Ann Arbor Planning Firm Starts City's Shoreline Study

Two representatives of an Ann Arbor planning firm hired under a state grant to conduct shoreline study, with emphasis on development of the mouth of the Tawas River, met Wednesday noon with Tawas City officials.

The firm of Beckett, Raeder, Rankin, Incorporated, has been retained to develop a plan which will be submitted to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources for future funding.

John M. Beckett and Allen Dines of Ann Arbor were here last week to conduct a preliminary recreational inventory of the city's park system, which is to be included in an overall recreational plan update.

Work is being rushed by the firm to prepare a preapplication by March 15. Public input is expected through publication of a recreational survey, along with a random sampling of home owners.

City Mgr. Lowell Thomas said the project began as a study of river mouth development, but the project's scope was expanded by the state to include a complete shoreline study.

Attending the noon luncheon held at Coyle's Restaurant were members of the city planning commission, parks and recreation board and chamber of commerce.

East Tawas Voters Approved Bond Issue by Wide Margin

East Tawas voters gave their overwhelming endorsement to a senior citizen housing project bonding proposal in Friday's special election.

The proposition to approve a $1-million dollar general obligation unlimited tax bond issue was approved, 341-55. The turnout represented 22 percent of the city's list of registered voters.

The East Tawas Housing Commission's action in seeking construction of a second five-floor apartment complex had been endorsed prior to the election by an ad hoc committee composed of businessmen and private citizens.

Besides the fact that additional apartments are needed to satisfy the demand for senior citizen housing, the ad hoc committee pointed out there would be no local tax increase with the general obligation bonds. The housing commission had received a guarantee from the Department of Housing and Urban Development that federal funds would retire the bonds.

Approval by voters places the housing commission in a good position to receive an excellent interest rate on selling its bonds.

Hopefully, construction bids will be received which are in the scope of the bonding. The housing commission has given assurances that it will not expend any more money than required for the project and, if the bonds will not be sold.

City Manager Thomas Presents His Project Priorities for Council Study

A list of projects and priorities for 1980 and beyond was presented Monday night to the Tawas City Council by City Mgr. Lowell Thomas. The preliminary draft is to be studied by the council during the next two weeks for consideration of revisions and final adoption January 28.

Twelve capital improvement and 11 administrative projects were listed by the city manager, who gave each project a priority code (critical, important or desirable) and listed financial qualifiers to include federal-aid funds, local tax funds or private funding.

Under capital improvement, ongoing projects, a shoreline use plan and fishing pier developments, were listed as critical.

Rivermouth development was listed as critical and requires state-federal funds, but dropped in the timetable to 1981-83 should only local funds be available. The same was true for industrial park development, bridge reconstruction, wastewater treatment-sewers and acquisition-relocation of Brooks Auto Parts. The last three projects had a priority code of desirable when feasible if only local tax funds are available.

Construction of a library-freestation had a critical priority for 1980-81 under local tax funds, commercial renewal and improvement had a priority code of important for 1981-83 with a combination of federal-state and private funding, annexation of additional land area had a 1981-83 priority, motel-restaurant-convention facilities had a 1981-83 priority with private funding and lakefront control and development had a priority of desirable when feasible.

Administrative changes receiving critical priority included required sewer connections, meter all water users, update and printing the zoning ordinance and comprehensive personnel policy.

Receiving a second priority was a pay and position classification plan, revision of the subdivision ordinance and street specifications, updating and codifying all ordinances, adoption of a modified accrual accounting and budgeting system, vehicle and parking ordinance.

Items given a third priority were adoption of a city policy book and adoption of a self-insurance fund for unemployment compensation.

In other business, minutes of the zoning board of appeals indicated that a variance had been granted to Arthur Ziehl for expansion of his greenhouse. Two objections to the variance were received and expansion was permitted by unanimous action of the board.

Iosco Sheriff Gives Annual Report

A total of 1,321 traffic citations were issued by Iosco County Sheriff's Department road patrols during 1979 on county roads, state trunk lines and city streets.

Sheriff George Westcott said Monday that this information, contained in the department's annual report, should tend to get some of the criticism heard last week from a member of the county board of commissioners.

The sheriff emphasized, however, that his department was not getting involved in competition with other police agencies concerning issuance of citations for traffic violations.

"Officers of all departments are trained to use their own judgment in regard to citations," he stated.

Oscoda Township, the largest governmental unit in area, had the highest number of traffic citations from the sheriff's department with 254 on county roads and 48 on state trunk lines. Plainfield Township, the second largest unit in land area, was next with 126 citations issued on county roads and 88 on state trunk lines.

A detailed report of traffic violations from the remaining units, listing county roads first and state trunk lines second, is as follows:

Alabaster Township, five and 31; AuSable Township, four and 10; Baldwin Township, 22 and 53; Burleigh Township, 22 for each; Grant Township, 71 and 23; Reno, 15 and 76; Sherman Township, 23 and four; Tawas Township, 48 and 25; Wilber Township, 14 on county roads.

The sheriff's department provides patrols to Tawas City under contract and 87 citations were issued on city streets and 175 on trunk lines. The department issued 13 citations on city streets.

No Surprise—Iosco County's General Fund Ends in 'Black'

As projected in November by County Treas. Edward Nelkie, Iosco County's general fund ended the year December 31 with a balance of $15,462.54.

Nelkie and County Clerk D. Keith Papas said that outstanding bills remaining from 1979 would balance the surplus and from $40,000 to $50,000 in state revenue sharing money is expected to cover any settlement to be paid on the 1979 contract with deputy sheriffs.

Nelkie told commissioners he had again called Lansing during the week in an effort to learn the exact amount of revenue sharing money which could be expected by the county. He said the figure was not available.

