Pick Curry and Anderson for Board

Tawas School Voters OK Millage

Despite the current trend to reject special school tax levies, voters of Tawas Area School District approved a one-half mill tax Monday and established a sinking fund to use the money to repair and maintain buildings.

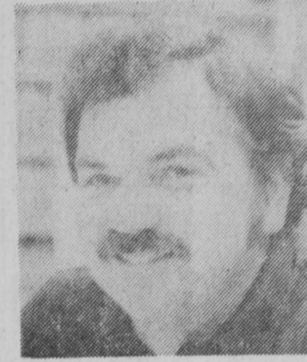

In addition, voters filled two vacancies on the board of education by returning Robert Curry to his second four-year term as trustee and named Richard Anderson to succeed Randall J. DeWise, who retires June 30.

The board of education received an excellent vote of confidence on the millage proposal, Proposition No. 1 to increase the levy by one-half mill was approved, 503-322, and the second proposal to establish a sinking fund was adopted, 515-318.

"On behalf of the students and staff, I would like to thank the voters of Tawas Area School District for their support in approving the creation of a sinking fund and one-half mill levy," said Supt. Allan Dighera following the tabulation of ballots.

ROBERT CURRY

"This will enable us to proceed in an orderly and prudent fashion to, hopefully, accomplish some of our maintenance needs that require attention. This vote, in the long run, will enable us to realize an economic saving in this time of spiraling inflation," he stated.

The board of education had emphasized prior to the election that the approximately $50,000 to be received annually through the tax levy would be earmarked strictly for maintenance and cannot be used for regular operational needs.

Although not a renewal in the legal term, Monday's five-year proposal actually renews a small portion of the millage which voters originally approved 25 years ago to bond the district to build the junior and

Would Charge Negotiation Legal Fee to Sheriff's Budget

A resolution proposed to charge all legal expenses associated with labor arbitration to the sheriff's department budget was tabled Wednesday by the Iosco County Board of Commissioners. Further discussion is expected to be heard on the matter.

Since December and on several subsequent occasions, sheriff's department employees rejected contract offers by the county. The deputies have worked without a contract since January 1, 1978, and increases would be paid retroactive to that date.

The resolution offered by Com. David George, finance chairman, stated that contract offers of the county were "compatible with other county courthouse employees, compensation paid surrounding county sheriff's department employees and the presidential wage guidelines of 1978-79."

The resolution took note of the fact that sheriff's department employees are requesting state arbitrators to award wage and compensation increases to include:

1. Ten to 15 percent wage increases per year for up to three years;
2. Up to an additional 10 percent increase in wages for all sergeants;
3. A new additional shift premium of up to five percent increase in wages;
4. Additional unlimited cost of living increase;
5. Additional unlimited increase in longevity pay bonuses by removing the cap on such bonuses.

"If these wages are awarded by the arbitrator, several sheriff's department employees would earn several thousand dollars more per year than elected department heads, including sheriff, county clerk, county treasurer and register of deeds," stated the resolution.

In addition, the resolution stated that sheriff's department employees "have suggested that these wage demands be met by either eliminating county road patrols or other county services."

House of Wood Now Open

Opening of the House of Wood, corner of Mathews and Lake Streets in Tawas City, is announced by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reynolds of East Tawas.

The firm specializes in crafts and features macrame, silk flowers, beads, decoupage, chenille and general crafts.

The firm plans to conduct macrame and handicraft classes.

A former car salesman, Reynolds served 11 years in the United States Air Force.

be curtailed because of the expenditure necessary to defend the taxpayer's interest in labor negotiations.

The commission is to give further consideration to adoption of the resolution calling for "all legal expenses associated with the labor arbitration of the sheriff's department employee contract shall be charged to the arbitration and contingency fund in the law enforcement 1980 budget."

The entire matter came to a head last week following protracted negotiations with sheriff's department employees and followed by Governor Milliken's executive order of May 28 cutting by 30 percent the amount of state income tax money which this county will receive effective August 1.

Last year, the board of commissioners included $170,000 as the amount to be received from state income tax funds and included a $181,000 figure anticipated for 1980. Because of the massive layoffs in the automobile industry and other fields, income tax returns to the state are expected to be much lower this year.

As a direct result of the order from the governor's office, the county board of commissioners requested all county department heads to prepare alternative line item budgets for the remainder of 1980, showing a five percent and 10 percent reduction in department expenditures.

That new budget showing line item cuts is to be ready for commission review by June 23.

Millage Renewal Wins in Narrow Squeak in Hale A. School District

Beset by a controversy involving a public hearing over removal of an elementary teacher under provisions of the state tenure act, a divided Hale Area School District Monday approved renewal of 14.75 mills of taxes to finance operation for 1980-81.

The proposal was approved by the narrow margin of 471 "yes" votes and 464 "no" votes, with eight ballots—which could have swung the referendum in the opposite direction—not counted because of improper ballot marking by voters.

