Council Reviews Budget, Sets Two Hearing Dates

Continuing its review of a preliminary budget establishing $347,853 for general fund expenditures during 1980-1981, Tawas City Council Monday night set dates for upcoming hearings on federal revenue sharing and city general fund budgets.

Another work session by the council to review the city manager's preliminary budget is scheduled for next Monday night. This will be followed Monday, May 12, by a public hearing starting at 7:30 p. m. to receive public comment on public use of $78,330 in federal revenue sharing funds to be received by the city.

A second hearing is to be held Monday, May 19, to receive public comment on the proposed general fund budget of the city, starting at 7:30 p. m., to be followed by a second hearing to receive public comment on the relationship of federal revenue sharing funds with the city budget.

During Monday night's work session preceding the regular council meeting, the council reviewed expenditures proposed by the city manager and continued the work session following the regular meeting.

Last year, the council budgeted $315,347 for general fund expenditures and expenditures of $329,853 are expected when the year ends June 30. The city manager's proposed budget calls for raising $145,000 in property taxes, as compared to a projected expenditure of $150,000 in property taxes during the current year.

The total city budget includes, in addition to general fund expenditures, $52,615 for municipal streets, $116,990 for local streets, $58,738 for major streets, $60,983 for the local improvement fund, $45,218 in the equipment fund, $2,900 for industrial park development, $40,760 for debt service.

On recommendation of the city manager, the firm of Weinlander, Fitzhugh, Bertuleit and Schairer was reappointed city auditor for one year. The cost of the general fund audit last year was $2,760 and it is expected that the cost this year will be slightly higher.

Herbert Cholger, former mayor, appeared before the council and requested information concerning the validity of petitions submitted last fall requesting a referendum on return to the ward system for selecting councilmen and electing a city clerk and treasurer rather than appointing those officers. City Clerk Rachel Sue McCreedy was of the opinion that signatures were still valid if petitions met legal requirements. It was pointed out that the city had not received a clarification from Allied Taxpayers if it was requesting a revision or amendment to the charter. Once that point is clarified, validity of the petitions would be checked.

The city manager indicated that he was to visit the Detroit office of the United States Army Corps of Engineers to obtain forms to make application for federal funds to assist in construction of a breakwall at the river mouth to protect against erosion of public property.

He said that funds amounting to $30,000 set aside by the Iosco County Parks and Recreation Commission to assist in the development were to expire December 31, 1980, and he is to meet with the parks and recreation commission this month in an effort to extend the time. He said that if the city should receive outside revenue to assist with the project, it would be at least a year before any construction could start.

Following complaint of two water customers, the council amended its billing rate for customers who have water service shut off during absence from their homes. When water is turned on again by the city, a ready to serve charge of $8 for the quarter would be made, along with the regular rate for actual gallons consumed, plus the sewer charge based on 60 percent of the total water bill. The minimum rate under this new policy would be $14 per

Cut ET High Rise Cost by $50,000

A resolution was adopted Monday night by East Tawas Council cutting $50,000 from the construction cost for the new high rise apartment building for the elderly, proposed a block north of the present Bay Park Tower.

The action, which necessitates approval by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, establishes a cost of $1,650,000 for the construction.

No bids were received by the East Tawas Housing Commission recently when it attempted to sell its bonds for the full 1.7-million-dollar project. Since then, however, the interest rate on such bonds has improved slightly.

In other business, the council authorized a reimbursement of $7 to volunteer firemen who drive fire trucks. A new state license is required for fire truck drivers, costing the above fee. A bill is presently in the state legislature to exclude volunteer firemen from the act.

City Clerk Clyde Soper is to assist City Supt. William Smith in preparation of a preliminary budget for the council. Smith is presently hospitalized.

Councilmen are to make a survey of their neighborhoods to review complaints concerning cable television reception. An assessment of complaints is to be compiled for presentation at the next meeting.

Biologist Dies in Blaze Fire Roars Through National Forest

Hundreds of pinpoint flames flickering in the darkness Monday night and early Tuesday morning presented an unreal picture to observers—the "lighted birthday candles" were the remains of a once proud forest burning along the roadside and in the hilly region northwest of South Branch.

The scene was a picture of utter desolation at dawn Tuesday following the region's most devastating forest fire in nearly 50 years. An estimated 25,000 acres of pine lands were swept away in a matter of a few hours.

One member of the United States Forest Service died in the blaze while operating a heavy tractor, a Lupton volunteer fireman was injured when struck by a falling tree. Possibly a hundred or more cabins and homes were destroyed in the blaze and refugees from the flames were housed at Hale Area High School and at Lupton.

What started out Monday morning as a controlled burn by the Mio office of the United States Forest Service suddenly erupted into an inferno. Ironically, the fire started by forest service officials to burn off 200 acres of jack pine land to improve the habitat of the nesting Kirtland warbler may have wiped out that endangered bird species.

Authorities were unable to give an estimated cost of damage caused by the blaze, but the smoldering ruins of summer cottages and homes possibly will run into several hundred thousand dollars.

At the height of the blaze Monday afternoon, the Village of South Branch on the Iosco-Ogemaw County line was evacuated when burning ash and flying embers carried on the wind dropped in the community.

"Everything seemed to be in confusion—we had a good communications system operating, but we were receiving too many conflicting reports about the blaze. We decided not to take any chances and ordered the community evacuated," said Ogemaw County Sheriff William Ehinger Monday night.

The sheriff was stationed at his temporary command post at the South Branch Fire Hall, where members of the Ogemaw County Amateur Radio Service established a communications center. About a dozen or more amateur radio operators were in constant communication with the center, offering radio service to law enforcement departments manning blockades and evacuating residents, as well as to fire fighting agencies.

While Sheriff Ehinger was speaking, one of his deputies entered the command post and reported he had counted 17 cottages burned to the ground at nearby Mack Lake and he be-

Reappraisal Completed Commission Gets Valuation Report

Iosco County's state equalized tax base jumped to $278,080,014 this year, representing an increase of slightly more than 10 1/2 percent for real property.