This money, representing state income tax payments returned to county governments, was due in November. The payment was delayed due to the fact that the legislature made a large appropriation to the Silver Dome at Pontiac.

In accordance with the recommendation of the treasurer, the commission is to advertise for the services of a certified public accountant to audit federal revenue sharing funds received by the county. This audit formerly had been provided by the state, but counties must now pay the cost of the service. The commission adopted a resolution authorizing the county treasurer to use his judgment on depositing and investing county funds in local financial institutions paying the highest rate of interest.

Nelkie reported that the medical care facility ended the year with $35,980.15 in its fund. The Iosco Department of Social Services indicated two weeks ago that it planned to return $10,000 of its surplus to the county general fund.

In other business, the board of commissioners directed the county planning commission to explore all possible solutions to the disposal of solid waste in this county. The report, to be submitted to the board of commissioners within 90 days, is to include the estimated cost of solid waste disposal and a recommendation as to a possible source of funding.

During discussion, David George, county finance chairman, expressed the belief that the county would be without funds to finance its present contract with Multi-County Landfill effective in September.

The board authorized its chairman to execute a settlement agreement between the county, Sheriff George Westcott and Maxwell Garnett in regard to the severance of employment with the sheriff's department.

Commissioner James Stech was appointed to represent the county on a special Oscoda Township committee which is studying the economic impact on the county should Wurtsmith Air Force Base close sometime in the future. Other members of that committee include Robert Foster, William Christman, Bernard Bergeron, Robert D. Hodges, J. B. Smith, Leslie E. Canaan, James W. Reynolds, Opal Ferrebee, Raymond Andrus and Ralph Ferber.

The Rev. Royce Walden and David O'Farrell were reappointed to the Iosco Transit Corporation.

Bay Cityan Killed in Iosco Crash

A 20-year-old Bay City man was killed and two companions were injured late Saturday night when a four-wheel drive vehicle went out of control on Indian Lake Road and smashed into a clump of oak trees.

Pronounced dead at the scene was Terry G. Hoerauf, who was a passenger in the vehicle. Injured and treated at Tawas Hospital were Jack L. Behmlander, 22, driver, and Kevin L. Eickmeyer, 21, both of Bay City.

Investigating sheriff's department officers said that Behmlander lost control of his vehicle and it rolled, end-for-end, 2½ times before landing upside down. Two of the men were pinned under the vehicle.

Hoerauf was pronounced dead by Dr. James Jacques, county medical examiner.

Officers learned from the driver that the trio had been staying the week-end at a cabin off Essex Road, Grant Township.

IT LOOKED like a bright spring day when this picture was snapped last week in the Hale business district. There was no snow on the ground until a storm hit the area Sunday, which was a welcomed relief.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Snow Arrives in Time; Hale Week-End Program is 'Go'

Members of Hale Chamber of Commerce crossed their fingers last week and it paid off. A fall of three or four inches of snow probably saved the organization's fourth annual Hale Winter Carnival January 11, 12 and 13, although some program adjustments may still have to be made in case the blanket of white is insufficient.

A program is being planned regardless of the conditions.

Sunday's storm, the first of the season, was accompanied by a high wind which piled the snow high in some areas while leaving some roads and fields barren.

According to an announcement last week, snow or no snow for snowmobiling—there will be a poker run on Saturday, January 12.

"Without enough snow for snowmobiling, the poker run will be held by auto, horse, motorcycle or any other method of travel, using the same rules, the same locations and the same prize money split," stated the announcement.

The program starts Friday, January 11, with a spaghetti dinner. A dance is to be held Saturday night, January 12, at the township hall.

Activities on Sunday, January 13, include a cross-country ski meet. If there is no snow, there will be no meet. A snowmobile drag race is also scheduled for January 13, but snow conditions will dictate if the event is to be held.

The same is true for the ice sculpturing contest. Without enough snow for the artists, the prizes are to be withdrawn. A decision on holding the contest is to be made by Wednesday, January 9.

East Tawas Considering Return of Parking Fines in Residential Areas

In an attempt to mend some fences, East Tawas Council instructed the chief of police Monday night to ask the city attorney for an opinion on the legality of returning fines to residential property owners, whose vehicles were ticketed for ordinance violation.

During December, the police department issued 52 summonses and 25 warnings to owners of vehicles violating the city ordinance which prohibits parking on city streets between the hours of 3:00 to 6:00 a. m. Ordinance violators in residential areas begrudgingly paid a fine of $3 each.

The ordinance was adopted a number of years ago to permit plowing of snow on streets by the department of public works. Signs warning of the ordinance are posted throughout the city.

Although the ground had been barren of snow until Sunday of this week, the police department suddenly began ticketing vehicles violating the ordinance in late December.

Numerous complaints were received from citizens that no prior notification had been given that the ordinance was to be enforced, although Police Chief Donald Docking stated Monday night that notification had been given. Among those ticketed were at least two members of the city council.

In some instances, automobiles ticketed were located a considerable distance from the street surface but were still within the street right-of-way.

"All persons present at the meeting were in agreement that vehicles parked in the business area in violation of the ordinance should be ticketed, but it was generally felt that some reasonable approach should be made concerning residential areas," stated City Clerk Clyde Soper.

The council is to await word from the city attorney before making a final determination as to returning fine money paid by ordinance violators in residential areas.

In other business Monday night, the council accepted the annual audit of city books. It was decided to adopt a peg board system of maintaining books of the water and sewer department.

Appointed to the city board of election canvassers were Clara B. Bolen and Neal R. Miller.

Perchville Program Being Readied

As the 30th annual Perchville-USA Festival approaches on February 1, 2 and 3, Tawas Area Chamber of Commerce is making plans for a program bigger and better than before. The emphasis is toward children and fishing.