Hale Area School District, like Tawas Area School, is one of those districts in the state which is not "in formula" to receive state membership aid because of the large amount of property valuation behind each child and a small number of students. As a result, the district finances practically the entire amount of its operation, save a percentage of transportation costs paid by the state and other minor revenue.

In addition, voters turned out two incumbent members of the board of education. Linda Grosz, wife of the former band director at the school, won as a write-in candidate and was top vote getter of the day with 483 ballots marked in her favor.

The second candidate named to fill a vacancy was Dale Brumfield, a former member of the board of education and the Intermediate District Board of Education, who received 442 votes.

David G. Toeller received 278 votes and the two defeated incumbents, Frank Leiva and Charles Millard, received 264 and 254 votes, respectively.

Executive Order Cuts Categorical Aid to All Schools

Michigan's faltering economy, with high unemployment in the depressed auto manufacturing business and building trades, has had another spinoff to hit government services—this time in the field of education. According to an executive order issued by the governor's office, Tawas Area School District will receive only $3,000 of the $28,553 which it was to receive in August for state categorical aid to schools.

This school district is not "in formula" and receives no state membership aid, but it was slated for $219,636 in state categorical aid to help finance special education, transportation and community education.

The cut, caused by the reduced revenue received through state income tax returns, means that this district will now receive $194,500 in categorical aid.

Supt. Allan Dighera said he would not be surprised to see another cut in categorical aid a year from now. "As the days go by, the financial picture for Michigan gets a little darker," he stated.

In other matters, the superintendent reported that the district is to receive $3,425 in state grant money in a validated program for disabled persons.

The state has informed the school district that it would have to contact attorneys for Hartford International, Incorporated, owner of the Holland House at East Tawas which is currently in federal bankruptcy court, in regard to payment of the $9,629 in property taxes owed to the district. A federal judge stayed all debts of the corporation until a plan of operation is filed to pay creditors.

Approval was given to continue a cooperative agreement with Whittemore-Prescott Area School, Hale Area School and AuGres-Sims School concerning an adult education consortium for 1980-81.

Debra Pauler was granted a one year leave of absence in order for her to continue work to receive her master degree. She is a sixth grade teacher.

A leave of absence was granted to Roberta Barbier, junior high art teacher and seventh grade English teacher.

Resignation of Patricia Mitchell, first grade teacher, was accepted. A letter was received from Sandra Wilson, currently on a leave of absence, which stated that she did not plan to return to teaching next term.

TWO HEARINGS have been scheduled Friday by the State Boundary Commission to hear testimony on annexation petitions presented by the City of Tawas City. This map shows the present city boundary and the numbered areas outlined by a broken line represent the areas under consideration for annexation. The area at the lower left hand corner (1) represents that portion of Alabaster Township under consideration. Eleven families reside in the approximately 45 acres. Area No. 5 north from Townline Road surrounds the Tawas City industrial park, the area designated No. 6 lies north across Meadow Road and the area designated No. 7 lies west of Fifth Avenue, all in Tawas Township. Approximately 230 acres are included with four families residing in the areas proposed for annexation.

Field Narrows for School Post

The field of candidates to fill the vacancy of secondary principal at Hale Area High School has been narrowed to three, according to a report at Monday night's board of education meeting.

Those candidates include William Harrison of Gaylord, James Marshall of Charlevoix and Dale Purkey, a member of the Hale Area School faculty.

A board of education committee is to visit Gaylord and Charlevoix Friday before making a final decision on naming the successor to Robert McDonald, who announced earlier this year that he was resigning the position.

In other matters, a maintenance report was presented by Peter Setcoski, concerning the school's summer maintenance program. The board's building and site committee is to review the report to determine if a portion of the work can be accomplished this year.

Among the projects recommended by Setcoski were replacement of the roof and boiler at the six-room elementary building, which was constructed 18 years ago, along with repair of the parking lot at the junior and senior high school.

Karen Schmidt reported on summer plans for special education. She has written an energy grant for a solar greenhouse and reported there would be some improvement to the vocational offering in the special education room at the elementary school. She will be working with Greg Denio in a prevocational program for special education students, along with William Collick, vocational aide under CETA.

Approval was given to officially endorsing the senior trip club's project for next year as it has met the requirement for 75 percent participation by the class and sponsors have been obtained. This year's senior trip is not school sponsored.

In other matters, the commission approved the following hangar fees at the Iosco County Airport: Enclosed end hangars, $40 per month; open bay hangars, $35 per month; tie down fee, $15 per month; tie down fee, $5 per week; tie down fee, $2 per day.

Fees are to be applied toward repayment of a $50,000 state loan for runway expansion. Tawas Bay Agency, Incorporated, submitted the low bid and was accepted by the commission for a workmen's compensation plan.

