Council Picks Former Detroit Area Man

New City Manager March 19

Tawas City will have a new city manager effective March 19. By unanimous vote of the city council Monday night, the position was offered to Lowell D. Thomas of Stockbridge, Massachusetts. One of three candidates interviewed last week, Thomas indicated at the time that he would accept the job if offered by the city.

No stranger to Michigan, the 39-year-old Thomas was born at Detroit and graduated from high school at Livonia. He was a college roommate of Ronald Tyler, local attorney, and is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Gene Carlisle of Tawas City, whose husband is an employee of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway.

Search for a new city manager began soon after the effective date of the resignation of Reginald Bublitz, former city manager, on October 16. During the interim period, Rachel Sue McCready, the appointive city clerk, has filled in as the acting city manager.

Despite stormy debate at council meetings in recent weeks concerning selection of a city manager, all members of the council expressed pleasure over the selection of Thomas to fill the position.

He was among a list of more than 10 applicants for the job. Donald Oakes of Grand Rapids, a veteran municipal consultant who aided the city in developing its charter a number of years ago, was retained by the council to assist with the selection process.

Oakes' recommendations narrowed the field to three candidates last week and those applicants were interviewed extensively by councilmen with the assistance of Oakes. Names of the other two candidates were not announced due to present employment elsewhere.

It was announced Monday night that Thomas' starting salary would be $19,500 annually. He would receive a $100 monthly allowance for his car, a two-week annual vacation, the city is to pay his expense of moving and he would receive standard benefits paid to other salaried employees of the city.

An open house to meet the new city manager is to be held Monday, March 19, at the city hall and all residents of the Tawas have been invited to attend. Mrs. McCready, who is to assist the new city manager in assuming his duties, is to have charge of that program. Refreshments are to be served.

That evening, all members of city commissions and boards have been invited to attend the regular council meeting in order to greet the new city manager.

He and his wife are parents of four children. He received a bachelor degree in 1961 from Olivet Nazarene College, Kankakee, Illinois, and his educational experience includes 24 semester hours of graduate work at George Washington University in governmental administration. He graduated "cum laude" from college with a 3.35 average and was listed in the 1960-61 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

He served as an air force intelligence officer in 1961 through 1967 with service in Vietnam; was administrative assistant to the city manager of Fredericksburg, Virginia, from 1967 to 1969; was chief administrative officer of Avon, Connecticut, from 1969 to 1972; was administrator of Orthopedic Associates, comprising a group of 10 surgeons, from 1972 to 1974; was project administrator for a recreational community, planning, developing, coordinating legal, financial and administrative concepts, from 1974 to 1976.

From 1976 to the present, he has been a real estate broker, operating his own business.

Members of the city council said they were greatly impressed with the new city manager's credentials in the field of budgeting and professional leadership in municipal matters.

He is to move here within two weeks and his wife and family will follow him at the end of the school term.

Receiving an ovation from the council and citizens attending Monday night's council meeting was Acting City Manager McCready, who has ably served the city during the interim period.

members and discussed the trend of values in the city as the board opened its initial session Tuesday. Public meetings are to be held March 12-13 when property owners have the opportunity to check assessments.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Council Approves One Year Contract With City Assessor

A one year contract retaining Ronald Turner as city assessor was adopted Monday night by the Tawas City Council. His salary for this work will be $7,400.

This action followed discussion for several meetings concerning Turner's request for Tawas City to bring its payment in line with that of East Tawas.

Turner has served both communities as assessing officer for the past two years. Under the old contract, Turner received $4,566 from Tawas City and said he had accepted a 60-40 salary split between the two communities before realizing that assessing work in each unit was equal.

The assessor had previously requested a seven percent increase in pay from East Tawas bringing his salary paid by that community to $7,400. His new combined salary will be $14,800.

Several members of the city council pointed out that the proposed increase by Tawas City would exceed presidential guidelines and that the federal government had threatened to curtail revenue sharing payments to units which did not observe those guidelines.

Coun. Donald Hayes expressed the opinion that the salary paid to the city assessor was actually for contractual services not governed by the presidential decree, that Turner had lived by the agreement for two years when work in each community was equal and that he had paid his own way to school last year to be recertified, which actually is an expense by law of the community.

Hayes' motion to retain Turner was supported by Coun. James Lansky and the contract was adopted unanimously.

Turner had been working without a contract since January 1 and he was to meet Tuesday morning at the first session of the city's board of review.

Turner told the council that he had contacted CETA officials concerning the possible hiring of trainees to convert information on present assessment cards to new state cards now in use by the county.

In other business, Coun. Robert N. Rollin was named as a replacement for Coun. James Lansky on the special fire department committee which is to meet with officials of Tawas and Alabaster Township today (Wednesday) concerning a new fire protection contract with those units.

The council is to accompany City

Supt. Merlin (Red) Look on a tour of city streets Thursday, 5:30 p.m., to review recommendations for blacktop work during the coming summer.

Permission was granted to Tawas Council, Knights of Columbus, to conduct a Tootsie Roll sale in the city as a fund raising project to assist retarded children of Iosco County Intermediate School District.

Acting City Mgr. Rachel Sue McCready reported that Richard Pfeiffer and James Lansky II had been accepted to attend a wastewater seminar concerning basic laboratory analysis to be held March 12-16 at Lansing. Attendance of two employees at such seminars had been authorized in December by the council as a means of compliance with state regulations concerning certification of sewage treatment plant operators.

Among two building permits approved by the building and safety inspection department was one for Harold Moeller to convert his laundromat into a restaurant.

American House Complex Changed to Condominium

The American House at East Tawas, a retirement complex which has proven successful in another area of the state but never really got off the ground after its construction here several years ago, apparently is to get a new lease on life—but not as originally intended.

On recommendation of the city planning commission, the East Tawas Council Monday night gave its blessing to a Grosse Pointe real estate firm's proposal to convert the beautiful complex into a residential condominium.

The firm would completely remodel the interior of the building, providing one, two, three and four-bedroom units. The large area of the complex originally intended for a dining area would be used for an indoor swimming pool.

The original complex also included carriage houses which would be sold as residential dwellings.

In other business Monday night, the council learned that it apparently won the first round in a suit brought in federal court by Elouise Dimmick concerning a property trespass on her land west of Newman Street for drainage purposes.

The council has been notified by the Bay City Federal Court that City Atty. Michael Freel had been dismissed as a joint defendant without prejudice. Last October, the city and Freel were named in a federal suit brought by Mrs. Dimmick which sought a million-dollar judgment and punitive damages.

The city currently is seeking a temporary restraining order against Mrs. Dimmick concerning an earthen dam which she had constructed last year blocking a ditch through her property.

In addition, the city is also involved in a case brought by Mrs. Dimmick before the Michigan Tax Tribunal concerning tax assessments on her property.

Bids for a new fire truck were opened and Chief William Look Jr. is to meet with the finance committee to determine if all bids met specifications.

Bids on a truck chassis were submitted as follows: William Look and Sons, $32,568.83; McIntosh-McKay, $32,699.99.

Equipment bids included: FTI, $49,323; Champion, $42,995; Howe, combined equipment and chassis, $95,184.28; Pierce, combined equipment and chassis, $89,886.

The new unit would carry 2,000 gallons of water, would be equipped with a three-stage pump and would be equipped with foam for fighting gasoline fires.

William Smith, superintendent of public works, was appointed to represent the city concerning a maintenance contract with the state.

The council adopted a new ordinance governing cross connections to prevent private wells from contaminating the municipal water supply.

Friction Develops Between City-County Over EDC Plan

Friction between the City of East Tawas and the Iosco County Board of Commissioners has developed over proposed low interest financing under the Economic Development Act for a new Big Boy Restaurant and motel at East Tawas.

The East Tawas Council voted Monday night to approve a project submitted by the Iosco County Economic Development Commission to finance this project.

Coming on a four to one roll call vote, the council followed recommendations of the city planning commission. Permission to proceed with the project had been granted last year by the city's zoning board of appeals.

The project met stiff opposition a year ago from neighboring residential property owners. The proposed project would be located on US-23 east of the intersection with Tawas Beach Road.

Last Wednesday, the county board of commissioners called on Larry McCoy of the Michigan Department of Commerce to explain acts governing EDC projects.

Approval by the county board of commissioners of any EDC project is one of the legal steps for establishing a district.

Members of the commission pointed out that they were not entirely certain as to details or size of the project area, that neighboring property owners were upset and that the county board could not approve it without further information.

