After Months of Frustration

Bonds Sold to Build New Bay Park Tower

Patience and persistence have paid off for the East Tawas Housing Commission.

Announcement was made Friday by John C. Elliott, commission chairman, that the syndicated investment firm of Manley Bennett Company had purchased 1.650-million dollars worth of bonds to enable financing of East Tawas' second high-rise apartment building to provide housing for the elderly.

This project has been "on again-off again" for several months due to the uncertain bonding market, but some expert help by the commission's bonding consultants and hard work by Elliott and his associates paid off dividends.

The bonds, which are backed by the full faith and credit of the city following a vote of the people earlier this year, were sold at an interest rate of 8.2 percent, several points higher than hoped for when the project first started three years ago, but an excellent rate during the recent market spiral.

Bids on constructing the 44-unit complex came in higher than anticipated and some revisions had to be made to plans, but Elliott emphasizes that the new Bay Park Tower-North will be constructed almost identical to the present apartment building which opened in 1976.

The new complex will actually have four more apartments than the first structure as office space and the resident manager's quarters have been eliminated on the first floor.

"This has been a frustrating three years for the housing commission—I have never seen as much bureaucratic red tape in a project as we have had to cut through in this one," said Elliott.

During a press conference held at Bay Park Tower, Carl Helmer, manager, said that the new apartment building was now a reality and that construction would start June 2. About 15 months will be required to construct the building and it is expected to be fully occupied by August 1, 1981.

"Everything has worked against us—it took nine months for HUD to determine the fair market value for unit rentals, for example—but everything worked out fine last night and the city council gave approval to the commission's action in accepting the bond bid," said Elliott.

The commission was unable to utilize conventional mortgage financing on the project and a bond issue approved by voters was required. Repayment of bonds is to be made from money received from HUD and no local tax money will be involved.

The new apartment building is to be located in the same block as the present Bay Park Tower.

Working with Elliott and Helmer on the project have been the Rev. Kenneth Tousley, Neil Mochty, Dean Kobs and Floyd Schaaf, all members of the East Tawas Housing Commission.

Fewer Holiday Crashes in Iosco

Predictions to the contrary, highway traffic over the three-day Memorial Day week-end appeared to be normal.

Iosco County Sheriff's Department reported Tuesday that complaints were down slightly from last year, but highway accidents showed an increase of two over last year and alcohol-related accidents showed an increase.

Twenty-six people were booked at the county jail over the week-end, as compared to 20 last year. Charges ranged from driving under the influence of liquor, disorderly, to possession of cocaine and attempted unauthorized driving away of an automobile.

The department had 46 written complaints, 11 accidents on roadways, four accidents off the road and seven property damage crashes.

Injured in motorcycle crashes were Michael D. Lunger, 26, Sterling Heights, and Michael Bowen, 28, Montrose.

William J. Hutchison, 21, Hemlock, lost control of his car on a fire trail, while Michael Rybak, 26, Redford, was forced off Monument Road by an unknown vehicle operator. All were treated at Tawas Hospital.

James Anderson Jr., 16, Clio, was injured while water-skiing on the AuSable River at Foote Dam Pond. He was treated at Tawas Hospital.

Larcenies were reported by John A. Kukla, East Tawas, theft of tools from a truck; Arthur C. Allen, Tawas City, theft of 100 gallons of fuel oil and a ladder; Randy Duff, East Tawas, theft of a bicycle.

taxes at the annual school election to be held June 9.

This tax, which expired with the 1979 levy, represents 90 percent of the local revenue received for school operation. The remainder is made up of five percent from state sources, four percent from federal funds and one percent from intermediate school district funds.

Expenditures include 62 percent for instruction, 16 percent for operation and maintenance, 11 percent for transportation, seven percent for business and capital outlay, four percent for administration.

Supt. Peter M. Holley states that he welcomes questions and comments concerning the upcoming election.

"We have much to be proud of in our school system and need support and involvement of district citizens," he stated.

Tawas City Hosts Visitors

Welcome Imlay City Officials

Tawas City extends a welcome today (Wednesday) to visiting officials and city employees of Imlay City, representing a delayed observance of Michigan Week by the two communities.

Mayor's Exchange Day is usually held on Monday during Michigan Week, but city matters and scheduling prevented observance during the normal time.

This program also is a departure from the usual practice of exchanging mayors. Last year, Tawas City sent a large delegation of officials and employees to Imlay City and the return visit is being paid a year later.

Among the visitors being welcomed this morning at city hall are Shirley Metcalf, mayor of Imlay City, along with Jack Schumacher, city manager.

Others forming the contingent from Imlay City are Jack Flowers, mayor pro tem; Clifford Dorow, city clerk; Jack Rankin, commissioner, and his wife, Val; Donald Capman, commissioner; Larry Dougherty, public safety director.

Following a get-acquainted coffee hour, the group will be joined by Mayor David Westcott, City Mgr. Lowell Thomas, members of the city council and city hall employees for a noon luncheon at Coyle's Restaurant. The visitors are to be conducted on a tour of the community in the afternoon and will have the opportunity to view the community from Tawas Bay. A fishing cruiser has been chartered for this unique trip.

A cookout is to be held at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish Hall starting at 5:00 p. m. This event is to be attended by city officials, employees and their spouses. Between 35 and 40 persons are expected to attend.

The two communities are quite similar in that both operate under a city manager-council form of government and both have small industries.

City Manager Thomas said he felt that those attending last year's visit to Imlay City found the day both educational and entertaining.

