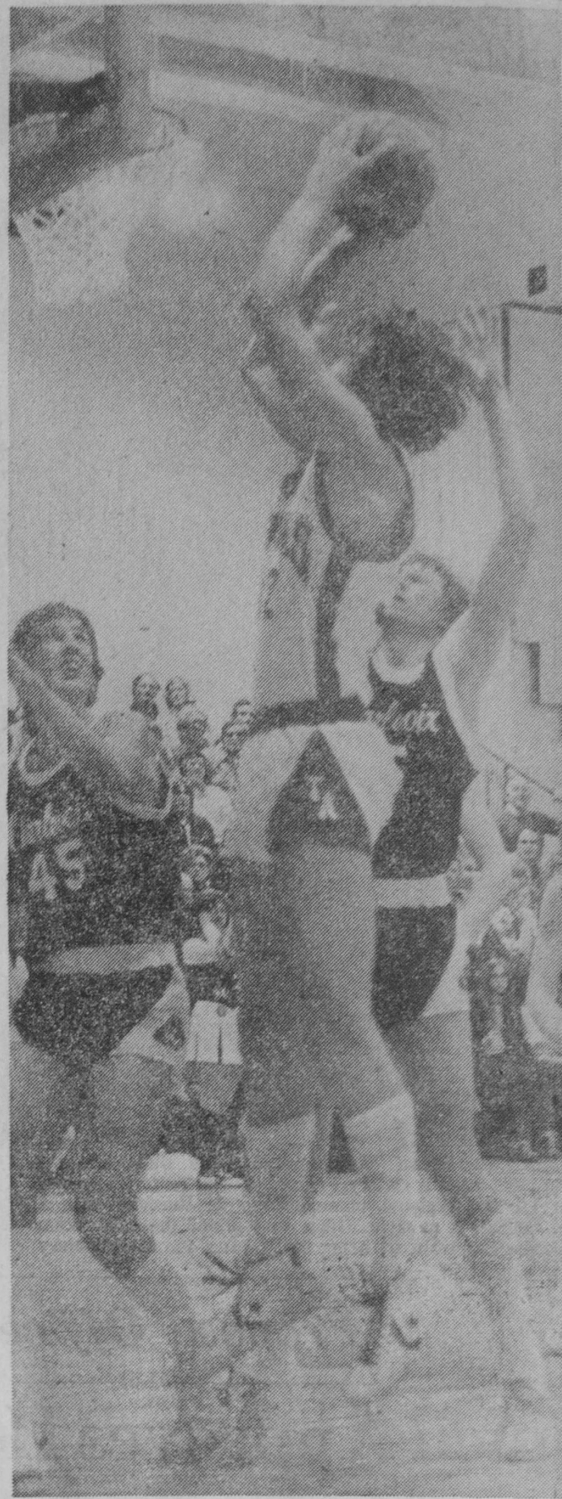

MARCH MADNESS!

COACH PAUL BECKER hoists the first regional championship trophy ever won by Tawas Area High School over his head Friday night after the Braves defeated the Charlevoix Red Rayders at Roscommon High School. At the conclusion of the ceremony, the basketball nets were removed for the school's trophy case.

THIS BUCKET by Brian Norton in the fourth quarter gave Tawas a commanding lead, despite being closely guarded by three desperate Charlevoix players who attempted to stop the hard-charging Tawas player.

KEVIN GRACE and his fellow Braves were cold in the first quarter of Friday night's game, but suddenly got moving in the second quarter as Grace turned in shots like this to put Tawas in front.

Protest Wording on Merger Ballot

Objection to wording on the April 2 ballot for the proposed consolidation of East Tawas and Tawas City was voiced Monday night by Coun. Robert N. Rollin and Mayor Herbert Cholger of Tawas City.

Rollin said that wording of the ballot was misleading and could cause some confusion on election day.

The ballot asks the question: "Shall the Cities of East Tawas and Tawas City be consolidated into a new home rule city?"

The two members of the city council were of the opinion that wording was incorrect in that an affirmative vote would authorize a second election to select members for a charter commission. Voters would then have the opportunity to accept or reject a proposed new charter within a year after formation of the commission.

City Clerk Rachel Sue McCready said that wording on the ballot had been specified by the State Boundary Commission, which ordered the election February 13 after ruling on the sufficiency of petitions asking for an election on the proposed merger.

Rollin said that wording of the ballot was misleading and could cause some confusion on election day.

In other business conducted at Monday night's Tawas City Council meeting, City Mgr. Lowell Thomas was appointed city zoning administrator.

At the request of Thomas, Mrs. McCready, appointive city clerk who has served as acting city manager since November, is to be retained on a full-time status until he makes a recommendation in two weeks. She had served on a part-time basis, both as city clerk and acting city manager. Members of the council expressed their appreciation for her work at city hall.

operational millage rate is presently 15.1 mills and he did not feel it was fair for city taxpayers to "subsidize fire service to anyone." Service is presently provided under a two-year contract and township officials are interested in a longer contract of perhaps 10 years. Township officials are also interested in revising the present cost formula to reflect a greater share based on population and the number of fires rather than on valuation.

The proposed contract is to be discussed by the two township boards and officials of the units are to hold a second meeting.

Appointments to various boards by the mayor were approved by the council:

Ervin Ulman was reappointed to the cemetery board; Gary Stephan was reappointed to the parks and recreation board and Peter D. Lambrecht was appointed to fill the vacancy of John McMurray, who resigned; Robert Pawloski and William Kidder were reappointed to the planning commission and Wayne Thompson was named to succeed Clarence King; City Manager Thomas was appointed to the joint water board.