Commissioners were not sure last week if the project should be approved. One member, James Stech, said that the "blame would rest on us if it is not compatible with the community."

David George, another member of the county commission, said that the original proposition had excluded any opposition and that the two residents, Ralph Western and Charles Schreck, had been appointed by the commission to a committee which reviews the county EDC's proposal. Both men oppose the location of the Big Boy at the designated site.

The Lansing representative of the department of commerce said at Wednesday's meeting that final determination of an EDC project would be in the hands of the city. He said that such financing had been used successfully in other areas of the state.

At Monday night's meeting, members of the East Tawas Council expressed the opinion that the county board of commissioners was meddling in city affairs.

The lone dissenting vote on the proposal approved Monday night by the city council was cast by Councilman Western.

Tawas Hospital Seeks Permit to Construct Surgical Suite

Tawas Hospital, Tawas City, has asked the State of Michigan for approval to construct a new surgical suite.

The 53-bed facility serves a geographic area of approximately 30,000 people. A new nursing wing and outpatient service are now under construction, which will increase the ambulatory care capabilities. It also will increase the bed capacity by three.

The single operating room and service area were built in 1950, and are insufficient to serve the new doctors and specialties going into the area.

The project would be completed in October at an estimated cost of $406,556.

In keeping with federal regulations requiring state approval prior to construction, change in service and capital expenditure, Tawas Hospital has applied for a certificate of need. The application is on file with the Michigan Department of Public Health, division of Health Facility Planning and Construction.

Restrictions Go on Seasonal Roads

Effective 7:00 a. m. Wednesday (today), March 7, weight restrictions will be imposed on all seasonal routes under the jurisdiction of the Iosco County Road Commission until further notice. Loads are restricted to Michigan Department of Transportation published seasonal load limitations for flexible pavements; subject to lower limits at the discretion of the Iosco County Road Commission.

Two Thefts in TC Were Investigated

Two larcenies were investigated last week by Iosco County Sheriff's Department. Randy Lanski of Tawas City reported the theft of a bicycle from his garage. Douglas P. Williams reported the theft of a tool box from his truck parked in Tawas City.

OK Free Ramps for Trout Derby

At the request of Tawas Chamber of Commerce, fishermen registering in the third annual Brown Trout Derby in Tawas Bay, starting April 7 and running through May 13, will not be charged a launching fee at the municipal ramp on Ninth Avenue.

This action was taken by the Tawas City Council Monday night following an appearance by Robert Spence and William Kidder, representing the chamber of commerce. The same consideration for fishermen is being given by Jerry's Marina at Tawas Point.

In addition, the council authorized a contribution of $100 for an advertisement in a program newspaper being published by the chamber of commerce for the event, expected to draw around 300 entrants.

At first, councilmen were reluctant to make the monetary contribution because of the approximate $1,000 cost for dredging the mouth of the river.

Councilmen pointed out that dredging would be about a month earlier than usual due to the chamber's request and the work may be negated by spring storms filling in the river mouth with sand.

Last year, the city spent $2,317.50 for dredging the river mouth and fees from the boat ramps covered all but $475 of that amount.

Spence pointed out that the earlier opening would probably result in additional use of the ramp by visiting fishermen, some of whom would not be registering in the fishing derby. He felt that the expenditure was justified as it would be bringing additional business to the community.

Members of the council agreed and gave unanimous approval to the expenditures.

In addition, the council authorized raising the salary of the ramp attendant to the minimum wage of $2.95. Lewis Wilson, who has had charge of parking at the ramp for a number of years, had been paid at a rate of $2.60 an hour.

The council retained the same rate of $10 for a season ticket at the ramp but increased the daily launching fee from $2 to $2.50.

In other business, action was tabled on the proposed sale of city-owned lots on Twelfth Avenue until the property is staked out and a second appraisal is received.

ICE began breaking up in Dead Creek Monday and the department of public works dragline was on the job helping to free the stream of accumulated ice cakes. Mild weather over the weekend brought down a large amount of water, but there was no local flooding condition caused by ice jams. Colder weather may help to slow the spring run-off process.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Follow Consumer Guidelines for Buying, Storing and Cooking Pork

There are so many good reasons to serve pork. It's flavorful, nutritious and offers a variety of dining possibilities. In addition, pork can help ease the tension of a tight food budget when smart shopping and preparation techniques are employed. To be sure you're getting the most for your pork dollars, the National Live Stock and Meat Board offers the following suggestions.

Use Ads to Plan
To keep meals varied and interesting, check food ads for meats on special. Then look through cookbooks, magazines and newspaper food sections for new, budget-stretching ideas. Before going to the supermarket, plan menus for the week and make a shopping list from these menus.

Of course, you'll want to include family favorites such as pork chops, loin roasts and ham on the menu plans. To trim dollars off the food bill, also become familiar with especially economical cuts from the pork shoulder, such as blade and arm steaks. Other especially good buys include country-style ribs, ground pork, cubed steak, pork cubes, smoked shoulder roll and sausages.

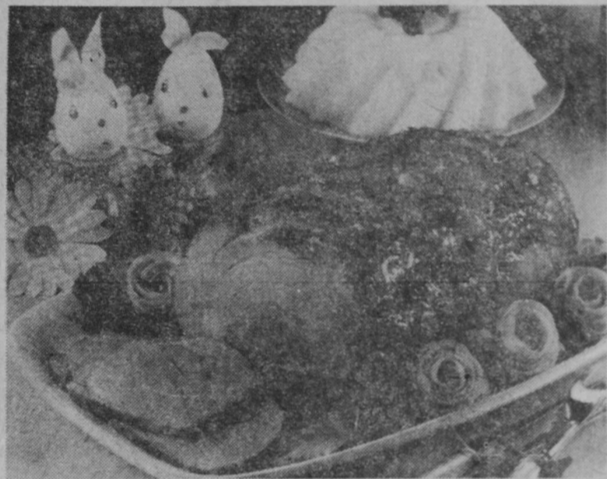

Consider Prices
When making your choices at the meat counter, consider price per serving rather than price per pound. Boneless cuts such as boneless pork loin roast, smoked ham and boneless chops will yield more servings than chops, steaks and roasts with bone. As a general rule, allow 4 to 5 servings per pound for boneless, 2 to 3 servings per pound for bone-in and 1 to 1½ servings for bony cuts, such as spare ribs and hocks.

Store With Care
You also have opportunities at home to get more for your money by storing the pork cuts you buy carefully and cooking them properly. Meat should be stored promptly.

Self-service pork may be stored in the original wrap in the refrigerator for up to two days and in the freezer for up to two weeks. When longer freezer storage is anticipated, the meat should be rewrapped or overwrapped in a moisture and vapor-proof wrap.

Correct Cooking Saves Cash
Cooking pork right not only assures you of the most flavorful results but also saves money. Most pork cuts can be cooked by dry heat methods such as roasting, broiling and pan-frying. However, for variety, you'll also want to use the moist heat methods of braising and cooking in liquid.

All pork should be cooked at low to moderate temperatures to the well done stage. Pork roasts are well done at an internal temperature of 170°F. Slow cooking and avoiding overcooking mean fewer cooking losses and more juicy meat to enjoy.

CONVENIENT BONELESS SMOKED HAM with spicy orange glaze leads Easter parade of foods.

Ham for Easter Sunday-dinner is one holiday tradition that is as easy as it is delicious. When you choose a boneless smoked ham, cooking and serving are especially easy. No bone nor waste means more servings per pound, points out the National Live Stock and Meat Board, and the ham can be carved into uniform slices.

Blossom Garnish
An attractive blossom garnish can be made by cutting around an orange to make a thin spiral of peel which is curled up and secured with a pick. Then insert a maraschino cherry in the center.

Orange Glazed Baked Ham
Place a 7 to 10-pound "fully-cooked" smoked ham on a rack in an open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so the bulb is centered in the thickest part. Do not add water. Roast in a slow oven (325°F.) until thermometer registers 130°F. to 140°F. Allow 15 to 18 minutes per pound. To prepare orange glaze, combine ½ cup orange marmalade, 1 tablespoon orange juice and ¼ teaspoon ginger in saucepan and cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Spread ham with glaze 20 minutes before end of cooking time.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Here is a point to ponder: News reports last week carried information concerning transportation of dangerous chemicals—2-5-4-D—known to cause severe damage to women and children.

I wonder if spending possibly $100,000,000 to prepare a safe place for refuse is as important as maybe finding a safer product of similar effect to use instead?