STREETS of the Tawas were practically deserted of cars Sunday afternoon when these aerial views were snapped. Despite what appeared to be a normal flow of traffic on US-23 for a holiday week-end, the number of visitors to this area was down from last year. In the top photo, only a few pleasure boats are moored at the Michigan Waterways Commission Dock at East Tawas. The Memorial Day week-end usually opens the boating season here, but there were fewer boats here as compared to last year. The bottom photo shows the Tawas City Park and fishing pier. The parking lot along Lake Street is about three-quarters full, but only a few cars are in the parking lot near the concession building. The Iosco County Building is shown in the center foreground, with the Iosco County Jail at right and the Village Inn at left.—Tawas Herald Photos.

Rowboat Race Planned for Bay

A rowboat race on Tawas Bay is to be a unique feature of the annual Fourth of July observance in the Tawas, according to an announcement by Tawas Chamber of Commerce.

The race is to be divided into three age classifications, including 15 and under, 16 years through 44 and 45 years of age and older.

There will be two classifications for boats, including all standard one-man rowboats, 14 feet and over, along with unlimited racing classification boats.

There will be one contestant per boat and all contestants must wear coast guard approved lifesaving devices.

Contestants will start in groups of five boats, at five-minute intervals from the starting point.

Two races are to be run, the first from the Michigan Waterways Commission Dock at East Tawas to the fishing pier at the Tawas City Park. The second race has the same course, but racers are to return to the dock at East Tawas.

Cash prizes are to be awarded as follows: Junior class, $3; other classes, $5; unlimited classes, $25.

Robert Jones is race chairman.

Metcalf Receives Award in Texas

Dr. Thomas B. Metcalf, a graduate of Tawas City High School, now associate professor of business technology at the University of Houston (Texas), is the recipient of a teaching excellence award from that university.

The award is part of an annual program recently developed and implemented by the Zeta Alpha Chapter of Tau Alpha Pi (National Honor Society of Engineering Technology). Recipients were honored at a banquet held annually for this purpose.

Faculty nominees were selected based on results obtained from an evaluation made by Tau Alpha Pi. From the nominees, a faculty member is selected by a committee of faculty officers of the society based on student evaluation and related activities.

Metcalf is the son of the late Rev. and Mrs. Frank Metcalf. His father was pastor of First Baptist Church, Tawas City, for many years.

Following his graduation from high school here, he attended Central Michigan University, served in the army during World War II, returned to CMU to receive his degree and later taught at Mt. Pleasant.

Iosco County Signs Contract With 81st District Court Employees

A new contract with 81st District Court employees has been accepted by Iosco County Board of Commissioners.

Under the new rate, the magistrate is to receive an annual salary of $14,925 after three years of service and the position pays a starting rate of $13,134.

The deputy magistrate is paid a starting rate of $4.80 per hour and receives $5.46 per hour at the end of three years, while the clerk has a starting rate of $3.93 per hour and receives a rate of $4.58 per hour at the end of three years.

Issuance of pay was made retroactive to January 1.

In other business, the commission adopted an application from a community block development grant through the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Mary Jane Burdett was appointed to fill the vacancy of Susan Sweeney on the AuSable Community Mental Health Services board of directors. Mrs. Sweeney resigned from the position.

Helen Milligan was appointed to fill the vacancy on the Iosco-Arenac Regional Library Board.

The board accepted the bid of The Tawas Herald for publishing minutes of the commission.

Seven percent pay increases were granted the following non-union employees: Judith Ellsworth, Ruthann Brown, William Gay, Irene Snable, Roger Samuels and Richard Kalinowski.

Samuels and Kalinowski, both custodians, were given recognition as members of the United Steelworkers Union.

Veterans Organizations Led Area Memorial Day Services

Full-Time or Part-Time House— It's Still a Home

It's hard to know what to do with a house in a vacation setting. It might be a year-round house or a second home used for relaxing, but it still relates specifically to its environment. As a year-rounder, you don't want to feel as if you are living in a "summer place," but you also don't want the rigidity of a formal setting. You want comfort, winter and summer, and you want to be able to look at your environment and be part of it from the inside out. After all, that's why you live there.

This year-round home on Long Island combines an open airy feeling with casual elegance. It uses oak frames for the built-in furniture, and matching oak for the cabinet-entertainment center on the far wall.

And if it's a second home, you don't want to feel as if you are in a place where only bathing suits or ski boots (as the case might be) are apropos. You want to be able to live there, too. Second home need not mean secondhand or uncomfortable. Your second home should be as comfortable and easy to live in as your primary home.

It's easy to say, but how do you accomplish this delicate balance? One way is to put your space into the hands of an architect whose design philosophy agrees with yours—one whose special concepts you can deal with. A recently renovated year-round house on Long Island is a case in point.

The architects, Gwathmey-Siegel, took the clients from a neo-Spanish, California-style house, with few windows facing the bay, to a spacious, light, airy home with a view of the water. To accomplish this, they razed the house, but shored up the roof at the owner's request to keep it as the only remnant of the original house. This meant that they worked with the original amount of space, but that's all that remained.

What the owners ended up with is a combination of open, casual design and orderly elegance. The bare floors and built-in furniture on the waterfront location give a sense of informality, while the use of oak on the floors, cabinetry, walls and furniture frames gives a sense of formality. This approach, and the use of hardwood, might seem surprising at first, but it makes sense in the total design.