Two Iosco Tax Proposals to be Submitted to Voters

Two different tax proposals are to be placed before Iosco County voters at the August primary election.

Unanimous action of the board of commissioners gave authorization to ask voters to renew a tax levy of two-tenths of one mill for six years to be used by the Iosco Commission on Aging for maintaining and expanding services for Iosco citizens 60 years of age and older.

Preliminary approval had been given earlier in the year when the renewal was proposed by the Iosco Commission on Aging.

The second proposal authorized to be placed before voters in August is a levy of five-tenths of one mill for four years to be used by the Iosco County Social Services Board for operation and maintenance of the medical care facility.

Although not legally a renewal, this levy would replace the tax levy which financed the county's share of construction costs to build the medical care facility 15 years ago. That levy has now expired.

New Science Program Explained to TA Board

A briefing on a new elementary science program to be inaugurated next term by Tawas Area School was given Monday night to the board of education by Prin. Herman Rollin and Harry Cook, a member of the elementary science faculty.

Rollin told, board members that this was the first science program to be presented to fourth, fifth and sixth graders in the history of the school and resulted through recent expansion of the Tawas City Elementary Unit to include two rooms which are to be used for science purposes.

The school district purchased a colorful new textbook series at a cost of $2,548 in a total program costing $5,436, which included the expenditure of $928.50 for microscopes, $599 for balance scales and $915 for miscellaneous science materials to be used in the classrooms.

Rollin said that considerable study had gone into the development of the new science program and that teachers selected at each grade level acted as chairpersons to review several science textbook series being considered for purchase.

A sixth grade science teacher, Cook said that miscellaneous items purchased included nonconsumable supplies which would be shared by all three grades. Cook said that each microscope purchased cost $30 and, while not offering the same precision as the $150 units used in junior and senior high school, would serve well in providing basic science training in the elementary grades.

Other items included in the purchase were incubators, metric rulers and a considerable amount of miscellaneous items to be used in the "hands on" type of science instruction to be offered. Randall DeWyse, president of the board of education, commented that the new program was a "100 percent improvement" in the school's educational offering at the elementary level and that the instruction would provide excellent preparation for students for entry into the higher grades.

Editor: I have been following, with much interest, the various themes suggested to exemplify the Tawas scene. All are interesting and charming; however, I would like to mention and recall our area's great fishing industry that had international recognition about 50 short years ago.

Large catches of fish were brought to dock by boat and unloaded at the fish house. After cleaning, icing and packing into wooden crates or kegs, whitefish, sturgeon, lake trout and herring were shipped, via the D&M Railway, east for delivery to eating establishments. This industry provided good working conditions, I know, I spent a summer during my high school years working at cleaning and packing fish, but rough on the fingers with the sharp knife we used. I earned 35 cents for each keg completed.

The shipping process involved wooden crates and the great harvest of ice during the cold winter months from Tawas Bay and stored in wooden icehouses.

The remains of this era are still visible as we drive along Lake Street, the great wooden pilings can be seen above the water level in the bay where wooden docks lead out over the water to great fish houses. The fish houses were large buildings resting on pilings and clearing the water level by several feet, several hundred feet from shore. They were large enough to accommodate the needs of the fishermen to maintain their nets, storage of shipping material and processing their commodity.

I remember standing at the shore line of Tawas Bay and could see four fish houses supported by their log stilts several feet above high water appearing quite majestic. I was always thrilled to see fishermen dressed in their yellow slickers, knee-high rubber boots, standing in their fishing tug heading out to deep water to transfer their catch from their nets to their boats, reset the nets, and head back to the fish house to process their catch.

A fishing village theme seems logical for our area, because of the natural location and remembering a great era. Fishing is a great potential for our tourist industry. They will either love to catch them or love to eat them, or have fun and excitement just to watch the activity and view the shore line that could be easily arranged to depict a fishing village theme. Our business area is situated on a peninsula, so we have the advantage of a double-edged waterway. I was disappointed to see the picturesque fish tug removed from its resting place at the mouth of the river. This scene was a beautiful remembrance of yesteryear, when all we had to worry about was to catch enough fish for dinner. Very truly yours, John E. Hosbach Tawas City

PAUL H. DUDE, who has served a little more than a year as director of Tawas Hospital, leaves July 1 for a new job. —Tawas Herald Photo.

Dude Leaving Hospital Post Effective July 1

Paul H. Dude, administrator at Tawas Hospital for a little more than a year, announced Wednesday that he was resigning effective July 1 to accept a position as president of the Southwestern Michigan Hospital Council.

"It is an excellent job opportunity and one that I felt I should accept," said Dude.