Also, if Dow manufactures this product, how come tax money is used to dispose of it?

School Looking for Beginners

Tawas Area School is again trying to locate children who will be eligible to attend kindergarten in September. Requirements for entering are the child must be five years of age by December 1, 1979, and reside within the Tawas Area School District.

"If you have a child eligible for enrollment, or know of any family who has a child to enroll, please call the school office, 362-4497, and give us your name and address, so registration materials may be sent to you," said Prin. Herman Rollin.

Actual enrollment and vision testing and screening by health technicians will be done Thursday, May 3, but early registration is important so the necessary forms can be filled out.

Tawas Area Band Receives 20th Straight 'I' Rating

For the 20th consecutive year, Tawas Area School Symphonic Band received a first division rating in the District IX festival of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association held Saturday at Roscommon.

For the ninth time, the band jumped a classification and performed in Class A, and, as in the past, received a top rating in this class. The Tawas band was the first north of Bay City ever to enter Class A competition and receive a "I" award.

A first division rating makes the band eligible to participate in the state festival to be held April 28 at Manistique. The state festival performance will culminate a spring tour by the band with performances at Cheboygan, Mackinaw

City, Sault Ste. Marie and Newberry.

Bands from Alcona, Pinconning, Oscoda, Clare, Houghton Lake, Harrison, Standish-Sterling, Ogemaw, Beaverton, Gladwin, Roscommon, Mio-AuSable, Arenac-Eastern, Atlanta, Hillman, AuGres-Sims, Hale, Whittemore-Prescott, Farwell and Tawas participated in the Roscommon festival.

At the festival, bands competed against set standards which vary slightly between classes of schools. Each band performed three numbers before judges, then sight-read two selections before a fourth judge. Tawas received three "I's" from the concert adjudicators and a "I" from the sight-reading judge for an over-all first division rating.

There was a combined total of 34 categories which the judges rated each band. Tawas received two B and 32 A grades.

The band played "March Op. 99," "Symphonic Triptych," the required selection, and "Four Scottish Dances."

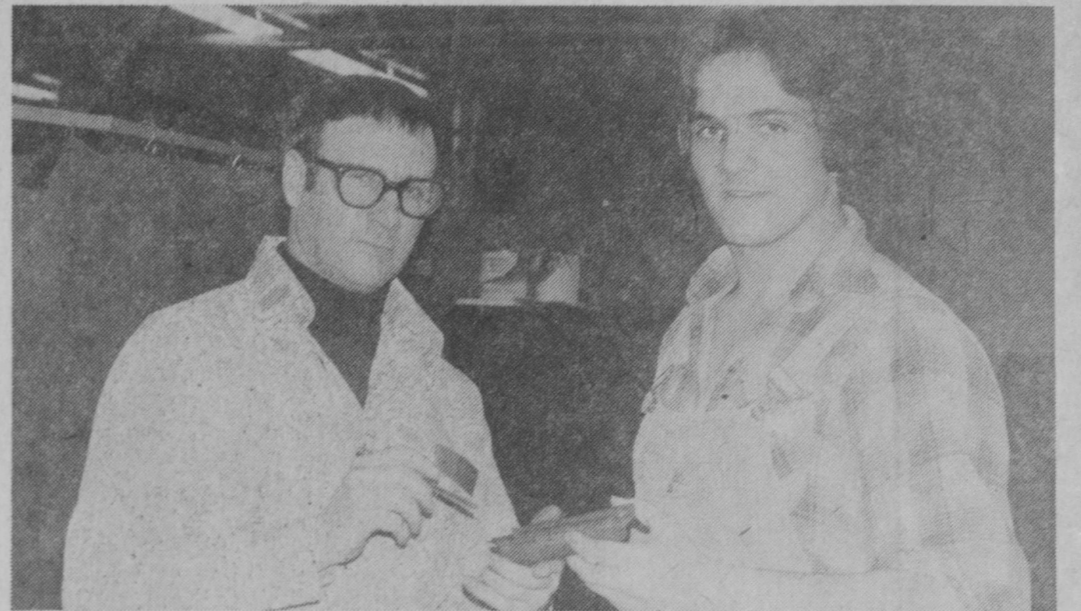

"Again this year, Tawas Area Band students exhibited professionalism and sensitivity of performance usually associated with schools of much higher classification," said Gene Salamony, director.

"In the past, we have jumped from classification B to A and this year we went from C to A, a truly remarkable feat. Next year will probably find us in B, in effect, still performing a classification above our enrollment," he stated.

WINNING first place in student industrial competition sponsored Saturday by the technical division of Delta College was Greg Adamiak of Tawas Area High School. Adamiak won first

Braves Came From Behind to Beat Pinny

BRIAN NORTON, right center, lost this rebound to Jerry Horner of the Pinconning Spartans in the third quarter of Friday night's game. Seconds later, Pinconning added two points to its lead. —Tawas Herald Photo.

As far as some fans were concerned, officiating in the Tawas Area Braves' last two games of the regular season left much to be desired—but it all depended on one's point of view. Each game was played on the winners' home floor.

Tawas fans were upset with game officials following the Braves' 65-61 loss February 27 to Ogemaw Heights, which knocked Tawas out of a possible tie with Gladwin for NEM Conference leadership; Pinconning fans were extremely angry following Friday night's game which saw the Braves come from behind to defeat the Spartans, 52-51.

Regardless of the outcome of Friday night's game, partisan followers of the losing school were going to be upset with referees—it was a barn-burner from start to finish and proved to be an elbowing match under the baskets.

The two teams went to the foul lines only 16 times during the night, Tawas completing eight of 10 shots and Pinconning counting five of six attempts.

Pinconning jumped off to a 12-10 margin at the end of the first quarter, but Tawas came back with a 22-12 bulge in the second quarter to take a comfortable 32-24 lead at intermission.

Pinconning ran Tawas' defense ragged in the early minutes of the third quarter to take the lead and then started to slow the game. Tawas could not get its hands on the ball and the Spartans came up with an 18-4 margin to lead, 42-36, at the end of the third quarter.

The Spartans continued to play smart basketball in the fourth quarter by keeping the ball away from the Braves. A couple of bad passes, a steal and two foul shots soon turned things around in the late stages of the quarter and the charges of Coach Paul Becker went ahead by four points.

Tawas then went into a stall and nearly lost the game in the last seconds of the game, with the Braves coming out on the long end of a 16-9 count in the fourth quarter.

The win gave Tawas a record of eight wins and two losses in North-eastern Michigan Conference play and a 10-10 record over-all.

The Braves had to settle for second place in the conference as Gladwin won a smashing, 74-58, victory over Ogemaw Heights. Jim Dubovsky paced Tawas with 14 points, followed by Brian Norton's 12 points and Kevin Grace chipped in 11 points, being closely guarded under the offensive baskets.

Jerry Horner topped the Spartans with 18 points, while Todd Bourcier had 15 and Kevin Fegan turned in 10 points.

Tawas fans now turn their eyes tonight (Wednesday) toward Houghton Lake for the District No. 88 class C basketball tournament. The Braves are scheduled to meet the winner of Monday night's opening round between Houghton Lake and Whittemore-PreScott Cardinals.

The first game tonight at 7 o'clock pits Alcona against Roscommon, while Tawas and its opponent take the floor at 8:30 o'clock.

Eagles Upset Alcona, but Jay Smith-Mio Too Much

Hale Eagles split the decisions in games last week to close out the regular basketball season. On February 27, the Eagles turned aside Alcona, 59-51, then lost to Mio, 71-61, in Friday night's game.

Hale, a much smaller team than Alcona, controlled both backboards and that was the key to the victory. The Eagles pulled in 30 offensive and 32 defensive rebounds during the night.

The Eagles were down, 33-29, going into the fourth quarter, but a full court press and some breaks at the free throw line gave Hale a 30-18 fourth quarter margin to pull off an upset.

Tim Lesneski led Hale scorers with 14 points while Robert Foster had 18 for the losers.

The Hale team turned in an excellent performance Friday night against Mio, but had a tough time containing Mio's Jay Smith, who scored 45 points. These same two teams were to meet Monday night in the district basketball tournament at Mio.

Hale was down, 18-14, at the end of the first quarter and a 16-9 second quarter hurt the Eagles' chances. Hale outscored Mio in the second half, 18-17 and 20-18.

