City Makes Another Try for City Carrier Delivery

Although little hope is held at the present time to obtain door-to-door postal carrier service in Tawas City, Postmaster Leonard Hosbach told the city council Monday night that he had written a letter to the regional sectional center requesting such service.

In the meantime, Hosbach reminded patrons residing one quarter-mile or more from the post office that they could be eligible to receive rural carrier service if their residences are located on the established carrier routes.

The postmaster had been invited to appear before the council to discuss means of obtaining city carrier service. He said that had Tawas City and East Tawas decided to merge at the recent consolidation election, there would have been no question that carrier service at East Tawas would have been expanded to include Tawas City.

He said that attempts to obtain city carrier service was nothing new here and several attempts had been made since 1963. He said, however, that this city had not met all the criteria for receiving such service.

One of the major points not met by Tawas City is the requirement that the population of a city must be 2,500 and there must be 750 possible deliveries. The city meets other requirements for streets and walk ways.

According to census figures, the city has a population of 2,200 persons and the post office presently rents 505 lock boxes. He had no figures concerning the number of residences within the city currently receiving mail delivery on the three rural routes.

Mayor Herbert Cholger said he had conducted his own survey and believed there were about 400 rural mail boxes along streets within the city limits. Hosbach said he would obtain the official count on rural route carrier boxes in the city and "give it another try."

Despite this latest action, however, James Daley, supervisor at the East Tawas post office, said that a new regulation to take effect October 6 indicates that the postal service would no longer be making house-to-house deliveries within one-half mile of the post office. He said that 50 percent of East Tawas post office's budget went toward city carrier service. He believed the new order was to reduce the cost of gasoline for operating vehicles and he said the cost of repairing those vehicles was "unbelievable."

Although the opinion was expressed that there would be an actual saving in energy and gasoline through carrier delivery rather than having patrons drive their cars to the post office, Hosbach said "the postal service looks at the bottom line"—the actual cost of operation.

He said that the regional sectional center manager had promised to "take a hard look at carrier service here" and said he would write a letter requesting the service. He indicated that a petition had once been sent to Washington, D. C., requesting the service.

Hosbach emphasized that the real answer may lie in expanding city service through the use of rural carriers and that those routes could be expanded on petition of citizens.

City Council to Try Again City Hall Vote November 6

A second vote on a $500,000 bonding proposition to construct a new municipal complex was authorized by action Monday night of the Tawas City Council.

Although authorized by unanimous council action, councilmen are not in complete accord with the proposal as apparent "battle lines" which led to defeat of the bonding proposition last November have been drawn.

Turn to page 2 for OPPOSING VIEWPOINTS

Electors of the city, who rejected the proposal by only 11 votes a year ago, will have the final say on Tuesday, November 6, date of the regular city election. At that election, voters will also select a mayor for the next two years, as well as name three councilmen for four-year terms and a fourth to fill an unexpired term of two years.

During discussion on the bonding proposal, City Mgr. Lowell Thomas said that the architectural firm of Dorchen and Serlin of Oak Park had estimated cost of constructing the 7,825-square-foot complex at $361,035. To be included in the total cost would be an additional $51,500 to pay the balance due on a land contract for purchasing property west of the city hall for site expansion; $11,500 for demolishing the city hall and three cabins at the rear of the site; from $4,000 to $5,000 for legal work; $8,000 for engineering; architectural fee of $29,000, plus $36,500 for contingencies.

The proposal would include 3,250 square feet of space for a fire station costing $121,875, plus a hose dryer and chairs costing $9,630; a library with 1,250 square feet costing $40,625; city hall offices comprising 3,325 square feet, including 950 square feet for administrative offices, 1,700 square feet for reception area and conference room, 675 square feet for utilities and toilets. Total cost of that area has been projected at $182,875.

Following discussion with the council last August when an architect was selected, the city manager was instructed to study last November's proposal and scale down the new proposal from the former 8,500 square feet of floor space. Besides eliminating some space formerly occupied by walls and corridors in the city hall area, the fire hall floor space was cut by 300 feet, while 150 feet was added to the library. (At the present time, rented library quarters have 850 feet of floor space plus office and restrooms.)

Thomas said that the architect would provide a general outline and configuration of the building prior to the election, indicating location of the fire hall, city hall and library, along with a conception of parking at the front and rear of the building. He said, however, that detailed plans would not be prepared unless the proposal met with voter approval.

Coun. Robert N. Rollin expressed concern over the need for an easement in back of the city hall running across property owned by Del Myles to reach Whittemore Street. The city manager said the easement was not absolutely necessary as fire trucks could have ingress and egress to the building from US-23, but he believed the fire department operation would be much more suitable with an alternate route to Whittemore Street, where present plans call for future construction of a new bridge across the river.

Thomas felt there would be no problems involved in obtaining an easement. In giving the city the right to use the property, the adjacent land owner would have the right to use city parking.

The city manager said that parking would be adequate and would meet stipulations of the city's zoning ordinance.

Plans are to finance the proposal under a 40-year FHA loan, which had been offered to the city last year. The money has been retained in escrow for the project if it is approved.

