Industrial Park Promising, but EDA Funds Must Wait

State representatives of the Economic Development Administration indicated they were interested in assisting with development of Tawas City's proposed industrial park, but funding would be some years off—possibly in 1982 or later.

This was the word from James Collison, state representative for EDA, who told city officials Thursday that all federal funds had been committed to other communities of the state until 1981.

He said Tawas City could be included in the 1981 allocation if additional federal funds are allocated to this state, but this is unlikely because of the present national financial picture.

City Mgr. Lowell Thomas said following the meeting that the session was intended only to lay the groundwork for making an application to EDA and to become acquainted with state officials who administer the funds.

Besides Collison, among those attending were James Donaldson, a member of Collison's staff; Thomas Schroeder, a member of the economic development section of East Central Michigan Planning Region, and Roger Rehberg, representing the Upper Great Lakes Planning Commission.

Among local officials attending were Mayor David Westcott; Hugo Keiser and Donald Hayes, members of the city's industrial development committee; Glen Highfield and Paul Beyer, Detroit and Mackinac Railway; Ralph Western, Tawas Area Industrial Development Corporation.

Thomas' presentation on proposed industrial development pointed out the fact that, although great strides had been made in recent years to attract industry, the Tawas area needed to increase its efforts in this field.

As an example, he pointed out that Alpena's industrial tax base represented 40.4 percent of its total state equalized valuation. Other regional communities growing in the industrial field are West Branch, where its industrial tax base represents 19.6 percent of its total SEV, and Standish, with an industrial tax base representing 17.9 percent of its total SEV. Tawas City's industrial tax base represents only 6.7 percent of the total SEV, but the real surprise is that the Tawas-Baldwin area's industrial tax base represents only 4.2 percent of the total SEV. However, the above figure does not include the important gypsum installations in this area which provide vital employment in the entire area.

Collison told those attending that his department had been interested in assisting with industrial development in the Tawas area for some years, just as it has been instrumental in providing federal funds to assist development of industrial parks at West Branch and Standish.

He stressed the importance of developing financial and marketing strategy for an industrial park and said that the Tawas City industrial park would stand a better chance of obtaining EDA funds if it had a bona fide industrial prospect to kick off the initial development.

Thomas said he had been (See INDUSTRY, page 2.)

Township Hall Election

Baldwin Voters to Decide Proposal

Baldwin Township voters go to the polls next Tuesday to decide the fate of a special proposition to bond the district for $290,000 to finance purchase of the former Michigan Consolidated Gas Company building in Baldwin Centre and convert it into township hall purposes.

Voting places include Precinct No. 1, located in the Baldwin Township Hall on Monument Road, while voters in Precinct No. 2 and No. 3 will cast their ballots at Iosco Sportsmen's Club, 1600 North US-23, East Tawas.

This proposal has been under study by the township board for several months and, on petition of citizens, the board voted three to two to submit the proposal to voters.

It calls for bonding the district for 30 years for the purpose of "acquiring, furnishing and equipping an existing building and site for use as a township hall."

Since announcement of the special election, the proposal has met a mixed reaction from township residents. Three residents of the township have expressed opposition to the proposal through letters to the editor published by this newspaper.

The principal concern expressed in the letters was the opinion that the proposed building is too large for township purposes, that its removal from the tax roll would be a burden and that remodeling would require additional cost.

Those favoring the proposal believe that the building would provide excellent facilities for many years to come in a township which had shown rapid growth and expansion in recent years.

Polls open at 7:00 a. m. and close at 8:00 p. m. on election day.

Oscoda Renews Millage; Rejects Others

Oscoda Area School District voters Monday approved renewing a tax levy of 10.3 mills, with an increase of 2.82 mills for operation, but rejected two other proposals by wide margins.

The millage renewal with increase was approved, 2,071 to 1,619. The second proposal calling for 1.18 mills, specifically designated to reopen the Glennie Elementary School and to restore instructional periods in both the high school and junior high school, was rejected 2,000-1,678.

A third proposal seeking permission to bond the district to renovate the Oscoda Elementary School was defeated, 1,957 to 1,713.

This latter proposal was necessary to meet requirements of the state fire marshal and sought permission to bond the district for $250,000. If approved, it would have been paid off in a period of five years.

School officials were unavailable for comment Tuesday, but it is expected that renovation of the elementary school to meet state fire marshal requirements will be a topic of major concern at the April 14 meeting of the board of education.

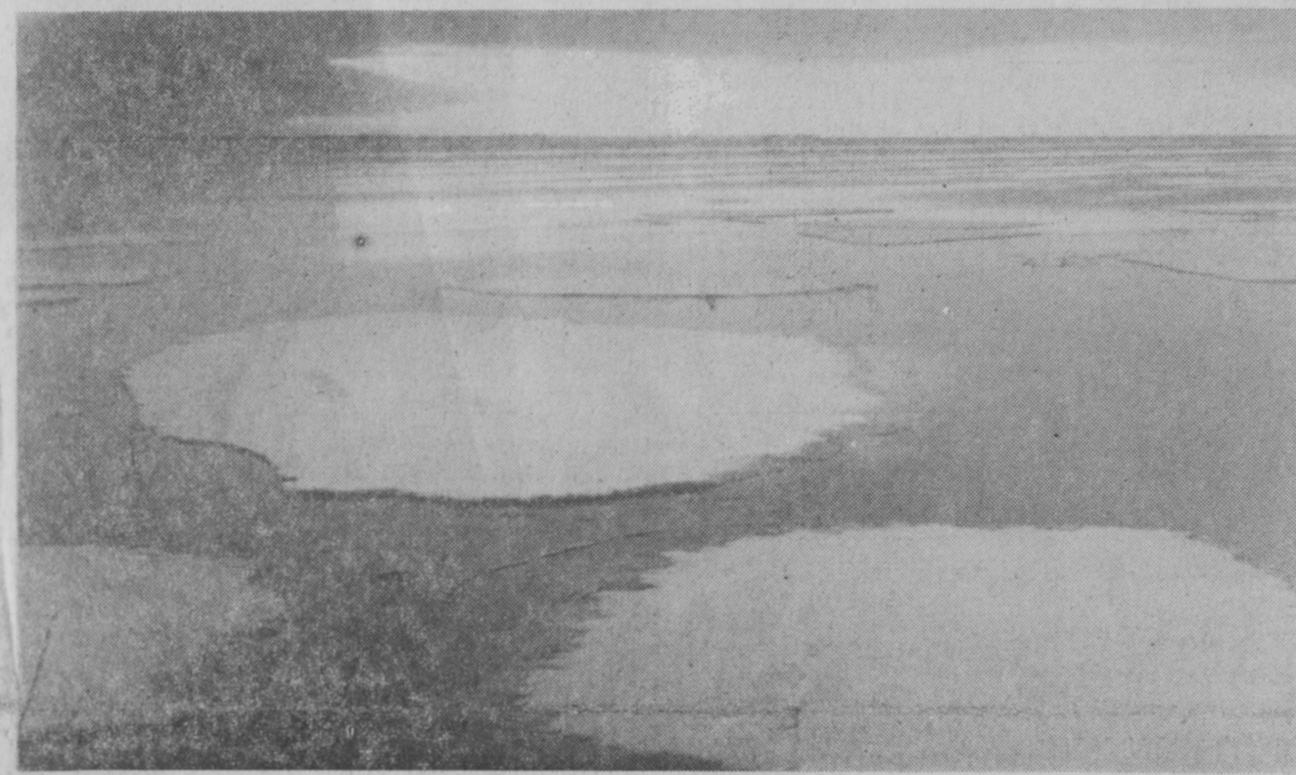

State Gas Leases Are Recorded

Sixty-eight oil leases on state lands recently sold at public auction were processed last week through the Iosco County Register of Deeds office.

Most of the property on which 10-year leases were obtained was located in Wilber and Oscoda Townships. Recording fees paid by Hunt Energy and Gulf Oil Company amounted to $1,158.

'Moonies' Kept Officers Busy

Iosco County Sheriff's Department deputies were busy Wednesday handling complaints involving members of the Unification Church. The subjects, better known as "Moonies," were in Iosco soliciting donations. Complaints involving the group ranged from blocking traffic in Reno Township to harassment in Baldwin Township.