At a hearing held Thursday night, John Rose, tax equalization director, said he would recommend in his equalization report to the county board of commissioners today (Wednesday) that real property be equalized at $258,955,934 and personal property at $19,984,080.

Differences with two townships were noted at the hearing attended by county, city and township officials. Property valuations on a number of parcels were changed by action of boards of Review of Reno and Grant Townships.

Rose said he had questioned the changes and was to meet Saturday with Grant Township officials. On Monday, he was satisfied with answers given to a number of his questions, although he felt that the board of review should follow established procedures to record reasons for changes in official minutes.

The tax equalization director said that the total valuation had not been altered in Reno Township by board of review action and that any resulting questions by Reno Township property owners would have to be resolved within that unit.

Rose's department actually finished its tabulation of property valuations during the hearing. The department head had met with representatives of the state tax commission Thursday afternoon relative to figures he recommended for residential property in Oscoda Township.

A complete reappraisal of real property in the county, which was started three years ago by Rose's department, has just been completed. This program saw the use of CETA trainees in compiling information for property file cards, followed by public hearings on tentative valuations and final actions by boards of review in each unit. The information has now been fed into the county's new computer system.

As the result of the reappraisal, only two units of the county will receive multiplying factors on their equalized valuations to bring the total to a theoretic 50 percent of true cash value.

A factor of 1.1705 was added to Tawas City, where the appraisal was accomplished three years ago and no adjustment had been made based on property sales. A factor of 1.0609 was added to Grant Township.

As the result of the reappraisal, assessed valuation as adopted by boards of review jumped from $175,325,019 in 1979 to $255,200,785 in 1980, representing a whopping increase of 45.56 percent.

This high percentage of increase on the assessed figure could be misleading, however, as practically every unit in the (See EQUALIZATION, page 6.)

Issue Federal Warrants for Robbery Suspects

Federal authorities are holding warrants for the arrests of two suspects in the Monday, April 28, armed robbery of the Glennie office of Farmers and Merchants State Bank.

Being sought are Michael W. Teeple, 19, of Mikado, and Andrew L. Ferguson, 20, of Drayton Plains. Both fugitives are believed to be out of the state, Teeple possibly on his way to or in Florida.

Two ski-masked men, one armed with a shotgun and the other with a pistol, entered the bank shortly before 1:00 p. m. April 28. After holding the three tellers under gunpoint, along with one customer, the gunmen fled the scene in a blue pickup truck, heading north on M-65.

Before the day had ended, however, federal, state and local authorities had identified two suspects.

After being frustrated in attempts to catch the suspects at blockades leading out of the area—the two gunmen apparently traveled south along back woods trails—police received tips from witnesses in the bank parking lot and information from other sources soon led to identification of the subjects.

The trail soon led authorities to the home of Teeple, who lived at Mikado with his parents and was the owner of a royal blue Chevrolet four-wheel drive pickup truck. A friend from Drayton Plains was visiting him and the two men were to go to Oakland County the day of the robbery.

Another tip received from a witness in the bank parking lot identified the first name of one of the gunmen. The witness told officers that one of the men had dropped a bundle of currency as they were running toward their truck and his partner called to "Mike" not to bother with it.

The truck was recovered the next day in Oakland County under another unusual circumstance. The owner of a blue pickup truck had been stopped at one of the roadblocks in the state and then was permitted to continue on his way. When he reached his home in Oakland County he had occasion to go to a sanitary landfill. There, he noticed that a late model blue pickup truck answering the description of the getaway vehicle was being crushed and buried in the landfill. Authorities at the landfill were notified and the smashed vehicle was recovered. The license plate number on the vehicle was traced to Teeple. The operator of the landfill is facing criminal prosecution.

Witnesses on foot and those in cars at the bank parking lot, who had been under gunpoint while the two men made their escape, said there was no license plate on the getaway vehicle. Officers are of the opinion that the license plate was later put back on the truck to avoid apprehension.

Fire Depts. Busy With Brush Fires

Numerous forest and brush fires broke out in Iosco County at about the same time a major blaze was destroying national forest land in neighboring Ogemaw and Oscoda Counties.

Cabins in the Little Island Lake area of Iosco County were threatened Monday afternoon during a 300-acre blaze which burned itself nearly to the edge of the lake. Plainfield Township and Grant Township volunteer firemen battled the fire which started at 1:30 o'clock.

One mobile home was destroyed and part of a garage was damaged.

Tawas City Fire Department answered a call later Monday afternoon in Alabaster Township to fight a fire near the county line and the East Tawas Fire Department was called upon to fight a brush fire about the same time.

SPRING CLEANUP DAY in Tawas City is to be held Tuesday, May 20. This annual program to beautify is about a month later than usual, due to a number of circumstances, but the Tawas City Department of Public Works urges cooperation by all home owners in cleaning property for the coming summer season. A public notice detailing information is printed on page two, section one of this newspaper.—Tawas Herald Photo.

City Plans to Entertain Visitors

Michigan Week observance will be a week late in Tawas City, but a "mayor's exchange" day is being planned for Wednesday, May 28.

Last year, Tawas City officials received a royal reception when they visited Imlay City and plans are being made here to entertain visiting Imlay City officials in similar fashion.

Visitors are to meet with city officials at the city hall starting at 11:00 a. m., followed by a noon luncheon. The group is to tour industries of the community starting at 1:00 p. m., followed by a sight-seeing trip aboard the Holiday cruise boat at 3:00 p. m. A tour of the hospital, medical care facility, Provincial House and other points of interest is to be made at 4:15 using facilities of Iosco Transit System.

A dinner party starting at 5:00 p. m. is being planned at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish Hall.

Mesick Firm Low Bidder on Completing Fishing Pier

Guthrie Construction of Mesick was low bidder Monday night among seven different firms seeking a contract to finish work on completion of the fishing pier at the Tawas City Park.