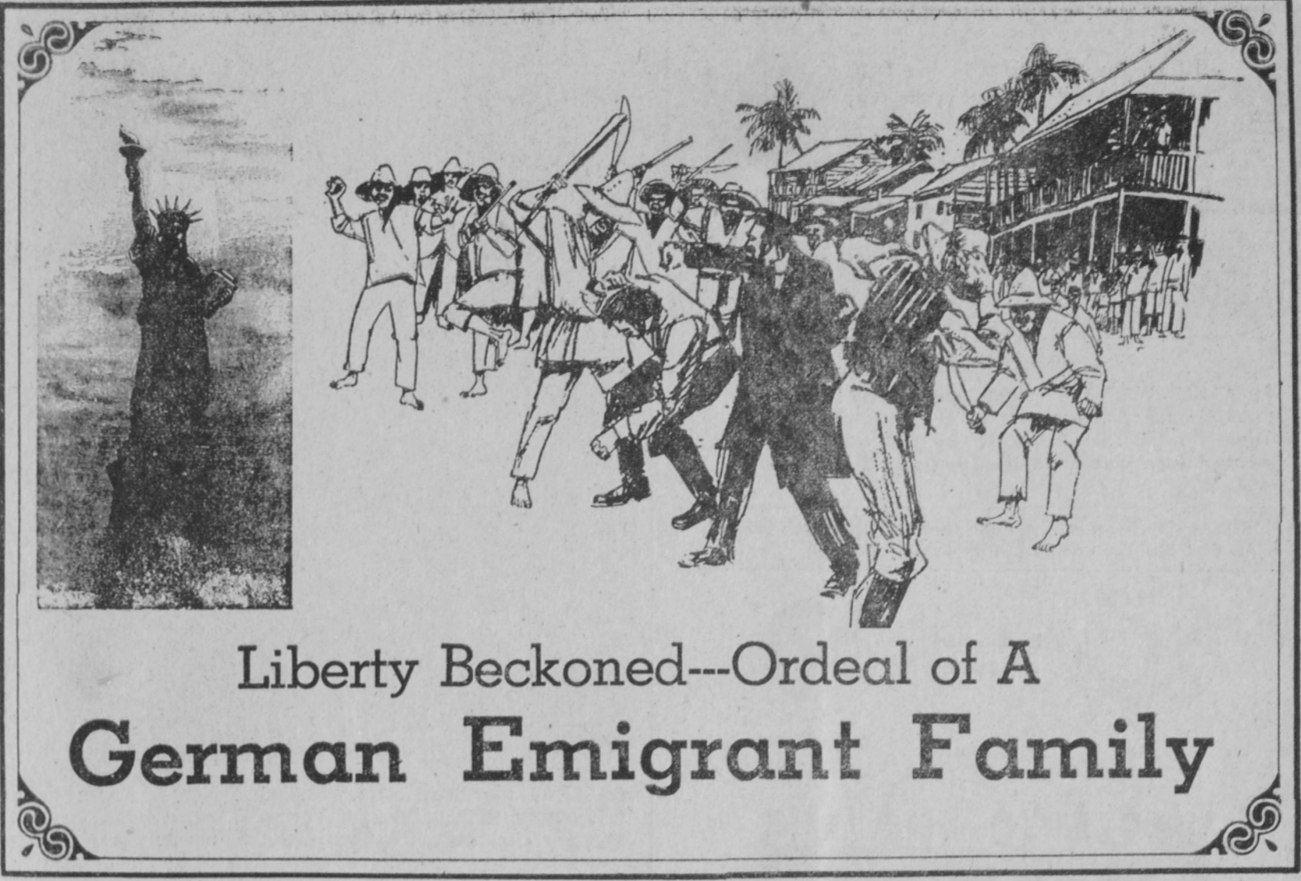

The board of trustees of the hospital will be announcing plans for appointment of an interim administrator before naming a new permanent administrator.

"I have enjoyed working with the board, medical staff, employees and community supporters of the hospital and I leave reluctantly," said Dude. "Since my arrival in April 1979, with full participation by all, the hospital has seen completion of a 4.2-million-dollar expansion project, a quarter-of-a-million dollars donated locally, plus a $150,000 foundation gift; financing and construction of a half-million-dollar, 10-suite physicians' office building adjacent to the hospital; demolition and removal of old buildings on hospital property and closing of two city streets to make way for the expansion plans."

In addition, a doctor's clinic at AuGres has been financed, opened and staffed; the "green light" obtained from the state to proceed with a half-million-dollar surgical suite expansion and to install ultrasound; commencement of a 24-hour on-site physician coverage of the emergency department; the two-to-one defeat of a unionization attempt; three physicians recruited to date and a possible fourth.

"In my new position, I will be based at Kalamazoo. The council is a voluntary association of 21 hospitals, which have banded together to use their collective expertise to plan and influence the future of the hospital system," he stated.

Before coming to Tawas City, Dude was senior hospital system planner of a health system agency in Western New York State, working with 24 hospitals and prior to that was chief executive of a Chicago, Illinois, hospital.