BROKEN ICE is shown leaving Tawas Bay last week, always a sure sign of spring weather in this area. By Tuesday, only a small shelf of ice was left in the bight of Tawas Bay, bringing the warning from area authorities that all fishermen should use caution when on the ice. A sudden change in wind direction could send the remaining shelf of ice out into Saginaw Bay.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Even Arenac Co. Farmers Oppose Drainage District

A new turn of events is taking place in the long and much-discussed AuGres River watershed project, which includes the three-county area of Arenac, Iosco and Ogemaw Counties.

Opposition to the 5.2-million-dollar project is mounting among farmers who do not live in the 10,000-acre flood plain area—right in Arenac County, where the major portion of the money would be expended to improve the river system.

A meeting of the newly formed Citizens Against the AuGres River Intercountry Drain is to be held Saturday night, 7:30 o'clock, at Arenac Eastern High School, Twining. Bylaws will be established and officers nominated.

A spokesman for the new group said the meeting would affect every landowner in Arenac, Iosco and Ogemaw Counties. He urged property owners to attend to "defend yourself against a 50-year assessment."

This project has been opposed since its inception by upstream property owners of Iosco and Ogemaw Counties, who are convinced that it would be of no particular benefit to them.

While many Arenac County residents object to paying 91 percent of the 1.6-million-dollar local cost (Iosco and Ogemaw Counties would share the other nine percent), many speakers at a recent Arenac County hearing did not want to share in any part of the cost.

The problem is being compounded by the fact that there is no way of estimating the cost of such a venture, although farmers benefiting the most in Arenac County would also pay the highest share.

Most farmers attending the hearing were in no mood to spend dollars without direct benefit to them and many speakers stressed the ever increasing amount of dollars they spend for property taxes.

Opponents are now talking about circulating petitions and going to court to stop the project before a proposal is submitted to congress for funding. A public hearing involving drain commissioners of the three counties and the Michigan Department of Agriculture would also be required before any decision is made.

Eliminating the annual flooding of farm land in the lower end of the AuGres River valley has been debated for more than three decades and even reached the circuit court a few years ago when a compromise was reached concerning the split of proposed costs between the three counties.

Despite a show of hands at the hearing held at the AuGres-Sims Elementary School which indicated that farmers in attendance were overwhelmingly opposed to the project, it was apparent that farmers in the lower end of the valley were continuing to push for it.

Egg Hunt Saturday at High School

Children of the area will be entertained Saturday, April 5, at Tawas Area High School with an old-fashioned egg hunt sponsored by Tawas Area Lions Club. Starting time is 1:00 p. m. and 700 eggs will be hidden on the grounds to be found. Prizes will go to all participating children with additional prizes for special eggs.

No registration forms are needed and children will be grouped into the ages of preschool, six to eight years and nine to 12 years. No candy will be given out this year and no charges will be made. Parents are invited to bring the children and watch the fun.

Caught Fire

Clifford O'Connor, 60, Long Lake, lost control of his car Thursday on Long Lake Road near Putnam Road, Plainfield Township. The car left the roadway and went about 200 yards into a field. As O'Connor attempted to back the vehicle out of the field, it caught fire and Plainfield Township Fire Department was called to the scene.

meeting with local industrialists to determine if they would consider expansion of present facilities into the new park. The city may consider extension of water and sewer facilities to serve a minimal number of industrial sites as a preliminary move before any major expansion.

Harry Bacon of Edmonds Engineering Company, the city's engineering consultant, said that preliminary estimates for development of the 40-acre industrial park would require an expenditure of $800,000. This includes extension of sanitary sewer and water, roads and drainage, engineering and contingencies.

Included would be a railroad siding and unloading platform to serve industries and commercial firms in the Tawas area.

This railroad unloading platform was included in the plan to coincide with an application from the Detroit and Mackinac Railway which seeks federal funding to assist in the study of potential railroad needs in Northeastern Michigan.

Collison said the key to success in any EDA application was enthusiasm on the part of the local area and he pointed out that for a community to reach its goal usually depended on the hard work of less than a dozen individuals.

"You are on the right track," Collison told city officials.

WELCOME SPRING WITH DESSERT

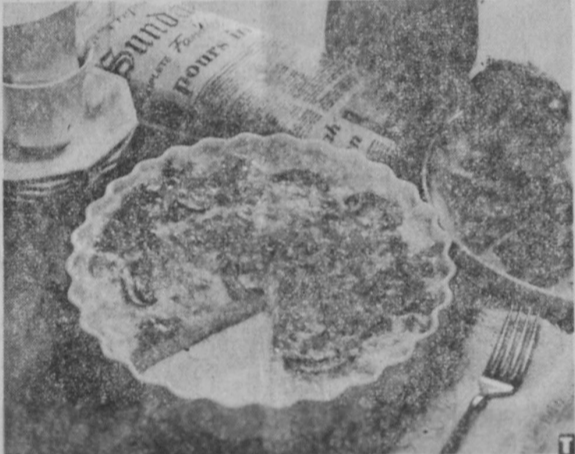

The fresh fruit season and the promise of spring are reasons enough to prepare this luscious dessert. Strawberry Chantilly Tarts have all the convenience of preparation that you'll need—vanilla flavor pudding and pie filling and strawberry flavor gelatin—right from the cupboard. Top with a dollop of whipped topping and a slice of strawberry, before serving.

STRAWBERRY CHANTILLY TARTS

- 1 package (4-serving size) Jell-O vanilla flavor pudding and pie filling
- 1 package (3 oz.) Jell-O strawberry flavor gelatin
- 2-1/2 cups water
- 1 container (4 oz.) Birds Eye Cool Whip non-dairy whipped topping, thawed
- 12 commercial pastry shells in aluminum foil cups

Combine pudding mix, gelatin and water in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil and is thickened and clear. Remove from heat and chill until slightly thickened. Fold in whipped topping, blending well. Chill. Spoon into tart shells. Garnish with additional whipped topping and halved strawberries, if desired. Makes 12 tarts.

Crustless Mushroom Quiche For Brunch

The availability of fresh mushrooms year round now makes it possible to do all sorts of marvelous things with them: broil them for breakfast, stuff them in pits for lunch, serve them sauced with pasta for supper, slice them raw for snacks or salads. This Crustless Mushroom Quiche is an elegant and unusual dish for brunches or light suppers. It's put together in a half-hour and baked while your guests are lingering over conversation and chilled fruit juice. Broiled tomatoes and bacon would be ideal complements.

CRUSTLESS MUSHROOM QUICHE

- 3 cups milk, scalded
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
- 2 slices stale bread, cubed
- 8 ounces fresh mushrooms
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper

Preheat oven to 325 F. In a medium bowl combine milk, 1 tablespoon of the butter and bread cubes; set aside for 10 minutes. Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms (makes about 3 cups). In a large skillet melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Add onion; saute until tender, about 3 minutes. Add mushrooms; continue to saute for 5 minutes; let cool. Add eggs, salt and black pepper to cooled mushroom and onion mixture; mix well. Pour into a greased 1-quart baking pan or quiche pan. Set pan in a larger pan containing hot water. Bake, uncovered, until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean, about 45 minutes. Serve for brunch with bacon and broiled tomatoes, if desired. Yield: 4 to 6 portions.

THE HOME WOODDRAFTER

DO IT YOURSELF AND SAVE

A Planter For Indoors Or Out

By The Wood-Working Projects Experts at Georgia-Pacific Corp.

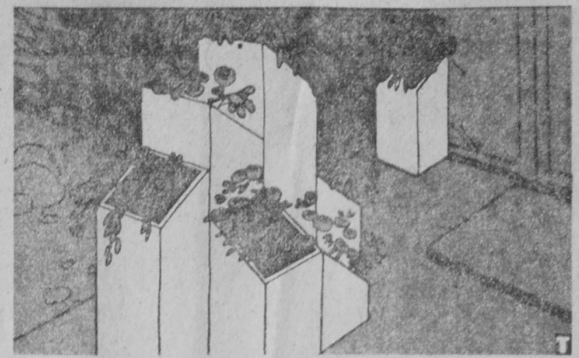

Plants can be a pretty—and economical—way to improve the view, indoors or out, especially if you put your gorgeous growing things into an "organ pipe" plant cluster that you've created yourself.

Contemporary and easily built in a single afternoon, this beautiful organizer fits in anywhere: on a favorite porch, deck or family room. And there's no need to paint. Just coat it with transparent stain.