AuSable Valley Mental Health Has Expanded Staff to Serve 3 Counties

Since January 1, mental health services have been provided to the three-county area of Iosco, Ogemaw and Oscoda by the AuSable Valley Community Mental Health Services Board. The new organization replaces the former Iosco-

Ogemaw Community Mental Health Services Board, which had operated 27 months prior to the reorganization.

The organization, which provides services to emotionally disturbed, mentally retarded and substance abusing individuals, has its headquarters in a county-owned building near the Iosco County Medical Care Facility.

Floyd Smith, director, said last week that the move to these larger quarters permitted expansion of services provided by the organization. Those additions include an infant mental health program as well as a substance abuse program.

Smith said that the new infant mental health program will work closely with the local hospital to provide early services to prevent later mental illness in recently born infants.

The substance abuse program, which formally opened December 1, was developed to replace a program which had been handled by Tawas Hospital.

Many major improvements in services to the local area have resulted since the division more than two years ago from the Northeast Michigan Community Mental Health Board, centered at Alpena.

Smith said that it has taken two months to get reorganized after moving into the larger quarters. AuSable Valley Community Mental Health Services Board now employs 17 persons at its headquarters and branches located at West Branch, Rose City and Oscoda.

Besides Smith, personnel assigned to Tawas include Mona Kozlowski, clinical supervisor; Robert Buyse, substance abuse clinic; Shurle Lee, clinical psychologist; Leslie Way, infant mental health specialist; Henry A. Milius, psychiatric social worker; Dale Green, case manager. Members of the administrative staff here include Lois Gartland, administrative secretary; Janice Howell, secretary; Karen Redenshek, secretary; Hugo Keiser, business manager.

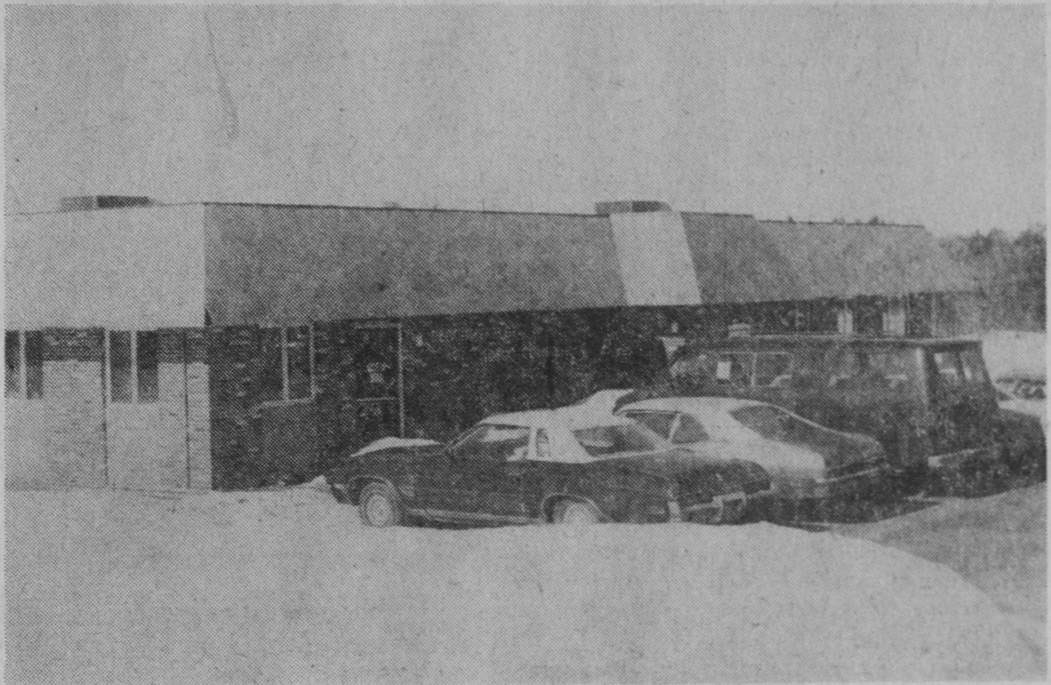

Additional personnel include George Ott and Donna Morris, program counselors at West Branch; Shelley Money, therapist, and Ray Charrette, clinical program director, both at Rose City; Lee Mertz, program counselor at Oscoda.

Smith said that an educational program in cooperation with local schools had started last week through participation by AuSable Valley Community Mental Health Services with an in-service day Friday for the faculty at Tawas Area School.

Dr. Donald Breckon, professor of health education at Central Michigan University, was principal speaker and his program topic was "Substance abuse prevention, the current state of the art."

Residents of the community should be aware of mental health needs and of services which are available through the local health board.

The mental health board recently signed an agreement with state officials to integrate and unify services.

THIS BUILDING located near the Iosco County Medical Care Facility houses the headquarters of AuSable Valley Community Mental Health Services, which has expanded rapidly with new personnel and services since January 1.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Board Sidewalks

"High nails in sidewalks do a great deal of damage to ladies' dresses. They ought to be knocked in the head."

The editor of the Iosco County Gazette was referring to nails in white pine plank sidewalks, not to the ladies of East Tawas, when he wrote the above opinion on October 13, 1881.

One of the sure signs that civilization had arrived along the shore in this region's early history was construction of sidewalks along a town's main business street. Sidewalks are taken for granted today, actually being utilized very little in residential neighborhoods due to a highly mobile society.

But one can expect that situation to change because of the high cost of gasoline to power the family flivver. Because of circumstances beyond the control of the public, sidewalks may soon take on the importance of former times when walking was a way of life for everyone, not just the mailman or neighborhood children.

As a result, public tax money probably will be diverted from street to sidewalk construction at some future point in time—something which has not been done on any large scale in the Tawas for about 70 years.