More complete program details are to follow, but it announced this week that applications are now available at the chamber of commerce office for entries in the Perchville queen contest. (An entry blank is printed on page 5 of this section.) The queen is to be selected January 26 at a luncheon to be held at Lixey's China House.

Remembering the excellent results of last year, the chamber hopes to double entries in the ice sculpturing contest. Prizes totaling over $200 will be awarded for the best in four divisions, as well as a grand prize. Arrangements are being made to hold an evening class in ice sculpturing. (Turn to page 2 of this section for official entry blank.)

Editorial— Time to Stop the Bickering

On at least two occasions last year, this corner urged elected officials at the county building to "bury the hatchet" and demonstrate a cooperative effort in solving some of the financial and personality problems which have raised an ugly scene during recent months.

This same recommendation—one might even call it a plea—is again passed on to those involved, especially since the good name and integrity of the county is being blackened by insistent name calling by both "sides." In actuality, there are no "sides" involved as all elected or appointive officials are working for the public.

As an example, one aggrieved member of the board of commissioners took his case to the public last week with a letter which cited certain figures in the sheriff's department budget. A comparison of budgets for the past two years clearly indicates that the commissioner actually made some misstatements in presenting his views.

It is not the intent of this editorial to criticize the information presented by the commissioner, but there does come a time—especially during an argument—when it is best to leave things unsaid or at least have the facts correct.

Heads of the various departments of the county elected by the people are directly responsible to the voters for operating those departments; members of the county board of commissioners, too, are elected by the people and have legal responsibilities to carry out to the best of their ability.

This corner does not believe it is too much to ask all of those involved to sit down and iron out past difficulties which have arisen between the departments and the board of commissioners. Constant bickering and the pointing of fingers at one another will not solve the problem—only mutual cooperation and understanding will remove the current odious atmosphere among officials elected who serve the public.

(Read Psalm 23)

"In returning and rest you shall be saved; in quietness and in trust shall be your strength." (Isaiah 30:15 RSV)

More and more I am finding it a pleasant experience to ride a bicycle. The local hospital is only about a mile and a half away and I have been using my bike as transportation to and from there. To get to the hospital, I must pedal up the gentle grade from the church; my physical energies are tapped in the process. Once inside visiting with patients and families, I find that my mental and spiritual energies are tapped as well.

Leaving the hospital, I am often thankful for coasting the downhill grade back to the church. It is refreshing to know that in God's universe we do not need to pedal all the time. Every day needs some coasting time. Thank God!

Highlights And Sidelights

Warn of Heating Stove Danger

The fire marshal division of the Michigan State Police, in cooperation with the Michigan Fire Chiefs Association, the Michigan State Firemen's Association and the mechanical division of the Michigan Department of Labor, want state citizens alerted to what they regard as an increasingly dangerous trend in heating with solid fuel appliances.

Robert J. Fisher, fire chief of Midland and president of the MFCA, states, "The number of fire calls related to woodburning stoves and fireplaces is increasing with such frequency that fire chiefs across the state caution everyone to take additional care in the operation and maintenance of woodburning stoves. People should be especially careful of creosote buildup in chimneys. The state fire chiefs are vitally interested in preventing such fires."

Gary McGregor, fire chief of Clare and MFA president, urges people who own woodburning stoves and fireplaces "to seek information on the care, maintenance and operation of them through dealers, Michigan State University Extension Services, insurance agents, the Michigan Energy Administration and local fire departments. Do not become complacent; attempting to save money by burning wood could cost much more in the loss of home and family."

State-wide fire incident statistics show the number of woodburning related fires increased substantially from 463 in the 1977-78 heating season to more than 759 in the 1978-79 season. This upward trend is seen to be continuing at an even greater rate this season.

Up to late December in this season, 11 woodburning related deaths have been reported compared with three deaths for the entire 1978-79 heating season.

WASHINGTON

By U.S. Senator Carl Levin

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The heart-wrenching tragedy of the American hostage situation in Iran may turn out to be a very disguised opportunity.

The events in Iran, to some extent at least, characterize the volatile Middle East. And the Iranian assault on our nation should make us think hard and about the wisdom of having this country's energy lifeline tied to Middle Eastern oil.

As Iran and the oil embargo of 1973 have shown, this nation mortgaged its future — and the note is held by nations who are willing to foreclose if our policies conflict with their interests.

The Iranian students may have finally taught us a very hard lesson: must become energy independent.

We must either take action to control our own future, or we must surrender our destiny to the control of those who own the resources that have powered us in the past.

The country has delayed taking effective action for most of a decade. We have slipped and stalled, trying to retain our footing in a pool of quicksand. We have been unable to summon the national consensus and unity needed to find a new path into future energy independence.

But the response to Iran created, for the first time in a generation, a sense of national outrage. If we can harness that outrage before it slips away, we can secure the promise of an independent future.

The opportunity coincides with the lifting of federal oil regulations giving windfall profits to oil companies. While the companies can still take a large share of the profits to find more oil, the public needs a portion to fund a shift from imported oil to resources such as coal, solar and wind energy, hydropower, gasohol and synthetic fuels.

We also must invest in conservation. Conservation is the cheapest way to cut energy consumption and the federal government offers tax credits for conservation efforts.

At least 15 percent of the first $2,000 spent on such energy-saving devices that go on furnaces, water heaters or chimneys can be credited against your federal income taxes.

Also up to $2,200 in tax credits is available for investment in renewable energy sources, such as sun and wind energy.

For more information, you should call the Energy Extension Service, its toll-free number, 1-800-292-4704.