Bid documents were turned over to Edmonds Engineering Company of Bay City, the city's consultant, which is to make a recommendation by Wednesday on final award of the contract by the city council.

Guthrie's bid of $67,474.53 was $676 below the cost estimated by the engineer. Unit cost of the low bidder included $3,500 for the earthen fill and asphalt walkway, $8.50 per lineal foot of rustic fencing, $65 each for benches, $200 each for tables, $2,250 for grass seeding, $12,199.53 for concourse lighting, $27,000 for straightening existing sheet piling and $1,200 for riprap erosion protection.

Other base bids were entered by Maegher Construction Company, $78,317.40; John Henry Excavating, East Tawas, $77,332.23; Gilliland Construction, Alpena, $74,925; P. and M. Marine, Mt. Clemens, $149,031.95; Huron Sod Farms, Romulus, $67,631; Scheuener-McNeil Construction, Alpena, $72,584.

This project is being financed jointly by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the city. The state is to provide 75 percent of the cost and the city is to provide the remaining 25 percent. (See BIDS, page 2.)

EDITORIAL

The miscalculation of weather conditions in Monday's "controlled burn" to improve the nesting habitat of the Kirtland warbler in Huron National Forest certainly demands review of this practice. One person lost his life, another was injured and thousands of dollars worth of private property went up in smoke as the result of someone's error in judgment. It will also take many long years to heal the wounds of a burned over forest.

The Kirtland warbler has been an endangered species since it was first discovered in this locality shortly after 1900; it is questionable if man's recent efforts to help this tiny bird through burning off large sections of forest land has been successful—it certainly was not so on Monday.

Evangelistic Team Sets Services at ET Church

Russell Coffey Evangelistic Team will be holding special services at the East Tawas Church of the Nazarene beginning Tuesday evening, May 6, and continuing through Sunday, May 11.

The Coffey family, being a variety of ministry and talent, provide special music and dynamic Gospel preaching. Each service will begin at 7 o'clock during the week, with Sunday services at 11:00 a. m. and 6:00 p. m.

The Rev. Daryl Burt encourages the community to attend.

1st Communion at IHM Church

First Communion was celebrated at Immaculate Heart of Mary Church Sunday, May 4, for Jennifer Bertsch, Christina Spencer, Robert Brugger Jr., Jeffrey Lorenz, Joseph Raleigh and Beth Schley. Officiating was the Rev. Fr. Lawrence Boks.

Following the service, the Council of Catholic Women welcomed the communicants and their families at a reception in the parish hall.

"Anything you did not do for one of these, however humble, you did not do for me." (Matthew 25:45 NEB)

Someone called in the late evening to tell me that a young man was seeking shelter in the church buildings. He had been thrown out of his home and for the last two nights he had slept outside. On the third night, seeing a light and finding an open door, he thought he would spend the night in the church.

I did what I could. I rang the Salvation Army—they were full. I rang the Cyrenians, the Addiction Center and the Council Reception Center but the answer was the same.

I put on my coat and went to the church to share my bad news with him. He stood up, shook his head, thanked me and went off into the night rain.

When I told my wife, she said, "We have a bed made up. We have clean pajamas. We have warm blankets. Why did you not offer him a bed for the night? Why not go out in the car and bring him back?"

I replied that he could be anywhere by now and that I had little chance of finding him.

I went downstairs and read my Bible lesson for the day. It was the story of the good Samaritan.

Davis' Aide Here May 12

Cong. Robert Davis' district representative, William Huber will hold office hours Monday, May 12, from 11:30 a. m. to 1:00 p. m. at the Senior Citizen Drop-In Center, Tawas City, and during the same hours Tuesday, May 13, at the senior citizen center in Oscoda.

Any citizen wishing to discuss a matter involving federal, state or local government is invited to visit Huber at this time. No prior appointment is necessary.

John Edmonds, the city's consultant, said the city has 19 days to execute the contract and the contractor has 10 days to start work after notification to proceed. He estimated the project would take 90 days to complete.

The project would complete one which started three years ago to install sheet steel piling around the earthen dock, which was originally constructed in 1940 from broken concrete removed during widening of U.S. 23.

Hospitals--'America's Health Team' is Motto May 11-17

"We are America's health team" is what Tawas Hospital and 6,000 other hospitals across the country will be saying to patients, staffs and communities during National Hospital Week, May 11-17. "Our 1980 National Hospital Week theme compares the hospital to a well-trained and coordinated sports team," said Rose Blackmore, human resource director. "We think of the hospital staff as a team where each member contributes his or her own special abilities to achieving the hospital's goal which is, of course, the highest possible quality of care for the patients. And, in a more general sense, the entire hospital functions as a leading member of the community health team working to build a healthier way of life for everyone."

During the past year, Tawas Hospital has worked toward the attainment of its over-all goal which is to better meet the health care needs of the residents in its service area. The 2.2-million-dollar expansion project started in 1978 is nearing completion and will see nuclear medicine and ultra sound added as new services.

Ground breaking for an expanded surgical suite will take place this summer. The Tawas Hospital Development Council is working to raise $95,000 for this project. They currently have $50,000 pledged toward that goal.

A 10-office medical arts building is under construction at the back of Tawas Hospital and slated for completion during the summer of 1980. The building will be constructed, maintained and leased to interested physicians by a private developer.

An active physician recruitment program is under way to bring additional specialists and generalists to the service area.

In February, the hospital expanded its contract with Northern Professional Emergency Physicians to provide 24-hour on site physician coverage in the emergency room.

Tawas Hospital and citizens from throughout the service area are teaming up to make health care services even better in the community. National Hospital Week is sponsored each year by the American Hospital Association and its approximately 6,000 member hospitals to foster better communications and understanding between hospitals and patients, employees and community they serve.