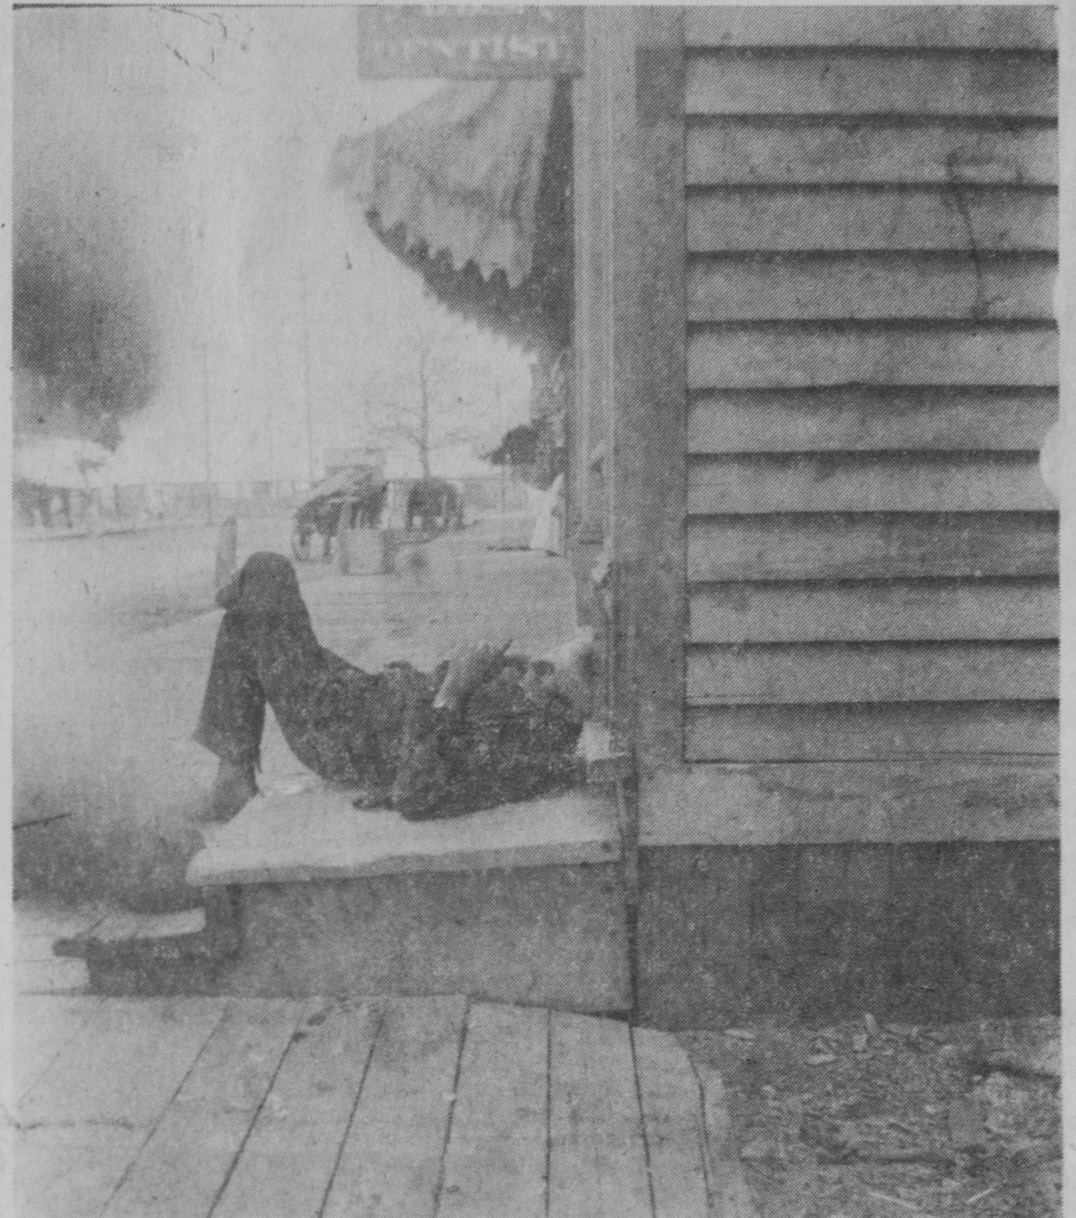

Most of the concrete sidewalks in residential areas of the twin cities were constructed in the first decade of this century, representing one of the most important public improvements during that era.

Prior to the use of "cement," the popular term for concrete in those days, sidewalks were constructed of the cheapest and most plentiful natural resource of the day—white pine—and a loose nail could prove to be treacherous for long dresses of the era, or a loose or broken board could result in serious injury, as will be shown later.

Wooden sidewalks were primarily constructed in business areas, the principal function originally being to span mudholes in the street during the spring. Pedestrians in residential areas walked on streets "paved" with sand or sawdust, dodging water-filled chuckholes or the droppings of horses and cows, which were quartered in town for the local milk supply.

Sidewalk conditions proved to be a controversial point on numerous occasions in the Tawas. This item in the June 1, 1882, issue of The Iosco County Gazette tells how one citizen vented his wrath on "city fathers."

"A string of dilapidated sidewalk on Newman Street near the WOODEN SIDEWALKS lined the streets of most Northern Michigan towns prior to 1900. There were some obstacles for pedestrians, as noted in this picture snapped along Newman Street in the 1890s. The sleeping man is waiting for the local saloon to open.

post office was torn up a few nights ago and dumped into the street by someone or ones who are evidently becoming disgusted. We do not approve of such means to force the building of new walks, but all will admit that much improvement was thus brought about."

Two weeks later, the local newspaper noted that property owners along Bay Street were building a new sidewalk.

"It is being built along the south side of the street which will protect it from the sawdust and sand which heaps up on the opposite side by heavy winds from the bay. The move is an excellent one and there are other streets about town where is needed more of the same kind of improvement. When finished, it will make a promenade a half mile long, four feet in width."