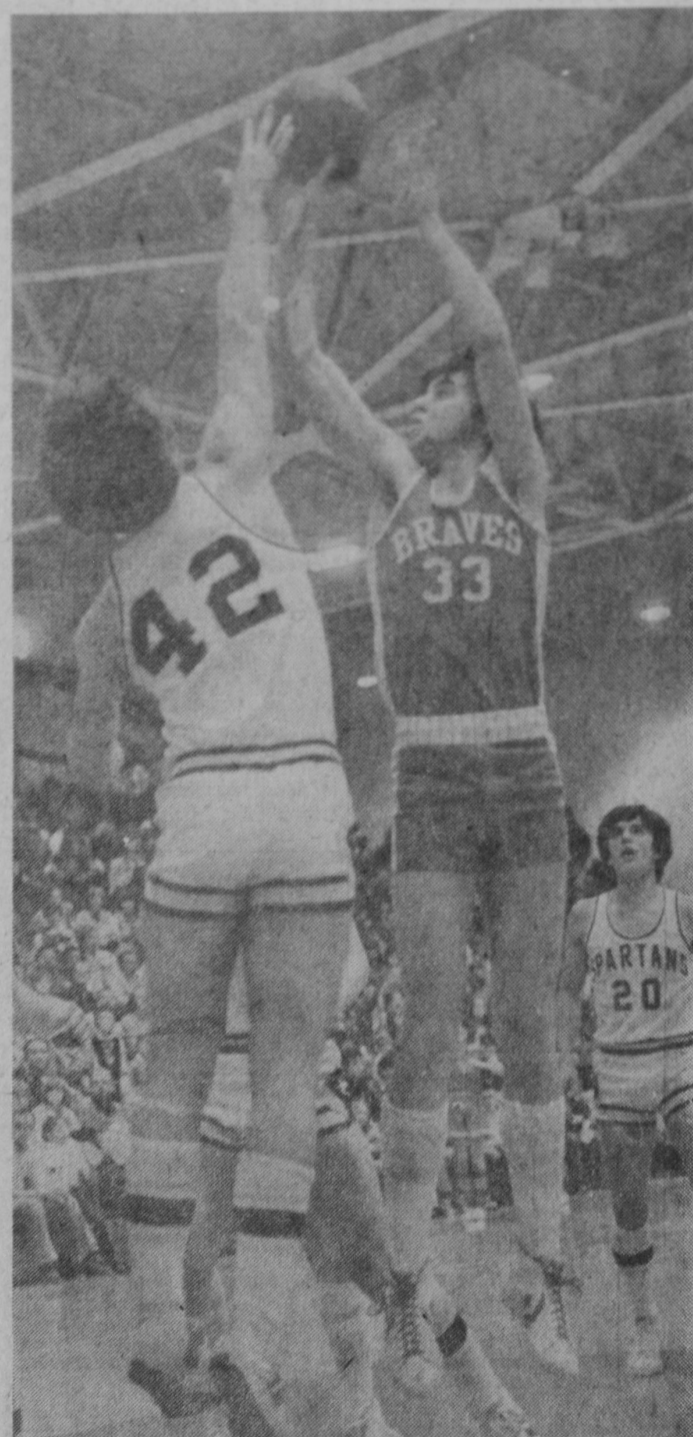

Gary Wood scored 26 points during the night for Hale, meshing as many points as the entire Mio team with the exception of Smith.

The Hale Junior Varsity rolled to a 57-46 win over Alcona with Tom Sanders turning in 19 points. Jeff Dillon had 13 rebounds. The Little Eagles lost to Mio, 70-61. Sanders had 21 points to lead the losers.

The eighth grade team lost a pair of games in the junior high school tournament at Fairview. Hale lost to Atlanta, 58-42, with Rick Lee scoring 23 points and Steve Case had 14 points in a losing cause. In a consolation game March 1, the Hale squad lost to Arenac Eastern, 27-26, at the buzzer. In three games this season between these two teams, each game has been decided by only one point.

TA Eighth Graders Split Final Games

Tawas' eighth grade basketball teams closed the season out last week by splitting a pair of games with Pinconning. The "A" team defeated Pinconning, 50-34, while the "B" team lost, 49-38.

Eric Groff paced the "A" team with 13 points, followed by Dan Mooney's 10 points. Rodney Whitford had six rebounds for Tawas and Lee Irons had seven defensive rebounds.

Despite the fact that Pinconning had 27 turnovers to 20 for Tawas, the "B" team fell behind, 15-8, in the first quarter and could never get an offense rolling. David Klenow led the losers with 15 points. Steve Johnson and Klenow were tied with five rebounds each.

Federal LWC Funds OK'd for New East Tawas Boat Launching Ramp

The federal Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service, Department of Interior, has approved a $125,833 appropriation from Land Water Conservation Act funds for development of the new state boat launching ramp at East Tawas.

Announced Thursday by Cong. Robert Davis, a supplemental grant of $75,000 from the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission has also been approved for this project.

An additional $100,833 has been appropriated by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, which applied for the federal money, establishing $301,666 as the total monetary value of the project.

Not included in the above total is the local contribution of land for the new facility through a lease to the state granted by the City of East Tawas. The property includes the former city garage, parking lot and lake bottom land rights purchased last year by the city.

The grant from the department of interior would be used for development of the boat launching ramp east of the Michigan Waterways Commission Dock, demolition of the former city garage, shore protection and a dredging program.

Marian May of the Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service at Ann Arbor said Thursday that the above project was included in $12,709,209 in LWC funds appropriated to Michigan this year.

A CANDLE HELPED BUILD A HOSPITAL

Tawas "love affair" with its hospital has resulted in periodic campaigns to raise funds, dating back 33 years when an association was first formed to promote construction of a community health facility.

Originators of the hospital idea first thought of converting an old residential dwelling into a health care center, but that belief was soon dropped in favor of a full-fledged hospital.

On August 16, 1946, The Tawas Herald reported formation of the Tawas Community Hospital Association. Temporary officers elected were Mayor John D. LeClair, president; Probate Judge H. Read Smith, secretary; H. E. Friedman, treasurer, all of Tawas City.

Application was made to incorporate the association as a non-profit corporation.

"This section of Michigan has needed a hospital for many years and the possibility of securing one has been discussed for a long time. A definite step to secure one has finally been taken," stated the Herald.

In what now must be termed a definite understatement, the Herald editor opined that "to secure a hospital will require a large amount of work because a large portion of the money necessary will be raised by popular subscription; but those present at the meeting were enthusiastic."

During the next five years, the hospital association set out to raise nearly $300,000 of the total cost of $650,395, the balance of which was to be paid by the federal government.

Raising that amount of money was no small feat and it required a great amount of "bush-beating" work by public-spirited citizens. By August 1951, when a contract was let for construction, the association still had $15,000 to be raised as its share of the contribution.

Over the years, numerous benefits, bake sales, barbecues, carnivals, bazaars and other schemes were used to raise money, even including the printing of paper "bricks," upon which the donor signed his pledge.

One of the most ingenious fund raising ideas was the brain child of the late Floyd (Shorty) Ketcherside, then owner of the Holland Hotel at East Tawas. Ketcherside's idea did not raise a great deal of money for the hospital fund, but it gained a tremendous amount of publicity for the campaign and made people aware of what was being undertaken.

On May 17, 1948, Ketcherside set a lighted candle in a bowl and placed it at a strategic location next to the cash register in the hotel bar. The candle was lighted daily for the next 30 months and bar patrons were invited to contribute their small change to the hospital fund by pressing coins into the melted wax.

A NOVEL IDEA to raise funds for Tawas Hospital saw Floyd (Shorty) Ketcherside, owner of the Holland Hotel, with a money candle at his bar. The candle was lighted daily for 30 months to draw attention to the fund raising campaign for the hospital. A party was held in December 1950, to count money deposited in the wax.

And woe betide any patron who snatched a coin from the candle, for it meant immediate expulsion from the premises if detected by the bartender.

A wooden box serving as a receptacle for donations of paper money provided a base for the candle. A sign on the base read:

"When this candle tree is filled and blooms with coins it will be given to the Tawas Hospital Fund."

By December 18, 1950, the candle had grown to a height of nearly four feet and weighed about 200 pounds. That night, a banquet was held at the Holland Hotel and money from the candle was to be turned over to the hospital association. More than 100 persons attended the affair at $5 per plate and entire proceeds received by the hotel were turned over to the association.

W. D. (Mike) Nunn, vice president of the hospital board, acted as toastmaster for the banquet.

"We still have some money to raise," was the exhortation to banquet-goers by Doctor LeClair, chairman of the hospital association's board of directors. "Now is the time for those persons who said they would pay when we got started to lay their money on the line—then we can get started."