Because of the rapid increase in construction costs during the past year, the city manager said "we are coming in with a bare bones proposal." He felt that if additional space was needed to meet future growth, new quarters may be needed for the library.

Coun. Hugo J. Keiser said he had the impression from council discussions with the architect that estimated costs of construction would be on the high side. Thomas said that was true as costs had been factored to handle inflation six months down the road, if the proposal is approved by voters.

Polls for the November 6 election will be located at the city hall. The fire hall quarters were re-established for the polls at the primary election in August at the gymnasium at the Tawas City Elementary School was not available due to construction at that building.

NAMED semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship program this week were Kimberly Wilson and Keith McCready, seniors at Tawas Area High School.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Two TA Seniors Among State's Best

Ranking among the top 500 students in the state and among 15,000 of the nation's most intellectually able students, Keith McCready and Kimberly Wilson, seniors at Tawas Area High School, have qualified as semifinalists in the 1980 National Merit Scholarship program.

Semifinalists who advance to finalist standing in the competition will be considered for approximately 4,300 merit scholarships to be awarded next spring.

More than 1.1-million students enrolled in about 18,000 high schools entered the 1980 program by taking the 1978 qualifying test. Semifinalists are the highest scorers in each state, named from the top half of one percent of the state's graduating seniors.

In order to increase the educational opportunities of semifinalists, they are identified to regionally accredited colleges and universities.

To be considered for merit scholarships, semifinalists must qualify as finalists by being fully endorsed and recommended for scholarships by their secondary school principals, submitting records that confirm high academic standing and high substantiating their high qualitying test scores with equivalent scores on another test.

Finalists are to receive a certificate of merit next February attesting to distinguished performance and the names of merit scholars are to be announced in April and May.

The 1,000 National Merit $1,000 scholarships allocated on a state representational basis are supported by grants from business and industrial organizations. Scholarships are based on the finalists' academic records, extra curricular accomplishments, test scores and leadership qualities.

Finalists who meet preferential criteria by sponsors will be considered for 3,300 four-year Merit Scholarships. Some 1,500 of those scholarships are supported by grants from about 600 corporations, foundations, unions, trusts and professional associations while the remaining 1,800 four-year awards are sponsored by 200 of the nation's four-year colleges and universities.

Miss Wilson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Simpson of Tawas City and McCready is the son of Probate Judge and Mrs. William H. McCready of Tawas City.

Warrants Issued in Iosco Burglary

Gerard W. (Tiny) Putnam, 24, Hale, who was wounded in the head Thursday night, September 13, during a breaking and entering at Long Lake, was reported Monday to be in stable condition at Saginaw St. Mary's Hospital.

A warrant has been issued charging Putnam with breaking and entering and commission of felony while carrying a firearm. A companion, Mervel Lloyd Duncan, 34, Davisburg, is charged with breaking and entering.

Acting on an anonymous tip that a breaking and entering was to take place at Long Lake, Sheriff George Westcott and Undersheriff Basil O'Dell investigated and found that a burglary was in progress at a house on Flint Road.

The two officers discovered the front door of the residence had been forced open and heard a noise at the rear of the building. The officers spotted two men pushing a small tractor out of a building toward a wooded area. The two men started the tractor, climbed on and were about to drive off when the officers ordered them to stop.

The two officers said that Putnam was carrying a weapon, later identified as a .22 caliber rifle. As he turned around in the direction of the officers, Putnam raised the weapon.

Undersheriff O'Dell fired one blast from a 12-gauge shotgun and Putnam was struck in the left side of the head by an 00 buckshot pellet. Duncan offered no resistance and was taken into custody.

Putnam was rushed to Tawas Hospital for emergency treatment and was then transferred to the Saginaw hospital.

Officers said that the .22 caliber rifle found on the ground beside Putnam had a cartridge in the chamber and the safety was in the firing position.

Both men are on parole from Jackson Prison.

Fire Prevention Participation OK'd

East Tawas Council Monday night approved participation by the fire department in a fire prevention program being conducted at the East Tawas Elementary Unit.

William Deckert, a member of the school faculty and also a member of the fire department, said that teachers had paid one-half of the $95 cost for furnishing fire prevention coloring books to elementary students. The council agreed to fund the balance of the cost.

In other business conducted during the brief session, the council retained the firm of Weinlander, Fitzhugh, Bertuleit and Schairer to audit the city's books at a fee of $6,750. The work is to be completed within 90 days.

A budget amendment was approved providing $30,000 from the general fund as a down payment for the city garage. The property was recently purchased from the Iosco County Road Commission. The city plans to insulate portions of the building before winter in order to reduce the projected cost of heat.

A report was given on a 200-car parking facility and construction of a new toilet building to serve the waterways commission dock and boat launching facility. This project is included in a federal-state expenditure of $527,000 which will also see construction of mooring facilities at the waterways commission dock.

Work was completed last week on razing the old city garage east of the state police post which was vacated earlier this year by the city and is to become part of the boat launching facility being constructed by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

Bell Moving Residential Customer Service Records

Michigan Bell announced last week that it will move residence telephone customer service records at East Tawas to Saginaw and phase out its local public office in January. The move is part of a state-wide records centralization program.