Liberty Beckoned—Ordeal of A German Emigrant Family

Illness, starvation, privation—even death—often proved to be the lot of Europeans, who sought the bright new world of North America in the mid-nineteenth century. Crossing the Atlantic in the hold of a leaky ship fit only for hauling cattle cost the lives of many, but few emigrants suffered the hardships of one Tawas City family and lived to tell of it.

This is the unbelievable—but true—story of a German family tricked into landing in South America, sold into slavery to the Spaniards, then escaped four years later by traveling through a tropical forest and made their way to the United States and eventually to Michigan.

The beginning of the Ernest Scholtz family on an American adventure was extraordinary, but time has a way of erasing such memories as succeeding generations slip easily into the mainstream feeding this melting pot of the world.

In January 1904, Mrs. Charles Hempstead recounted the story as told by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Scholtz Sr.

Her father's life, up to the time he was 26 years old, was an uneventful one. Until then, he lived on a little plot of ground in Germany, nothing but a common man, and worked in the coal mines. He married at an early age and he and his wife lived in their small cottage with their young son and a daughter.

Then came the fateful year of 1865 and with it came a devil in human form, representing himself to be an agent of an American colonization company. Scholtz had heard marvelous tales of the new world, believed it to be a wonderful place, but knew little about it.

He did not even know, in fact, the difference between North and South America and if he had, it probably would not have saved him from becoming a slave.

The "agent" was a smooth talker and the simple German folk listened eagerly to everything he told them of America. He promised them everything to make life easy—gold was to be had for the picking up. It was as common as the pebbles strewn along the river beds.

Vegetables, grain and produce of all kinds could be grown to a wonderful degree by merely throwing the seed broadcast. The climate was heavenly; half domesticated cattle and horses roamed at will and were to be had almost for the asking—or the catching.

These and many more things he told them. The agent wanted 300 families to go with him to the land of promise. He said he would place everyone on 160 acres of the richest land the world had ever known. All he asked was a comparatively modest sum as fare across the Atlantic.

It did not take him long to get the desired number of families—they were only too eager to go. Farms and cottages were sold right and left, regardless of value. Even the most staid of the simple old Germans, who had lived content in one locality all their lives, were crazy with the thoughts of the new country.

All packed together a few belongings, as did the Scholtz family, and embarked on the big ship of the American company. The agent promised that his company would give them all the necessities of life in the line of clothing, bedding and cooking utensils for almost nothing on their arrival at their destination; on his advice, they took with them only enough articles to carry them through their trip across the ocean.

Thus the ship, loaded with the hopeful emigrants, left Germany early in May 1865. The son, Ernest, was three years of age, and the daughter was a mere baby. Two weeks out, the baby died and was buried at sea. The death and burial took place on Scholtz's birthday and he was heartbroken. But this was only a beginning of the sorrows that were to come.

The voyage was one of untold hardship. Rough storms were encountered and the ship, a sailing vessel, was disabled. Provisions and water ran short and, when land was sighted four months after embarking on the voyage, all the passengers were near starvation and many of them had succumbed to disease.

On a sweltering hot day in September, the ship dropped anchor in a little harbor off the coast of Yucatan. Smaller boats put out from shore and with those and the assistance of a huge scow, the weary homeseekers were conveyed to shore. They were overjoyed, believing they had arrived in the land of golden promise, where they could live in perpetual happiness without physical exertion.

The new country did not at first glance appear very inviting, however, and the people on shore were not cordial in their welcome. There were 200 people awaiting them, all of swarthy complexion and sullen air—all were heavily armed with guns and knives.

Scholtz thought his years of toil were ended, but they were only just begun. It took but a few minutes to convince the Germans that they had been trapped. Surrounded by what appeared to be soldiers, the emigrants were allowed to prepare and eat a meal and were then hustled into the forbidding interior of the Yucatan. Belongings of any value were placed Installing an antenna?

Stay away from power lines, stay alive!

I'm a lineman at Consumers Power Company with a serious message. If you are planning to install a TV or CB antenna: be extremely careful. Antennas must never make contact with power lines. If contact is made it could cause injury or death. Locate your antenna so that if it falls while being erected, or later blows down, it cannot fall on power lines.

Remember, electric wires can be deadly — stay away and stay alive.

Average Tawas Youngster's Strength Below Par

Parents of youngsters attending Tawas City Elementary Unit should be disturbed with the two pictures above. Shown are the only students who recently passed the President's Physical Fitness Test—nine out of a total enrollment of more than 350!

Joseph Dissette, physical education teacher, said that results of the test clearly indicate that 50 percent of all fifth graders in the United States are stronger than those at Tawas City Elementary Unit, while 49 percent of all sixth grade students in the country are stronger than sixth graders of Tawas Area School.