Jacques - Otto Marriage Vows Said at Gaylord

A reception at Hidden Valley, Gaylord, followed the exchange of vows Saturday, May 3, at St. Mary's Cathedral, Gaylord, when Pamela Otto of East Tawas became the bride of Thomas Jacques. The Rev. Fr. Steven Recker officiated at the 11:30 o'clock double ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Otto of Gaylord and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Jacques, Tawas City. Janet Skinner, vocalist, was accompanied by James Barclay on the guitar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a peau de soie gown trimmed in silk Venice lace. The skirt flowed to a Watteau train and a mantilla veil completed her attire. Her bouquet was comprised of Stephanotis, cymbidium and ivy featuring a corsage center.

Sandra Fischer, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Mrs. Roger Bauer, sister of the bridegroom, and Mary Jo Larson were bridesmaids. Their apricot gowns featured accordion pleats and matching jackets. They carried colonial bouquets of white and peach chrysanthemums and tropical roses.

Serving as best man was Hugo Keiser with Jerrald Jacques and John Jacques, groomsmen. Roger Bauer was usher.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Otto chose a turquoise dress enhanced with a corsage of turquoise carnations, white roses and babies breath. Mrs. Jacques wore a dusty rose gown with an orchid corsage.

The couple, graduates of Michigan State University, will reside at 1251 Spartan Road, Tawas City.

Wedding guests included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Fred Otto Sr. of Dunedin, Florida; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bierman of San Antonio, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. John Barton of Washington, D. C.

Urge Family History Writing

A family get-together is an ideal time to get material from relatives to complete the family history, according to Mrs. E. M. Vaughan, chairman of the Iosco County History Book Project, and the local committee members.

Every family in Iosco County is urged to write its own family history to be included in the new Iosco County History to be developed during the next few months. Family gatherings on holidays and at other times are ideal for obtaining facts and interesting information about the family history to be included in this book.

Families are asked to write stories including brief information about the family background before coming to Iosco County and cover one branch of the family including all current members, since coming to the county. Anecdotes, memories and the unusual occurrences of earlier days will be particularly interesting. Length of these stories should be 600 words but can go over that by paying 10 cents a word for the excess material.

Those who have questions about preparing the material for the book are urged to contact local committee members or the chairman, Mrs. Vaughan, 362-3177; Iosco County Historical Museum, 362-8911; Mrs. Berkeley Bernard, Bernard Lumber Company, Hale, or Nellie McNeill, Oscoda, 739-5203.

Nursing Home Week Observance

National Nursing Home Week is May 11-18. Provincial House in Tawas City is making plans to observe the event and invites the community to share in it.

"National Nursing Home Week is a good time for all of us to stop and remember our residents—this community's mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, aunts, uncles, cousins, neighbors and friends," states Ruth Bergh, RN, nursing home administrator.

"All of them are distinct individuals with separate personalities, backgrounds and experiences. They have a lot to offer in the way of knowledge and friendship and those whose lives have been touched by our residents know how rewarding their friendship can be," she states.

The administrator said that the goal of Provincial House is to have residents be an integral, active part of the community and vice versa. "We feel we are headed in that direction now—our residents frequently go on outings and participate in community events; dozens of community volunteers are active in our program and many individuals visit our residents on a one-to-one basis."

She said that a nursing home "can never have enough involvement in the community. I am hoping that during National Nursing Home Week, area citizens who have not yet visited the facility will feel free to come and get to know us."

Present Flag to Wilber Church

An American flag which had flown over the capitol building at Washington, D. C., was presented to Wilber United Methodist Church during services Sunday, May 4. Making the presentation for Rose City Chapter No. 73, Disabled American Veterans, were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Wayne of Lupton. Accepting the flag, which will flank the altar with the Christian flag, was Maj. (retired) Neil Erickson, lay pastor of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne previously had donated an antique pulpit for use by the congregation.

Special Week for Transportation

Joining communities throughout the state and nation, residents of Isosco County will have the opportunity to participate in the observance of National Transportation Week, May 11-17.

During Transportation Week, the Isosco Transit Corporation will be offering specials to introduce county residents to public transportation.

Thursday and Friday, May 15 and 16, between the hours of 10:00 a. m. and 2:00 p. m., all county residents are invited to enjoy a free ride on ITC buses. The directors and staff of the Isosco brand of Dial-a-Ride, feel that by offering a no cost introduction to public transportation many first time passengers may be recruited. ITC is emphasizing that the service is for everyone.

Governor Milliken proclaimed Transportation Week to point out state-wide efforts to bring total transportation to the people of Michigan.

"We realize that residents of Michigan's small and medium sized towns have as much right to expect public transportation as residents of the metropolitan areas," said Stanley Brockenbrough, manager of ITC.

"With grants and encouragement from the State Transportation Commission, we have been able to start a public transportation system for the people of Isosco County that meets their needs."

National Transportation Week is being observed state-wide to bring attention to the balanced and integrated development of transportation in Michigan. The Michigan Department of Transportation is engaged in planning, with public input, and in programming and funding operations, equipment and facilities for transportation. Efforts include subsidy of railroad passenger and freight services, local and intercity bus systems, construction and maintenance of highways and development of air and water transportation.

Initiate Program in Forests to Save Historic Remains

Huron-Manistee National Forests have recently initiated a program to manage and protect historic and prehistoric remains on the forest. The new program is in response to federal legislation and a growing interest and concern among the public regarding this nation's history and cultural heritage. Recent statistics indicate that perhaps 75 percent of the sites occupied by prehistoric Indians and historic Euro-Americans have been irrevocably destroyed by urban expansion, highway and dam construction and other land and water modifications over the past 75 years.

Such behavior on all federal lands is forbidden by law (the 1906 Antiquities Act, and the 1979 Archaeological Resources Protection Act). The penalties can range from 90 days in jail and a $500 fine to five years in prison and a $100,000 fine for repeated convictions.

In order to protect the rich and important history of the Lower Peninsula from the impacts described above, the Huron-Manistee National Forests are conducting an inventory and evaluation of national forest lands to locate and record all historic and prehistoric sites. The Huron-Manistee has a variety of sites ranging from prehistoric sites several thousand years old to relatively recent logging and Civilian Conservation Corps Camps. Some of these sites will eventually be nominated to the National Register of Historic Places.