The architects feel

The combination of oak floors and a sculptural oak mantelpiece in this second home adds unity and graciousness to this living room.

strongly about the use of hardwood in their projects, and it's evident in all the projects they do. Much of the furniture is built-in and all is specially designed for each project, which doesn't mean that they don't use a good antique once in a while for accent. "After all," says Charles Gwathmey, "good design is good design. It depends on how you use it and what the context is."

In another home, one built from "scratch," the architects use hardwood to create a feeling of great spaciousness and openness in the rooms. The sofas in the living room are built into oak frames around the edges of the room, and an oak cabinet is a built-in entertainment center. The architects feel oak has an inherent richness and patina, beautifully and so they use it as sculpture, as well as functionally. In this house, there is an oak "mantle" above the fireplace, which is really a rounded form or sculpture flanked by inset bookcases. Hardwood floors, also oak, complete the free atmosphere, with a carpeted island of seating and a coffee table facing the fireplace, adding a feeling of more traditional comfort. Although this house is used as a second home and is near the ocean, it is not the usual ultra-casual "beach" house. It is a home, with the warmth and personality of its owners evident in every room.

Whether you hire an architect or do it yourself, using hardwood is the way to add warmth and unity to your space. And you need not be afraid that your house, whether it be a second home or primary one, will be at odds with the environment. Hardwood is part of nature's offerings, and fits into all types of decor, from casual to formal, and in all areas of your year-round or vacation house.

Proceedings of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners

MAY SESSION

May 5, 1980
A continuation of the regular April session of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners held at the County Building in Tawas City on May 5, 1980, pursuant to adjournment April 23, 1980, and the call of the chair.

Meeting called to order at 11:15 a. m. by Chairman Webb and the roll called.

Present: Stech (District 1), George (District 2), Merschel (District 3), Ulman (District 4) and Webb (District 5).

Absent: None.
Commissioner Merschel presented and moved adoption of the following resolution, motion being supported by Stech and carried.

Your building and grounds committee recommends that this board enter into an agreement with Alexander Business Machines Company, of Oscoda, for service on county-owned I. B. M. typewriters, as per the terms presented in their letter of April 29, 1980, which is attached to, and becomes a part of, this resolution; the contract to cover a one-year period beginning May 1, 1980.

Reimbursement for the use of personal automobiles on county business, having been established at 18 1/2 cents per mile in the recently-approved United Steelworkers contract with the courthouse employees, the matter of mileage reimbursement for those not covered by the contract was raised and discussed, Commissioners Stech and George voicing their opposition to the increase from 17 cents for employees and others not covered by the contract, and the other board members expressing the opinion that the reimbursement rate should be the same for all employees.

Commissioner Ulman presented and moved adoption of the following resolution, motion being supported by Stech and carried.

Your administrative committee recommends that former Undersheriff Basil O'Dell be paid the sum of $672.26 for unused sick leave accumulated during the years of 1978 and 1979, in accordance with the resolution adopted June 7, 1978, with payment to be made from the sheriff's department budget, fringe benefits line item.

Chairman Webb referred to a report of water draining off the roof of the County Building onto the entrance ramp at the entrance by the prosecutor's office, whereupon Merschel, building and grounds committee chairman, indicated that he has investigated the matter and that it will be corrected.

Finance Chairman George referred to the resolution adopted November 7, 1979, providing authorization for a full-time trainee in the register of deeds department contingent upon the retirement of the deputy register, with the provision that the position is to revert to part-time, swing status if the deputy does not retire; proposing that the matter should be reviewed, as the deputy register has not retired. Following a brief discussion, the matter was assigned to the personnel committee for investigation and report.

Commissioner Ulman presented and moved adoption of the following resolutions:

Your personnel committee recommends that the county clerk be authorized to effect payment of wages to courthouse employees covered by the recently-approved United Steelworkers contract, in accordance with the terms of said contract, retroactive to January 1, 1980. Further, that the clerk be authorized to sign an agreement with Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Michigan to implement the P. D. P. rider for a $2.00 prescription drug program, effective May 1, 1980.

Supported by Stech and carried.
Your administrative committee recommends that any county employee, except members of the board of commissioners, entitled to reimbursement for mileage for the use of his/her personal automobile be paid at the rate of 18 1/2 cents per mile, effective May 1, 1980.
Motion supported by Merschel, whereupon it was moved by George in the ensuing discussion to amend the resolution to exempt county elected officials and members of other boards and commissions; the motion failing for lack of support. The question was thereupon called and the resolution adopted upon the following roll call: Ayes: Merschel, Ulman and Webb. Nays: Stech and George.

Commissioner Merschel reported in reference to a regional solid waste management workshop to be held at Clare, Michigan, on May 16, sponsored by Representative Tom Alley and the National Association of State Legislators, indicating that he intends to attend at his own expense and inviting other board members who wish to attend to join him and share the cost of transportation. In discussion of the matter, several board members expressed the opinion that mileage should be allowed, as it is county business. It was further proposed that a member of the county planning commission be invited to attend. Matter deferred for further consideration next Wednesday.

County Equalization Director John Rose appeared before the board to present a proposed county equalization report for 1980, which was prepared by his department, indicating that all units except the City of Tawas City were equalized as assessed. He thereupon proceeded to review the report in detail, indicating his belief that they have an equitable tax roll.

Following a discussion of the matter by board members and Mr. Rose, it was moved by Stech and supported by Ulman that the report be adopted as presented. Motion carried.