Any home built before 1973, and many built since then, were designed in an era when energy costs were one-tenth of what they are today. Homeowner can cut energy use by at least half using the insulating techniques available on the market today. You should ask your utility company to do a free energy audit of your home.

I also suggest two manuals, "The Energy-Wise Home Buyer" for $1.70, and "In the Bank... or up the Chimney?" for $1.70. The manuals, written and published by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, available through the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81001.

Another major thrust for America is synthetic fuels. But synthetic fuels will not heat our homes or fuel our cars any time soon. They are a hope of the future. Conservation is the best bet for today.

One of the most promising of the energy alternatives for Michigan is gasohol, a blend of one part alcohol and nine parts gasoline. It is a particularly good alternative for Michigan because plentiful Michigan corn, potatoes and other products can be used to make the alcohol in gasohol.

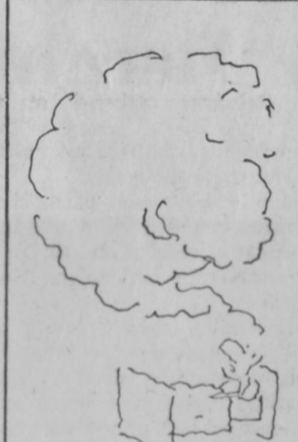

And while it costs more today, gasohol has the advantage of providing to 5 percent better mileage than regular and no-lead gas.

The gasohol mixture should be a part of the mix of approaches we take to solve the energy problem. We must continue private oil exploration and development of other domestic natural resources and use of public incentive for energy conservation and alternative energy research and development.

Western civilization is said to be in decline. The truth of that claim is not tested as we try to deal with our energy crisis.

We cannot allow ourselves to be hostages to the oil producing nations of the world.

Iran has highlighted the need.

Pollution reduced with marine disposal system

As the world works to overcome environmental pollution, the maritime industry in just a few months will take a major step toward controlling sewage disposal at sea. The solution? Floating sewage treatment plants called marine sanitation devices—MSD's.

Industrial technology has effectively solved the problem of what to do with human waste on ocean vessels. Several concepts have been developed, which now permit sewage to be completely treated on-board, and discharged directly overboard as pure, clean effluent.

MSD systems are so advanced that the U.S. Coast Guard, enforcing regulations mandated by the Environmental Protection Agency, has established Jan. 30, 1980 as the deadline for vessels in U.S. navigable waterways to have certified MSD's on-board.

The pollution control requirement extends to ocean-going vessels such as tankers and freighters, as well as tugboats, workboats, fishing craft, even offshore drilling rigs.

One of the most popular marine "sewage treatment plants" is the Microphor flow-through biological type system.

The company, located in Willets, Cal., has supplied MSD's in various sizes to more than 170 marine operators throughout the world.

Microphor's commercial marine devices have no moving parts, do not consume energy, require minimum maintenance and are simple to install. The system was certified by the Coast Guard back in 1976 immediately after the regulations were passed.

The Microphor system is 100 percent biological, and utilizes bacteria sewage digestion. A patented treatment process "digests" and "filters" waste matter until it surpasses U.S.C.G. discharge standards.

A gravity flow chlorinator treats the effluent until it is acceptable for pollution-free direct overboard discharge.

Effluent may gravity drain to a sump for pumping overboard. Effluent may also be pumped into a holding tank for discharge at a later time when a vessel checks into a port.

The Microphor system is simple to install. It attaches easily to the existing on-board sewage piping. Maintenance is minimal because there are no moving parts and the system is completely corrosion resistant.

Units are available in 18 sizes to accommodate crews of five to 100 people. Separate systems can be matched economically to a vessel's plumbing, and no re-piping is necessary.

John M. Mayfield, Jr., president of Microphor, emphasizes that the system's outstanding feature is its simplicity. "Our units are self-contained in box-like containers," he points out.

"During the treatment process, sewage is broken down and purified by simple, biological action. Effluent then passes through a chlorinator before it is discharged overboard," he says.

"Because our system operates in either salt or fresh water, we also manufacture marine sanitation devices for domestic pleasure craft," Mayfield adds.

He points out that similar Microphor sewage treatment systems have been used by the railroad industry since 1970.

Microphor also manufactures and markets "low-flush" toilets that use only two quarts of water per flush. The company has been at the forefront of the development of pollution control technology for a decade, reinforcing the concept that American know-how can successfully meet the many challenges of the environmental age.

Products developed by Microphor have received approval or certification by the National Sanitation Foundation, U.S. Coast Guard, Environmental Protection Agency, International Association of Plumbing and Mechanical Officials (Uniform Plumbing Code), Southern Building Code Congress International (Standard Plumbing Code), Building Officials and Code Administrators (Basic Plumbing Code), and the Association of American Railroads.

Americans Consume 400-Million Pounds of Popcorn

Even though popcorn was served at the first American Thanksgiving, the popcorn business started "popping" when moviegoers discovered popcorn and movies were a great combination. Today, popcorn is sold in 99 percent of all movie theaters.

About 85 percent of all popcorn is consumed at home and is a favorite snack for dieters. Two cups of popcorn contain only 110 calories! Americans consume approximately 400-million pounds of popcorn each year, with more than 7.2-million pounds produced in Michigan, according to the Michigan Department of Agriculture. Michigan is ninth in the country in popcorn production.

Here are some tips for popcorn connoisseurs on keeping and fixing this snack treat:

Store kernels in tightly sealed jars, preferably in the refrigerator. Inside each kernel of popcorn is a tiny measure of moisture. When the temperature is just right, this droplet turns to steam, builds up and explodes 30 to 40 times its original size. Lack of moisture in a kernel can keep it from popping. If this happens, sprinkle on one tablespoon of water for each quart jar of popcorn, tighten the cap and shake it. Then, let it stand for a few hours.