Track Teams Lost Dual Meet to Alcona

Tawas Area School track teams lost a dual meet Wednesday to visiting Ogemaw Heights. The Falcons defeated the Braves, 94-37, while the Ogemaw Heights girls defeated the Bravettes, 87-36.

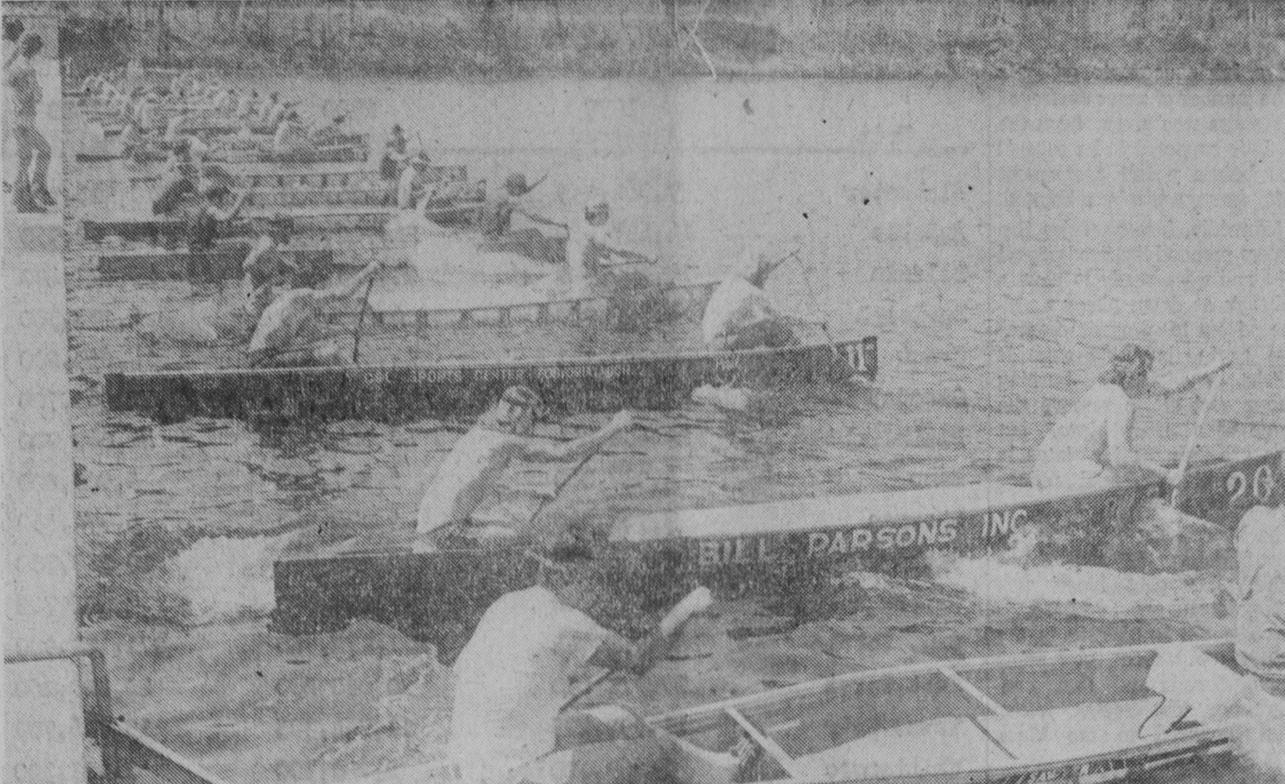

First place winners for Tawas boys included Jon Dunn, low hurdles, time of 16.91 seconds, and high hurdles, time of 42.83 seconds; Dan Moffatt, 880-yard run, two minutes, 14.71 seconds.

First place finishes for the girls were turned in by Colleen Curry, 440-yard dash; Maria Pinkowski, 880-yard run; Curry, long jump (15 feet, 8 1/4 inches).

Additional plans include interpreting several sites for the public as part of the over-all recreation program on the forest and presentation of information learned from the inventory and evaluation at meetings of county historical societies and other interested local groups.

Additional information regarding this new program can be made available by contacting the district rangers or the Forest Supervisor's Office, 421 South Mitchell Street, Cadillac, (778-2421).

Fire

 lieved there was at least another 30 cottages destroyed in that region.
 The Mack Lake area of Oscoda County was the site where the controlled burn was touched off that morning. The tinder-dry pine land soon burst out of control, crossed M-33 and roared to within three miles of South Branch. A heavy stand of hardwood on the outskirts slowed the blaze which was being pushed by a 20-mile-an-hour wind and a line of bulldozers cut a swath through the jack pine to provide a fire break.
 The blaze split into three different fires during the afternoon and several hundred fire fighters from the forest service, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and volunteer fire departments at Mio, Luzerne, Lupton, Fairview and Hale joined in the battle. The 60 Lakes Citizens Band Radio Club assisted with communications.

 Shortly before midnight Monday, the fire was brought under control, although patches of flaming trees in the burned over area still burned brightly. The fire hall at South Branch served as a central point for feeding the firemen, many of whom had been on the line since early afternoon.
 A helicopter contracted by the forest service for another project was pressed into service and a fairly accurate estimate of the number of acres destroyed by the fire was given from the air. It is expected to be several days before a full assessment of the damage will be tabulated.

 Meanwhile, forest service fire fighters manned the fire lines all night and were ready to plow a firebreak at dawn along a 10-mile front to prevent flames from again breaking out. It will be days before burning stumps cool off to remove the source of a new blaze, but rains are forecast for later in the week which should reduce the danger.
 The Mack Lake area was the scene of a devastating forest fire in 1948, but that blaze was nothing compared to Monday's fire. The Ski Bowl Fire in the mid-1950s wiped out 2,200 acres west of Oscoda and that conflagration, too, seems minor when compared to the Mack Lake Fire of 1980.
 James L. Swiderski, 29, of Alto, a forest service biological technician, died when he was overcome by smoke while fighting the fire near Mack Lake. He was operating a tractor plow.

county received a multiplying factor last year to establish the state equalized valuation on which taxes are levied.