It had been planned to melt the candle and count the coins at the banquet, but the job was too big. Attempts were made to melt the candle through use of a blowtorch, but the job was so messy that it was completed the next day by using steam at the East Tawas Laundry. Still covered with wax, the money was then dry-cleaned at Merschel Cleaners.

It took nearly three hours to count the money with the aid of a coin sorting machine. Hoisted on the back of Judge Smith, bags filled with coins were taken to Peoples State Bank and deposited.

The hospital fund was $1,000 richer through proceeds from the banquet, which included $442.69 from the candle. A contest held at the banquet saw Mrs. Lyle Mooney making the closest guess as to the actual amount of money in the candle. Her guess was $444.44.

That the association met and surpassed its goal is now ancient history, Tawas Hospital having observed its 25th anniversary of service to the region in 1978.

Since 1953, when its doors were first opened, Tawas Hospital has more than proven that it has been worthy of the many years of efforts by community-minded citizens to raise money to pay the local share of construction—even the small change collected from the local bar patrons.

Since its inception, additions have been made to the hospital and a major expansion program is now under way.

Reflecting what has happened to the value of a dollar in the past 25 years, total cost of the expansion is 1.2-million dollars. As of January (See CANDLE, page 8.)

Reoccurring Antagonism A Problem

Humans being what they are and the Tawas City Council being what it is and has been for a number of years, this corner should not get upset when a useless verbal battle erupts between local elected officials at the public table.

It is too bad—really a shame—when one official attempting to enforce his view must point a finger and cry that his fellow officials, representing a majority seated around a table, are engaged in a "sham;" it is unfortunate, too, that those persons on the other "side" do not respect the other elected official's point of view on a matter of public concern.

How or why anyone would serve as city manager here remains a mystery—the salary paid would not compensate for the possible loss of one's sanity after such exchanges.

The city has made much progress in recent years despite this reoccurring antagonism between elected officials. This corner again suggests that all—including the public—take a little extra time to think things out concerning city matters. If one enters a discussion with a chip on his shoulder, leaving no alternatives for reasonable solutions to mutual problems, then that chip will be knocked off and very little will be accomplished.

Think it over!

Management Flexibility Desired?

In his recent budget message, Gov. William G. Milliken proposed that Wayne County adopt the charter county plan as envisioned by the 1963 Michigan Constitution; i. e., establish a strong county executive with the county commission as a legislative-policy making body, along with being chancellor of the exchequer.

As outlined, the proposal would eliminate friction between the Wayne County Commission and elective officers by eliminating all presently elected county officers other than the prosecuting attorney. This, it is said, would provide county government with the benefit of "management flexibility."

The proposal sounds beautiful on paper—this corner has no objection to a charter government for Wayne County—it could not care less about it. The fact is that the City of Tawas City did the same thing on a very small scale when it adopted its new charter: All elective positions for city government here, other than for city council and mayor, were eliminated.

Despite the fact that it is not always "love and kisses" between Iosco County commissioners and the elective officers and the county governmental machine here does not at all times run as smoothly as a kitten purrs, at this juncture this corner believes that the elective system is the best. When the government runs so smoothly that there is no differing opinion, the taxpayer had better watch out.

This government of ours has quite a built-in system of checks and balances, one of which rests on the bedrock of the American Way—the election polls—and if the electorate is not satisfied with the way local government is operating, changes can and are made at the polls.

Another important aspect of the present system of checks and balances is that the elective county officers are empowered with responsibilities based on constitutional or statutory provisions—their only bosses are the electorate.

On the other hand, county commissioners are actually creatures of the state legislature and have but a single statutory responsibility: Preparing and adopting a budget. While it may appear that the county commission has full and complete control of the county cash register, that is not entirely true as other elective officials have certain statutory responsibilities.

The key, then, is a cooperative effort between elective officials for the good of the people. Some improvement can and should be made locally, but that problem is not insurmountable.

Reading between the lines, it appears that the Michigan Association of Counties—which also serves as lobbyist for 852 county commissioners—supports the governor's charter county plan. In a recent MAC editorial, it was stated that the "political steam roller" which county officers can mobilize "threatens to bump the entire proposal into the governmental ash can."

Be that as it may, it all depends on who is defining "steam roller"—and there are far too many groups in this state upon which this tag could be affixed—possibly including MAC.

Yes, citizens want property taxes stabilized and cut if possible. But a couple of questions should be asked: Would it save money to appoint rather than to elect officers (county clerk, treasurer, sheriff, register of deeds, etc.)? Is a strong county executive (manager) really desirable for this county?

Such a proposal would eliminate encroachment on a number of jurisdictions, but the one important check and balance in our system—the ballot box—would be minimized through appointive rather than elective county officers. It would also concentrate local governmental power in a few hands rather than a number of hands under the present system, all of whom jealously guard their responsibilities.

"I am the good shepherd; I know my own and my own know me." (John 10:14 RSV)

Grace Anderson is a shepherd on the tiny island of Fetlar in Shetland, Scotland. During a year's stay there, I was fascinated by the gentle sheep and watched them often.

One day, Grace asked me if I would like to come into the field with her. I agreed quickly. The instant the ewes saw her they ran directly to her. I started to retreat; but Grace sweetly called out, "Cudsie, Cudsie," and threw handfuls of pressed grain to them. They stopped suddenly and began munching the treat.

Grace pointed out the one that was sure to have twins and a couple that had had milk fever. "You mean that you can tell them apart," I asked. "You get to know them after a while," she affirmed.

After tramping the fields daily and watching the new lambs as they were born, I came to know some of them, too. The curly little one born on the cold windy night was Daphne and big Ram Lamb was born in an icy puddle.

Yes, shepherds know their sheep not by chance but by being with them.

New Classroom Alignment Approved Following TA Enrollment Projections

A 10-year enrollment study shows a rather dramatic comparison between the 2,002-student total in 1974-75 and a projected enrollment of 1,556 in 1983-84.

Because of overcrowded conditions six years ago, the board of education sought unsuccessfully to construct a new high school building. The junior and senior high school was originally built to house about 650 students, but the junior high school wing and shop areas were added later, along with three more rooms and three portables. Less than 1,000 students are presently housed in the high school.

Since 1974-75, total enrollment has dropped rapidly with 1,972 students in 1975-76, 1,894 in 1976-77, 1,814 in 1977-78 and 1,753 in 1978.

The high school building is still overcrowded with 929 students expected in 1979-80, with 658 in grades nine through 12 and 271 in grades seven and eight.

Enrollment is expected to decrease from a total of 849 in 1980-81 to a total of 818 in 1981-82, but the enrollment is expected to rise to 850 in 1982-83 and then drop to 830 in 1983-84. All of the projections are based on students presently in school.

The report stated that expanded facilities in the Tawas City Elementary Unit would allow the projected numbers to be adequately housed and permit the expansion of programs. The projected numbers should eventually allow removal of the three portables from Tawas City. For the coming year, one portable would be moved to the high school and one to East Tawas.

The enrollment projection for the Tawas City unit has 348 students in 1979-80, 355 in 1980-81, 352 in 1981-82, 319 in 1982-83 and 306 in 1983-84.

The kindergarten through grade three projections for East Tawas indicate a fairly consistent enrollment of about 400 for several years. Two portables would have to be located at East Tawas to accommodate the students and the program being conducted for that school.

Depending on the accuracy of the projected enrollment and what use and longevity is made of the buildings, the report stated that total school facilities should be sufficient to house students for the next several years.

One classroom is available at Tawas City that could be used for possible expansion of the present program in 1979-80.

A tentative budget proposed by the board of education's finance committee and administrators has developed closely balanced finances for 1979-80. There are sufficient funds to continue providing the present program, meet obligations of employee contracts, provide necessary maintenance to facilities, replace equipment and to meet other fixed expenses.

Personnel additions for next term discussed by administrators include an additional learning disabilities teacher financed through federal funds, an elementary counselor-social worker, a daytime custodian to share between the two elementary buildings, a health education teacher for Tawas City, an arts-crafts teacher for Tawas City.

It is possible that the only program or personnel changes to the program may have to result from the decline in enrollment and the shifting of personnel to other positions.

Following presentation of actual and projected enrollment information for the next five years, Tawas Area Board of Education has established classes to be held in the district's three buildings for next year.

The only change is in the elementary grades where grades have been combined and students will attend classes in one building rather than to duplicate some grades in both the Tawas City and East Tawas Elementary Units.