The consolidation affects nine regular employees working at the office located at 129 Newman Street. Those employees have been offered comparable assignments in this area or at other company work locations as job openings permit.

The company still will employ 22 people in its installation, repair, switching, engineering and construction operation which is headquartered on Oak Street in Tawas City.

Break Ground at New McDonald's

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the McDonald's restaurant of East Tawas took place Tuesday morning. The new restaurant is being built at 1690 East Huron Road (US-23).

Charles Genite, owner of the restaurant, stated that the restaurant should open in mid-December. He is the owner of McDonald's restaurants at Alpena and Oscoda.

The first symbolic scoop was dug with McDonald's giant spatula by Robert Bolen, mayor of East Tawas; Richter Lixey, Baldwin Township supervisor, and Mayor Herbert Cholger of Tawas City, in celebration of the world's newest McDonald's. Genite said the new restaurant will have interior seating for 120. The interior decor will be in a railroad station motif and the exterior will be designed as a train depot. The restaurant's hard-surfaced parking lot will have a 74-car capacity.

The new McDonald's is the first in East Tawas and will mark the 5,459th in the McDonald's restaurant family. The company now serves customers throughout the world, in the United States and some international markets.

James Hunter, who has managed McDonald's restaurant at Alpena and Oscoda, will be manager of the new location. He is to be succeeded at Oscoda by Greg Miller.

Explosion Starts Area Forest Fire

An explosion in the engine compartment of a truck was blamed Saturday for a forest fire in Plainfield Township. Carl Grabow, Whittemore, was hunting with his brother. When he attempted to start his truck, fire started under the hood and quickly spread to dry grass. The blaze was finally stopped by fire fighters from the United States Forest Service. Grant Township Fire Department and Oscoda-AuSable Fire Department.

MSU Forestry Research Conducted in Alabaster

Iosco County's Alabaster Township contains one of eight sites being used for some Michigan State University Forestry Department research. A plantation at the MSU property, known locally as the Rood Ranch, will help researchers determine which tree species or combination of species has the greatest potential for biomass production on marginal sites in Northern Michigan.

Planting was done September 17-18. Currently, Michigan produces only a small fraction of the energy consumed in the state. Biomass-plant material in any form, from algae to wood, provides an alternative, renewable energy resource which could lessen Michigan's dependency on outside sources of energy.

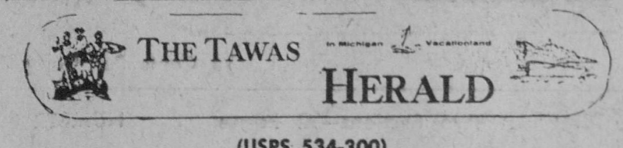

With half of its total land area in forest, Michigan is well-suited to the biomass concept.

Abandoned farm land and poorly stocked or cutover forest land provide a ready source of plantable land that could be converted to energy plantations.

Approximately 6,000 trees are to be planted at each of the eight sites, four in the Upper Peninsula and four in the Northern Lower Peninsula. The sites were prepared for planting last year.

Native species to be compared include jack pine, red maple, white birch, green ash, bigtooth aspen, trembling aspen and black cherry. Species to be introduced to the area include European larch, Japanese larch, Norway spruce, tree of heaven, European black alder and English oak. Hybrid larch, spruces and poplars will also be grown. Seedlings have been grown in MSU greenhouse facilities under accelerated-optimal growth conditions.

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands; one nation, under God, indivisible with liberty and justice for all.

Opposing Viewpoints

"Battle lines" between majority and minority opinions on the Tawas City Council concerning a proposed municipal complex were declared this week in two separate statements.

Opposing views have been expressed by Mayor Herbert Cholger, on the one hand, while a statement read at Monday night's meeting was signed by five members of the council, Jerry Cotter, Donald Hayes, Hugo Jack Keiser, Charles Landon and James Lansky.

The latest statement, read by Councilman Cotter, expressed the opinion that "Concerned-Allied Taxpayers, an organization formed with the pretext of saving money for the taxpayers, has actually cost additional taxpayer dollars. Who are the Concerned-Allied Taxpayers? Isn't it a fact that Herbert Cholger and Robert N. Rollin are founders, leaders and members in both the Concerned Taxpayers and the Allied Taxpayers?"

Last week-end, Mayor Cholger issued a statement saying "it would take very little time to interpret the thinking of what might be referred to as the establishment, who seem to possess the idea that they have a dictatorial right to impose any obligation they might choose on to the citizens of our city, whether it is necessary or not."

The latest letter signed by Cotter and the four other councilmen claimed that "Concerned-Allied Taxpayers have forced the city to spend about $3,000 in unbudgeted city funds in the past 60 days." (This referred to the cost of litigation in circuit court.) The statement claimed that the figures "do not include the request of the Concerned-Allied Taxpayers for the city to pay their attorney fees, nor does it cover council and city employees' time and wages due to the harassment by the Concerned-Allied Taxpayers."

The statement read by Cotter went on to say that "the need for a fire hall, city offices and library has been present for many years. The mayor and council should lead the city in orderly progress to satisfy the needs of the community with the least possible expense to the taxpayers."