Wooden sidewalks continued in use in the Tawas until after 1900. A wooden walkway recalled by some older Tawas City residents is one on the south side of Lake Street which extended east to the present day city park. During periods of high water, waves from Tawas Bay splashed over the walk, providing a great deal of entertainment for quick footed youngsters.

Construction of concrete sidewalks began in Tawas City about 1905 and one of the noted contractors of the day was C. H. Fowler whose name was impressed in the still fresh concrete and is still discernible in many walks more than 70 years later.

Construction of one sidewalk at East Tawas was a notable effort sponsored by women of the community. Portions of this concrete walk remain on the north side of Lincoln Street extending to Greenwood Cemetery. The principal reason for its construction in 1906 was to provide easier walking to the cemetery for annual Memorial Day exercises.

While the old soldiers of the Civil War tramped in formation down the dusty street to the cemetery, the ladies wearing their long dresses enjoyed a pleasant walk on the concrete strip.

On June 29, 1906, The Tawas Herald reported that the Ladies Sidewalk Committee of East Tawas "had 1,800 feet graded and ready for the cement. The ladies are serving ice cream each Saturday at the Warren Building, the proceeds going to swell the fund for this work. The project undertaken by this band of women is worthy of the support of every citizen of that city."

The committee also raised funds for this project through special programs held at the Opera House. In July 1906, the committee contracted with the Labadie Lyceum Bureau of Detroit to "present the San Francisco earthquake scenes by the fine moving picture machine at the Opera House."

The Herald commented that the project seemed an impossible task and "our sister city should feel proud of the work accomplished by these noble women."

The ladies who financed construction of this sidewalk in order to participate in ceremonies conducted by the old soldiers at the cemetery are now resting in Greenwood Cemetery. Only a few portions of the concrete walk remain today.

Four years later, a sidewalk was constructed to the Tawas City Cemetery, starting at the first street intersection and extending south along a high ridge of sand. This project in 1910 was financed through a subscription basis financed by private donations.

One of the most interesting stories concerning sidewalks took place at AuSable. In the early 1880s, Laura Shippy, a child, was injured in a fall on a defective wooden sidewalk. The fall permanently crippled the child and she received a damage judgment against the city. AuSable was forced to bond to pay the claim.

The bond issue was unpaid at the time of the big fire in 1911 and the city defaulted on its payment when that portion of AuSable City was set back to township status. The bonding company took over ownership of the former city property, but had to hold it for many years before finding a buyer.

Concrete sidewalks which had been constructed around 1900 represented the only feature of the City of AuSable remaining after the 1911 fire, when flames cleared practically all of the homes and business places in the twin cities.

Years later, the old sidewalks led to nowhere and building lots were filled with weeds. With the advent of World War II and expansion of the nearby air base, the old sidewalks have again seen use during residential construction on the site of the old city plat.

With limited sidewalk construction in recent years, the Tawas City Council recently adopted a new ordinance establishing specifications for construction of new walks and providing for improved city participation in financing construction with property owners.

A new flurry in sidewalk construction is now expected, especially since citizens will again be forced to become pedestrians.

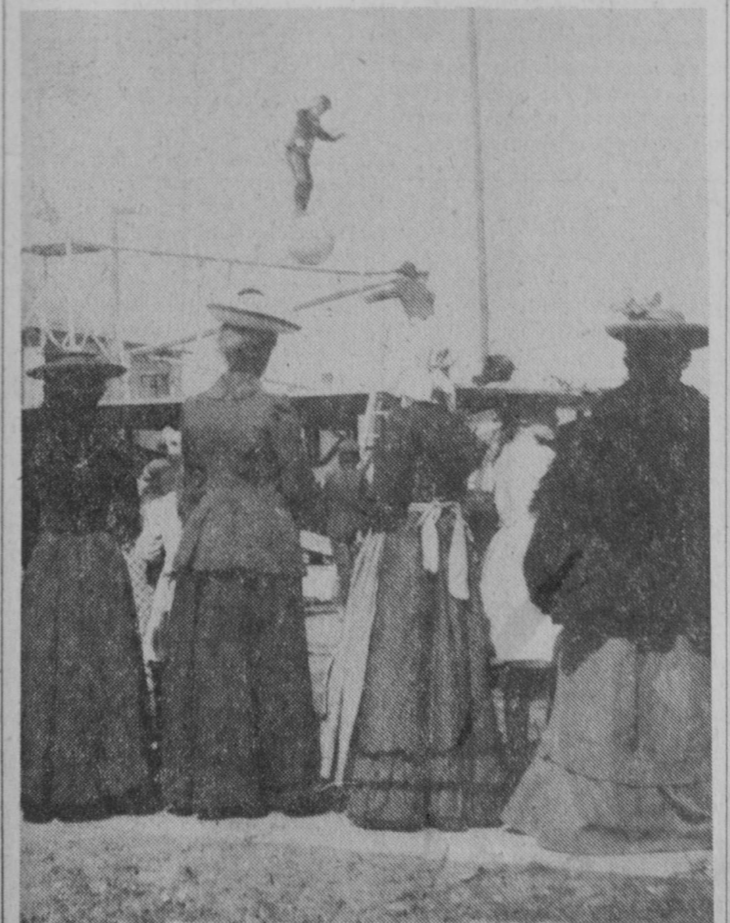

Downed wires... stay away, stay alive!

I'm a lineman at Consumers Power with a serious message. If you ever see a downed wire caused by severe storm, strong winds or an accident, don't try to move it—leave it alone and warn others to do the same. Call your local Consumers Power emergency number, it's listed in your phone book. Our emergency crew will be out as soon as possible.