Materials you'll need to get started are five lengths of 1"x12"x12' redwood lumber, ten 1"x1"x6' strips of redwood lumber, one 1"x2"x4' piece of redwood lumber and one 1"x12"x6' redwood lumber board. Use 4d galvanized finishing nails, creosote and transparent stain.

Cut the 1"x12" redwood into the lengths shown in the diagram. Nail boards together, using a combination of waterproof glue with screws or galvanized finishing nails. Make sure the 1"x1" corner braces are flush with the seams.

Next, secure each box to your tabletop or workbench, using a bench clamp. Measure diagonal cuts at 30°; saw and sand smooth. Cut and nail the plant shelf into each planter. Then waterproof the inside with creosote.

If you ever plan to move the cluster inside, do not drill shelf holes in the shelf boards so water won't leak out onto floors. As a further precaution, plastic-coat the planting area thoroughly.

Why walk around and bend over to water plants when you can keep them all together in the ingenious plant organizer, diagrammed above?

Decision Today on Enforcement of State Mechanical Code in Iosco

Mixed feelings were expressed Wednesday over the state's new mechanical code which goes into effect April 5, but the general consensus of local officials and contractors was that enforcement of provisions of the new law should be handled locally.

This reaction to the new law came during a public hearing called by the county board of commissioners. Chairman John Webb said the unofficial session was designed to get some public input on the question as the commission is expected to decide today (Wednesday) if the law will be enforced locally, or if the state will provide enforcement.

Although argument over desirability of the act seems to be a moot point at this time, due to the fact that the mechanical code was adopted last fall by the state legislature with an effective date of April 5, the county board of commissioners has been split on the question.

Two weeks ago, a three to two vote saw the commission adopting a resolution urging the legislature to amend the new code, but a motion was tabled on a resolution which would have ignored county enforcement and given the state that responsibility.

Edward Sterling, director of the county's building and safety inspection department, pointed out to commissioners and the 26 plumbers, heating and electrical contractors attending Wednesday's session that amending the state law was not a matter to be considered, for the act becomes law effective Saturday of this week and the county must decide if it will be the enforcing agency.

Sterling said that the state plans to establish a district office at Gaylord to handle inspections under the code for those counties which choose not to enforce the provisions. He expected that one-day-a-week service probably could be provided this county if it decides not to enforce the code.

Com. Marian Ulman, who had led the fight at the county commission level to lobby at Lansing to amend the law to exclude enforcement of the code in counties with a population less than 50,000, said she could change her mind and that she was not opposed to enforcement of the code by the local department. She said that the commission had learned of the comprehensive provisions of the new act only three weeks ago and felt that Northern Michigan had to get the attention of the state legislature in order to amend the code.

Mrs. Ulman also pointed out that the state legislature had cut back its appropriation to the state police in its 1980 budget and she did not feel that the state would provide the necessary funds for state enforcement of the new code.

Sterling pointed out that he had reported on provisions of the new mechanical code as early as last October to the board of commissioners and, in answer to a question from one contractor, said that the state adopted the national BOCA code and that copies were available to contractors at his office.

Contractors present were primarily concerned over the possibility that provisions of the new code would only be enforced when work is performed by licensed contractors and that installations by "moonlighters" and home owners would not be inspected. Sterling said this would not be the case, although he admitted that enforcement would be difficult if the home owner does not apply for a permit.

Although argument over desirability of the act seems to be a moot point at this time, due to the fact that the mechanical code was adopted last fall by the state legislature with an effective date of April 5, the county board of commissioners has been split on the question.

Two weeks ago, a three to two vote saw the commission adopting a resolution urging the legislature to amend the new code, but a motion was tabled on a resolution which would have ignored county enforcement and given the state that responsibility.

The cheesemaker, once an important tradesman in rural America, has joined the ranks of the harnessmaker, the coalman and the iceman—occupations which have disappeared during changing times of the mid-twentieth century.

There was a time when practically every village of Iosco County had its cheese factory, offering employment for up to four hands in each; more importantly, this business provided a ready market for milk produced by the many small farms dotting the rural countryside.

A number of different cheese factories have operated in the Tawas area and it is recalled that one—standing abandoned in the 1930s—was located on Wilber Road just north of the Monument Road intersection. The last cheese factory to operate here was opened by the Kraft Corporation in 1936 and operated briefly in the Richards building at the corner of West State and Newman Streets at East Tawas.

A now dilapidated old building partially concealed by brush provides the last visual reminder of a once flourishing cheesemaking business at Hale. That business folded in 1946 and equipment was moved to Rose City where the plant continued in operation for several years.

Emil Wagner, 80-year-old Hale retiree, owned and operated the Hale cheese factory for nearly eight years before selling his business to Raymond Peplinski in 1946. Wagner is one of the last of a vanishing breed in Michigan.

A native of Dobie, Wisconsin, Wagner learned the cheesemaking business there in a factory operated by his father for 45 years. Wagner later was superintendent of a milk plant in Indiana and later he and his wife, Blanche, operated a cheese factory in Missouri for four years before the business was wiped out by fire.

While visiting his brother in Wisconsin, Wagner read an advertisement in a trade journal which offered to sell a cheese factory at Hale. Wagner and his wife came to Hale and purchased the business.

The cheesemaking business at Hale had a long history by then, the first plant being opened in the early 1900s by John Carey, a noted cheesemaker who was to continue his trade there for nearly 30 years.

"When we arrived at Hale we were extremely disappointed," recalls Wagner. "My wife was still feeling ill after crossing Lake Michigan aboard a car ferry and we nearly turned around and returned home after we found that Hale did not even have a restaurant. Things looked brighter to us the next day and Hale has been our home now for more than 40 years."

Wagner's business grew to a point where he was buying 7,000 pounds of milk from area farmers each day and he was turning out 700 pounds of cheese daily, seven days a week, in his factory.

Wagner had learned the process of manufacturing Colby style cheese back in Wisconsin and his product was pressed into 20-pound dairies or five-pound blocks. Most of the output of his plant was sold to Swift and Company at Detroit under contract, with a small portion being sold to cheese fanciers of the local Iosco County area.

A considerable amount of work and experience is required in the cheesemaking process. Temperature control is important, the milk being maintained at a temperature of 85 degrees before rennet is mixed in to coagulate the milk. This curdled mixture is then stirred over heat, cut into cubes and then heated again to dispel the whey.

Salt and coloring are then added to the mixture and transferred into metal containers where it is placed under pressure during an overnight process. After the outside rind hardens, the cheese is dipped into hot wax for sealing purposes and is ready for the market.

Cheesemaking on a small scale is practically a lost art today. Wagner recalls that when he came to Michigan in 1938, there were 22 cheese factories licensed out of the state health department office at Saginaw and only one factory remains today at Pinconning.

As another example of the changing times, Wagner said that when he was a youngster growing up in Wisconsin, there were 2,200 independent firms making cheese and the state university offered a short course for cheesemakers. Today, the number of Wisconsin cheese factories has dwindled to 52.

The major reason for this change from small to large operations—more cheese is produced today than ever before—is the change in grocery store marketing, the high cost of equipment to meet production requirements to make a profit and the modern facilities necessary to meet inspection requirements.

Although cheese factories were inspected regularly, modern refrigeration had not been developed to any extent when Wagner operated his plant at Hale. That was in the days before pasteurization and Wagner had two trucks on the road buying milk from small farms in Western Iosco County. One truck made a trip weekly to deliver the finished product to Swift and Company.

Today, refrigerated tank trucks make daily pickups at area farms. Farming, too, has changed in that milk production no longer is a small business because of the high cost of operation. Small dairy herds have practically disappeared and the milk production is centered at a few large operations.

Wagner began to have competition from larger firms in purchasing milk during the early 1940s, particularly when the Tri-County Dairy Cooperative was organized in 1945 and farmers began selling their milk to the Borden Milk Company at West Branch. In 1946, the Iosco County farmers organized a cooperative to improve herds through an artificial breeding program.

Wagner fractured his arm in early 1946 and he decided to sell his business to the Peplinski brothers. The plant was moved to Rose City to take advantage of the fact that there was still a large number of smaller dairy herds in Ogemaw County which could provide the necessary raw milk.

Wagner and his wife, who had served as bookkeeper in the business, retired from cheesemaking and he worked a number of years for D. D. Pearsall and the Hale Elevator before retiring.

Later, the Cooperative Cheese and Produce Association was organized December 1, 1948, in a meeting held at the Plainfield Township Hall. Wesley Hawley, Farm Bureau representative, led a discussion on the important factors which made cooperatives successful and Harold R. Clark, county agent, told the group that a well organized and well managed cooperative could be a great benefit to patrons and the community.