The East Tawas Elementary Unit will now be used for kindergarten through third grades while grades four through six will be utilizing the expanded facilities at the Tawas City Elementary Unit, to be completed for next term. The building on M-55 will continue to be used for junior and senior high school.

Discussion indicated that the action was being taken to eliminate parental problems where children would be attending school; expand such existing programs as special education, physical education, arts and crafts; permit teachers to exchange ideas and materials with other classrooms of the same grade; possibly shorten bus trips for some students.

Lake Trout Plant Assured for Tawas Bay

Roger Jackson, executive director of Tawas Chamber of Commerce, announced Thursday that he had been assured by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources that 100,000 lake trout would be planted this year in Tawas Bay.
 Jackson told members of the Tawas Businessmen's Association that he had obtained the information during a recent meeting at Lansing with Asa Wright of the DNR.
 The need for continuance of the trout planting program in Tawas Bay has been stressed by the local businessmen's association.
 Action during the meeting following reading of the first three articles in the organization's proposed new charter saw adoption of Tawas Businessmen's Association as the new name of the organization.
 Discussion was held on the upcoming merger vote April 2 in Tawas City and East Tawas. It was stressed that the vote would only approve or disapprove the formation of a commission to adopt a home rule charter for the proposed new single city. A later election would be required and actual merger would depend on acceptance of

Anne Kushion Retires After Long Service at Wurtsmith

After working more than 21 years with the Wurtsmith Air Force Base contracting office, Anne Kushion of Turner Road, Whitney Township, retired February 28. Mrs. Kushion has driven 32 miles each day over the years just to get to work.

"When I started working here, my youngest son was two years old," she said. "Now he is married."

Mrs. Kushion said that she worked mainly to put her three sons through college. She also helped their wives.

"Now all three are teachers," she said. "And two are married to teachers and one to a nurse. Five teachers I helped put through college!"

All three of her boys worked on Wurtsmith during their high school summers. The first two worked with contractors while the third worked with a government summer employment program.

When asked what her plans are, she replied, "I will help my husband run our farm and grow potatoes."

"I like to do housework and work with flowers and keep my garden. I would also like to visit people in the hospital and in the nursing homes. They need somebody to talk to."

Mrs. Kushion started out as a clerk - typist. She progressed through the operations branch to supervisory clerk and then went to the supply branch as a buyer. She worked in the services branch as a procurement agent at the time of retirement.

Russo Receives Air Force's Meritorious Service Award

James J. Russo Jr., Tawas City, of the 379th Civil Engineering Squadron, Wurtsmith Air Force Base, is the runner-up for the air force civil engineering meritorious achievement award. The award is the highest honor presented to a civilian employee.

for directing and coordinating four work centers with 20 military and civilian engineers, draftsmen, inspectors and secretaries.

This work force, under his guidance, was responsible for 4.3-million dollars of construction design during 1978.

Squadron officials cited Russo for "his energetic and concerned involvement in the civilian as well as the military community. He epitomizes all that is desirable in a strong, common sense, ethical human being and leader. He is a mature, wise manager having excellent rapport with associates at all levels."

The squadron official said that "these austere times have not made it plausible to expect much bolstering of Russo's work force. They have responded to this by always performing much more than is expected of them; and by Russo identifying management objectives, to pursue newer state-of-the-art techniques."

Russo has spoken on numerous occasions about the state-of-the-art information used by his branch. "He has stated," said the squadron official, "that the information should be available to the people financing the accumulation of the data: The taxpayers."

Russo has been an active member of the Tawas City Planning Commission since September 1977. He also serves as president of Tawas Area Board of Education.

Candle

ary 24, 1979, the community had pledged $204,000 toward the overall local goal of $395,000—about $100,000 more than the local share for original construction in the 1946-1951 era.

Cupid, the son of Venus in Roman mythology, must have had a plentiful supply of arrows 33 years ago. Tawas' "love affair" with its hospital continues to blossom and several members of today's board of trustees represent a second generation of service to the community.

Ketcherside's coin candle has never been duplicated in subsequent fund raising campaigns and it is not expected that one will blossom for the current campaign. It did prove its value, however, in an earlier era.

County Earns Interest On Banked Funds

Interest received on the investment of county funds represented the equivalent of one-half mill of property taxes, according to a report by County Treas. Edward Nelkie.

During 1978, the county received total interest of $89,586.91 on money contained in 11 different funds and invested in local banks.

Interest from four funds was returned to the county general fund while interest earned from seven other funds was returned to the separate categories.

Interest returned to the county general fund included $39,584.17 earned by that fund, $9,440 from the county tax revolving fund, $9,948.12 from the county road commission and $13,352.26 from federal revenue sharing.

Interest earned and remaining in specific funds included trust and agency, $8,000; anti-recession, $2,200; capital projects, $1,800; county parks, $1,395; mental health, $1,365; building authority, $1,020; regional library, $680.56.

Supermarket Blitzkrieg

by JAMES COYLE

"Our food bills are beginning to look like the cost estimates for the B-1 bomber program," my wife said as she sat at her desk on Saturday morning going over the household accounts. "We've got to do something about it."

"Good idea," I nodded, deep in a Sports World story about how Bob McAdoo of the New York Knicks, who makes upwards of $400,000 a year, has much the same problems as you and I.

"I propose a two-pronged attack on the problem," she went on. "Prong number one, we stop supporting the habit of a certain junk food junkie."

"Calling names never solved anything," I said, slipping back the Hershey bar I was about to take from my pocket. "Let us reason together."

"Let's. Here's Exhibit A, from one of our recent treks to the SuperDuperMart." She held up a cash register tape. "I've jotted down items purchased alongside prices. I quote: Bread, Twinkies, Milk, Pringles, Butter, Cokes, Lettuce, Ding Dongs, Eggs, Dr. Pepper—you want more?"

"Uh, maybe we were stocking up against that cookout for the Armbrusters and the Willisies."

"The Armbrusters and Willisies never touch snacks and never drink anything but Scotch—at least, not at our house. And, you know, I'm on a low calorie diet."

"Well, sweets," I gave her the old boyish grin, "man lives not by bread alone."

She didn't crack a smile. "Prong number two—we outsmart the SuperDuperMart."

"And how do we do that?"

"I've been taking a crash course in defensive shopping."

"That's news to me."

"It's all in here." She tapped a paperback lying on her desk. "The book's called 'Games Supermarkets Play, or How to Get Out of a Super Market Without Blowing Your Life's Savings'."

"So what's your game plan?"

"First," she picked up her pencil. "I make a detailed shopping list of everything we need. This eliminates impulse buying of all those high-profit, non-nutritional extra goodies."

"Makes sense," I said, sneaking a nip off my Hershey bar. "When's post time?"

"The second rule is never shop on an empty stomach when you're tempted to buy everything. So I thought I'd go after lunch."

"Works for me," I said.

She shook her head. "Rule No. 3 is never to take your husband or children along to the market."

"You mean just because a guy picks up a few snacks to tide him over between meals?"

"Bingo!"

"Who's going to push the cart for you, and load all those heavy bags into the car?"

"I didn't tell you, I've been working out with barbells."

"Okay, sweets, I promise—no more junk food."

"You've promised before." She got up and closed her desk. "Meeting adjourned."

"But this time I really mean it. Scout's honor."

She gazed at me for a moment, then shrugged. "Better to have you in my sight, I guess, than home with the cookie jar. We'll leave around two."

"I'll be revving the engines."

The parking lot at the SuperDuperMart was jammed, and I had to park way out in left field. But a brisk five-minute walk brought us to the emporium entrance, which was plastered with gaudy banners and posters suggesting a circus sideshow.

"Hey, it's Carnival of Values Week." I pointed to the lettering on a huge red-and-yellow banner strung above the entrance. "Clever, eh?"

"Very," my wife said as we passed through the automatic doors to the interior, which had been redone in early Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey. "Only I could do with less carnival and more values."

"My sentiments exactly." I latched onto the last empty cart. "What's our strategy, coach?"

"Supermarket floor layout," my wife said as she took out her shopping list. "is designed to lead the shopper first around the perimeter where the high profit items are—produce, meat, frozen foods, dairy goods, liquor and the like."

"So what's our move?"

"Elementary, my dear Watson. We head for the middle aisles and the low-profit staples first, while we're still solvent."

"You really play hardball."

The first item on her list was Bolger's Coffee, 1 lb. "You'll note," my wife said after we'd pushed through the crowded aisles to the coffee shelves, "that all you can see at eye level—which is the action spot—are two-pound cans of SuperDuperMart's private brand."