For a different snack, try seasoned popcorn. Combine one package onion soup mix, one-half teaspoon each garlic salt and hickory smoked salt, one teaspoon seasoned salt with one-half cup melted butter. Pour over the popped corn and stir.

Cocktail popcorn is prepared by mixing one-third cup butter with one and one-half teaspoons salt, one small minced garlic clove and one-fourth cup minced chives. Pour mixture over popped corn and toss.

Health Warning: Pneumococcal Pneumonia Is Fifth Largest Killer

Why is Massachusetts one of the few states taking a major stand in the fight against the nation's fifth largest killer — pneumonia? The vaccine now available to help prevent pneumococcal pneumonia, the most common and severe form of bacterial pneumonia, is expected to lower the death rate from this cause in Massachusetts, where 130,000 high-risk individuals have already been vaccinated. But what about the remaining 60 million elderly and chronically ill Americans across our nation who are candidates for protection? Response in most other states to the vaccine has been poor, thus far.

Undoubtedly, many are not aware of the pneumococcal pneumonia vaccine that comes on the heels of adverse publicity surrounding the swine-flu vaccine. But experience with the pneumococcal pneumonia vaccine to date is that it has been generally well tolerated, though mild reactions at the injection site occur commonly, mild fever occurs occasionally, and serious reactions have been reported rarely. The vaccine is reported to be highly effective in inducing immunity against the bacteria that cause over 80 percent of pneumococcal pneumonia cases in the US. Furthermore, this is not a vaccine for "every man, woman and child in America." Only those over 50, and particularly over 65, or with a chronic debilitating disease such as bronchitis, emphysema or congestive heart failure, are considered to be at high risk from pneumococcal pneumonia. Patients, of course, are advised to consult with a doctor to determine whether the vaccine is right for them.

But high-risk patients in many states are apparently not being reached. A recent editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association commented on the low utilization of this new tool in preventive medicine, and attributed the problem, in part, to an apathetic attitude of the public toward vaccinations of all types.

In addition, many people have become complacent about pneumonia as a cause of death, confident that penicillin will wipe it out. This, unfortunately, is not always the case in many cases of pneumococcal pneumonia, damage done to the lungs is already so severe that antibiotics cannot save the patient. In fact, this disease causes some 54,000 pneumococcal pneumonia deaths a year in the U.S., Others who should receive according to the Surgeon General.

The success of the Massachusetts program has been credited mainly to the awareness and determination of that state's vociferous senior citizens. Let's not forget that pneumococcal pneumonia is still a serious disease, one that can now often be prevented.

Bay City Juvenile Caught Here With Burglary Tools

A Bay City juvenile apprehended with burglary tools in his possession was released into the custody of his father while awaiting possible probate court action.

Investigating officers from Iosco County Sheriff's Department said that the 15-year-old boy, on probation from Bay County, was seen walking from the rear door of Brugger's Market late at night.

The youngster was apprehended near the store and was found to have two pry bars in his possession. He told officers that he intended to break into the store to steal some cigarettes.

During the past week, the sheriff's department investigated nine breakings and enterings, four larcenies and one vandalism complaint in the county.

Burglaries were reported by Joseph Harris, a cabin of National City Road, Grant Township; Charles Ritchie and Herbert Wilson, a cabin and a trailer on Partlo Road; Leon Putnam, a hunting camp on Partlo Road; Elizabeth Ashmus, Mrs. John Bradshaw, Patricia Ahls, cabins at Long Lake; Arlys Rorer, a dwelling at Sand Lake; Harry Peszko, a cabin near Hale.

Larcenies were reported by Robert Fournier, Tawas City, theft of two speakers from a car parked at Forward's Tire Center; Erich Wiese, East Tawas, theft of 12 four by eight-foot pieces of styrofoam insulation; Joseph Walters, National City, theft of a chain saw; Tawas Area School, theft of 20 gallons of gasoline from a bus parked at the home of the driver on Indian Lake Road.

The vandalism complaint was reported by Olive Lotridge, whose dog was believed to have been wounded by a shotgun blast fired by a passing motorist.

Braves Sneak by Cardinals, 59-45

Tawas Braves played minus the service of Kevin Grace Friday night and had a tough time defeating the visiting Whittemore-Prescott Cardinals, but managed to come out on the long end of a 59-45 score.

Sidelined with illness, the absence of the six-foot, five-inch Grace was a key to Tawas' trouble in turning aside the Cardinals, who are looking for their first win of the season.

Tawas racked up its first win in two Northeastern Michigan Conference starts, having lost to Pinconning in December, and after traveling to John Glenn last night (Tuesday), open a two-game-a-week schedule extending for about 1½ months.

The Braves had four players scoring in low double figures and the sharp eye of Jim Gracik, who came off the bench to fill the gap in the Tawas lineup, meant the difference in the game. Gracik meshed six field goals and three foul shots to lead his team with 15 points.

The smaller Cardinals held their own throughout the game, led by a 16-point effort by Todd Horn and 11 points turned in by Jim Graham and erased an 11-point lead to come within one point of tying the game with a little more than a minute to go in the third quarter.

A shot from outside by Grant Mousseau gave Tawas a 35-32 lead with a minute to go in the third quarter and two charity tosses by Kraig Moffatt boosted Tawas' lead to 37-32 at the start of the fourth quarter.

Tawas put the game on ice in the final eight minutes when Gracik connected for four field goals, Jay Grabow meshed two from the floor, Moffatt and John Gardner each connected for field goals, Rick Mousseau added one, Brian Norton hooped two charity tosses and Jeff Wojahn added a pair of free throws.