Officers and members of the board of directors were Andrew Matthews, president; John Morrison, vice president; E. O. Putnam, secretary-treasurer; Edward Marshall, Leo Webb and Kenneth Huff, directors; George Ajax, plant manager.

That business, too, has since fallen by the wayside during the changing times in agriculture.

Wagner and his wife are active today in the senior citizens organization at Hale and enjoy working in their garden during the summer months.

As for cheesemaking, Wagner has not tried his hand at it since 1946, but he believes today's product found in the grocery store is just not like that produced by the old-time cheesemaker.

"Preservatives are used today in the cheese which affects the taste," he states. He should know for, not only is he a former cheesemaker, but he loves to eat cheese!

THE OLD Hale cheese factory is partially hidden today by clumps of tag alders. It once provided a market for milk produced by small dairy operations in Western Iosco County.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Another 'Big Brother' Law?

Iosco County Board of Commissioners is currently discussing a situation which apparently should have been debated more thoroughly last fall by the state legislature, at least that seems to be the case in the eyes of many Northern Michigan residents who believe that expansion of governmental red tape deprives one of his individual liberties and adds further fuel to the fire of inflation.

On the other hand, one may see a great benefit to be derived by the new State Mechanical Code which becomes law next Saturday. Now that this act becomes law, there should be no question that its provisions should be enforced locally rather than have some new state department enforce its requirements.

This corner concedes the point that strict enforcement of the code, particularly with reference to installation of wood burning stoves, could prevent loss of property and save some lives. Each winter in recent years, there have been numerous local fires caused by faulty heating equipment installations and several members of one family right here in Iosco County lost their lives in a fire which was attributed to the faulty installation of a wood stove.

Regardless of the new law and the threat of prosecution it imposes, it is doubtful if all home owners will abide with the provision of first obtaining a permit before installation of heating equipment, particularly if the owner does his own work. An educational program is really needed in this field.

Although there may be instances where an installation by a tradesman is faulty, the real problem does not exist with the licensed contractors. The do-it-yourself home owner, who is not aware of basic principals of safe installation or utilizes short cuts to save time or money, is of primary concern.

An answer satisfactory to all is not readily apparent, although manufacturers of heating equipment do go to great lengths to provide basic information concerning the installation of their products. Excellent local examples are D&W Wood Stoves of Hale and Anschuetz Heating of Tawas City, which provide printed safety tips and installation instructions with each stove manufactured by those firms.

It is questionable, however, if another set of new state regulations and expansion of a state department will provide the answer as just too many people will ignore the law and not bother to obtain a permit. It must also be admitted that many people resent the fact that "big brother" government may be sticking its collective noses into the affairs of individuals where it is not wanted.

There is no answer to this question, although all should support local vs. state enforcement of the new state code.

Kite Flying Weather a Sure Sign of Spring

The only sure thing about the weather this time of year, says J. E. Wessels, district manager of Consumers Power Company's East Tawas District, is that many days are good for flying kites.

With the kite-flying season, however, comes danger to youngsters who sometimes forget about safety in their eagerness to fly their kites. So Wessels urges parents and school officials to emphasize safety to children, both at home and at school, before they send their kites aloft.

Wessels passes on the following tips for parents, teachers and area children:

Use only dry string—not wire or anything metallic—with the kite; never use wire or metal in the construction of a kite. Only wood, paper and plastic are to be used.

On rainy days, keep the kite indoors. Wait for dry days.

Stay away from busy streets and highways while flying a kite. Be careful not to run across a motorist's path. Do not fly kites near radio or television antennas; keep well away from any electric wires.

If a kite becomes snagged in a power line, do not try to pull on the string or climb the utility pole. It is better to lose a kite than a life.

If you see a kite tangled in electric lines—even if it is not your own—call Consumers Power and state the location. "Kite flying is fun. Do not let it lead to tragedy," Wessels concluded.

(Read John 13:31-35)

"A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another," (John 13:34)

Mealtime! Just hearing the word gives us a good feeling. Most of us like to eat. And if we are eating with friends, so much the better. Conversation seems to flow more freely as we sit around the table.

Jesus must have enjoyed eating, too. He was certainly a sought-after dinner guest in many social circles. He ate with Pharisees. He ate with publicans and sinners. He ate with Mary, Martha and Lazarus. He ate on the road with His disciples and at wedding feasts. In fact, those who hated Him accused Him of being a glutton and a drunkard. Jesus ignored the gibes and continued to share meals and conversation with those who invited Him to eat.

It is no surprise that He placed special importance on His last meal with the disciples. It was at this supper that Jesus gave His disciples—and us—a new commandment, "Love one another, even as I have loved you." We pledge this love as we meet with other Christians around the Lord's table for Communion. As we love one another, we proclaim the Lord's death until He comes again.

PRAYER
God of Love, on this special day, we renew our love for Thee and for one another. Through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Christ's new commandment means new life.—Betty Harmon (Iowa)

FDA Removes U-80 Insulin from Market

U-80 Insulin, a strength of insulin taken by roughly 200,000 people, has been removed from the market by the Food and Drug Administration.

As of March 24, the FDA failed to certify U-80 strength insulin preparations. Persons using U-80 insulin need to switch to U-100, an insulin of higher concentration. The use of U-100 insulin results in reduced volume needed for injection, resulting in reduced discomfort from the injection. It will also reduce potential error.

Persons now taking U-80 insulin should contact their physicians, pharmacist or diabetes instructor at any hospital in the area for complete information before making the change. It is extremely important not to miss one dose of insulin.

Report Deadline Is Near

People receiving social security benefits who earned more than the annual exempt amount in wages or self-employment during 1979, have until April 15, 1980, to file an annual report of their earnings, a social security spokesperson said recently.

The 1979 annual exempt amount was $3,480 for people under 65 all of the year and $4,500 for people 65 or over. In general, a person has $1 in benefits withheld for each $2 of annual earnings over the exempt amount.

The annual report is used by the Social Security Administration to determine whether the person received the correct amount of benefits during 1979. If too much or too little was paid, any adjustment necessary is made after the annual report is received.

A special monthly test is used during a person's first year of retirement. Under this test, a person can receive a benefit for a month in which he or she did little or no work regardless of total annual earnings. This monthly test can be used only in the person's first year of retirement.

Most people who need to file a report should have received one in the mail. If a person did not receive a form, or lost or misplaced the one he or she received, additional copies of the annual report form can be obtained at any social security office. The address and telephone number of the nearest social security office can be found in the telephone directory.

The people at the office will be glad to answer any questions. They also have a leaflet, "If you work after you retire," which contains more information about the annual earnings test.

The annual exempt amount for 1980 is $3,720 for people under 65 and $5,000 for people 65 and over.

questions and answers

Q. My father has no income of his own and lives with me. He was 65 2 months ago. I think he may be eligible for SSI payments. If he is, will he get payments back to when he reached 65?

A. No. Under the SSI law, no payments can be made for months before a person applies. If your father thinks he is eligible for SSI, he should apply as soon as possible at any social security office.

Q. My mother recently underwent surgery. The doctor says she no longer needs medical care, so he's discharging her from the hospital next week. I think she should stay because she still needs help in getting in and out of bed and with walking. Wouldn't Medicare pay for this kind of care?

A. Care which is primarily for the purpose of meeting personal needs and could be provided by persons without professional skills or training—such as help in walking and getting in and out of bed—is considered custodial care. Medicare does not cover custodial care, even if the patient is in a hospital or skilled nursing facility or is receiving care from a home health agency.

Q. I've heard that I'll have to have a redetermination of my SSI payments. What does that mean?

A. The SSI law requires that each beneficiary's case be periodically reviewed to make certain that the beneficiary is still eligible for SSI and that his or her payment amount is correct. This review is called a redetermination. In some instances, the redetermination can be conducted by mail or telephone. But, in other cases, the beneficiary has to visit the social security office for an interview. The local social security office will notify you when it is time for your redetermination.

Q. I recently applied for an auto loan from a finance company. The person who took my application asked for my social security number. I didn't want to give it to her, but she said the company uses social security numbers for filing purposes. Is this practice legal?

A. Some non-government organizations use social security numbers for recordkeeping purposes. Such use is neither required nor prohibited by Federal law. Knowing your number, however, does not allow these organizations to get information from your social security records.