The majority of fourth, fifth and sixth grade students in this school system just do not have the stamina to perform pull ups, sit ups, the standing long jump, the 50-yard dash and 600-yard run—all part of the national testing program.

It is difficult to believe, but the only answer to the problem apparently is the life style in this community—children here do not get the proper exercise which builds muscles required to pass, or at least score well on the test.

This is not to say that children here are not as physically active as those in other parts of the country—the community sponsors a summer baseball program for youngsters, basketball in the winter, the school has a physical education program and the youngsters enjoy the many physical activities connected with living in an outdoor-oriented, small community: One of the most beautiful bodies of water in the world for summer swimming right at the front door and rivers at the back door for boating.

The problem seems to be that youngsters do not practice pull ups at home and, unless engaged in some organized team sports, do very little running and walking. Such exercise is necessary to build shoulder, arm and leg muscles, as well as to promote proper breathing during strenuous exercise.

Parents should not be concerned with developing a young Hercules or a young Amazon, but it is important to improve the scores in the President's Physical Fitness Test. It is an excellent testing yardstick; it definitely is not an easy test to pass and every youngster is not expected to excel in physical fitness, but improvements could be made.

Dissette said the school plans to send home a letter with elementary students offering some advice and information to parents on what exercises could be practiced at home during the summer months to properly build young bodies. This would be commendable, particularly if parents take an interest.

Know Your Michigan Law

By Attorney General FRANK J. KELLEY

Most drivers know that excessively worn or bald tires are unsafe. Not everyone knows, however, that in Michigan such tires are also illegal and may result in the issuance of a violation ticket.

Under a recently enacted state statute, the operation of a passenger car with one or more tires having less than two-thirty-seconds of an inch of tread is an infraction of the Michigan Vehicle Code and is defined by the law as "an unsafe tire."

Also included in this statute are mopeds and motorcycles—not less than one thirty-second of an inch of tread—front and rear.

The minimum tire tread depth for any vehicle weighing over 10,000 pounds is four-thirty-seconds of an inch on front wheel tires and two-thirty-seconds of an inch for rear wheel tires.

The statute provides that measurements should not be made where the tire is most worn because this would cause unnecessary tire replacements.

A historic vehicle is exempt from the tread depth requirements.

A tire that has evidence of cord or tread separations or has a part of the belting material, tire cords or plys exposed is declared to be an unsafe tire as are tires marked with the following legends "not for highway use," "for racing purposes only," "for farm use only" or "unsafe for highway use."

Any person in the business of selling tires is prohibited from selling or offering for sale an "unsafe tire" as defined by this law.

This legislation was a direct result of conclusions gained from the study of vehicle accidents particularly under the adverse weather conditions of rain, snow and ice.

(Read Luke 7:11-17)
"When the Lord saw her, his heart overflowed with sympathy." (Luke 7:13 TLB)

In a rural village, I was confronted by a blind beggar led by a young girl—his daughter. I began to turn from the girl's taps on my arm but instead paused to talk with the man. In response to my questions, he told me that he had been blinded 20 years ago in a South China Sea fishing accident. He lost sight in his right eye immediately and his left eye had failed over the years so that he no longer saw even light.

I gave the man some pesos, but more important, I had the feeling that no one had talked with him for a long time. He seemed to appreciate the chance to talk as much as he did the money.

This experience made me realize that I cannot turn my back on the needy without harming myself. If I turn away often enough, before long it will not hurt at all to see suffering.

PRAYER
O God, prevent us from ever becoming insensitive to the pain of others, in our compassionate Savior's name. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY
Our humanity has been diminished when we no longer experience the pain of others.—Alan M. Fletcher (Philippines)

With Fewer 'Indians,' We May Have Fewer 'Chiefs'

Without second-guessing anyone, it would be a good bet to say that labor-oriented state mediators may well rule in favor of sheriff's department employees in their contract dispute with the county board of commissioners.

The above statement should be amended to read SOME sheriff's department employees may be the winners, for the handwriting is on the wall—Iosco County just does not have the money in its present budget to meet employee demands and it is extremely doubtful if voters of this county would ever approve the necessary millage to meet those demands.

As a result, a massive layoff of sheriff's department personnel could be in the offing. Those employees whose employment would be terminated would be at the lower end of the seniority scale. In other words, the department would have a lot of "chiefs" and few "Indians" to patrol the roads.

According to one source, sheriff's department employees have suggested in negotiations that these wages be met by either eliminating county road patrols or by cutting other county services.

To the above, this corner is of the opinion that no other county services should be cut just to retain employees in the sheriff's department. If that course is followed, there really is no need to retain so many "chiefs" if there are no "Indians" to man the department. It may even come to the point where there is no need to have a desk sergeant on duty around the clock if there are no road patrols—only a turnkey would be required to watch over prisoners.