Both teams were cold at the start of the game and Tawas did not reach the scoreboard until four minutes, 23 seconds, were gone in the first quarter when Moffatt meshed a pair of foul shots. Tawas held a 12-10 margin at the end of the quarter. The Braves went into the locker room with a 25-18 margin at halftime, but the Cardinal offense began to click in the third quarter to make the score interesting.

The preliminary game was won by Tawas, 58-43. The Junior Braves jumped off to an 18-5 lead in the first quarter and each team meshed 14 points in the second and third quarters. Tawas boosted its lead to two points with a 12-10 scoring bulge in the final quarter.

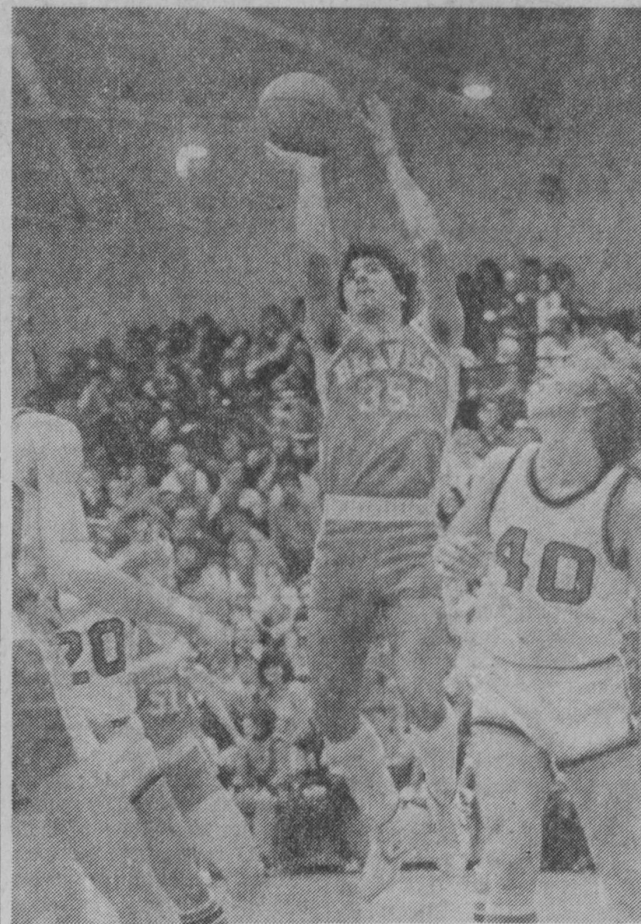

Scoring for Tawas were Tom Schriber, 17 points; Jon Dunn, eight points; Kelly Moffatt, Keith Harris and Mark Tousley, six points each; John Caplin, five points; Mark Jurczyk, four points; Jim Huck, Bill Dalbec and Rick Look, two points each. Tony Johnson paced the Cardinal Junior Varsity with 13 points and Gary Wangler meshed 12.

The Braves play host this Friday night to Standish-Sterling Central.

TC Council

A report by the city manager indicated that sample ordinances available did not include a time limit or bonding requirements for demolition of buildings. A review of the state building code with the county building and safety inspection department indicated that a demolition time limit does exist under the BOCA code. Possible revision of the county ordinance is to be considered which would include a bonding requirement.

The council adopted a motion to establish two sewer districts in the city. One district would include the First Avenue area where three remaining undeveloped lots would be required to pay a front foot charge as the cost of connecting to the sewer.

A report from the Michigan Liquor Control Commission indicated that an application had been received from Brugger's Foodland for a state SDD liquor sales license.

The city manager is to attend a conference of the Michigan Chapter of the International City Management Association January 30-February 1 at Ann Arbor.

The council approved an appropriation of $1,500 from the contingency fund to pay an additional cost on the Margo Street drain. Estimated cost of the project was $8,500 and the actual cost was $10,000.

Don't Go Out Without It.

March of Dimes Funds Enable Specialists to Reach Outlying Areas

Jon M. Aase, M.D., Associate Professor of Pediatrics, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque

It doesn't seem that New Mexico and Alaska have a lot in common. But they do. Both states cover immense territory and have thinly scattered populations. This is a problem when it comes to getting specialized medical care.

There are only three genetic counselors in New Mexico. Because the 1.2 million people there are so spread out, it's often impossible for many who need genetic services to get them.

To remedy this we bring diagnostic and counseling specialists to families who have a child with a birth defect. In New Mexico we started a program modeled after one with which I was involved in Alaska. Both have been supported by the March of Dimes, whose aim is prevention of birth defects.

We've set up 13 itinerant clinics in key population centers which our team visits once yearly. The team includes myself; Dr. Marshall Levine, an obstetrician-gynecologist; Dr. Stanley Handmaker, a pediatrician with a specialty in developmental disabilities; and Jo Cope, a genetics associate.

Patients Referred
We spend one day in each place, seeing patients who are referred by local physicians and public health nurses in the area.

Many of the youngsters are diagnostic puzzles. But by taking family health histories, and doing physical examinations and chromosomal and other laboratory studies, we can then make recommendations to the referring doctor as to treatment, therapy or possible surgery.

Perhaps the most important benefit is the support we offer. We provide parents with information about causes and outlook, and refer them to state-offered resources for additional help. In some cases we can allay their fears about recurrence of the birth defect in subsequent pregnancies.

A FORMER TEACHER on the Navajo Reservation in Duncan, Ariz., Elizabeth Whipple adopted Priscilla, Alexandra, Jeanne and Mary Katherine soon after their mother died. Most recently Emily Rose, age 4, and Adam, 1½, have been added to the family. Each child is handicapped, and requires special attention.