Q. When I retired last year, I arranged to have my social security checks deposited directly into my bank account. I'm going to move in a couple of months. I've already notified the bank. Should I notify social security, too?

A. Yes, you should, so that you will get any correspondence social security sends you. It's also a good idea to notify the post office and ask them to forward your mail.

Q. I've heard that I'll have to have a redetermination of my SSI payments. What does that mean?

A. The SSI law requires that each beneficiary's case be periodically reviewed to make certain that the beneficiary is still eligible for SSI and that his or her payment amount is correct. This review is called a redetermination. In some instances, the redetermination can be conducted by mail or telephone. But, in other cases, the beneficiary has to visit the social security office for an interview. The local social security office will notify you when it is time for your redetermination.

MSU Home Nutrition and Foods Course

Michigan State University will offer human nutrition and foods course 495 Independent Study in Gaylord this spring. The course, which may be taken for two graduate credits, two undergraduate credits or non-credit, is scheduled over four Friday evening and Saturday morning sessions to minimize driving and fit around work schedules. Dates are: April 18-19, May 2-3, May 16-17 and May 30-31. Times are set for 7:00 to 9:30 p. m. on Fridays and 9:00 to 11:30 a. m. on Saturdays.

Topics and faculty for the course were selected to reflect current issues and to involve experts in each issue area. Dr. Rachel Schimmel will address dental caries and use of weight reduction diets, Dr. Dale Romos will speak on obesity, Dr. Mary Zabik will highlight current knowledge in food additives and toxicology, Dr. Carolyn Lackey will cover infant nutrition and Dr. Kathryn Kolasa will evaluate dietary guidelines.

Persons who might find the course content particularly helpful include home economists, physicians, dieticians, nurses, dentists, health educators, dietary supervisors and others with an interest and some background in nutrition. There is no prerequisite for the course.

According to Susan Lambrecht, Iosco County extension director, a carpool for Iosco County participants will be arranged to minimize costs. Further information about course arrangements is available from the MSU Cooperative Extension Service in Iosco County at 362-3449, or from the MSU Regional Center, Northwestern Michigan College, Traverse City, MI 49684, or phone 616/946-7496. Registration deadline is April 10.

Leftovers Represent Money

Leftover cooked beef is money in the refrigerator so treat it with respect. It is an investment that pays the biggest dividend when used promptly while that popular beef flavor is at its best. When cooked beef is wrapped securely in plastic or foil and refrigerated, a second meal is well on its way.

"The stored beef assets will pay off in sumptuous style in a variety of entrees from hot sandwiches to enchiladas," says Retha M. Hankey, executive vice president for the Michigan Beef Industry Commission. When beefed up, a simple salad or a convenience rice product becomes a substantial luncheon dish.

Cooked beef can be combined with refrigerator or freezer staples to create dozens of different casseroles. Or let that leftover beef make a comeback in an appetizing pie.

Hankey recommends using leftover beef to compose and freeze TV dinners. That saves money, time and shopping trips. Simply assemble the beef, gravy and cooked vegetables in one sealed package, using a large square or heavy duty foil, and freeze. Place sealed package in a pan in moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake until heated through (30 minutes to one hour if defrosted; one hour and 30 minutes if frozen).

Code

The new code covers installation of all gas, oil, solid fuel and solar heating equipment in homes and commercial establishments, as well as air conditioning units, refrigeration systems, air handlers, duct systems, humidifiers, electronic air cleaners, ranges, incinerators and range exhaust fans. The code does not cover installation of "plug in" type humidifiers and other similar appliances, however.

Sterling expects that local inspections of installations could be provided initially by the three inspectors on his staff, but contractors present questioned if it was right for plumbing and electrical inspectors to handle the inspection of mechanical installations. Sterling felt that members of his staff were well qualified to handle the work.

City Mgr. Lowell Thomas of Tawas City said he was puzzled to hear some commissioners favoring state inspection of this new act, pointing out that communities of Northern Michigan have advocated home rule. He felt that enforcement of the mechanical code by the state would wipe out the county's inspection department. He said that if commissioners had not kept abreast of what had taken place at Lansing concerning the new mechanical code and that if this county does not like the code, then it should lobby in the legislature to change the law.

"But, looking at ramifications of the new law, maintaining local control of enforcement is best for our local people," said Thomas.

Several contractors chided the county's inspection department for considering the use of electrical and plumbing inspectors to enforce provisions of the mechanical code, but Thomas felt this was "grasping at straws for what the state did to us" and he believed that "back stabbing" at the local level should stop.

Sterling explained a fee schedule which he has proposed to the board of commissioners for enforcement of the code. Rather than adopt the flat fee of $55 to perform mechanical inspection in a new residence, Sterling proposes a flat fee under county inspection of $25. The base permit fee for other than new single residential dwellings under the state code is $20, but the county inspection department proposes to cut this fee to $10.

The fee schedule proposed by Sterling for other inspections—from installation of heating equipment to refrigeration and air conditioning—cuts the cost to home owners by more than one-half that proposed by the state.

Mrs. Ulman expressed the opinion that some inspections such as wood stoves in residences should be free, but Sterling pointed out that minimum fees were needed in order to make his department self-supporting.

A representative of the Oscoda-Ausable Township Fire Department emphasized that inspection of new heating equipment, particularly wood stoves, was necessary because of the large number of home fires being caused by improper installations.

Com. David George said he could not see the state hiring enough people to inspect installations in this county under terms of the new code, which "covers anything and everything."

He was one of the three commissioners voting in favor of a resolution two weeks ago asking the legislature to amend the code.

Terry Schanbeck, East Tawas plumbing contractor, pointed out that one of the biggest problems facing licensed tradesmen was the fact that they were often called upon to straighten out the work of furnace installations performed by home owners and "moonlighters." He did not believe this problem was addressed by the state code. He also felt that real estate brokers should not be allowed to sell a house unless it was brought up to state code, but Sterling pointed out this could only be accomplished through adoption of local housing codes.

Timothy Lappin and Robert Toska, local electrical contractors, expressed the opinion that inspection should be maintained at the local level, particularly since any delay in inspection at the state level would make home owners unhappy.

Some contractors felt that the county would be assuming a new liability for work performed under mechanical inspection, should there be any loss as the result of defective equipment or improper installation, but Sterling pointed out that any county inspection would not let any home owner or contractor "off the hook" and that such liability is always determined by a court of law.

A show of hands among those attending indicated that a large majority felt that enforcement should be handled at the local level—only one contractor was opposed to county enforcement.

The county board of commissioners is expected to reach a decision today on that matter.

LOOKING BACKWARD—

Community Building Gets 'Face Lift'

15 Years Ago— April 7, 1965—East Tawas Community Building, constructed during the early 1920s, is now undergoing a complete face lifting. When work is completed in late April, area residents will be surprised to see what a little more than $10,000 can do to renovate an old building. When the city acquired the former state park earlier this year, a $35,000 revenue bond issue was instituted by the city council and its park commission to finance work at the park and improvements at the old building.

Michigan State Highway Department will hold a public hearing on proposed right-of-way for I-75 between Alger and West Branch.

Roy Bergeron was elected justice of the peace over his Republican opponent, Vernon Pugh, in Tawas City's spring election. Bergeron is the first Democrat to hold city office in seven years.

Spring is here—Nino is back in his restaurant at 203 Newman Street, East Tawas.

25 Years Ago— April 7, 1955—Fire raged out of control for more than four hours and destroyed the Barnes Hotel in Tawas City, requiring the efforts of three fire departments to battle the blaze. Anthony DeFilippi, owner, said the building was a total loss and that he would begin immediate construction on a new hotel.

The post office at McIvor will be discontinued April 18, according to Postmaster Lloyd J. "Bud" Newvine. Box holders at the McIvor office will be served by the office at National City.

Nerita Hock and Sharon Czaika, with identical grade point averages of 3.63, are honor students at Tawas Area High School.

Albert Mallon, who has served more than 44 years as a boiler-maker and welder with the Detroit and Mackinac Railway, has retired.

E. H. Stickney, veteran supervisor of Oscoda Township, was defeated by Charles Smith, who ran on stickers.

Approval was given by the Tawas City Council for construction of a 60 by 45-foot concrete block building by Tawas Plating Company. At the same time, the council passed a resolution deeding a parcel of land 112 by 150 feet in the city-owned sewer disposal plant property for the new plant. This action was a

35 Years Ago—

April 6, 1945—Iosco County will have a new and modern frozen food locker plant within the next few months, according to an announcement made by Milton Sicard, who proposed to build one located in an addition to be constructed at the rear of the Klenow Market in East Tawas.