The $79,873,766 increase in assessed valuation was added to compensate for increased values of property as indicated by studying sales over the past three years, along with information gained on property since the original appraisal more than 16 years ago.

Rose's department is now in the process of tabulating information relative to compliance with the Headlee amendment to the state constitution. A rollback in taxes will be required in those units which had an increase in excess of 11 percent on state equalized valuation.

Although Rose's report indicates an average increase of 10.65 percent, the actual percentage of increase is expected to be lower as new construction was used in that figure.

Several individual units may have exceeded the maximum increase, however, and a determination by Rose's office is not expected until the end of the month.

quarter, rather than $22.40 per quarter previously charged. The policy would not be retroactive. The policy was adopted by a five to one roll call vote. Coun. Donald Hayes was of the opinion that customers who could afford to vacation in Florida could afford to pay the previous charge, regardless of the fact that water had been turned on or off in different quarters.

Approval was given to close off one block of Beech Street on Sunday, June 29, 1:00 to 6:00 p. m., to permit use of the street during a picnic held at Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish Hall.

The council approved two transfers of funds in the 1979-80 budget, appropriating $3,700 from major street fund to the local street fund and $80 from unappropriated money of the industrial park development fund for meetings and conferences.

Resolutions were adopted proclaiming the week starting May 11 as National Nursing Home Week and the same week as Small Business Week. Mayor David Westcott is to attend the Thursday noon luncheon of Tawas City Business Association. A letter from Farmers Home Administration indicated that the $500,000 which had been set aside to provide low interest bonding to finance construction of a city hall complex, turned down by voters in two different elections, is to be withdrawn effective May 15. The federal agency said that it would be happy to receive any request for funding in the future and would in no way jeopardize future funding with the city through FmHA.

The city manager said he intended to write a letter to the agency asking an extension of time on the funds in order to develop a less expensive proposal than previously placed before voters.

DOLORES SIELOFF retired Wednesday after serving 21 years with the Detroit and Mackinac Railway as a secretary in its general office.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Secretary to Five Different General Managers of D&M

Dolores Sieloff of Tawas City, an employee of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway for the past 21 years, retired Wednesday from her position as secretary to the vice president and general manager.

She was honored at a dinner Wednesday night held by her fellow workers in the general office and will be one of three veteran railroad employees to be honored at a retirement party June 28, sponsored by the Brotherhood of Railroad and Airline Clerks.

A native of Davenport, Iowa, she came to Michigan as a youngster. She was employed as a secretary for seven years by the Cadillac Motor Car Company at Detroit and later as a private secretary for a manufacturing agent in the General Motors Building.

During World War II, she met the late Edward Sieloff of Tawas City. They were married in 1944 and moved here in 1946.

After the birth of their son, Robert, she was engaged in her home seamstress business for 13 years, having been sewing since she was "knee-high to a grasshopper."

Mrs. Sieloff entered the employment of the railroad on May 11, 1959, serving first as a switchboard operator. She has served as private secretary to five different general managers of the railroad.

An outstanding bowler for many years, she carried a 176 average and won numerous women's tournaments until having to give up bowling in 1963. She is a life member of the Women's International Bowling Congress.

She plans to "do what I want to do" during her retirement, which will include redecorating her home on Harris Avenue and possibly some traveling. She enjoyed a Florida vacation this winter with a daughter. Her son and his wife live at Utica.

The flowers on her desk Wednesday morning during this interview were a gift of her nephew, Carl Stieler, who is a member of one of the train operating crews of the railroad.

Cong. Davis Wants Mail on Saturdays

Northern Michigan Cong. Robert Davis says he is opposed to the elimination of Saturday mail service or any other cutback in postal services.

Davis said that, after soliciting comments from postmasters, postal union representatives and other affected groups, he came to the conclusion that eliminating the Saturday service would not be in the best interest of the citizens of Northern Michigan.

"Everyone in this country relies heavily on the postal service and especially those who live in rural areas. Many of the newspapers in our district are mailed. People order goods through the mail. They pay their bills through the mail. Many people receive social security checks on Saturdays," Davis noted. "The savings would not be worth the sacrifices that would have to be made. There are a lot of other places we can cut federal spending without disrupting something as important as mail delivery."

The responses he received from postmasters all over Northern Michigan were generally in opposition to the cutback. He also pointed out that the senior citizens he had spoken with were strongly opposed to eliminating Saturday mail.

Davis expressed his frustration with not being able to vote specifically to reinstate the postal service funding, because the house of representatives voted to allow only 11 very specific amendments to the budget resolution containing the cut. He pointed out on the house floor that the only way he could attempt to protect what he feels to be a valuable program would be to vote for one of the 11 allowed amendments which might also reinstate funding for several other programs he does not support.

Davis said he is hopeful there will be a way to reinstate the funding anyway at a later date.

WAFB Schedules Run for Energy Conservation

The Energy Conservation Task Group Information Team at Wurtsmith Air Force Base announced this week that it will host a "Run for Energy Conservation" on June 7.

The run will be open to military and civilian joggers and will start at 12 o'clock noon on the base. According to project officer, 1LT. Timothy Marinelli, the run will cover a distance of 6 1/2 miles and trophies will be awarded to the top finishers in four categories: Men 25 and under, men 26 and older; women 25 and under, and women 26 and older.

Entry fee for the run will also entitle contestants to a tee shirt emblazoned with the race slogan, "Energy Conservation keeps U. S. Running." That slogan was chosen in a recent contest held by the information team and was submitted by 1LT. Carole Hinkley.

Interested runners may contact Lieutenant Marinelli at 739-6616 or SSgt. C. L. Wonsay at 739-6386-6041. Runners may also pay their entry fee to Sergeant Wonsay at the Contracting Office, building 4004, on base.