(On file in clerk's office.)
Sealed bids having been submitted by the News-Press Publishing Company and The Tawas Herald for publication of the board minutes pursuant to Rule 13 of the rules of order, it was moved by George and supported by Merschel that the bids be accepted and referred to the administrative committee for review and recommendation. Motion carried.

The business scheduled for the day having been concluded, it was moved by Stech and supported by Merschel to adjourn until May 7, 1980, 2:00 p. m., or subject to the call of the chair upon 24 hours notice to board members and the news media. Motion carried and meeting adjourned.

Energy Conservation: States Are Ahead Of The Federal Government

by DAVID COHEN

A government that calls on its citizens to conserve energy must set a good example by doing so itself. On energy conservation the federal government is a laggard, not a leader.

On April 3 Common Cause filed suit against President Carter, the Department of Energy (DOE), and the office of Federal Procurement Policy (OFPP) for their failure to comply with explicit statutory requirements to develop and implement energy conservation measures for all federal agencies. The suits dramatize the dismal fact that although Congress has directed the federal government to take the lead in energy conservation, the government is not meeting this mandate.

In contrast to the non-performance at the federal level, many state governments are engaged in serious efforts at conserving energy. A recent Common Cause study on state energy conservation shows that the states have the ability to take the lead in emphasizing conservation and in smoothing our transition to an energy future that is free of the economic turmoil that has resulted from our dependence on OPEC.

There is a strong case for energy conservation as a critically important "new" source of energy in the 1980's. The Harvard Business School's Energy Project estimates in Energy Future that the U.S. could save 40 percent of our energy consumption through conservation efforts. The Electric Power Institute, a research group funded by the utility industry, estimates that we "could reduce total U.S. fuel consumption by 28 to 46 percent by the year 2000" through conservation.

Although 27 states failed to meet the basic energy conservation criteria established by the Common Cause study, nine of the ten largest states passed the Common Cause "test," and many showed creative—if not prolific—efforts at conserving energy.

The study includes a model state energy conservation agenda which was drawn from innovative energy conservation programs already enacted by some states. For example,

• Minnesota passed a law which will require in October that homeowners provide prospective buyers with data on the energy consumption of the houses being marketed.

David Cohen is President of Common Cause, a nonpartisan citizens' lobby.

• Oregon introduced an interest-free and low-interest loan program for energy-saving weatherization of housing.

• Rhode Island passed a statewide law requiring annual inspection of automobiles to insure that they meet improved fuel efficiency and air pollution standards.

• Wisconsin implemented time-of-day electricity rates for large industrial and commercial customers. Under this system, customers pay one price for electricity used during the utility's peak demand period, and another lower rate for usage at off-peak hours.

These and other positive steps at the state level stand in sharp contrast to the foot-dragging tactics employed at the federal level. A House Committee on Government Operations investigation, for example, reveals that DOE has been "seriously remiss" in reducing energy use by other federal agencies and in curbing its own energy consumption. Between 1975 and 1978, ten of the largest energy using federal agencies, including DOE, have increased their energy consumption.

The Administration's feeble efforts on behalf of conservation have wide-ranging energy use implications. The federal government, according to DOE, is the nation's largest energy user. It directly consumes an amount of petroleum, electricity, gas and coal equivalent to about 282 million barrels of oil a year. Forty-five percent of this energy is consumed in the construction, heating and cooling of government buildings and facilities; 55 percent is used to operate transportation equipment.

Our government ought to be able to take steps to reduce its own energy use. It hasn't. While the states have a long way to go, the beginnings of genuine and imaginative programs are underway.

peared before the board to present a report on the forest fire that originated in the Mio area on May 5th and traveled in the direction of Iosco County, consuming several thousand acres of federal forest and destroying a number of homes and cottages; submitting a typewritten report on the activities of his office in conjunction with the Michigan State Police, the county sheriff, the American Red Cross and others. In an oral review of the report, Cummings advised that there was some confusion, but that the operation worked out well, and that communications established by area amateur radio operators were very good.

Continuing, Cummings reported that 1981 civil defense projects are being increased with additional funding to be available.

Chairman Webb reported in reference to a request received from Region 7-B Coordinator Nancy Wade for approval of CETA positions for AuSable Township, Wurtsmith AFB and the Oscoda-AuSable Historical Society to fill three openings that have become available, and for approval of two transfers from CETA title VI to title II for clerk-typist at the Iosco County Building Department in Oscoda and a sheriff's department custodian. Webb indicated that in the absence of any questions on the matter, the request for the three positions and the transfers would be considered approved.

Commissioner Merschel commented in reference to resolutions being presented at the last minute for adoption, with no time for study of the matter, expressing his dissatisfaction with the procedure; whereupon the matter was discussed by board members.

Chairman Webb referred to a letter received this date from Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller concerning pay raises for circuit court and friend of the court personnel, whereupon the matter was discussed and referred to committee.

Continuing, Webb referred to an error in the equalization report that was adopted May 5, 1980, and thereupon read a letter from County Equalization Director John Rose proposing that a letter be sent to the State Tax Commission to correct the total equalized valuation for Baldwin Township from $26,723,700 to $26,273,700. Following a brief discussion of the matter, it was moved by George and supported by Ulman that the equalization report be corrected in accordance with Mr. Rose's letter and the State Tax Commission so notified. Motion carried.

Commissioner Merschel presented the following report of minutes of the statutory finance committee meeting of April 8, 1980, moving its approval, motion being supported by George and carried.