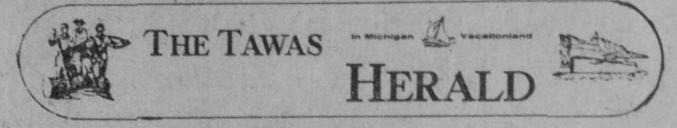

Asa Thompson Eastern Region

Remember, electric wires can be deadly—stay away and stay alive.

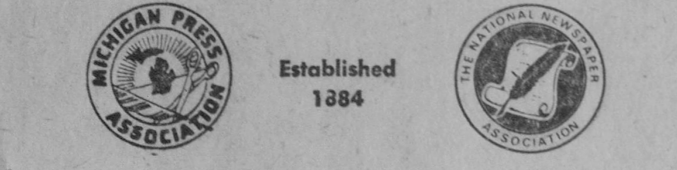

ONE OF THE BIGGEST OBJECTIONS to wooden sidewalks was the fact that nails in the planks caught on the long dresses worn by fashionable ladies of the day. Sidewalks were important as nearly everyone walked to the store and the sawdust "paved" streets were turned into quagmires during the spring.

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible with liberty and justice for all.

Editorial—

State's Expensive Imported Elk

A recent decision by the Michigan Supreme Court prohibiting the drilling for oil in the Pigeon River Forest is expected to have a serious impact on this state. Not only is well over one billion dollars worth of oil locked up by the court's decision, but the state is now liable for hundreds of millions of dollars in damages through voiding leases and permits granted to the oil companies.

There is an old saying that one cannot have his cake and eat it, too. That expression is most appropriate in this instance for the ruling will have a serious adverse economic effect on every taxpayer in Michigan. This is an important point for the loss in revenue to have been gained through royalties paid by oil companies to the state will have a direct effect on the entire conservation and environmental program in this state.

Michigan residents are interested in protecting the environment, but a reasonable approach must be the byword. In this instance under the state's environmental protection act, plaintiffs merely had to claim—not prove—that proposed drilling might be harmful to the Pigeon River elk herd.

"The elk in the Pigeon River State Forest may have been the most valuable animals ever known to man," State Rep. D. J. Jacobetti, chairman of the house appropriations committee, said last week. This corner agrees, for the economic trade off value of each elk, based on the loss of oil revenue, is about five-million dollars—certainly the most expensive animal ever imported to Michigan.

And we agree with Representative Jacobetti that, "Michigan should be producing every barrel of oil and every cubic foot of gas possible until the present energy crunch is resolved." It really is not out of the realm of possibility that this nation could go to war to secure an oil supply—it is that important.

It is not impossible to utilize our natural resources and protect the environment at the same time. It is irresponsible to say that it cannot be done. The question is bound to come up again—perhaps right in this neighborhood—and a reasonable approach must be taken for the benefit of man and the protection of the environment.

Highlights And Sidelights

Indian Fishing Rights Controversy Legislation Introduced

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Legislation aimed at alleviating Michigan's Indian fishing controversy was introduced into congress March 8 by Robert Davis, Northern Michigan representative.

The two-bill package includes a joint resolution allowing individual states to regulate Indian hunting and fishing both on and off reservation lands, plus a bill abrogating those sections of treaties which have been, or may be, interpreted to give Michigan's Indians unlimited hunting and fishing rights.

The second bill also provides for Michigan to establish hunting and fishing regulations and to enforce those laws. The bill authorized possible payment of a cash settlement to the Indian tribes to compensate them for the loss of these rights. However, it has been argued that these Indians were never given unlimited hunting and fishing rights. The bill includes a clause stipulating that there must be proof the rights existed before the compensation is made.

"Michigan has drawn up strict laws and regulations in order to protect and preserve our fish and game. We have learned that our natural resources must be managed in order to be maintained. The state should have the power to enforce these laws as they apply to every citizen of the state," Davis said.

The courts have left no alternative but to take "swift and decisive legislative action to seek a desperately needed solution before fish and game stocks are completely destroyed or the situation erupts into violence," said Davis.

Two State-Local Agencies Looking for Foster Families

ALPENA—Child and Family Services is in need of foster homes for teen-agers. These teens are referred to the Intensive Foster Care program from the Michigan Department of Social Services, probate courts and other public and private agencies.

Teens in the IFC program have different problems and behaviors, but typically have one or two of the following behaviors: Failing grades, poor school attendance, involvement with drugs or alcohol, running away from home and stealing.

These teens are paired with trained foster parents and receive intensive support from a caseworker. Program workers have small caseloads so that weekly contact is made with teens and foster families.

Foster families are those which possess skills in parenting and have the ability to establish and maintain communication among the family members. Through discussion, an adolescent can learn to deal with interpersonal relationships and to develop skills in problem solving, two tasks necessary in today's society.

Adolescence is an important time of life because it is here that young people are searching for themselves and finding out who they are and what they believe. They no longer need to be told what to do, but rather they need to be guided into independent, mature kinds of thinking.

Foster parents are licensed and each home must meet certain physical standards. Several visits are also made by the licensing worker to discuss what foster care is and the problems encountered in foster care.

Foster parents in the IFC program through Child and Family Services of Michigan, Incorporated, receive $15.48 per day per child and are provided free medical, dental and other related costs as they apply to the foster child. Being a foster parent is more than providing an adolescent with a place to sleep and food to eat. It is becoming a temporary parent for someone who needs someone to care about them.

Iosco County Probate Judge William H. McCready has stressed the need for additional licensed foster homes in this county.

Anyone interested or who would like more information about foster parenting in the IFC program should contact Child and Family Services of Michigan, Incorporated, at telephone 356-4567.

The Iosco County Department of Social Services is also interested in obtaining additional licensed foster homes. Persons interested should contact Mark Bell at 362-8631 for information.

Attended Farmers Week at MSU

HALE—Between 40 and 50 farmers and housewives from Iosco County joined others from the area Tuesday to attend a Farmers Week program at Michigan State University. The program is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service, with local cooperation from Farmers and Merchants State Bank which provided bus transportation to East Lansing.