During the past decade, the sheriff's department has been expanded from a small force—a sheriff, undersheriff and three or four deputies—to a department now numbering 23 employees, not including the sheriff, undersheriff and CETA employees hired in special training programs.

It is this corner's opinion that

Iosco County has an excellent sheriff's department and one which has met and overcome many challenges in recent years.

But it also is this corner's belief that current wage and compensation increases being demanded by those employees are unreasonable. For instance, the demand includes a wage increase ranging from 10 to 15 percent annually for up to three years, which exceeds the established presidential guidelines. Despite the fact that employees have worked without a contract for a year, the above still exceeds the federal wage guideline.

In addition, the demand includes an additional 10 percent increase in wages for all sergeants, a new shift premium representing another five percent increase in wages, additional unlimited cost of living increases and additional unlimited increases in longevity pay bonuses removing the present cap or ceiling on such bonuses.

If state arbitrators award these increases, then a number of employees of the department will receive several thousand dollars more per year than even the elected sheriff, who has responsibility for directing the entire department, along with such other department heads as the county clerk, treasurer and register of deeds.

All of the above leads this corner to state that sheriff's department employees are making wage and fringe benefit demands far in excess of what is reasonable.

Future events may prove that Iosco County taxpayers will demand that the sheriff's department stay within its budget according to available funding and the net effect may be a drastic curtailment of law enforcement services. The county may just have to learn to live with a smaller sheriff's department.

Court of Appeals Supports State In Indian Fishing Rights Case

Following a recent court of appeals decision, the controversial Indian fishing case returns to the federal district court where hopefully, a prompt hearing can be held on the questions raised so that Michigan's right to regulate commercial fishermen on the Great Lakes can be finally determined.

This newspaper has supported the position of the state attorney general from the start of this case: Michigan has the legal right and authority to regulate all commercial fishing in this state, including that conducted by Indians, for the purpose of preserving Michigan's Great Lakes fishery as a natural resource.

Of principal contention is the fact that gill nets used by Indian fishermen are slaughtering stocks of lake trout. Reasonable controls are necessary to conserve and aid the propagation of this natural resource for the betterment of all. Now it is up to the federal judge to re-examine what Michigan is saying.

Cholger Files for Iosco Commission

Filing for county commissioner District No. 3 last week was Dennis Cholger, a 32-year-old Wilber Township resident. A 1966 graduate of Oscoda High School, he attended Ferris State College and Alpena Community College and received an associate of commerce degree from Alpena Community College.

He served in Vietnam in the United States Army as a sergeant E-5 and received the Vietnam Service Medal and a Bronze Star with the 101st Airborne.

He is presently employed by WIOS and WKJC in Tawas City as a salesman and runs a farm in Wilber Township. He resides at 2034 Sherman Road with his wife, Diane.

Cholger has been involved in many community affairs through the years. He has been president of Tawas Area Promotions, chairman of Perchville, a director of the Tawas Area Chamber of Commerce, past chairman of the Emanuel Lutheran Church Board of Trustees and is presently on the Emanuel Lutheran School Board. He has also held different positions within the Iosco County ASCS.

His reason for running is his concern over "the lack of harmony between the present commissioners and the increased burden the state is continuing to place on local government." He is opposed to excessive spending by the present commission.

He is concerned with rural police protection and the attracting of new industry to the county to make more jobs available to youth and to raise the tax base.

Keep Home Cool Without Air Conditioning - Energy

Those occasional tantalizing hot days we have had this spring should serve as a reminder to make plans to keep your home cool this summer, suggests John E. Wessels, manager of Consumers Power Company's Tawas District.

Wessels says there are a number of things to do to keep cool, even without air conditioning. He noted that while Consumers Power expects to have sufficient electric power to meet all demands this summer, the company recommends using electricity wisely to help keep down energy bills.

The key to keeping cool lies with the way one uses electric appliances, Wessels says. He offers a number of suggestions and recommends they be clipped and posted inside a cupboard door for reference during those hot, humid days which are sure to come.

1. During the hottest part of the day, try to avoid using the range, dishwasher, clothes dryer or other major appliances which produce heat. Try cooking outdoors as much as possible and use the washing and drying appliances in the early morning or evening. A bonus toward physical fitness can be gained by carrying and hanging clothes on a back yard line to dry instead of using a clothes dryer.
2. Close drapes, blinds and awnings or shades to keep out direct sunlight. Not only will the house stay cooler, if you have an air-conditioner, it will not have to run as often.
3. Close off rooms during the day, especially those that face the sun.
4. Open windows and doors in the evening and early morning to take advantage of the cooler outside air. This will also reduce the amount of time needed to operate the air-conditioner.
5. If a central cooling source is needed in a home, consider an attic fan which draws air through the house and exhausts it through the attic. It can reduce or eliminate the need for air conditioning.
6. Although adding insulation to a home is primarily intended to retain heat during the winter, insulation also helps block out hot sun rays and helps reduce cooling requirements.
7. With central air conditioning, set the thermostat to the warmest comfortable temperature to help cut consumption. For example, raising the temperature setting from 75 to 80 degrees can save approximately 13 percent on cooling energy usage.
8. For a window air-conditioner, close the hot air registers on the heating system to prevent the cool air from escaping to the basement.