Merschel further reported in reference to the following matters:

Roof repairs required at the county jail. Advised that he contacted the Omer Roofing Company, of Omer, Michigan, and Christian Brothers Roofing, of Oscoda, for estimates: The latter quoting a price of $250.00 to open up and repair an area 10 feet by 10 feet, but indicating they would not know the extent of the repair required until they open it up; the Omer Roofing Company quoting a price of $400.00 to begin with 200 sq. feet, with an additional charge if a larger area of repair is required, and quoting a price of $2,200 to install a complete new roof.

Repair of wind damage to the sheriff's garage: Indicated his belief that the repairs should be covered by insurance, advising that he received an estimate of $350 from the Omer Roofing Company.

Following a discussion with respect to the roof repairs at the county jail, it was moved by Stech and supported by Ulman that the county enter into a contract with Christian Brothers Roofing to perform the repairs in accordance with their proposal. In further discussion, Merschel requested that he be given the authority to use his discretion with respect to authorizing the necessary repairs once the extent of damage is determined by the roofer; it being the consensus of the board members that he should be granted this authority. The question was thereupon called and the motion to contract with Christian Brothers carried.

Commissioner Merschel further reported in reference to a communication from Circuit Judge Allan C. Miller concerning the need for a new typewriter for the assignment clerk. In discussion of the matter, Finance Chairman George indicated that line item No. 96 of the building and grounds department budget, wherein funds were provided for the purchase of typewriters, etc., has already been overdrawn. Matter discussed and deferred for further study.

Finance Chairman George referred to a request by Probate Judge William H. McCready for additional funds for the child care fund, whereupon Commissioner Stech read a letter under date of May 5, 1980, from Judge McCready indicating that his budget request was cut from $35,000 to $28,000 and that thereafter, without advance notice from the state, the charges for state facilities and programs were increased on the average of almost 20%, and that it now appears an additional $41,000 will be required for the year 1980. Following a discussion concerning the possibility of increased use of group foster care homes and the question of whether payment of child care costs are state mandated, it was proposed that Judge McCready be invited to the next committee-of-the-whole meeting to discuss the matter.

Finance Chairman George discussed a recent budget analysis prepared by the county clerk's office, indicating that it appears from the report that the budget is being overspent in many areas and that more revenue will be required, proposing that a "freeze" be placed on capital expenditures and new hiring and promotions, unless approved in advance by the board of commissioners. Following discussion, Finance Chairman George presented and moved adoption of the following resolution, motion being supported by Merschel and carried.

Commission

omments that all department heads be notified that, effective this date, they are not authorized to purchase or obligate the County of Iosco for any capital expenditures, unless said expenditure/obligation has been authorized in advance, in writing, by a majority of the statutory finance committee.

The following proposed resolution and moved its adoption, which was supported by Stech:
Your finance and personnel committee recommends that, effective this date, no additional employees are to be hired or promoted, if said action results in the expenditure of county general funds, until such hiring or promotion has been approved in advance by the board of commissioners.

Merschel indicated that he is not happy with the proposed action, that he feels the matter should be first discussed with department heads; Stech voiced the opinion that department heads would be opposed to the action and questioned the advisability of same, inasmuch as the department heads are elected by the public as responsible persons; and Merschel questioned if a previous resolution restricting new hire without the board's approval doesn't accomplish the same thing.

board of commissioners meetings of April 16th and April 23rd were approved as drafted and presented by the clerk.

Commissioner Stech, the board of commissioners' representative on the East Central Michigan Health Systems Agency Board of Directors, reported in reference to a proposed 30% cut in federal funding and thereupon read and moved adoption of a proposed resolution requesting that letters be sent to U. S. Congressmen and Senators urging their opposition to the proposed cuts. There being no support for the motion, Stech explained the functions of the agency with respect to emergency services, ambulance service, the training of emergency medical technicians, etc., indicating that if he does not have this board's support, he will tender his resignation as a member of the health systems agency board of directors, and thereupon withdrew the proposed resolution and indicated his desire to withdraw as the board's appointee to the agency's board of directors. No action taken on the matter.

Chairman Webb referred to a request by the custodians to join the United Steelworkers Union, whereupon the matter was discussed briefly.

The business scheduled for the day having been concluded, it was moved by Merschel and supported by George to adjourn until May 12, 1980, 2:00 p. m., or subject to the call of the chair upon 24 hours notice to board members and the news media. Motion carried and meeting adjourned at 5:05 p. m.

DESPITE WET WEATHER in some areas of the country, corn and soybean planting is progressing generally on schedule, reports the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The latest USDA Planting Intentions Report shows U.S. farmers plan to plant 82 million acres in corn and 71.3 million acres in soybeans—a 3% increase in corn over last year, and a reduction in soybeans of nearly 1%. Southern farmers have switched some soybean acreage to cotton. And Midwestern farmers are indicating they will increase corn acreage and cut back on soybeans. Farm income prospects are uncertain, USDA reports, because of the Russian grain embargo, high production costs, tighter production credit, and high interest rates.

Dale Landon Appointed Medical Facility Director

Dale Landon, 51, who grew to young manhood in Tawas City, entered military service from here during the Korean War, graduated later from college and then spent 17 years as an executive in various fields of the automotive industry, returned last week to become the new director of the Iosco County Medical Care Facility.

His appointment was announced May 20 by the Iosco

County Social Services Board and he began his employment immediately, succeeding Herman (Bucky) Knight of Lincoln, who had filled the position since October 15.