The program—running from March 19 through March 23 provides many interesting discussion topics for beef, swine, lamb and horse producers.

During Farmers week, there is a program for nearly everyone and, best of all, it is all free with the exception of food, lodging and special banquets.

County Agent Kenneth Kernstock said that Tuesday's program in which Iosco farmers and their wives participated included discussing the role of today's farm women, a program by the Society of American Foresters, a program on wildlife control in agriculture presented by the Soil Conservation Society of America, a nutritional program and information on how calculators can help farmers make decisions.

In addition, Tuesday was Natural Resources Day and local delegates attended an open house at the university, as well as hearing interesting talks concerning the dairy industry.

The group left the area at 6:30 a. m. and was to return Tuesday night. Capping the evening program was a meeting with the state legislature's agriculture committee and State Rep. Tom Alley of West Branch.

While the effect of farming on Iosco County is too often minimized, Kernstock said there were 240 full and part-time farmers in this county with an estimated income from farm products around seven-million dollars annually.

TODAY'S Meditation
from The World's Most Widely Used Devotional Guide
The Upper Room

(Read Ecclesiastes 3:10-15)
"I know that whatever God does endures forever; nothing can be added to it, nor anything taken from it; God has made it so, in order that men should fear before him. (Ecclesiastes 3:14 RSV)

Often, we encounter in the Bible the idea that God has His hour and that we must wait for it. God does have his hour. In this thought, there are both the sound of the tolling of the bells of doom and the ringing of the bells of hope. There is inevitable, inescapable judgment; there is also grace and forgiveness and the sureness of God's purposes.

"Perhaps one of the great revelations of heaven will be this: That which in our lives seemed so unimportant, so much of an insignificant eddy apart from the mainstream of history, was truly a vital part of the whole plan of God that hastened the coming of His hour.

We each have tasks to do and contributions to make as we live out our lives. Let us work faithfully at our task, great or small, knowing that God will have His hour, and that that hour will be more joyous for us because we have been faithful in our work.

PRAYER
O God, help us to see the signs of promise and hope within each hour, knowing that You have Your hour. May we be ready at any time for Your coming. Amen.

Veteran Bus Driver Retiring at Whittemore-Prescott Area

Clarence Bellville, a Burleigh Township dairy farmer, retires at the end of the 1978-79 term after serving Whittemore-Prescott Area School for 34 years as bus driver-transportation supervisor.

As a dairy farmer and still milking 20 cows daily, his routine begins each morning before 5 o'clock when he does his chores around the barn; then it is off to the bus garage to start his day as a bus driver and then back home after the last run to finish his chores.

Many a night he has had to return to the bus garage to have the bus fleet ready for the next school day. When he started his job as a school bus driver in November 1945, the old Burleigh Township Rural Agricultural School had five 45-passenger buses; today, the reorganized Whittemore-Prescott Area School has a fleet of 19 65-passenger buses.

Bellville has enjoyed his job with the school district, as well as enjoying the people for whom he worked, his fellow drivers and the students.

His first route was north of Whittemore and into Reno Township. His fellow drivers at the time were Noel St. James, Frank Gordon, Lansan Beardslee and Otto Fuerst. Buses were stored then at Charles Bellville's garage at Whittemore. He first became the bus mechanic in the fall of 1955, working in the present bus garage west of the Whittemore Elementary School. He was named transportation supervisor after reorganization of the school district.

Bellville has attended bus mechanic courses at Central Michigan University several summers and a bus driver's school every year. The state requires each bus driver to pass a driving course.

He was honored with a retirement party Saturday night at a pot-luck dinner given at the high school by noncertified employees of the school district.

Bellville is to be succeeded as transportation supervisor by Robert Thompson, who has spent the past 13 years with the district as a bus driver.

Pastor Speaker for St. Mary's Guild

The Rev. Kenneth Near addressed St. Mary's Guild of Christ Episcopal Church, East Tawas, Tuesday, March 13, following a luncheon at the church. Proceeds were turned over to Beulah Western, treasurer.

Hostesses for the event were Susan Newell, Elizabeth Wilee and Elizabeth Besancon.

IHM Women Hear World Day of Prayer Report

Alice Frank and Barbara Sanger reported on the World Day of Prayer during the Thursday, March 15, meeting of Immaculate Heart of Mary Council of Women. Two new members were welcomed and several donations for worthy causes were approved. New vestments and acolytes are to be purchased, as well as other necessities for the sanctuary.

Named as cochairmen of the committee for the second annual card party were Bernice Owens and Eleanor Donahue. The event is slated for April 29 at the parish hall.

Reports on the DCCW board meeting were heard and the convention on May 8 at Gaylord was announced. Mrs. Donahue, who gave the report, stated that the southeast region quarterly meeting will be held Wednesday, March 28, at Hale. Registration will be at 11 o'clock followed by a pot-luck luncheon. Persons attending are asked to bring a dish to pass and table service.

Refreshments were served by Ruth Horger and daughter.

Motorists can eliminate the need for gasoline rationing or weekend service station closings proposed in a standby Federal plan by cutting unnecessary travel. Automobile Club of Michigan states that any rationing plan would be the beginning of the end of tourism, this state's number two industry, which accounts for only 2.5 percent of all auto trips. Auto Club's chart shows that earning a living, social visits and trips on family business account for more than 96 percent of all auto travel and that 54 percent of all trips by car are for less than 5 miles. Carpooling, combining trips, maintaining vehicles and conservative driving techniques can cut fuel use by at least 16 percent. Auto Club suggests that motorists keep a daily travel log to find and eliminate needless trips.