The statement went on to say that "actions of the mayor and Councilman Rollin after council action, has been to cloud the true issues and facts to defeat last November's bond issue because it did not meet their personal wishes. We believe this action has cost the taxpayers of the city close to $100,000 due to the inflationary costs of construction since then."

On the other hand, Mayor Cholger expressed the opinion in his statement that information had been suppressed. "We have a desperate situation with our sanitary sewage system

 CITY CLERK

(Read 1 John 4:7-12)
 "He who does not love does not know God; for God is love." (1 John 4:8 RSV)

My hand trembled as I signed the check for over $50,000 and as I was handed the bill of sale, I realized that after months of work I now owned a business myself.

I should have been elated but instead I was filled with doubt and worry. Could I make it? Would I go broke? How would the new town accept me?

I knew other businessmen in the same field who were confident but I saw only the responsibility, the risk, the hard work. Sleep evaded me; sometimes when the antacids did not work, I would have to sit up in bed while my wife patted me on the back like a baby.

I read, "God is love." I knew that, so I read on. First John 4:18 hit me: "Perfect love casts out fear." I suddenly realized that if I trusted God as I should, then I would be able to let God take care of my business and other problems as well. Since God is love and casts out fear, I realized that I did not need to fear or worry. I then slept at night, quit taking antacids and was free to enjoy life as God intended. God is good!

PRAYER
 In Jesus' name, Lord, help us to turn all our cares over to You. Thank You for casting out all our fears. Amen.

Dear area friends:

I would like to say a few words concerning the Community Concert Association of this area. The association has brought many exciting and talented performers into this area since our nonprofit organization was formed three years ago. It is now into its fourth annual membership drive, September 17-22.

In these four seasons, we have seen talent costs rise each year while membership dues have remained constant. With a limited auditorium seating capacity, the association income also remains constant. We cannot sell more memberships than there are seats in the auditorium. Unless additional sources of income can be found, it is inevitable that, eventually, membership dues must be increased.

The association board of directors has decided to establish a plan that will provide the additional revenue required to assure continued concert quality without increasing the cost to individual concert goers. It is believed there are many civic minded residents and business establishments in this community who will want to participate. There are three avenues of participation, friend, sponsor or patron. All participants will be listed in the concert programs.

The availability of the performing arts in a community such as this adds much to the cultural life of its people and certainly adds to the attractiveness of the community itself. We look forward to your participation and support in this area-wide effort to strengthen the community concert endeavors for the future.

Sincerely,
 The Rev. William A. Graf
 President

Cards Beat Eagles in Defensive Battle

Two Western Iosco County Schools turned in a good defensive battle Friday night with only one touchdown on the scoreboard. After a scoreless first half, the Whittemore-Prescott Cardinals scored what proved to be the winning touchdown over the Hale Eagles with one minute, 32 seconds remaining in the third quarter.

That lone touchdown came after Hale turned in its best offensive drive of the night, penetrating to the Cardinal 12-yard line before running out of gas. The big play of that series was a 38-yard pass play from Quarterback Vern Reed III to Mark Turnbull.

The Cards took over the ball on their own 14-yard line and scored in 10 plays. Most of the yardage in that series was piled up by Halfback Jim Graham in six carries and the touchdown came on a six-yard run by Quarterback Todd Horn. The try for a two-point conversion was blocked by Hale's defense.

The Cardinals threatened to break the game wide open in the first half when they racked up three straight first downs and marched down to Hale's three-yard line. A 15-yard penalty was costly at that point and Dan Dear of the Eagles stopped the threat when he intercepted one of Horn's passes.

The Hale offense moved well on the next series and penetrated to the Cardinal 21, only to lose the ball when Horn intercepted a pass. The ball changed hands six times before the half, the last coming when Tom Sanders of Hale intercepted a pass on the four-yard line with four seconds to go in the half.

The Eagles turned in a good offensive drive to open the third quarter with Scott McDonald and Glen Bell combining their running game to move the ball well and Turnbull's catch kept the drive going until it finally was stopped by the Cardinal defense.

The Cardinals had another good drive going after scoring the touchdown, but that threat ended when 35 yards in penalties were marched off against Whittemore-Prescott. At one point, the Cardinals penetrated to the Hale six-yard line.

Bell had 70 yards in 13 carries to lead the Eagles in rushing, followed by McDonald's 53 yards in nine carries. The Eagles had 40 yards passing and 130 yards rushing.

On defense, Dear was the leading tackler with eight solos and nine assists. Tom Lesneski had seven solos and five assists, followed by six solos and three assists for Turnbull, Jeff Dillon had six solos and four assists. Graham had more than 140 yards rushing for the Cardinals.

Hale Junior Varsity won Thursday night over Standish-Sterling, 22-14.

Defensive standouts for the Cards were Dick Gratopp, three tackles and seven assists; Leo Everitt, three tackles and six assists.

Football action this week finds Hale at AuGres-Sims and the Cardinals are to host the tough Pincoming Spartans.

Request Heard for Walk Way

City Mgr. Lowell Thomas was directed Monday night by the Tawas City Council to pursue the best means for improving a walk way or drive to serve the American Legion hall-senior citizen center on North Street.