Although this is Landon's first employment in the health field, his educational qualifications include a bachelor degree in hotel, restaurant and institutional management, which he received in 1957 from Michigan State University.

He comes here after serving two years as plant superintendent for Flint Manufacturing Company in the automotive support field. His previous experience includes five years with a management consulting company in fields of efficiency and problem solving, plus 10 years in a supervisory capacity with General Motors.

He said his new job may seem like a gigantic step in a different direction than he followed previously "and I will have to understand the problems real fast," but Landon expressed the belief that the medical care facility's operation, from the administrative end, should be no different than any other business.

The Michigan Department of Social Welfare has issued a temporary permit allowing him to accept the position and he will be taking an examination in August to receive full accreditation as a nursing home director.

Management of the medical care facility will be no easy task. Financing operation of the facility has been hectic for several years and a previous director, Roy E. Bergstrom, who had served 10½ years, was fired last October. Knight accepted a 90-day contract to direct the facility in October, then was appointed director after that period.

Knight had full confidence of the social services board and the county board of commissioners and took a series of steps to solve the financial problems at the facility. One step was to eliminate certain fringe benefits for employees, which was accepted by staff members in a cooperative effort. It is inconceivable, however, if that step would be permanent.

In the past, the medical care facility's financing was complicated by a cash flow problem and reimbursement under state Medicaid did not keep pace with the actual cost of patient days. Last summer, a number of employees were laid off when the facility's beds were not filled.

That does not seem to be a problem today as the 64-bed facility was filled Wednesday and there was a list of 10 patients waiting to enter. Patient days fluctuate, however, just as they do in any hospital or other nursing home.

Knight, who continued to operate the Lincoln Haven Nursing Home while he served the Iosco facility, resigned because of his plans to expand his private business at Lincoln to 100 beds. He is to provide consulting assistance to the new director until June 1.

Landon and his wife, Maxine, are moving into an apartment overlooking Tawas Bay on Bay Drive, Tawas City. They have one married daughter and a son is working with a construction contractor in South Carolina.

Stating he was still a "physical fitness nut," Landon enjoys swimming and jogging and hopes to find time to do a little golfing. He is substituting as a partner in a golf match this week with his brother, Charles, of Tawas City. His mother, Emma, resides on First Street and his father, Fred, is deceased. His older brother, Roy, is a resident of Massachusetts.

Landon was an amateur sports enthusiast of note during his youth here, competing in basketball and baseball at Tawas City High School, from which he graduated in 1946, followed by several years on independent teams and sports competition while in service.

One of the patients at the medical care facility is Archie Ruckle, former manager of Alpena Candy and Cigar Company, with whom Landon was employed prior to entering military service in 1950.

"It feels great to return home—I wish it could have happened earlier," said the new director.

Memorial Day services held across the country annually since 1875 pay tribute to those who have given their lives in the defense of their country and to remember those men and women who have served in all of the wars involving this nation, some returning home bearing battle wounds which would remain with them for the rest of their lives.

Practically each generation of Americans has had to contend with some form of war—large and small—in which young men have marched off in defense of their country. Families at home anxiously awaited the return of their boys from some distant field of battle; some made the supreme sacrifice and did not return, while others returned but not entirely whole of body.

Many parents of today recall the dreaded moment when a telegram from the federal government delivered at the front door had to be opened with shaking hands. In some instances, families received more than one telegram notifying them that sons had been killed. A gold star flag would then be hung in the front window of the home.

One hundred or more Iosco County families have hung gold star flags over the years and this featurette tells the story of one Baldwin Township family which received two telegrams, about five months apart, notifying the mother that one of her sons had been wounded in battle and another had died of his wounds.

Edward and Andrew Karziski were born in Baldwin Township and grew to manhood on the farm of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Karziski. Both boys were to adopt the last name of Klinger later in life, but only one did so officially through court proceedings as the other did not live to make the change.

Edward, the eldest son, worked on the farm until the age of 18 years, then was employed on a nearby farm for two years. He was next employed at Alabaster for the Erie and Michigan Railway and Navigation Company for four years.

Learning of better employment, he resigned the latter position and joined his brother, Andrew, at Detroit. Both worked for the Detroit Fire Department and then spent two years at the Cadillac Motor Car factory.

Following this country's entry into World War I, the two brothers entered military service and received training at Camp Custer before heading overseas with the United States Marines.

IN LATER LIFE, Andrew changed his last name to Klinger. This picture was snapped when he was honored by Jesse C. Hodder

TWO BALDWIN TOWNSHIP brothers, Andrew and Edward Karziski, joined the United States Marines during World War I. Both were wounded in battle and Edward died in France. Andrew returned home, but later had his leg amputated after three years of suffering.

In July 1918, parents of the two young men received a telegram from the War Department informing them that their son, Andrew, had been wounded during the bloody battle of the Marne. Andrew was a member of Company 17, Fifth Marines, and had been struck below the hip by a German machine gun slug.

Medical corpsmen had bypassed Andrew's body because they thought he was dead, but a French burial party later entered the field of battle, found him alive and transported him by horse-drawn cart to a French hospital, but not before being fired upon again by German machine guns.

A telegram was received later by the Baldwin Township couple stating that Edward had been severely wounded by shrapnel on October 13, 1918, and word was received by his mother reporting his death November 4.

Before the final word was received, the father had written a letter to his son stating that a letter had been received from him on Armistice Day. The father's letter included a poem, ing extreme pain from his wound for more than three years, his right leg was amputated December 16, 1921, at Maywood, Illinois.