FOR AND ABOUT
IOSCO TEEN-AGERS

TODAY'S TEEN at Whittemore-Prescott Area High School is Kenneth E. Turner, a senior. Kenneth is active as a member of the student council, varsity club, yearbook staff, as well as participating in varsity football and baseball. His outside interests include traveling, snow and water skiing and golfing. His subjects this year include geometry, bookkeeping, cooperative education and United States Government. Kenneth's future plans call for attendance at Ohio Technical University to study electronics and computers. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Turner.

TODAY'S TEEN at Hale Area High School is Trina Ketzler, an 18-year-old senior. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Ketzler, Trina's subjects this year include United States Government, classics, senior high school band, art, woodshop and interior design. Her hobbies include snow skiing, sewing, arts and crafts, "working out-of-doors with nature and all its wonders." She hopes to attend college to prepare for a career as a floral designer, fashion coordinator or interior designer. She presently is employed at Kocher's Market.

Top Mathematics Scholars Honored at W-P Assembly

Top winners in a local contest for sixth, seventh and eighth grade students were honored at an assembly Thursday morning by Whittemore-Prescott School's mathematics department.

Trophies and certificates were presented to winners by mathematics teachers for those grades. The program at Whittemore-Prescott was coordinated by Sue K. Dalbec, chairperson for the school's mathematics department. This competition is sponsored by the Michigan Council of Teachers of Mathematics, which will offer state-wide competition on May 5. Seven regional contests are to be held at different locations around the state. The top 25 winners for each grade, six through eight, from each region will then compete at a state contest held at Central Michigan University on May 19.

This year's regional contest is to be held at Oscoda. Students will compete in the morning, have lunch, tour Wurtsmith Air Force Base and then receive their awards. First place winners at Whittemore-Prescott Area School included: Kevin Tucker, Ronald Janish, William Thompson and Carl Bell, eighth grade; Geordon Portice, Nathan Rohn, Craig Lange and Daniel Webb, seventh grade; Cynthia Portice and Jeanette Turner, sixth grade. Certificates were presented to the following students: Debbie Mier, Lynette Burtch, Becky Nichols, Holly Wight, Kandi Flanagan and Renee West, eighth graders; John Podsiadlik, Randy Worden, Ann Tucker, Charlotte Riffel, William Hill, Jeffrey Hall and Sandra Thayer, seventh grade; Colleen Letts, Milton Edmonds, William Good, Ruben Prince, Allen Parent, Matthew Lehman, Frank Kitchenhoff, Dawn Estes, Jeffrey Hinkley and Kelli Spencer, sixth graders.

College Week Scholarships Available Free from MSU

Applications are now available for fully-paid scholarships to Michigan State University's College Week program. Scheduled for June 18-21 at MSU, the program is co-sponsored by MSU's Cooperative Extension Service and the College of Human Ecology.

"We Make a Difference" is the theme for this year's College Week program. The full schedule includes a keynote address by Eleanor McGovern, an assembly on confidence and communication, a choice of three from 50 class options, a chicken barbecue with legislators, a sample of college dormitory life and much more.

With annual participation of about 1,200 people, College Week provides a unique opportunity to meet people from all over Michigan while learning and sharing ideas.

Scholarship forms may be obtained by contacting the Iosco County Cooperative Extension Service office, 362-3449. Completed forms are due back in the office by Wednesday, March 28.

THE WILBER CHURCH

The people of the Wilber Community Area would like to rebuild "The Church in The Wildwood" which was destroyed by fire this winter. They would like to begin in the summer of 1979 — in memory of and dedication to the courage and strength that has been in the past, is today and can be in the future.

The Wilber community needs God's help and it needs yours and wants the church to serve the community in the future as it has in the past. Will you help?

I hereby pledge $ _____ to be used for the rebuilding of the Wilber Church.

Meet Iron Mountain Tonight

Tawas Braves Brought Home First Regional Trophy

It is on to the quarter-final at Cheboygan tonight (Wednesday) for the Tawas Area Braves, who won the regional Class C basketball championship Friday night at Roscommon—a first in the 25-year history of the reorganized school district.

March madness, that phenomena which annually takes hold of a school and a community once a team makes it through a district basketball tournament, definitely has the Tawas area within its power. The Braves never have wanted support from fans all season long and it is expected there will be a steady stream of northbound cars and buses headed out of the Tawas area starting this afternoon.

In order to qualify for tonight's regional tournament, the Braves turned in four straight tournament victories at Houghton Lake and Roscommon. All four of those games have been bell-ringers against tough competition.

The Braves won only three of their first 11 games of the season, but settled down to win second place in the Northeastern Michigan Conference and, after a big win February 16 against Gladwin, have rebounded for a tremendous finish and they are still running with a 14-10 record.

Tonight's trip to the quarter-final against Iron Mountain is the first for a Tawas team since the East Tawas Indians turned the trick in 1942.

It did not look like the Braves were going anywhere but home in the first quarter of Friday night's regional championship game against a speedy Charlevoix team, but the Braves of Coach Paul Becker settled down in the second quarter to be off and running.

Kevin Kratt put Charlevoix on the scoreboard first with a foul shot and Kevin Grace scored his first bucket of the night to put Tawas in the lead, but it was all downhill for the Braves in the first quarter until Grace meshed another bucket with three seconds to go in the quarter.

Tawas only trailed, 9-5, at the first buzzer thanks to a cold performance, too, turned in by Charlevoix, but Grace suddenly caught fire to score the next 10 points for the Braves. Charlevoix matched Tawas basket-for-basket until Brian Norton and Kraig Moffatt connected on a pair of buckets to put Tawas in front, 19-15, with three minutes, 48 seconds to go in the quarter. The half ended with the Braves holding that same four-point margin, 27-23.