If considering buying an air-conditioner this year, Wessels recommends giving some thought to energy efficiency.

Six - Session Program on Home Food Preservation

Consumers can learn the basics of home food preservation in Iosco County in a six-session program being offered by Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service. The program is designed to train volunteers who will then work with others interested in home food preservation.

Among the subjects to be covered in the three-hour sessions are pressure canning, water bath canning, freezing, jam and jelly preparation, pickling, drying and food storage.

Classes will include lectures, demonstrations and first-hand experience. Each participant will receive a notebook of extensive food preservation information.

Participants must pass short quizzes and a final examination before being certified as master canners. These graduates will receive a specially designed apron designating them as master canners. They will be asked to volunteer 10 hours of their time during the summer to promote safe food preservation practices in the communities. Extension staff will help place volunteers to include answering telephoned questions, providing information at fairs and food preservation workshops and providing personal assistance to beginning canners.

The six master canner sessions are scheduled for every Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9:00 to noon beginning June 24. Location is Oscoda Area High School's home economics room.

A course fee will be charged which covers produce consumed in the sessions and all reference materials. Scholarship assistance may be available for persons who wish to attend but cannot pay the fee.

Registration deadline is Friday, June 20, for this limited enrollment program. For additional information and enrollment forms, contact the MSU Cooperative Extension Service in Iosco County, 362-3449.

EMTA Issues 1980 Golf-Tennis Guide

The snow and frost on Eastern Michigan golf courses and tennis courts has finally melted away and to assist golf enthusiasts on where to go and what to expect, the East Michigan Tourist Association has published its 1980 Golf and Tennis Guide.

Over 100 golf courses are described with the appropriate locations given. All outstanding golf complexes featuring dining or cocktail lounge, equipment rental, clubhouse and driving ranges are numerically located on a highway map in the guide. Tennis comprises the other half of the new guide's contents. The address for each tennis site is given along with how many courts are available. Like golf course listings, those tennis resorts that offer more than just one form of entertainment are detailed and have location number arrangement.

Lions Hearing Clinic

Tawas Area Lions Club will hold its annual hearing clinic at Tawas Hospital on June 14, 9:30 a. m. to 3:00 p. m.

"Although they represent the largest group of physically handicapped persons in the country, the deaf have been ignored by Americans probably more than any other group of handicapped persons," according to Dr. Thomas Dawson, chairman of the Lions Club's hearing and speech action and work with the deaf committee.

Public ignorance and discrimination have pushed many deaf persons further into the isolation forced upon them by the restrictions of their affliction, he said.

Hearing conservation and work with the deaf is a relatively new area of service for the 33,000 Lions Clubs of the world, including the Tawas Area Lions Club, whose long history of sight conservation and work with the blind service is well known.

Because of the restriction of their handicap and public indifference, deaf Americans are far behind the average in education and most deaf Americans are working in jobs far below their abilities and intelligence, mainly because of public ignorance. Lions Clubs are becoming involved in programs to provide educational assistance for young deaf students; to promote employment of the deaf; to remove some of the public barriers to the deaf; to provide financial assistance toward medical research into the causes and cures of deafness, and to create an understanding of the problems and capabilities of the deaf.

Chairman Dawson urges residents with deaf friends or relatives to encourage and assist them to become a part of society and urges employers to remember that a "deaf person is simply a person who is deaf."

Emigrants

some friendly people who helped them on their way.

After weeks of travel, the weary group neared the coast and told their story to the villagers, who provided food and enough money to purchase their fare on a ship. The three families took an outgoing vessel to Havana, Cuba, and from there went to Baltimore, Maryland, where the Scholtz family parted company with the Detrich and Scheumans families, never to hear from them again.

Scholtz had little difficulty in getting work in the United States and, after some time, moved to Saginaw and later to Tawas City. He found work in the nearby lumbering operation and later purchased a farm on Meadow Road.

When interviewed 76 years ago by a newspaper reporter, Mrs. Hempstead said that her parents were deceased. Their son and Mrs. Hempstead's older brother, Ernest August Scholtz, who was with his parents during their four-year enslavement, lived on the Meadow Road until he died February 5, 1943, at the age of 82 years.

This story as related by Mrs. Hempstead many years ago was furnished by Robert Scholtz of Tawas City, son of August A. Scholtz.

THE ERNEST SCHOLTZ FAMILY finally reached a North American port after being held in captivity for four years. Their story is not typical of the thousands of Europeans who found new homes in the United States.