More than half our clinic patients live outside of Albuquerque, some outside of New Mexico.

Sisters Diagnosed
In 1976, at our clinic in Gallup, N.M., we saw four Navajo sisters from Duncan, Ariz. The children's mother was dead and they had been adopted by a former teacher. After physical examination and study of their family history, we determined that three of the youngsters had birth defects typical of fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS). The fourth child, the eldest, had inherited an eye problem.

FAS is a pattern of physical and mental defects which researchers have found in many children whose mothers drank excessively while pregnant. Although long suspected, alcohol has only recently been recognized as a cause of birth defects. Many physicians who are unfamiliar with FAS may diagnose it as "failure to thrive."

FAS babies are abnormally small at birth and tend not to catch up with normal growth rates. Many have small brains and show degrees of mental deficiency. Some have joint problems. Almost half have heart defects. Our diagnosis enabled us to recommend medical and educational attention these children need. Because the Navajo sisters are in such a good home, we feel each will develop to her fullest potential, even though that potential has been lessened by FAS.

Support and Assurance
Most important, we were able to assure the adoptive mother that there is no reason to suspect that the children will be alcoholic. Had she been their biological mother, we would also have assured her that subsequent children she might have would not be affected if she sharply curtailed her drinking while pregnant.

In many cases, the adage about bad news and good news is true. For parents of our clinic patients we often have bad news and good news. But for most of them it's better than no news at all.

Westcott Presided Over First Meeting

Mayor David Westcott presided Monday night over his first meeting of the Tawas City Council and three new council members, Florence Upton, Robert Pawloski and John Martin, officially took their seats around the council table.

Reorganizing under terms of the city charter, the council's first order of business was to elect a mayor pro tem. James Lansky, a member of the council since September 1971, was elected unanimously.

Lansky was nominated for the position by the mayor and Mrs. Upton nominated Martin. The latter nomination was withdrawn after Martin said he believed someone "with a little more experience" should fill the position.

The council readopted its 1976 rules of order to include one amendment approved August 20, 1978, which prohibits the start of any business at a council meeting after 10:00 p. m.

The mayor was named as the city's official legislative coordinator, working with the city manager. The position was recommended by the Michigan Municipal League.

Councilman Pawloski was named to the regional fire committee, which was established under the new fire contract with Alabaster and Tawas Townships. The supervisor of each township serves on the committee, along with one councilman, the city manager and fire chief. This group receives financial reports and makes budgetary recommendations. The next meeting is January 16.

On recommendation of the city manager, the council is to name a seven-member commercial development committee at its next meeting. This group would spearhead commercial improvement and renewal of the business district. The group would be composed of one planning commission member, four businessmen and two citizens to represent the city at large.

Council Agreed to Pay Sewer Engineering Cost

Tawas City Council agreed Monday night to pay the cost of engineering for a special sewer assessment district completed last year in the Elms Addition, but refused to have the city pay the entire cost of a construction deficit because of the possible setting of precedent.

A special assessment district was established last year to extend sewer into the southern end of Elms Addition between US-23 and Margo Street. The project was originally estimated by engineers to cost $38,000, but the council cut the project back on request of property owners and used an arbitrary estimate of $33,005.

On April 30, the council voted to assess the entire estimated cost of the project to abutting properties. After bids were let, approximately $3,500 worth of changes were made to expand the scope of the project through council action.

The final cost of the project came to $39,122.02 and the overrun was due mainly to the cost of removing ground water from the area during construction. The "dewatering" cost was estimated at $4,000.

Every member of the council expressed the opinion that the engineering consultant should have known of the high ground water table due to previous sewer construction experience in that area and that the cost should have been included in the original estimate.

City Mgr. Lowell Thomas said he felt there was some justification for the city to absorb the $6,000 extra cost, due to the fact that the council had authorized expansion of the project's scope after bids were received, plus the fact that the city paid for engineering and street crossings in other recent special assessment districts for sewers.

A motion by Upton to have the city pay the entire additional cost was withdrawn after considerable discussion. A motion was adopted unanimously approving city payment of $5,334.10 for engineering, with the remainder to be spread on the tax roll of the special assessment district.

Although the city had absorbed engineering costs on another sewer project, the council's resolution stated this latest action was not to be construed as setting a precedent. The $5,334.10 cost would be paid from sewer department revenue.

FOUR TEAMS OF HORSES are being used to clear snow off the ice before cutting began. This picture and others in this story were snapped in the bight of Tawas Bay and tell of a once important industry in this area.

Days of the Ice Box

BEFORE THE DAYS of modern refrigeration, natural ice provided the sole means of keeping foods and other perishables. The annual harvest of ice in Tawas Bay and inland waters of the county provided substantial employment in the area each winter. These pictures taken more than 75 years ago by A. G. Emery provide a graphic example of this once important operation. Today, the old-fashioned ice box which was once a common item in the home is a much-sought-after relic of the past and brings a high price on the antique market. Home owners, who daily had to empty a pan which caught the drippings from melting ice, were happy to make the change to mechanical refrigeration. In the process, an entire industry was made obsolete and has disappeared from the scene.

A MECHANIZED CONVEYER is being used here to move ice directly from the bay to a large shed on Tawas Point. Tawas Bay ice was noted for its purity and found a ready market in Michigan metropolitan areas. Use of ice harvested in the bay today would be hazardous to health due to pollution of the water of Saginaw Bay.

BUILDINGS insulated with sawdust were used to store ice. The wooden frame structures had double walls and the space between the walls was filled with sawdust. In packing the ice, each layer was protected by a covering of sawdust, which had to be washed off before delivery.