A letter from Sanford Evans of Sixth Avenue, who works with the Michigan Veterans Trust Fund, pointed out that a walk way was needed to reach the building from North Street, due to the fact that it was difficult to move wheel chairs over the present graveled parking lot.

He believed that an asphalt strip the width of a normal sidewalk would be sufficient and would handle any problem.

John Brugger, who represented Jesse C. Hodder Post, American Legion, said that patients from both Provincial House Nursing Home and the Iosco County Medical Care Facility were using the senior citi-

James for extension of sewer main from Second Avenue to his property on Eighth Avenue was presented by the city manager. The proposed sewer main would be constructed under a special assessment district and would serve residential lots owned by St. James from his residence to Dead Creek, plus one lot owned by L. G. McKay. The matter was referred to the city manager for a preliminary estimate on the cost to the property owners.

Permission was granted to install a four-inch meter on the waterline serving the Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company's general office and adjacent facilities. This installation is in line with the city's policy of metering all customers within the city.

The water board has expressed preference that a six-inch meter be installed at the present line, but the city manager said his investigation had revealed that the line was actually reduced to four inches before it reached the service connection.

Commission Commits $40,000 Local Share of Iosco Co. Airport Expansion

A commitment of $40,000 as part of the local share of expanding the county airport was given at a special meeting Wednesday afternoon of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners.

After several years of negotiations by the county, W. C. Roach, airport manager, said that expansion plans approved by the county commission seemed to be headed for approval of federal and state aeronautics agencies.

The new expansion program calls for lengthening the present runway from 3,500 to 5,000 feet. This additional runway length would provide needed facilities to handle jet aircraft used by area industrial operations and for commercial transportation.

Letters urging the expansion had been received from several industries, commercial air transportation firms and chambers of commerce.

County commissioners feel that industrial use of the airport is of primary importance to continued economic development of the area. The airport is located adjacent to the Tawas Area Industrial Park in Baldwin Township.

Cost of the airport expansion would be approximately $585,000, up $53,000 from the figure originally considered some months ago when talks were resumed between local, state and federal officials.

The increased amount was necessary because of inflation. At one time, a new north-south runway was considered in the expansion, but that runway has been deleted from current plans in favor of lengthening the present facility.

Iosco County's total share of the expansion would be approximately $70,000. It is expected that recent land purchase at the northwest end of the runway and other costs borne by the county would be considered an in-kind contribution toward the county's share of the expansion.

Originally, the county commission's aeronautics committee had been considering a runway of 3,800 feet in length, but that was only 300 feet longer than the present runway and not sufficient to handle jet aircraft.

Roach said that justification for the longer runway was based on a projected 250 landings and takeoffs monthly from

A Backward Look at Meadow Road Farming

One of the most dramatic social changes which has taken place in Iosco County since the dawn of this century is the reduction of agricultural lands and the diminished number of small farms. In 1900, the county was proud of the agricultural growth which had taken place during the two previous decades, requiring considerable labor in transforming stump-filled barrens left by lumbermen into productive farm lands.

On numerous occasions during that period, The Tawas Herald commented that the interior of the county was rapidly being filled by an industrious class of citizens, who were bringing prosperity to the local area: That prosperity was based on many small, but substantial farmers, whose crops were shipped to market and the proceeds were spent in local stores on staples and other necessities of life required by large farm families.

Casual review of the county's 1906 plat book reveals a check-board of several hundred small farms—most of them comprising 80 acres of land and few larger than 120 or 160 acres—extending inland and fanning outward from the shore of Tawas Bay all the way to the Ogemaw County line, the only exception being certain areas which were deemed unproductive due to the light nature of the soil.

Soil of AuSable and Oscoda Townships was deemed to be the most unproductive in the state, although an almost heroic effort by Carl E. Schmidt, millionaire-industrialist, turned a portion of that land into a highly productive farm.

The Herald's reportage of farm activities in the early 1900s naturally tended to center in the lower end of the county and one of Herald Editor Len Patterson's favorite subjects was Barnhart Blust, whose farm was located only one mile west of Tawas City on Meadow Road.

The Meadow Road, leading from Tawas City and extending into Sherman Township, was the first improved road in this county. The Whittemores, whose lumber manufacturing operation on the shore of Tawas Bay saw establishment of Tawas City in 1854 and Iosco County in 1857, hacked a route through the wilderness to reach natural hay meadows along the bank of Dead Creek—hence the name, Meadow Road.

As the years progressed, land

MEADOW ROAD extending west out of Tawas City was the first improved roadway constructed in Iosco County. The pasture along Dead Creek (above) had an almost park like appearance when this picture was snapped in the early 1890s. Pine stumps dotted the creek banks and a board fence along the road confined cattle to the pasture as well as aiding in driving livestock along the road.

lying on both sides of the road was the first to be cleared for farms, extending along its entire route starting by the village limit near Dead Creek.

One of the numerous prosperous families along the road was "Barney" Blust, who was born July 15, 1839, in Germany, and came to this country with his parents in 1872, settling on a farm on the Meadow Road. The Blust family was a large one and numerous local residents of today can trace their heritage to Barney's parents from the old country.