N. J. Crocker of East Tawas has purchased the Elms in Tawas City from Mrs. Mary D. Prescott of Cleveland, Ohio. Crocker plans to subdivide this beautiful property into a high class restricted residential section, both on the lake frontage and Lake Street.

Lloyd Thompson of Tawas City and Ray Jones of East Tawas caught 1,577 pounds of smelt near the Singing Bridge and the catch was purchased by the Henry Brown Fish Market.

Victor Roedle of Tawas City is recovering nicely from his recent appendectomy at Saginaw General Hospital.

SSgt. Joseph H. Whitney was given a battlefield commission to the rank of second lieutenant. He is a tank destroyer officer in the Third Army and has been in France, Luxembourg, Belgium and Germany. He is one of a number of Iosco County boys who have received commissions in recognition of their excellent work.

Discussion was held by the Iosco County Board of Supervisors concerning the legality of combining the office of register of deeds with that of the county clerk.

The Iosco Social Welfare Department has total disbursements of $3,824 for operation of the county farm infirmary during the past year. Salary increases of $12.50 each have been granted to the county farm manager and infirmary matron.

State Turkey Hunters Take to the Woods

Sixteen thousand hunters will try their skills on one of Michigan's newer hunting challenges this spring—the wild turkey, according to Susan Lambrecht, Iosco County extension director. Any such new challenge brings questions by both hunter and landowner. Answers to those questions on wild turkeys will be answered at the first Northern Michigan Wild Turkey Workshop to be held Sunday, April 13, at Kirtland Community College, Roscommon.

The event begins officially at 1:00 p. m. with the hour of 12 to 1 o'clock available for registration, viewing exhibits and films in the auditorium. A registration fee will be collected for miscellaneous expenses. Door prizes will be awarded. Adjournment is set for 4:00 p. m.

The program will feature turkey management, hunting forecast, hunting tips, use of calls, as well as other useful information on understanding this wily bird.

public to the investigative jurisdiction in areas of white-collar crime and public corruption as well as to publicize the hot line telephone number to the Detroit office and 12 resident agencies throughout Michigan.

Held Monthly Luncheon Meet.

The monthly luncheon meeting of Tawas Hospital Auxiliary was held Tuesday, March 25, at Genii's Restaurant with 48 members and guests attending.

During the business session, plans were discussed for the coming months. Tuesday, April 22, was set for the next luncheon meeting to be held at Ausable Inn, Oscoda, 12 noon.

Volunteers of Tawas Hospital will hold a meeting at the hospital Tuesday, April 8, 1:00 p. m. All members are urged to attend and bring an interested party.

Under the area of white collar crimes, the agency includes commercial fraud, public corruption and fraud against the United States government. Some examples of these crimes are payment of bribes to public officials, extortion by elected or public officials, abuse of federally funded programs, misuse of federal funds, Medicare-Medicaid fraud, fraudulent bankruptcies, misuse of union funds, confidence schemes or CETA frauds.

The Michigan hot line number is 313-965-2484. Calls will be answered by an experienced agent. The wishes of anyone to remain anonymous will be respected.

Here Comes The Bride

Young Couples Can Use Practical Gifts!

Since the age of liberation is upon us, it may be time to consider some new and different kinds of wedding gifts — gifts that may not be glamorous or beautiful heirlooms, but will be indispensable to the bride and groom as they set up housekeeping.

For instance — in order to set a good table and run a kitchen properly, they'll need a really good set of carving and chopping knives — the old-fashioned kind, with carbon-steel blades that'll hold an edge. A sharpening steel would be handy too.

Or, for the house or apartment, get them a good set of tools: a couple of hammers of different sizes, a monkey wrench, Stillson wrench, pliers, and screwdrivers. Or a power drill. Chances are they've both been making do with cheap tools, and not enough of them.

And for the car, if they have one — a set of socket wrenches. Perfect!

Financial guide for the bride and groom

Who's responsible for what in a wedding? The bride and groom each have a number of financial obligations — which, incidentally, balance out very well if they follow this simple guideline.

Obligations of the Bride

- The bride pays for:
 - Her wedding gown, headpiece and veil.
 - Her personal trousseau.
 - The gifts for her attendants (the attendants purchase their own gowns).
 - The bridal portrait.
 - All decorations (including the floral decorations) and music for the wedding and reception.
 - The attendants' bouquets.
 - The wedding photographs.
 - The wedding reception, including the fee for the place in which the reception is held.
 - The fee for the place of the ceremony.
 - The wedding cake.
 - The wedding ring for the groom.
 - The bride's personal wedding gift to the groom.

Obligations of the Groom

- The groom purchases:
 - The engagement and wedding rings for the bride.
 - The marriage license.
 - The bachelor dinner, if any is given.

- The bride's bouquet and going-away corsage, as well as corsages for both mothers and all boutonnières.
- The groom's personal gift to the bride.
- Attendants' ties and gloves, if the wedding is formal.
- The wedding trip.

A practical gift elicits longer-lasting gratitude

Have you ever noticed how many newly-married couples begin life together with a full complement of crystal, sterling silver, six hostess sets, a $1,000 stereo and no chairs? Practical things like chairs, mops, washers and dryers don't occur to most starry-eyed brides and grooms until a little later — when reality sets in.

Reality generally begins setting in after three or four trips to the coin-op. While a washer and dryer may seem like a terribly mundane gift, a heads-up groom-to-be or in-law-to-be may find the thanks for such a practical gift to be long-lasting and increasingly more sincere as time goes by.

Reality or a celluloid dream?

The bells have chimed, the rice has been flung, and you're off on your own to live happily ever after, right? WRONG!

The first days-into-months of marriage are probably the most exciting times that two people can share — days of wonder and learning and growing together. But the Hollywood image of flowers, champagne and perpetual bliss is unrealistic.

Only in the movies do women arise pink-cheeked and perfectly coiffed, only on film does a man shave without leaving any visible traces of lather or stubble in the sink.

As much in love as you may be, you must realize that marriage involves the readjustment of two very distinct personalities. But don't be discouraged, disappointed or angered — these are the challenges which true adult love learns to cope with and even laugh about good-naturedly.

After all, wouldn't it be boring any other way?

A HOME LAUNDRY PAIR may not compare to the glamour of a honeymoon in Acapulco, but it probably won't cost as much either. . . and will be around long after the last glow of suntan has faded.

The 'perfection syndrome'

If new brides share one fault above all in common, it is probably that of just plain trying too hard to be "the perfect wife."

The first months of marriage may find the newlywed woman caught up in a frenetic whirl of gourmet cooking and baking, French pressing, spit-'n-polishing — all done at the same time she is trying to adjust to her new spouse.

There is no real "cure" for this syndrome (which is not restricted to the female sex — you can be sure that the new groom is going through the same tortures in his self-imposed new roles of Don Juan, the Great Protector, Mr. Fix-It, Solomon, and the King of Muscle Beach!).

But it's a good idea for newlyweds to remember that no one in the world can (or will!) expect these towering heights of perfection, and he or she who adjusts slowly and reasonably will not be filled with guilt when the soufflé falls or the new shelf comes crashing down.

A HAPPY MOMENT . . . and a happy harbinger of greater joys together. She has selected Alfred Angelo's lace-patterned gown with subtly belted sleeves and mantilla-inspired headdress. His Seville tuxedo in ice blue is new from After Six. Cut along European lines to flatter young American physiques, this formal and all his accessories reflect a color harmony that makes it the wedding style of the year.

Annual Concert

Iosco-Wurtsmith Singers' annual spring concert, under the direction of James T. Alexander, will be presented Tuesday, April 22, 7:30 p. m., at the Oscoda Area High School and again on Sunday, April 27, 3:00 p. m., at Tawas Area High School.

Theme for the concert this year is "Singers Present Spring" and will be light and entertaining with selections from "The Music Man" and "South Pacific," and also some new John Denver songs. Sherry Dyer is the accompanist again this year.

Together with the Singers will be the appearance of the "Sweet Adelines" of Tawas area under the direction of Ruth Bergh.

The 1980 music camp scholarship winner will be introduced at the concert.

Tickets may be purchased from members and also at the door. Proceeds from ticket sales provide the scholarship at music camp for a deserving young person from the Oscoda-Tawas area.