Check List for Saving Energy

Iosco County Cooperative Extension Service offers the following check list of things to look for in a potential site to conserve energy if planning to build: The available sun; possible windbreaks to protect from winter winds; soil type for sanitary waste disposal and drainage; availability of water and how much needed; what the local zoning regulations will permit (check with building inspector early and find out how things stand); scenic views and privacy, and room for expansion and the adequacy of space for outdoor living, gardening, animals, etc.

A house needs to be integrated to the site. Site-house design will reduce the initial and operating expenses enough so that a larger piece of property could be affordable. Hence, that garden, the view or outdoor play area for the children that has always been wanted comes into reach.

Review each point and consider both the good and bad points of the site before purchasing and building.

For further information call Betty Riley, extension energy assistant, 362-3449.

Early Travel Writers Promoted Michigan National Forest

"WE TRAMPED along the shores of the AuSable, climbed its high sandy banks and gazed out over its beautiful waters," wrote Parlee C. Grose in his feature article telling the wonders of the Michigan National Forest.

The Michigan National Forest, which was carved out of the heart of the burned over plains land of the Northern Lower Peninsula in 1909 and set aside for preservation, reforestation and enjoyment of future generations, was relatively unknown to urban residents of the state during the first decade or more of its early existence.

While a few wealthy sportsmen—some coming from as far away as England—had enjoyed the great hunting and fishing opportunities offered by the AuSable River meandering through the forest's borders, the natural beauty of the 163,000 acres set aside originally for preservation were virtually unknown to the majority of Michigan residents.

Here in Iosco County, the beautiful AuSable River had long been appreciated by local residents—first for the job opportunities it provided as a major waterway for transporting white pine logs to saw mills dotting the Lake Huron shore, later for the thousands of jobs it created when the stream was dammed for the generation of hydroelectric power.

Even then, a trip into the interior of the forest was a major undertaking and an expedition required long hours of travel by horse and wagon. A deer hunter penetrating the wilds of the majestic AuSable River Valley in search of the whitetail could walk for miles and not find a track of a fellow human being during the winter season.

The automobile, which has contributed so much to changing the face of the land and the life style of Americans—both for the job opportunities provided through the manufacture of gasoline engine-powered four wheels and a dramatic change in the habits of the common folk—also contributed an immense change in the forest.

Michiganians, who lived in urban areas and had long been tied closely to their six-day-a-week jobs before the advent of automobile assembly lines at Detroit, Flint and other major manufacturing centers, soon found that their jalopies offered a marvelous release from what must have been a rather humdrum city life.

By 1923, the hundreds of cars traveling north in the state had swelled into the thousands as entire families piled into gas buggies and headed into the hinterlands, which had been the domain of local residents and the few wealthy sportsmen only a few years earlier. In the process, Northern Lower Michigan was changed as sleepy hamlets which had practically died after the white pine harvest found new and sudden wealth being offered by the windfall of a new tourist industry.

Gasoline stations seemed to spring up overnight along the roads leading north—with some four-corner hamlets like Hale and Twining featuring a service station at each corner—and there was a mad rush to provide overnight accommodations to the growing stream of tourists through establishment of cabin courts and rustic resorts on the shores of Lake Huron and inland lake retreats.

The Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau, which was to grow into the East Michigan Tourist Association, recognized a good thing and helped the region to gain its share of this dollar boom by promoting the natural beauty of the Michigan National Forest through its guides and pamphlets issued in metropolitan areas.

One popular way to gain national publicity was to send a writer into the wilds to extol the beauties of the forest in words and pictures printed in travel publications. One such writer was Parlee C. Grose, whose feature articles graced the tourist and travelers' directory published by EMTA and reprinted in various other publications.

In 1922, when sand trails still led out of the Tawas, Grose was in Iosco County and extolled the beauties of the region in a feature article entitled, "Michigan National Forest, and published in the 1923 edition of "Where-To-Go."

Grose noted that "the work of reforesting such devastated areas and the prevention of fires in existing timberland constitutes the main purpose of the National Forest Service, which is maintained by the United States Department of Agriculture."

He said that the Michigan National Forest, in addition to its utility function, "has become and is being made a vast recreational wilderness for the throngs of summer tourists who motor into Northern Michigan for their annual outing. With one of the northern trunk highways touching the edge of the forest at East Tawas, on the lake shore, there is an irresistible invitation to swing off for a few days in the forest before resuming the trip. Many spend their whole outing in the forest," related the article.

Grose's trip itinerary included a "swing off into the forest for a few days" and, in company with the forest supervisor, "I spent several days motoring and tramping through miles and miles of woodland that constitutes the Michigan National Forest. I learned much and had a royal good time while learning it."

The travel writer first noted in his folksy article that the forest supervisor had his office and headquarters near the nursery where young trees were grown and cultivated until ready to be taken into the forest and replanted. "The supervisor informed me that the Michigan National Forest is having greater success in its replanting work than any other national forest, its survival being the largest."

By 1922, approximately 4,000 acres had been planted in Norway, white, Scotch and some yellow pine and the work was being accomplished at the rate of 1,000 acres annually. Grose said that Norway pine had proven the best adapted to this region and was being used exclusively at that time.

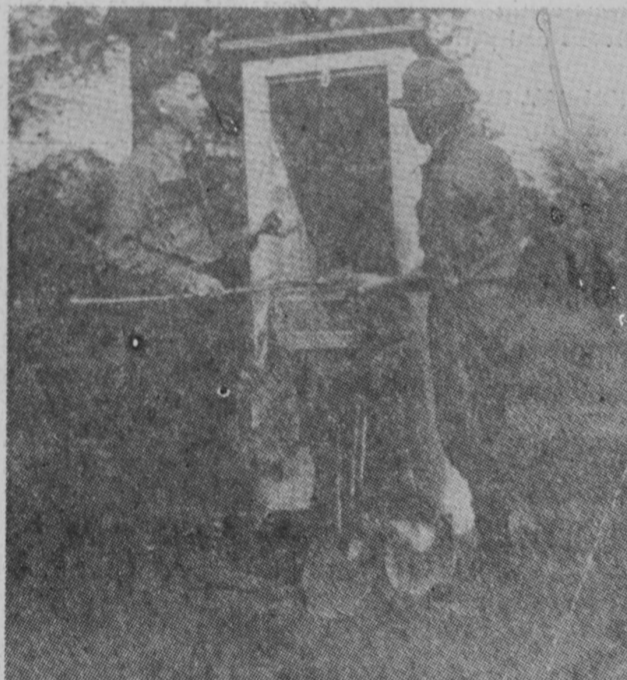

"After visiting the nursery, we went into the forest. I was a little surprised when the supervisor told me that the forest had more than 600 miles of roads on which automobiles could be driven. Four hundred direction signs placed at road intersections guide the tourist about the forest. The forest has 10 telephones and 18 miles of standard telephone lines," he reported.