Pat Schmidt's charity tosses closed the gap to 27-25 at the start of the third quarter, but Norton scored on a rebound and Tawas' tough defense forced a Charlevoix turn over, followed by two quick buckets by Grace and Moffatt to extend Tawas' lead to 33-25. Charlevoix closed the score to 36-31, but a good pass from Grant Mousseau to Moffatt set up one basket. Two quick buckets by Mousseau and Norton gave Tawas a 42-31 lead and Charlevoix took a time out with two minutes, 34 seconds to go in the quarter. The Braves wound up with a 46-35 lead at the end of the quarter.

It was all Charlevoix at the start of the final quarter as Tawas was guilty of a couple of turnovers and a charging foul. Mousseau meshed a foul shot to give Tawas a 47-44 lead with 5½ minutes to go, but two shots from the charity lane by Charlevoix cut that lead to 47-46.

Ken Otmanowski fouled Moffatt and the Tawas forward meshed two shots to put the Braves in front, 49-46. Charlevoix again closed the gap to 49-48, but a bucket by Norton turned things around and Tawas was in front, 51-48. The two teams each meshed two buckets, but Grace scored two baskets and Tawas had a 59-52 lead with 45 seconds to go.

Dubovsky made good on two straight charity tosses and Bryant Wilke came off the bench to score a layup to end the scoring and give the Braves a 63-54 victory.

The Braves only meshed 11 of 33 shots during the first half, due mainly to that poor start in the first quarter, but canned 23 of 46 shots during the second, third and fourth quarters for a respectable 50 percent from the floor and a .410 mark for the night.

The Red Rayders of Charlevoix never could find the range from the floor against Tawas' defense and made 20 of 68 shots.

Tawas had three players scoring in double figures, led by Grace's 29 points. Norton contributed 11 points and Moffatt had 10.

Schmidt led the losers with 18 points and fouled out in the fourth quarter, which definitely gave Tawas an edge.

Mousseau came off the bench to replace Bill King, who picked up three personal fouls in the opening quarter and never d'd get back in the game due to the excellent performance turned in by Mousseau. Tawas players, cheerleaders, student body and fans went wild with excitement as the regional trophy was presented to Coach Becker and the nets were removed for the Tawas trophy case.

The young Braves, playing with four juniors and a senior Friday night, now advance to Cheboygan to meet Iron Mountain, a team which eliminated Negaunee in regional action Saturday night.

Forest Service Seeks Public Input on Management Plans

The United States Forest Service, Huron National Forest, Tawas Ranger District, is soliciting public input and comment prior to completing management plans for compartments 25 and 43. This area is bounded by Rollways Campground on the south, Rollways and Curtisville Roads on the west, the Au-Sable River on the east and the Alcona-Iosco County line on the north.

A number of treatments and project plans are proposed. These may include clearcutting, thinning, release cutting, reforestation, controlled burning, construction and obliteration of roads and trails, food and cover improvements for wildlife and recreation improvements.

An afternoon meeting is planned for 1 o'clock Thursday, April 5, in the conference room at the Forest Service Ranger District Office on the second floor of the East Tawas post office. All interested parties are invited to attend. If anyone interested is unable to attend, written comments may be submitted to District Ranger, United States Forest Service, Federal Building, East Tawas, Michigan 48730 no later than April 5.

New Organization Born at Wood Industry Conference

On January 31, a new organization was formed to represent wood industry in Northeast Michigan. By a unanimous vote of those attending a wood industry conference in Grayling, the Northeast Michigan Wood Industry Council, a nonprofit corporation, was born. Those in attendance, in addition to wood industry representatives, included personnel from the Department of Natural Resources; Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service; an accounting firm representative; Roger Rehberg of the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission; Tom Alley, state representative from West Branch; George Bruff of the Michigan Chamber of Commerce; Thomas Heck of the Michigan Department of Commerce, and a representative from the office of Sen. Robert Davis. The formation of an organization was the culmination of research on the part of a task force which was appointed a year ago at a similar conference. This task force was made up of local wood industry and concerned agency representatives.

The major purpose of the council is to provide a common voice for small wood industries in order to deal more effectively with their concerns. Primary concerns voiced were workmen's compensation, forest management, resource utilization and promotion of favorable legislation. With the cooperation of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, the council will be active in the identification of educational and research needs. Other major goals include job expansion and the general promotion of wood industry in Northeast Michigan.

Newly-elected officers and board of directors are Ralph Monk of Lewiston, president; Forrest Rhoads of Mio, vice president; Richard Knight of West Branch, secretary-treasurer; John Gascho, Fairview; Paul Huber, Harrison; Russell Mason, Rose City, and William Carroll, Lewiston.

Those interested in joining the council or having questions may contact any of the above board members.

Kite Flying Time Can be Dangerous

Every year, says J. E. Wessels, Consumers Power Company's district manager, youngsters look forward to kite flying time. Now that the season is here, a few timely tips to the youngsters may be necessary.

Wessels urged parents and school officials to warn children of the dangers of flying kites near electric lines. Major problems usually occur when a kite is tangled in electric wires and the young person attempts to free it, Wessels said.

Wessels offered some basic rules for safe kite flying. Having children learn them could help avoid trouble, he noted.

Use dry string—not wire or anything metallic.

Use wood and paper or plastic in a kite—not wire or metal.

Fly kite on days when there is no rain.

Avoid busy streets and highways while flying kite.

Do not fly kite near television or radio antennas.

Keep away from any electric wires.

If kite does get snagged in a power line, do not try to pull on the string or climb the utility pole. It is better to lose a kite than to lose a life.

If a kite becomes tangled in electric lines, call Consumers Power Company and give the location.

KRAIG MOFFATT turned in his usual steady game and it was necessary against a tough Charlevoix defense. Tawas had a height advantage, but the Red Rayders had the Braves reeling at times with a fast offense.—Tawas Herald Photo.