Blust was united in marriage on September 26, 1883, to Sophia Berger. The family was typical of the early settlers of this region: Barney, his wife and large family, which grew to nine children, expended many years in clearing fields, building barns, digging ditches, erecting fences, growing and harvesting of crops and all of the other chores required around a farm. All members of the family pitched in to perform their share of the work.

Before many years were to pass, Editor Patterson was to single out the Blust farm as one of the most productive in the county and even ran a picture of grain grown by Blust on the front page of the Herald. That in itself was a rarity, for small town newspapers of that day could not afford the cost of purchasing the required engraving.

Centered on the front page of the Herald's issue of Friday, August 14, 1903, is a picture entitled: "Some Iosco County Farm Products." The photograph was snapped by A. G. Emery of East Tawas, which is being reprinted here from an original glass plate negative.

"The oats are six feet, three inches high and the straw is of the finest quality, being entirely free from rust and smut," stated the Herald's outline.

"There are 10 acres of these oats and there is no doubt that they will yield better than 125 bushels to the acre. The rye and barley are of equally high quality. All three of these grains are known as the "Champions of Russia" and appear to be particularly adapted to this section. Mr. Blust secured a small quantity of this seed a few years ago and has continued the growing each year until this season there will be several hundred bushels."

That grain grown on the Blust farm was included in Iosco County's exhibit to the state fair at Pontiac in 1903. "While a very fine exhibit, so far as quality is concerned, has been gathered together, the quantity is far less than it should have been," commented the Herald. "It is to be regretted that more of our farmers are not represented in this exhibit as the larger and better the show, the more benefit derived by the county."

Editor Patterson was greatly interested in seeing Iosco County developed into a prosperous farming community and many columns of his newspaper were devoted to agricultural pursuits. One such item published in 1903 stated: "J. C. Barber, the real estate man, continues to hustle new settlers into Iosco County. Besides owning a large number of unimproved farms, Barber has a large quantity of excellent wild land." Barber was responsible for bringing many farm families from Southern Michigan, Ohio and Indiana into Plainfield, Reno and Burleigh Townships.

Editor Patterson continued to publicize the efforts of his friend, as indicated by this article published September 7, 1906:

"Barnhart Blust attended the sale of the William Graffney short horn cattle at Bay City last week and purchased 12 head of the finest short horned Durhams in the country. The Graffney herd was the best exhibited in this country during 1905, capturing the first prize at the Toronto Fair, the Michigan State Fair and four other state fairs. Of the prize winners, Mr. Blust purchased several of the best, including the famous bull, "Paymaster 264079," the head of the herd. This magnificent animal weighs 1,988 pounds and is not excelled anywhere.

"The champion dairy cow of this herd, 'Maid of Elmwood,' was also included, as is also 'Nellie of Bridgeport,' the champion stock cow. In Mr. Blust's herd is also included 'Victoria 34d' and calf, another prize winner; 'Lena Alhol,' a nine-month-old heifer weighing 1,200 pounds; and 'Cavalier's Lad,' a very fine yearling bull.

"This stock added to the fine herd already at the Meadow Road stock farm makes one of the very best herds owned in the state. Mr. Blust promises to have them on exhibition at the fair this month."

During the next decade or more, Blust was to continue his pioneering farm activities, introducing new varieties of grain and cattle to this county and even contracting to grow sugar beets during the short-lived boom of that agricultural product when a new sugar beet processing plant was constructed at East Tawas and operated for only a few years.

Other small farmers of the area benefited from this resourcefulness but, with the advance of each decade into the twentieth century, a gradual change in agriculture took place here as well as in other parts of the country. If it has not already been accomplished, this change would provide an interesting social study and commentary to benefit history.

From one viewpoint, an important reason for that dramatic change was affected by the coming of the automobile and the improvement to roads. While speedier transportation could and did improve the lot of farmers, it also caused a great change in the attitude of young people growing up on the farm, who were so essential to the continuance of small family enterprises.

The "Tin Lizzy" and primitive trucks speeded products to market but, in the process, young people were exposed to the fact that much more monetary reward could be gained by working in automobile plants than on the farm. As a result, there was a mass exodus to the metropolitan manufacturing centers (See MEADOW ROAD, page 2.)

SOME IOSCO COUNTY farm products exhibited at the 1903 state fair at Pontiac were photographed by A. G. Emery of East Tawas and the picture was published by this newspaper. All of the grain samples were grown on the farm of Barnhart Blust west of Tawas City on Meadow Road. The oats had a yield of 125 bushels to the acre.

which has continued to this day, as evidenced by the recent problems in Kentucky and West Virginia, where there has been a migration of young people to manufacturing centers.

Agriculture is still important to Iosco County, but no longer does one find the small 80-acre farms where large families once prospered. In the vacuum caused by the exodus, some lands have reverted to nature and former well-tended fields are covered with brush and trees; large blocks of land have been put together, either through purchase or lease, where extensive farming is still being carried on by large scale operations, requiring considerable capital for machinery. Successful farming today is no longer considered a small business venture.

The old Meadow Road west of Tawas City is one of those regions which was affected by the change and only a few farms are still in operation, some of them owned by fourth generation members of pioneer families.