On August 23, 1922, he married the former Georgene M. Black and they made their home at East Tawas before returning to Detroit where he resumed employment in an automobile factory. He had been fitted with an artificial leg, which proved to be uncomfortable to wear because the leg had been amputated extremely close to the hip.

During the depression, Andrew and his family returned to Iosco County in 1932 and purchased a farm on Laidlaw Road. He took an active part in affairs of his rural community and was a member of the Laidlaw School Board.

Although the loss of his leg proved to be a severe blow, he overcame the handicap and operated the small farm, using his artificial limb while walking behind a horse to plow his field.

He and his wife raised a family of five children and, when World War II came along, they moved to Flint where he worked in a war plant until VJ Day.

In the summer of 1946, the family returned to Tawas Township and purchased a different farm on Laidlaw Road. The Klingers later purchased a home in Tawas City along the shore of Tawas Bay known as the Elms and he was employed by Tawas Industries until he retired in 1954.

Long before he retired, Andrew had dispensed with wearing the artificial leg and got around on crutches. At one old-timers' baseball game in Tawas City, he entered a one-legged race with another handicapped veteran.

In later years, he sustained a detached retina in one eye and was treated at the Dearborn Veterans Hospital, but later complications resulted in complete blindness for 18 years. His attending physicians believed that the damage to nerve endings during his leg amputation was the direct cause of his later blindness.

Despite all of his suffering as the result of his war wound, Klinger was a man of great humor and his courage was uplifting to many people. Others gathered strength from just talking to this optimistic man, who always looked at the bright side of life.

He took an active part in Jesse C. Hodder American Legion Post, the Disabled American Veterans, the Laidlawville Community Club and, when a World War I veterans organization was formed, the post was named in his honor.

Similar stories about those who have served their country during time of war were recalled on Memorial Day, when surviving veterans—one of them a former Laidlawville resident, Karl Kobs—watched as a wreath was placed on the grave of Pvt. Andrew Klinger. He died July 2, 1973, at the age of 79 years.

Michigan Should Abandon Presidential Primary Election

Michigan should have learned a lesson May 20—a presidential primary election is a waste of time and money in this state. Unfortunately for taxpayers—counties foot the bill for this one—the entire fiasco could have been avoided by prudent action of the state legislature and the governor.

A Walk Through A Community's History

MEMORIAL DAY is a national holiday set aside for paying tribute to deceased war veterans, but it also is a day for remembering deceased relatives and friends by decorating graves and visiting cemeteries. A walk through a cemetery is like a walk through a community's history, as evidenced by these pictures snapped at Memory Gardens Cemetery in Tawas City. Each cemetery is unique and one of the distinguishing features of the burial grounds here is the sunken garden, pictured at top left, once a channel of Dead Creek. The first cemetery here was located at the First Street intersection with Lake Street, the edge of town in the 1850s. In 1873, property for the present cemetery was purchased and some old graves were moved to the new site. Most graves were unmarked originally and, during construction of the state highway, additional graves were uncovered. Despite good intentions, cemeteries have been neglected in the past.

THIS SIMPLE STONE marks the grave of Lyman B. Smith, who served as a first sergeant in the First Minnesota Cavalry during the Civil War and came to Iosco County as a lumberman in 1868. A former county sheriff, he deeded property to the community for the original portion of the present cemetery in 1873.

NUMEROUS monuments of this type are scattered throughout the cemetery, all erected in the early 1900s.

THIS STONE marks the grave of a Charles Guy Wilkins, who died July 25, 1881. The marker was vandalized several years ago and it has been placed flat on the ground. Erosion will soon erase the name and date carved in the soft stone.

A NEW ENTRANCE SIGN was erected last year, the metal letters standing out boldly against a backdrop of pine trees along the road. The cemetery is situated on a ridge of sand covered with second growth red and white pine trees.

Fifth grade students of Tawas Area Schools, taught by Mrs. Donald MacLeod and Ann Blonde, have recently experienced community involvement in education. This was accomplished by field trips and special lectures by community leaders, businessmen and interested citizens.

Among the events of interest to students was a trip to the Iosco County Building for a visit to Judge Richard Ernst's courtroom to learn about law and court procedures; a demonstration on geology and rocks by Erich Wiese; history of the lumbering era by Neil Thornton with photos, memorabilia and films; explanation of city government by Lowell Thomas and the fire department by Herbert Blust, Alton Long and James Lansky.

Mark DeBeau, Iosco County deputy sheriff, spoke on bicycle safety to students in grades four through six. Stanley Brockenbrough gave information on the Iosco Transit Corporation. During an assembly May 19, Judge William McCready and Trooper Thomas Beebe explained the law as applied to youth.

Michigan Strawberries Hit Grocery Counters in June

Fresh, ripe, red Michigan strawberries, one of the many good things growing in Michigan, will begin appearing at grocery stores and markets about the first week in June.

These delicious berries are excellent for shortcakes, pies, preserves, jams and scrumptious desserts, like fresh strawberry mousse:

Crush one pint Michigan strawberries and drain the juice, reserve. Add enough water to the juice to make one and one-half cups. Bring juice to a boil and stir in two three-ounce packages strawberry flavored gelatin; dissolve and cool. Add strawberries and one-quarter cup sugar. Whip one pint whipping cream until it stands in soft peaks and fold into strawberry mixture. Pour mixture into a two-quart ring mold. Chill several hours or overnight before serving.