Follow in a queen's footsteps

The first bride to succumb to the allure of a platinum set engagement ring was Queen Alexandra of England. It was her love of fine jewelry that prompted her to command that even the crown jewels be set in platinum.

While today's bride may not have an assortment of gems to be concerned about, she should opt for the very finest of jewelry metals when choosing her diamond engagement ring or wedding band.

Off to the right start . . .

Healthful, elegant feast for 'new two'

Getting a new marriage off to the right start may involve intelligent meal-planning. As a new wife who wants to keep her husband happy, elegant as well as nutritious meals are important and a good beginning.

But planning meals for two can present a problem, since preparing smaller portions and finding suitable recipes is not easy.

The makers of Wheatena cereal have created a menu which is perfect for your romantic dinners—for two and light on your budget, too.

The wholesome, nutty flavor of the cereal, an uncommon addition to an evening meal, provides the dietary fiber you should be incorporating in your daily menu plans.

So be smart and cook nutritious meals—you'll both benefit!

Preheat oven to 400°F. Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Combine oil, egg and milk. Add oil mixture to sifted dry ingredients, mix only until well-blended. Stir in Wheatena and raisins. Fill greased muffin cups $\frac{2}{3}$ full. Bake approximately 25 minutes, or until golden brown. Serves 2. Serve hot with butter and strawberry jam. Yields 6 medium-sized muffins.

SIGI'S SUCH STUFFING

- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup dried green pepper
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter or margarine
- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup Wheatena cereal, uncooked

Add meat and mix until well-blended. Shape into a large ball, flatten slightly. Bake in 350°F. oven for 1 hour or until tests done. Serve hot, with green vegetables and salad. Serves 2. Melt butter in a 10 inch skillet, saute onion and pepper until tender. Combine Wheatena, egg, broth mix, pepper and water. Add slowly to onions and mix well. Let mixture come to a boil, turn heat to medium and continue to cook, stirring constantly until thick about 5 minutes or to desired consistency. Serves 2. Serve hot. Any leftovers can be used again by adding a small amount of water and reheating.

The 'king of cheese' brings cooking ease!

Most newlywed couples are eager to set up house and start entertaining all their friends and relatives, sharing the joys of their new life together.

But more and more newlyweds are also "two-paycheck households," with both partners working and little time left for the elegant dinners they would love to hold—if only someone were home long enough during the day to properly mix the Hollandaise!

There are ways, however, that working husbands and wives can prepare for some lavish entertaining without hours of preparation in the kitchen.

Just the right touch of Roquefort cheese, for example, can turn a last-minute meal into a truly elegant affair. Serve Roquefort as a before-dinner appetizer, as an elegant addition to souffles and omelettes, or for dessert with fresh fruit and crusty french bread. Even simple fare becomes "gourmet" when you add Roquefort cheese.

ROQUEFORT DRESSING
2 tablespoons crumbled Roquefort cheese

- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sour cream
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon chopped parsley

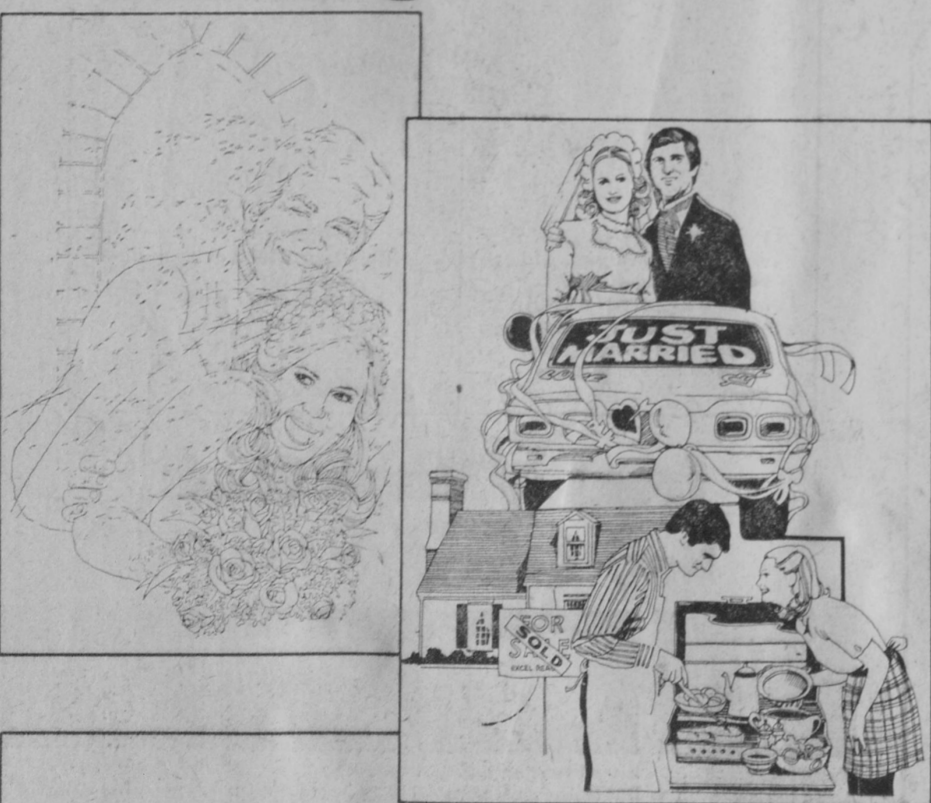

Place Roquefort cheese in a bowl. Gradually add all remaining ingredients, stirring with a wooden spoon until well blended. Serve over your favorite green salad.

POTATOES ROQUEFORT

- 6 Idaho potatoes
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup firmly packed Roquefort cheese
- $\frac{1}{4}$ cup heavy cream salt and pepper to taste
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup bread crumbs
- 3 clove garlic, mashed
- 3 tablespoons melted butter

Bake potatoes at 350° for one hour. Slice off tops and scoop out potatoes. Reserve shells. Mash potatoes and add Roquefort. Gradually beat in cream until potatoes are light and fluffy. Season to taste with salt and pepper and set aside. Mix bread crumbs, garlic and butter together in a separate bowl. Fill potato shells with the potatoes, Roquefort cheese and cream, top with bread crumb mixture. Bake at 350° until brown (about 20 min.)

Modern bride breezes through housework with a little help from modern technology

Some things never change . . . and then, some do. Time was that a bride-to-be would receive a crash-course from mother and other well-intentioned relations filled with all sorts of homemaking tips.

Well, mothers and daughters still share remedies for household ills, but nowadays it's not unusual for younger misses to be keeping moms up-to-date on the newest conveniences and devices available for making housekeeping easier.

For example, years ago cooking grease was one of the biggest problems homemakers faced in the kitchen.

It seemed that no matter how much a person scrubbed and scoured a pot, the grease would just sit there. This led many women into the practice of keeping two sets of cookware — one for regular cooking and baking and a second set reserved for frying.

Modern women know this isn't necessary.

They've discovered that grease is no longer a problem when they use Grease relief® degreaser to help clean up greasy messes. Some degreaser sprayed onto greasy pots, pans and other surfaces cuts through grease so that it can practically be rinsed away.

Modern technology has helped make homemaking easier than it ever was before, and we can all be thankful. After all, with today's smaller kitchens, who has room to store two sets of pots and pans!

THE GROOM AND BEST MAN stand-outs in the Bentley, a new, framed tuxedo with the texture of silk shantung from After Six, Inc. The tone on tone embroidered and ruffled shirt in white coordinates with the Bentley's colors of bamboo beige, canton blue, jade green and rice white. The matching tie with satin doeskin knot, tops perfection. The men of the wedding party are the keystone to completely color coordinated weddings that make the occasion a colorful and memorable one. The fondest memory of course will be that of the bride in her Alfred Angelo gown in chantilly lace and imported organza. The high neckline coupled with long sleeves, chapel train, and pleated insert make the bride unique for spring '78 nuptials.

EMTA's Summer Guide Now Ready

The new "East Michigan Summer Travel Guide," 128 pages of vacation and travel ideas, is ready for distribution, according to the East Michigan Tourist Association. This annual publication is EMTA's largest and contains both a written and pictorial layout of the recreation and vacation appeals in the 26 counties making up the eastern tourist region of the state.