As for the farm of Barnhart Blust, who died May 10, 1940, at the home of his son, nothing remains today of the fine barn where he kept his prized cattle or the well-tended field where he grew his "Champion of Russia" varieties of oats, rye and barley, prize winners in the state fair of 1903.

"Time goes, you say? Ah no! Alas, time stays, we go," wrote Austin Dobson in "The Paradox of Time."

The units will be used by a major limestone producer in Northeastern Lower Michigan. The units were shipped over the Detroit and Mackinac Railway by Earle Equipment Company of Detroit.

Know

Your Michigan Law

By Attorney General FRANK J. KELLEY

Michigan is a national leader in assuring equal rights for handicapped individuals. Michigan's Handicappers' Civil Rights Act provides that handicapped persons cannot be discriminated against when looking for jobs, housing or when entering public places or educational facilities.

The law applies to persons with visual, hearing or mobility impairments, as well as to persons with mental and physical characteristics which are not readily apparent as a handicap.

For example, Michigan restaurants cannot refuse to admit persons in wheelchairs. Because visual impairments are defined by the law as a handicap, employers cannot refuse to hire a person with such an impairment unless the impairment affects the person's ability to do a specific job.

The chief goal of the act is to require employers, landlords and business owners to make decisions concerning employment, leasing or admission to public establishments on an individualized rather than a stereotyped basis.

Under the law, an educational institution may not refuse admission to a handicapped person if the handicap does not affect their ability to use or benefit from the educational program or service.

The law also prohibits discrimination against persons who use adaptive devices or aides such as wheelchairs, prostheses or eyeglasses.

James A. Abney of Oscoda, CLU, agent for New York Life Insurance Company, has been selected to moderate a class this fall in the Life Underwriter Training Council's course in life insurance sales training. The announcement was made today by Gary S. Wood, CLU, general agent for American United Life Insurance Company, who is responsible for organizing this year's classes.

The course is designed to help career life underwriters keep abreast of the latest developments in life insurance and to broaden their knowledge and skills. The 26-week course is one part of a two-year program. Classes are held weekly from October to May with each session covering 2½ hours of sales training. Any agent with minimum requirements, whether or not a member of the association, may attend. An active participant in life underwriter community affairs, Abney is secretary-treasurer of the Northeastern Michigan Association and a graduate of the Life Underwriters Training Council.

Abney will be invited to attend a two-day regional conference for moderators before classes begin. Conducted by a representative of the council's Washington, D. C., headquarters staff, this meeting will review basic teaching techniques and supply each moderator with the information on the course that will be needed to lead the class.

Schools Provide Variety of Special Education Services

Local school districts in the area provide a variety of special education services and programs. Those local school districts include Oscoda Area Schools, Tawas Area Schools, Hale Area Schools and Whittemore-Prescott Area Schools.

Oscoda Area Schools provide programs for educable mentally impaired, emotionally impaired, learning disabled and speech and language impaired. Services, other than those listed above, are available to the handicapped as the needs are identified.

Tawas Area Schools have programs for the speech and language impaired, the learning disabled and the mentally impaired population in its district. These programs are provided at the elementary, middle and high school levels.

Hale Area Schools have services for the speech and language impaired, the learning disabled and the emotionally impaired, as well as a classroom program for the educable mentally impaired. These services are available in both the elementary and secondary schools.

In addition, the Hale Area Schools provide an on-the-job training program for their final year special education students.

In the Whittemore-Prescott Area Schools, resource rooms provide assistance for the educable mentally impaired pupil in three of the district's four school buildings. A new program to the district this year will be one for the learning disabled at the elementary level. Services for the speech and language impaired are also provided throughout the district.

Iosco Intermediate School District (IISD) works cooperatively with these local school districts to provide services to hearing impaired, visually impaired, social work, school psychology, physically and otherwise health impaired and pre-school coordination. A coordinator of planning, monitoring and data collection is also employed. The IISD also contracts the services of a registered nurse, occupational therapist and physical therapist. Bright Horizons Learning Center is also a part of the Iosco Intermediate School District. It serves the trainable mentally impaired and the severely mentally impaired.

Sources of services outside of the district are available as needed.

Observance Honors US Constitution

September 17-23 has been designated as Constitution Week by President Carter. One hundred ninety-two years ago, a group of men gathered in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, to mend and remold a divided land. The Articles of Confederation, which had gone into effect in 1781, had failed; the task of creating a new national government was immense.

The document that came out of that gathering was the Constitution of the United States. It is the oldest constitution still in active use in the world today and is the basic document of the United States government.

The Daughters of the American Revolution urge everyone to study the constitution, to know their rights and responsibilities and to protect the freedoms it grants to each of us.

A new building has been constructed on M-55 east of the Fifth Avenue intersection as a meeting place for Masonic organizations and the Order of the Eastern Star. Site for the building being razed was given to the Tawas Masonic Temple Association on April 7, 1949, by Joseph Barkman. Give Residents Opportunity to Plan Health Care Needs

Residents of the East Central Michigan Region will be given the opportunity to help plan for the future health care needs of their communities, according to Anthony Armstrong, director for planning data for East Central Michigan Health Systems Agency. Public hearing will be held at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, September 25, Ogemaw County Building in compliance with Public Law 93-641, the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act of 1974 on the proposed 1980 health systems plan for the ECMHSA service area. The area is composed of the 14 Michigan Counties of Arenac, Bay, Clare, Gladwin, Gratiot, Huron, Iosco, Isabella, Midland, Ogemaw, Roscommon, Saginaw, Sanilac and Tuscola. The purpose of the meetings is to obtain public comment and input on the health systems and health status goals and objectives outlined in the plan.