An estimated 13,500,000 pounds of strawberries were harvested in Michigan last year from 2,500 acres of land, according to the Michigan Department of Agriculture. Fresh market sales accounted for about 4.6-million dollars of the total $6,619,000 crop.

Michigan has many strawberry patches for pick-your-own enthusiasts. When harvesting, pinch off only the stem — leaving the cap attached to seal in natural juices. Refrigerate berries unwashed until just before serving. (Washing berries before storing removes the natural protective outer layer.) Wash berries before removing caps so water will not get into the berry and dilute the flavor or change the texture.

When choosing strawberries at the field or in the local market, be sure the berries are ripe. Berries with white tips will not ripen after picking. Berries which are dull in appearance and lack aroma are overripe and less flavorful.

IN FIGHT AGAINST CANCER

One out of every four Americans, according to the American Cancer Society, will eventually get cancer during his or her lifetime. In the war against cancer, computed tomography systems, familiarly known as "CT scanners," are winning battles that might have been lost. With them, even greater victories may be possible.

CT scanning is new to the fight. A revolutionary X-ray system that utilizes the computer to provide detailed cross-sectional "pictures" of the human body, it was first introduced to clinical practice in 1972.

About 131,000 people with cancer who will probably die in 1980 might have been saved if they had had earlier treatment. The CT scanner is the latest medical breakthrough that is helping not only to make early detection possible, but that is providing more accurate diagnosis and better planning of subsequent treatment. It can also identify unsuspected cancer that has spread from one organ to another.

Harry Wiener, M.D., of Pfizer Inc., reports on CT scanning's performance and potential in "Findings in CT: A Clinical and Economic Analysis of Computed Tomography." Director of professional information for Pfizer Pharmaceuticals and Diagnostic Products, New York City, Dr. Wiener bases his book on an exhaustive survey of recent medical literature.

Some of the findings: —CT provides earlier diagnosis. It will detect many early lesions that would not have been discovered by other methods. Dr. Wiener suggests this "early-warning capability" of CT should be "particularly helpful in the management of cancer, where the main objective is to find and see tumors while they are still small enough to be cured, and before they have a chance to spread."

—CT provides better diagnosis. For instance, Dr. Wiener cites reports that in the chest the CT scanner has uncovered the spread of cancer, pinpointing break-away growths that were not found by ordinary X-ray or other methods. It is superior in detection of abnormal masses in the chest, more accurate in determining their size and shape. When combined with other clinical data, it is more accurate in determining the benign or malignant nature of a mass than any other X-ray method.

There are similar reports about CT scanning and its use in diagnosis of the abdomen. In brain cancer, CT scanning allows a doctor to see evidence of tumor growth and spread and therefore take measures against it. In tumors of the bones and muscles, particularly in children, CT is able to provide important information. For the first time, the bone marrow can be seen. —CT can pinpoint the precise location of cancer growth. Dr. Wiener states that this ability to identify the exact location of cancer enables doctors to localize their radiotherapy treatment, thereby minimizing the radiation dosages administered to patients.

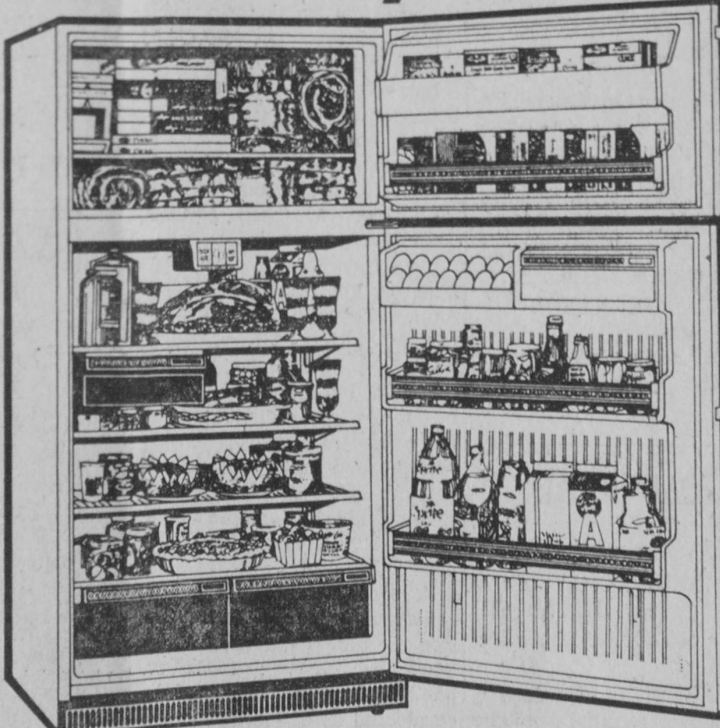

Besides tracking down cancer, CT scanning supplies information about the extent of the disease, helps determine whether it is in its early or late period. This helps doctors choose the proper method and amount of treatment needed, and aids in evaluating and directing therapy as it progresses. Pfizer Medical Systems Inc., a subsidiary of Pfizer Inc., manufactures and markets CT scanners. The firm is now producing a new fourth generation of scanners. The new generation is designed to be an even more powerful weapon against cancer.

Pfizer Medical Systems also markets a CT Radiation Therapy (CRT) Planning System to be used in conjunction with its CT scanners. CT aids the radiation therapist by making it possible "to pinpoint and clearly outline a tumor for treatment by radiation. The CT scan provides the therapist with an accurate "map" for planning the most efficient method of delivering radiation dosage to the diseased area without damaging nearby important healthy tissue.