"Pretty sneaky." I searched the rows of cans for the familiar label. "Hey, here's Bolger's," I said, getting down on my hands and knees, "right on the bottom shelf."

"Surprise, surprise." She checked her list. "And now on to the wonderful world of washday products."

At the detergent section there was the usual array of screaming packages in every possible size from Regular to Boxcar. I noticed some of the weight markings. "What's with these oddball weights?"

"It's designed to keep shopping a continuing adventure." My wife opened her purse. "Only we outfox 'em with our Handy Dandy pocket calculator." She checked prices and weights on several packages, then punched the keys. "If we buy New Generation Zowie! in the giant king size at $2.39 for 5 lbs., 1½ ozs., rather than in the economy at 59¢ for 1 lb., 2 1/16 ozs., we save a whopping 2 cents a pound—or about 3.3 percent on our investment."

"You could do better parlaying show bets."

"Yea, verily," she said, dropping the economy package into the cart.

After touching base at Peanut Butter, Breads and Rolls, Dairy Products and Farm Fresh Produce we arrived at our last stop, the meat counter.

A sign in Seafood and Poultry caught my eye. "Looks like a terrific buy on fish heads and chicken backs." "I know," my wife nodded. "We'll just have to resist temptation."

"Hey!" I pointed to a sign above the beef section: TODAY'S SUPER SPECIAL! SPENCER STEAK $2.39 A POUND. "That's my favorite."

"Might be a buy," she said, shuffling quickly through meat packages, "if there were any."

"I'll call a butcher." I pushed the button under a card that said PLEASE SUMMON OUR EXPERTS FOR FRIENDLY CUSTOMER SERVICE. No friendly experts appeared. I noticed a handwritten note stuck down in a corner of the glass partition: OUT TO LUNCH.

"It figures." My wife picked up a package of meat. "Of course we can get Boneless Rib at $2.79 a pound, or Boneless Club at $2.69, or Center Cut Club at $2.98 or Newport Rib at $2.99."

"But they're not Spencer." "They're all rib steak, just like Spencer, merely cut in different ways. So-o-o," she reached to the back of the tray, "we select a good thick rib—at $1.89 a pound—and carve out our own Spencer."

"Flaky!" "On our way to the checkout counter we passed a dump display filled with all kinds of candy bars. AS ADVERTISED! the sign read. YOUR CHOICE, 4 FOR 79¢.

"Hey," I said, "here's some Hersheys."

"You took the pledge, remember?" "Yeah. Only I hate to pass up a bargain."

"What do you pay for a Hershey bar?"

"Twenty cents."

"So you buy four and save a penny. That's a bargain?"

"Yeah, you've got a point." At the checkout, the lines were long and the cart loaded. "Ever see so many fatsoes," I said, pulling in my stomach, "with such mountains of food?"

"Where else but in a free America," my wife said.

"Let's try that last line. The carts don't seem so full." As soon as we got into the line, it stopped moving. I groaned.

"It's Mrs. Murphy's law," my wife explained. "A line that appears to have lighter loads will always be filled with check cashers, cents-off coupon redeemers and Sweepstakes signer uppers." She stepped over to the magazine rack near the cash register and came back with a handful of magazines. "We may as well make use of the library facilities."

By the time we reached the checkout counter my wife had finished Woman's World and Home Beautiful and I had gone through Sports Scene, Girlie and Peephole Confidential.

"Hi," the checker greeted us wearily. She wore a circus hareback rider's costume, with pink tights and a short skirt.

SuperDuper Mart advertised a special on Guppy peanut butter," my wife said, holding up a clip from the market's newspaper ad. "There isn't a bottle on the shelves."

"We ran out," the clerk said. "Like a rain check?"

"Not really. What I'd like is to know why the store advertised a special and doesn't stock up to meet the demand."

The clerk shrugged and pointed to where the store manager, in ringmaster's top hat and shiny boots, was surrounded by a crowd of shoppers with checks to be OK'd "You could ask Mr. Ziegenfuss."

"When? He's too busy playing banker."

The clerk shrugged again and held up four Hershey bars. "You wouldn't remember the price on these, would you, ma'am?"

I took my eyes off the clerk's legs and began admiring the store decorations.

"They're not mine." My wife looked at me. "Some child must have put them in the cart when I wasn't looking."

The clerk shrugged once more, tossed the chocolate bars aside and finished adding up our purchases. "That'll be $36.83."

My wife opened her purse. "I'm sure glad they licked inflation," she said as she stopped the bag boy from putting the tomatoes in the bottom of the sack.

On the way out I spotted a sign in the liquor department. EXTRA SPECIAL! IMPORTED CHAMPAGNE $6.79 A FIFTH.

"Hey," I said, "let's celebrate." "Celebrate what?"

"Well, we saved around a dollar buying rib instead of Spencer, 79 cents on the—uh—Hershey bars, and say a dollar for each of the five magazines we read. Which just adds up to the price of the bubbly."

"I wish I had a head for figures," my wife sighed. "All right, Albert Einstein, go get your bottle."

"No need to waste a sack," I told the liquor clerk as he took down the champagne. "Just slip it in here with the groceries."

"Those sacks aren't the greatest," the clerk warned. "Better watch it."

"Like a hawk."

We arrived at the car and I unlocked the trunk.

"Gives you a warm feeling inside, doesn't it?" I told my wife as I began lifting the bags out of the cart, "outsmarting the old SuperDuperMart—"

"Be careful!" she screamed.

It was too late. As the bottom of the first bag cleared the cart's edge it suddenly burst wide open and in another second whammo! all the packages, including the bottle of champagne, had crashed to the asphalt.

We stood and stared silently at the jumble of groceries and broken glass lying there in a pool of faintly bubbling champagne. My wife shook her head slowly. I thought she was going to cry.

"Cheer up, sweets," I said, putting my arm around her shoulders. "Even Bob McAdoo doesn't always shoot a basket on the first try."

And it cooks up a juicy roast big enough for your husband's entire softball team. It just could come in handy. Tonight, for instance.

The All-Porcelain-Clad Electric Frypan. Juicy roast for the family.

2. This frypan leads a double life. It's a slow-cook expert too. Nice to have that extra Teflon-coated frypan in the house. Nicer still that the crock insert transforms it to a large capacity slow cooker.

Sunbeam Crockery Frypan. Terrific Sunday morning brunch maker.

Slip in the crock insert and slow-cook your way to compliments.

3. A fryer that cooks, slow cooks and fast fries too? This one does it all and you're going to love it. It's a deep frying pro. Just fill the bottom of this aluminum basket with shrimp and they'll fry up crunchy and golden. Add the crock insert and simmer up the sauciest baked beans ever. Or use the big 5 quart pot to heat up anything. It's an energy saver, and a life-saver when there's no more room left on your range.

Pork for Protein

For good eating on these cold days — serve your family pork. Pork is not only delicious, it is also highly nutritious.

Pork is our richest meat source of vitamin B1 — thiamin. It also provides us with important quantities of riboflavin and niacin.

Pork is highly desirable as a protein food, containing protein of the highest quality. Today's pork is far less fat and has fewer calories per serving than pork produced a decade ago.

- 6 apples, cored, not peeled
- 6 pork chops
- 1/2 cup honey
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 1/2 cup water
- Salt and pepper

Place apple rings on top of sweet potatoes — saving half to use on top with pork chops. Season with salt and pepper. Mix water, soy sauce and honey. Pour over sweet potatoes and apples and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Season pork chops with salt and pepper. Brown in a skillet in small amount of drippings. Arrange the chops and remaining apple rings over the pre-cooked sweet potatoes and apples, basting with pan juices. Dot with margarine. Bake another 30 minutes or till done. Makes 6 servings.