Michigan Health Systems Agency, Incorporated, and complete copies have been mailed to the board of commissioners of each county served. Summary health systems plans are available at selected locations throughout the region. Copies can be obtained by calling the HSA at 754-0420. Oral comments are welcome and will become part of the record of the public hearings. September 28 is the last day written comments can be accepted. All residents are urged to attend the hearings.

Participated in Sea Rescue

Kenneth W. Armstrong, coast guard ensign, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Armstrong, Tawas City, participated in the rescue of 11 men at sea. He is an officer assigned to the coast guard cutter, Midgett, homeported in Alameda, California.

Armstrong is a 1973 graduate of Tawas Area High School and a 1977 graduate of the United States Coast Guard Academy, New London, Connecticut, with a bachelor of science degree.

His cutter responded to the call of the coast guard aircraft which spotted the Mexican freighter, Gladstone, sinking off the coast of California. When the Midgett arrived on the scene, all that was left was a small life boat with the 11-man crew. They were rescued in good condition and brought to San Francisco, California.

Rites Held for

Josephine Orlang

Funeral services for Josephine I. Orlang, resident of Whittemore since 1939, were conducted Friday, September 14, at St. Florian Catholic Church, Standish, with the Rev. Fr. Emmett Marceau officiating. Burial was in St. James Catholic Cemetery, Whittemore. She was born September 6, 1910, in New York State.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Nola Gasciel of Standish; three sons, Donald of Detroit, Wilford of Florida and Norman of Pinconning; 14 grandchildren; two great grandchildren; two brothers, and a sister. Her husband, Edward, predeceased her in 1972.

RIDERS from various parts of Michigan and Illinois started Saturday from Tawas City over the Michigan riding and hiking trail. They will be crossing the state from shore to shore in nine days. Several of the riders are the facility. The commission also authorized its legal counsel, Ronald Tyler, East Tawas attorney, to proceed with closing about one-half mile of a road lying in the path of the proposed runway extension. He said that the closure would not affect ingress and egress to hunting camps in that area.

The commission also authorized James Steck and Carlton Merschel, members of the county commission, to work with Roach, Tyler and Edward J. Barry as a committee to obtain a contract with an engineering firm to develop plans for the expansion. Barry has prepared much of the work on an environmental impact statement necessary under state and federal regulations.

David George, county finance chairman, said that the $40,000 local contribution could be made from federal revenue sharing funds, but pointed out that those funds expire next year and may not be renewed by congress. He said that the airport expansion had a high priority as it was essential to growth of the county, but he pointed out that other programs currently being financed by federal revenue sharing money may have to be curtailed or that fees may have to be charged for operation of the county's sanitary landfill.

The commission authorized an expenditure of $1,500 from the county's depreciation fund for purchasing paint and materials for refurbishing the airport hangar.

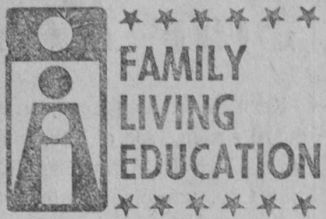

Other action by the commission saw appointment of Gene Gerber, community education director at Tawas Area School, stick or tape measure to mark a straight line down to the point of the new hemline. With the narrower look, pant hems should fall just to the top of the ankle. Open up the bottom hem and let out side seams to the hemline.

Remember that inner and outer seams must be taken in equally at the hemline, not the bottom edge of the slack, to maintain the balance and crease of the pant. An 18 to 20-inch ankle width for most slacks will insure a comfortable fit.

Pin the pants along markings to the hemline only, then baste and try on for fit. Open former leg seams only after fit has been adjusted and new seams have been sewn securely.

After completing leg seams, to insure a smooth unpuckered hem, fold up each hem allowance separately and mark the bottom edge at the point of the new seam width. Mark the new seamline between the edge and the hemline, and baste. Stitch seams together, trim and press open. Turn up hem and blind-stitch.

FAMILY LIVING EDUCATION

This fall, fashion forecasts indicate that the pant look remains slim through the hips and leg, and tapered to a narrow width at the ankle. If your favorite pairs of slacks are wide-legged bell-bottoms, you can easily alter them to reduce fullness and be right in style. Note that the most important factor to consider before altering your slacks is your individual fashion taste and comfort.

Few people can wear the extremely narrow pants (13 inches at the ankle) and feel comfortable in them. The important thing to remember is that fashion is based on individuality. You have freedom to buy and wear clothes that you feel attractive in, and that are adaptable to your own particular lifestyle.

To alter slacks, first measure your thigh, knee and calf areas, allowing one to three inches at each of these points. Write the measurement down. Turn the slacks inside out and mark the hip point on the outer seam where you want the slacks to begin to taper. On the inner leg seam, pick the point which feels most comfortable to you to begin tapering.

From these points, use a yard-