The summer travel guide is divided into four sections which tell the tourism story for the "Mid-Michigan Gateway," "Saginaw Valley and Thumb," "Lake Huron Shore" and "Northern Waters and Forest" areas. This form of presentation offers specific information of the area surrounding specific resort operations. A full color district highway map makes locating a resort area easy.

East Michigan is loaded with all kinds of recreational values. Over 160 advertisements present messages from resorts, restaurants, campgrounds, motels, sporting activities, boating, canoeing, fishing, golfing and hiking and the many resort communities throughout the region. The ways in which "happy days" can be enjoyed to the fullest is discussed at the beginning of the book. Vacation travel costs are included.

EMTA also shares in the pride of Michigan's deep rooted history. Dozens of major historical attractions and events are listed in the travel guide. By learning something about an historical site with the guidebook, visitors are better assured of having a favorable lasting impression of it. The guide offers the general background information that is needed.

This valuable "encyclopedia of vacation appeals" is available without charge from the East Michigan Tourist Association, 1 Wenonah Park, Bay City, MI. 48706. In the 517 area, a toll free call can be made by dialing 1-800-322-4825. For other areas, the number to call is 517-895-8823.

Lyrical creativity...

For planning wedding music: some hints for special touch

Simply telling the church organist to "play the usual" is becoming a thing of the past for bridal couples these days.

Whether ceremonies are traditional or modern, today's bride and groom are more likely to inject their own ideas into the wedding rites, especially when it comes to choosing the music and how it is performed, says the American Music Conference.

Because musical tastes of today are so varied, choosing just the right music to complement the "I dos" can be very creative and enjoyable. Here are some guidelines to consider when planning music for the ceremony:

- If the wedding is to be performed in a religious setting, consult with clergy or a music director to determine what types of music are allowed. Many churches, inspired by folk and rock masses, are eager to accommodate personal music choices.

- You may prefer to confer with friends involved in music. Keep in mind throughout your planning that the music should always support the ceremonial elements.

Resist the temptation to "fit in" musical selections just because you like them. No matter how beautiful or entertaining, if a song distracts from the ceremony, don't consider it.

- When choosing a song to be sung, evaluate the lyrics. Do they say what you want to be said? Some of the more contemporary selections such as Paul Simon's "Bridge Over Troubled Water," Pete Seeger's interpretation of the third chapter of Ecclesiastes, "Turn! Turn! Turn!" (To everything there is a season...) Or Arlo Guthrie's "Valley to Pray" are popular choices and complement the wedding service.

- If you choose the more traditional wedding selections such as the "Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's Lohengrin or the "Wedding March" by Mendelssohn, consider having them played by a unique grouping of instruments.

In combination with the organ or by themselves, guitars, brass or string ensembles, percussion and a variety of electronic instruments can offer a fresh approach to traditional wedding music and a new dimension to contemporary musical selections as well.

- Invite friends who can sing or play musical instruments well to participate. Often, the more "personalized" that you make the ceremony, the more meaningful it will be.

- Remember that it is better to keep the music simple and well done than complicated and poorly performed.

- One last suggestion: Position musicians and singers near the front and to the side where they can be heard but don't upstage the bride and groom.

Music thoughtfully planned and presented irresistibly invites all your guests to share this memorable occasion with you.

FLAME OF LOVE

The diamond, as we all know, is the most common stone used for an engagement ring. Ever wonder why? Contrary to Lorelei Lee, it's not because they're a girl's best friend! It is actually a tradition that dates back to early Italy where it was believed that the diamond was a stone born from the flames of love.

KEPT SPINNING

Back in the days of our great-great grandmothers, it was customary for the entire bridal trousseau to be hand embroidered. In fact, girls started at a very early age to "spin" and embroider the linens for their "hope chests." Those who never married continued to embroider and spin — hence the origin of "spinster."

From earliest times, pearls have been an important part of the bridal attire in almost every civilization. In the East, the pearl represented love, gentleness, purity and compassion — a tradition carried into every part of the civilized world.

Queen Nephretete of Egypt went to her wedding practically covered with pearls.

Royal brides continued to wear them, and for centuries, pearls were indeed the beautiful privilege of the noble and wealthy.

But with the discovery that pearls could be cultivated in live oysters, the custom of brides wearing real pearls came into greater prominence.

Today, pearls remain the favorite choice of brides throughout the world, whatever the style of wedding may be.

The bride need only select the type of cultured pearl jewelry which best suits her individual tastes and the style of her wedding gown.

The most important thing to consider is the neckline of the gown. A high round neck, for instance, can be adorned several ways. The newest is the multiple strand dog collar or cultured pearls. More traditional would be a single strand choker, which produces a demure look. The most formal would be a matinee length or opera length necklace, falling softly over the bosom.

The deeper, scooped neckline suggests a variety of cultured pearl necklaces, too. Again, the newest fashion is the high dog collar. The princess or matinee length strand of pearls is absolutely lovely. Most luxurious would be a bib of several strands of pearls, falling from the base of the throat to the top of the gown's neckline.

High standing collars call for a slightly longer strand of cultured pearls: matinee or opera length. Hang a brooch from it for a more striking effect.

You may think you have to forego wearing cultured pearls if your gown is heavily beaded, but this is not at all the case. The only thing you should not do is wear your real pearls directly on top of the imitation pearls sewn to your dress (it will look a bit overdone).

Then, too, your cultured pearl necklace can be worn in other places besides the throat. Your hairdresser can work them into your coiffure, an especially effective idea for brides with long hair.

You can even have your bridal consultant baste your pearl necklace to the edge of your head piece.

Sweet dreams ever after

IF YOU'RE LOOKING FOR A GIFT the bridal couple will enjoy and appreciate for many years—good bed pillows are the answer. The softest, most luxurious pillows in the world are those filled with down—the soft, shaftless fluffs from the breasts of ducks and geese. Pillows filled with a combination of down and feathers are firmer than down-filled ones. The more feathers in the blend, the firmer the pillow will be. All-feather pillows are the firmest of the naturals. Pillows are also made of polyester or foam rubber, and these tend to be firm. Down, feather, or feather and down-filled pillows usually cost more than synthetic ones, but they will last much longer. With all the choices available, you may want to ask the bride what type of pillows she and her fiancé prefer. This way you will be assured of giving a gift that promises comfortable sleep and sweet dreams.

an extravagantly beautiful bit of dressmaking that can be easily removed after the ceremony.

Either of these ideas combined with a pair of lovely cultured pearl earrings, will make you a more radiant bride.

Style is not the only thing to consider when selecting cultured pearls. You should also know what to look for as far as quality is concerned. As with any gem, the finest cultured pearls command the highest prices.

There are five basic factors that, combined, determine the quality of a strand of cultured pearls: size, shape, color, lustre and surface smoothness.

Any reputable jeweler will be happy to show you cultured pearl necklaces in a range of prices, and discuss the quality differences with you so that you will be sure of getting the best value for your money.

No matter what your final selection may be, you can rest assured that you have made the perfect choice in jewelry, for cultured pearls alone among all gems reflect and intensify that special glow that every woman feels on the most important day of her life... her wedding day!

Grown to be wed!

Every bride in the States carries flowers with her on her wedding day, but how many can say that they are carrying flowers that were planted especially for their wedding day on the day that they were born!

In Germany there are many young women who can make this claim, due to one of the loveliest ethnic bridal traditions of all.

When a baby girl is born in Germany her mother plants a tiny plant called a myte. This will be grown and nurtured until her wedding day when the flowers will be used to decorate her headpiece (they are usually woven into a crown). The groom also wears a sprig of the same myte in his lapel.

Alas! Times do change and progress takes its toll. In today's busy world, many German girls now wear artificial myte, with urban spread cancelling out the possibilities of a wedding plant for every newborn Fraulein.

Yet the spirit of the myte—a symbol of continuity, unity, and love as a beautiful living and flowering entity—will continue to add its special touch of grace to German weddings.

Eloping the mature way!

"Let's elope!"

These words bring images of hidden romance, ladders flung up to the window at night and a not-so-pleasant surprise for all the friends and relatives of the couple.

But, this need not be the case... eloping can be fun! That is, of course, if a few basic courtesies are followed.

There are many men and women who shudder at the thought of a large wedding ceremony.

Or perhaps some couples cannot understand investing such a great deal of money in a wedding which they could put to a much better use. For them, the decision to elope is the perfect solution.

The key to a happy elopement is in informing all friends and relatives of your intentions beforehand and receiving the parents' blessings. Then only the actual day of the wedding will be a surprise... and a happy one for all!