THE ICE MAN'S job was eliminated by development of mechanical means of refrigeration but, prior to World War II, at least two retail ice businesses were operating in the Tawas area. These two men posed with their ice tongs before the big studio camera of A. G. Emery.

ICE HAS BEEN CUT into large, uniform chunks and the men are using pike poles to move the chunks into position for removal from the water through the use of a team of horses in the background. Trainloads of ice were shipped to metropolitan areas each winter from the Tawas area and the industry provided employment for more than 100 men.

Calendar Tells of Seasonal Problems

Consumers who want to be forewarned about common seasonal problems can now get a copy of Michigan's 1980 Consumer Calendar released recently by the Michigan Consumers Council.
"Each month describes a problem consumers may encounter during the year," explained Executive Director Linda Joy. "It gives practical advice on what to do and where to go for help."
"For example, many consumers are in the market for home insulation in September," Joy said. "So, for that month, we suggest consumers look for the product label which tells how effectively the material retains heat."
"Perhaps more importantly, however, the calendar lets consumers know that our toll-free Consumers Council Guideline is available to counsel them on all types of consumer matters," Joy said. "They can simply dial toll-free 373-0947 in the Lansing area, 963-6806 in Detroit or 1-800-292-5680 in any other area of the state."
Consumers who would like a copy of the 1980 Consumer Calendar can write the Michigan Consumers Council, 414 Hollister Building, 106 West Allegan, Lansing, MI 48933, or call the toll-free Consumers Council Guideline. There is no charge for the calendar.

Inflation A Lot Like Weather

Inflation is a lot like the weather: It is easy to talk about but hard to do anything about.

There are some ways to ease inflation's squeeze on family finances, however. These will be explored in the series of six monthly newsletters, "Making End Meet," beginning in February.

The newsletters, developed by extension family resource management specialists at Michigan State University, are designed to help families cope with rising prices and shrinking dollars. The first issue will lay the groundwork for the rest. It will explain how inflation is affecting wages and prices, who is being hit the hardest, and how consumers are responding. Later issues will focus on ways you can cope with the rising costs of goods and services. These include reducing expenditures, raising income, sharing or trading skills and goods with others, increasing home production of goods and services, and sharpening shopping skills.

In order to make ends meet for Cooperative Extension, there is a small charge for the series. The deadline for subscribing is January 21. To find out how to get your name on the mailing list, contact Iosco County's MSU Cooperative Extension Service office today, call 362-3449, or write to Post Office Box 599, Tawas City, MI 48763.

Postpone Jan. 5 Trail Dedication

The formal dedication ceremony for two National Recreation Trails on the Huron-Manistee National Forests, originally scheduled for January 5, has been postponed.

Forest Sup. Wayne K. Mann said that the general lack of snow cover in the Lower Peninsula has made rescheduling of the dedication for these two winter-use trails necessary.

Both trails have existed for a number of years but only recently have had the distinction of being designated as components of the National Trail System.

Originally, the dedication of the Caberfae Way Snowmobile Trail and MacKenzie Touring Trail was planned in connection with the Cadillac Winter Snofari, which also has been postponed.

The new date for the dedication is now planned for late February or early March. Full details will be provided as soon as the dates are finalized.

Brings Word of God to Nursing Home Residents

Carrying the word of God as a missionary in foreign countries has been Virginia Martin's life. Today, she is following the same calling closer to home in Tawas City.

Miss Martin's 85-year-old father, H. B. Martin, has been a resident at the Provincial House skilled nursing facility in Tawas City for more than a year. Three times a week, Miss Martin and her 80-year-old mother, Mildred, make the trip from their home at West Branch to visit the nursing home.

When they go, they spend most of a day taking meals with Martin and accompanying him to various activities. In addition, Mrs. Martin usually plays the piano for residents and she and her daughter frequently visit other residents and bring them books, sometimes do personal shopping and volunteer in many ways to benefit others besides their own relative.

Once a week, Miss Martin leads a Bible study and hymn singing in the Provincial House dining room. Her mother accompanies her at the piano, and with her father sitting nearby, Miss Martin offers words of inspiration to the approximately 15 residents who usually attend.

The Bible class got underway, Miss Martin explains, when her father entered the nursing home a year ago last summer. For 20 years, Miss Martin was a missionary in Peru and Brazil and had come home three years ago to help her mother with her father's care after he suffered a stroke.

While her father was at home, Miss Martin drove him to Standish regularly for physical therapy. And when he was busy elsewhere in the hospital, she conducted Bible classes in the long-term care wing.

Miss Martin went to Brazil for a short time last year and during her absence, her father took a turn for the worse. Following a hospitalization, he went to Provincial House in Tawas City to receive the follow-up nursing care he requires.

"When I returned, he was here at Provincial House," Miss Martin recalls. "And he had told them I would have a Bible class here as soon as I got back."

The nursing home had recently opened then and was anxious to develop an activities program that would include religious events in addition to the regular church services that were being held at the home. In that way, Miss Martin's class was like an answer to a prayer.

"All my life, I have had a special interest in sick people and in older people," she says. That interest was heightened, Miss Martin adds, when her father became a Christian not so long ago.

"My father never had been interested in reading the Bible," she says. "But when he was 76, he received Jesus as his personal Savior and it was the greatest answer to prayer I ever had and one I waited longest for."

"His conversion inspired me to be more available for older people. I was so grateful to God for the transformation in my father that I dedicated my life to being more available for older people."

And that is what she is doing. The residents who attend Miss Martin's Bible class greet her with affection, listening attentively as she quotes and explains Scripture and singing enthusiastically their old favorite hymns.

Miss Martin says that she

VIRGINIA MARTIN greets Provincial House resident, Alberta Eppert, following the Bible class and hymn sing she holds at the nursing home every week.