Pork Filets En Brochette

- 2 medium carrots, cut lengthwise
- 2 1 lb. pork tenderloins (filets)
- 1 jar whole onions
- 2 medium green peppers
- Melted margarine
- Salt and Pepper
- 4 12 inch skewers

Cook carrots till tender. Cut each pork tenderloin into 1 1/2 inch slices. Drain onions. Cut each pepper into 1 1/2 inch squares. Cook peppers in boiling salted water covered for 2 minutes. Drain. On each of two of the skewers thread pieces of meat with cut surface up. On each of two remaining skewers alternately thread carrot piece, green pepper square, onion and green pepper square. Repeat three times on each skewer. Place skewered meat, cut surface up, on rack on broiler pan. Place rack so meat is about 4 inches from heat. Broil meat until lightly browned on first side, about 15 minutes. Season, turn and continue broiling 5 minutes. Add vegetables, brush with margarine and broil, turning occasionally, till meat is browned and vegetables are heated through, about 10 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Spicy Glazed Pork Roast

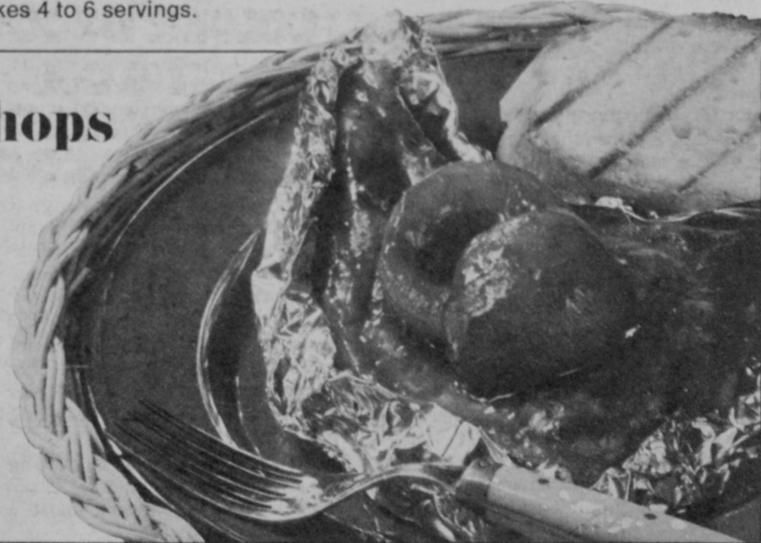

- 4 to 5 lb. pork loin roast
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup currant jelly
- 1/4 cup honey
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon allspice

Red food coloring, optional
Rub outside of roast with salt. If meat thermometer is used, insert point to center of lean part of roast away from bone and fat. Place roast fat side up on rack in shallow uncovered baking pan. Roast at 325 degrees till meat is fork tender, 2 3/4 to 3 hours, or till roast reaches an internal temperature of 170 degrees. To prepare glaze, combine jelly, honey, lemon juice, mustard and allspice in saucepan. Heat and stir until jelly is melted. Boil one minute. If desired, add food coloring as needed to tint glaze an attractive red color. Brush glaze over roast several times during last 30 minutes of roasting time. Serve remaining glaze with roast. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Apricot Pork Chops

- 6 pork chops, 1/2 inch thick
- 1 (16 oz.) can apricot halves, drained
- Barbecue sauce

For each serving, place pork chops on square of aluminum foil; top with 2 to 3 apricot halves. Top meat and apricots with 2 tablespoons barbecue sauce. Close foil over meat, double folding edges on top and sides. Bake at 400 degrees for 35 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

His dog had

by Cary R. Skinner

We knew it finally had to happen. Death and taxes and all of that. You know, that final trip to the stainless steel table that always go you to trembling, either in mock or real fright. You were such a good actor, we could never really be sure. But you were almost eleven years old, Sarge and that made you all of 77 years in human terms. That's quite a stretch and you'll have to admit, you never did lead a dog's life.

For all those years, with us moving around the house, it was like having a shadow or even a third foot. You were almost always there. Sometimes, too much there and we would stumble over you and become a bit upset. This might elicit a short, spasmodic burst of screaming on our part. It was only a momentary thing, though, as you would slink away, only to return in minutes. Then we would give you a friendly pat and tell you what a good dog you were.

One of those unusual quirks you developed and honed to perfection, concerned food. Naturally, all dogs are concerned with food, but yours took a different tack. At every meal, immediately after we were seated at the table, you would nonchalantly saunter over to the kitchen door and whine to be let out. A couple of minutes later, you would be scratching at the storm door to be let back in. It was one of your ways of showing who was head honcho around this house.

Early in our association, we had tried to ban you from the kitchen during mealtime, because you would sit there with those moist, brown eyes fixed on us, hopeful of a choice morsel of food dropping to the floor. We reprimanded you and sent you scurrying, but you would only retreat as far as the boundary between kitchen and living room, laying your nose right on that carpet edge and once again fixing us with that baleful, Doxie stare, that you had down so pat.

Then, too, six days a week, was that wild greeting you would give the postman. Not at all friendly. But there was a wall between him and you, so all you could really do was watch through the window and bark like a maniacal mutt. Eleven years and you never once got to snap at his heels. What a blow to dogdom!

Something else you never became closely associated with was the female of the species. That could explain some of those frustrating moments (for both you and us) that occurred. Like when you literally devoured throw rugs, blankets and sweaters. Even as a pup, you had to start out by ripping to shreds the pillow that was to be a part of your bed. That's why you never ended up with a bed of your own. And aren't you glad. Then you would have had to slept there instead of on sofas and chairs and in bed with our daughter.

One of the more amazing aspects of your tenure with us was your digestive system. How did it hold up so long? I mean, we might return from an evening out and face a guilty-looking Sarge. Then a search of the house would reveal a blanket that resembled a fishnet. Yet you never left any scraps lying around.

hang-ups, too

All of that material was INSIDE you! We still can't see how you survived that. Speaking of survival, you were really pushing your luck that day you chewed up the electric blanket. If it had been turned on, you would have been, too!

I guess the thing that we miss most, though, is that insatiable desire you had for playing ball. From the time you were a few months old, until that final day we had together, you always had a mini-beach ball as a toy. And if no one would throw the ball for you to chase at break-neck speed, then you would simply ignore people and roll it around yourself. Occasionally you would go into your seal act, where, with a series of low growls, you would momentarily get all four feet atop the ball, before it would skitter out from under you. Then you would spin around and be after it, again.

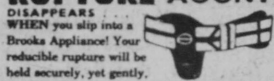

You'd really be surprised to know we now have another Doxie. At first, we said there would never be another pet. Then two days after you were 'out away', we really could not stand the quietness of this house, after having had you around for all those years. He's really a lot like you. He's red, a little darker than you were, but he's ornery (like you were) and he's beginning to chew things pretty good. Seems like old times.

But don't worry, Sarge. We'll always remember you and with loads of love.

Dear Fleischmann's® Yeast,
Company's coming—constantly.
I always like to serve fresh-baked bread.
But I don't always get the time.
What can I do?

"Busy, Busy, Busy."

Dear Busy,
Relax! If you've got a refrigerator and Fleischmann's Yeast
you've got the time.

It's almost like baking in your refrigerator first. And it gives you time to take the children to school, go to the office, attend a meeting or play tennis. We call it the CoolRise Method. Your dough is mixed, kneaded and shaped all at once. Then, left to rise in the refrigerator. You can bake whenever it's convenient... from two to twenty-four hours later.

You can make CoolRise white bread or dinner rolls, oatmeal bread or poppy seed braid, apple cake or rich cherry walnut coffee-cake. Why not start now? With this easy recipe for authentic Italian bread.

You'll need:

- 4½ to 5½ cups unsifted flour
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 packages Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast
- 1 tablespoon softened Fleischmann's® Margarine
- 1¼ cups very warm tap water* (120° F.—130° F.)

- Corn meal
- Planters® Peanut Oil
- 1 egg white
- 1 tablespoon cold water

The fun begins.

In a large bowl, mix 1½ cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast. Add softened Fleischmann's Margarine.

Gradually add tap water. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add ¼ cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough.

Turn out onto lightly floured board. Knead until smooth and elastic—about 8 to 10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap, then a towel. Let rest 20 minutes.

Makes 2 loaves.

Divide dough in half. Roll each half into an oblong shape, approximately 15 x 10 inches. Beginning at wide side, roll up tightly; pinch seam to seal. Taper ends by rolling gently back and forth.

Rising on ice.

Place on greased baking sheets sprinkled with corn meal. Brush dough with Planters Peanut Oil. Cover loosely with plastic wrap. Refrigerate 2 to 24 hours.

When ready to bake, remove from refrigerator. Uncover and let stand at room temperature 10 minutes. Make 3 or 4 diagonal cuts on top of each loaf with sharp knife.

Bake at 425° F. for 20 minutes. Remove from oven. Brush with egg white mixed with cold water. Return to oven; bake 5 to 10 minutes longer, until golden brown.

And enjoy... that aroma and taste of fresh-baked... the creative satisfaction of baking from scratch with Fleischmann's Yeast. It's more than a matter of doing your own baking.

It's a wonderfully warm way to express yourself and to express your love for family and friends.