At several places frequented by tourists, Grose noticed a small box on top of a post. "I had a vague curiosity about those until, at one of the camping sites, the supervisor led me over to one, dropped the little door at its front and there attached to its inside was a tourist register.

"All I had to do was open the book and write my name beneath that of the last preceding visitor. A cord and pulley attached to a weight in the hollow post closed the door automatically. The box also contained a quantity of small badges bearing the forest service emblem and the words, 'Prevent Forest Fires.'"

Through this innovative system of registration, more than 30,000 people had already been recorded as visitors to the forest during the 1922 season—the number was to swell with each passing year.

THE AUTOMOBILE and improved roads enabled urban dwellers to spend their week-ends in the wilds of Northern Michigan. The tide of tourists began to swell into the thousands during the 1920s.

Vietnam Bonus Nears Termination

In operation since 1975, the Michigan Vietnam Veterans Era Bonus is rapidly approaching program termination. The statutory deadline for applying is June 30. The bonus program expects to receive a deluge of applications over the next two months as an undetermined number of Michigan Vietnam Era Veterans who have not as yet applied decide to do so. Nearly 368,500 combat and non-combat veterans have been awarded over 172.5-million dollars in bonus money over the past five years.

Eligible applicants are entitled to $15 for each month of service up to a maximum of $450. Veterans eligible to receive the Vietnam Service Medal or Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal are entitled to a $600 cash bonus. Veterans did not have to participate directly in the Vietnam conflict to be eligible. Active service anywhere in the world would qualify.

Application packets are available at Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESCC) offices throughout the state or may be requested by mail from the Vietnam Bonus Section, Department of Military Affairs, 2500 South Washington, Lansing, Michigan 48913. The telephone number is (517) 373-7320.

Hear Appeal on SDD License Denial

Establishment of a new SDD (liquor take out) license and transfer of a second SDD license to a new location in Tawas City have been approved by the Michigan Liquor Control Commission. A public hearing on an application for a third SDD license, which had been denied February 20, was to have been held Tuesday at Lansing.

The commission approved application by Edward A. Freel for a new SDD license to be held in conjunction with his existing SDD (beer and wine take out) license at Freel's King's Market, 1139 West Lake Street.

The commission also approved transfer of an SDD license from Banksiana Corporation, former owner of Lad's Padd, to Townline, Incorporated, owner of Keiser's Economy Drugs, 537 Lake Street.

The commission denied an application by Brugger's Foodland, Incorporated, for a new SDD license to be held in conjunction with existing SDD license located at 320 Lake Street. The commission cited the rule that the quota of one SDD licensee for every 3,000 population is filled in this governmental unit, plus the fact there is an existing SDD license within 2,640 feet of the proposed location.

These Three Pieces will Make A Greek Cross or A Diamond

The Solutions

AFTER you have tried and tried, if you fail to arrange these pieces in a Greek cross or diamond, take your pencil and draw from dot A to B and so on, on the Greek cross. Then you will see just how to arrange the pieces into the cross. The letters on the diamond will show the secret of arranging them in a diamond.

10th Year of Iosco-Arenac Reg. Library

15 Years Ago— May 12, 1965—Tenth anniversary of Iosco-Arenac Regional Library was observed with open house at the headquarters building, Alabaster. In 1955, this was the first regional library in the Middle West and is still the only one in Michigan.

William J. Pinkerton has been elected president of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company.

William Ruckle, Tawas Area High School senior, received the John Philip Sousa Award during Saturday night's concert of the high school band.

Henry Oates was elected president of the Tawas Development Corporation.

Leonard Calabrese and Vernon Pugh report that the third annual Tawas Tourist Festival has a program loaded with events. Festival dates are July 15-18.

Iosco County requested financial assistance under the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. Named to the EOA committee were Marvin Davenport, county extension director, chairman; Mrs. Jean Smith, recorder; Ethel Coppler, courier; Jack Carpenter, Oscoda, community action agent, and William Tracy, publicity chairman.

25 Years Ago— May 12, 1955—Electors of Tawas Area School District go to the polls May 17 to again vote on a $775,000 bond proposal which would finance construction of a new junior and senior high school. At the same time, voters are to make a selection between two building sites—Neumann-Reinke or the Fairgrounds-Nursery. This is the fourth bonding election held by the district in the past 13 months. The three previous bond proposals were defeated by narrow margins.

Wurtsmith Air Force Base has been given the designation of a permanent air force installation, headquarters of USAF informed officials of the Iosco County air defense installation.

A ruling to combat the problem of student drinking on the senior trip was adopted by Tawas Area Board of Education. Any student having an alcoholic beverage on his breath on the complaint of two or more chaperones could be expelled from school.

Final preparations for the controlled burning of the Tuttle Swamp to increase the productivity of food for wildlife were discussed by Iosco Sportsmen's Club.

35 Years Ago— May 11, 1945—A public hearing on the Tawas River improvement project will be held at the city hall May 19. Representatives of the United States Engineer Office of the War Department will conduct the hearing and review the requested improvements.

Floyd Ketcherside and Arthur D. Grady of Detroit have purchased the Holland Hotel at East Tawas. This is one of the most important business transfers that has occurred here in several years.

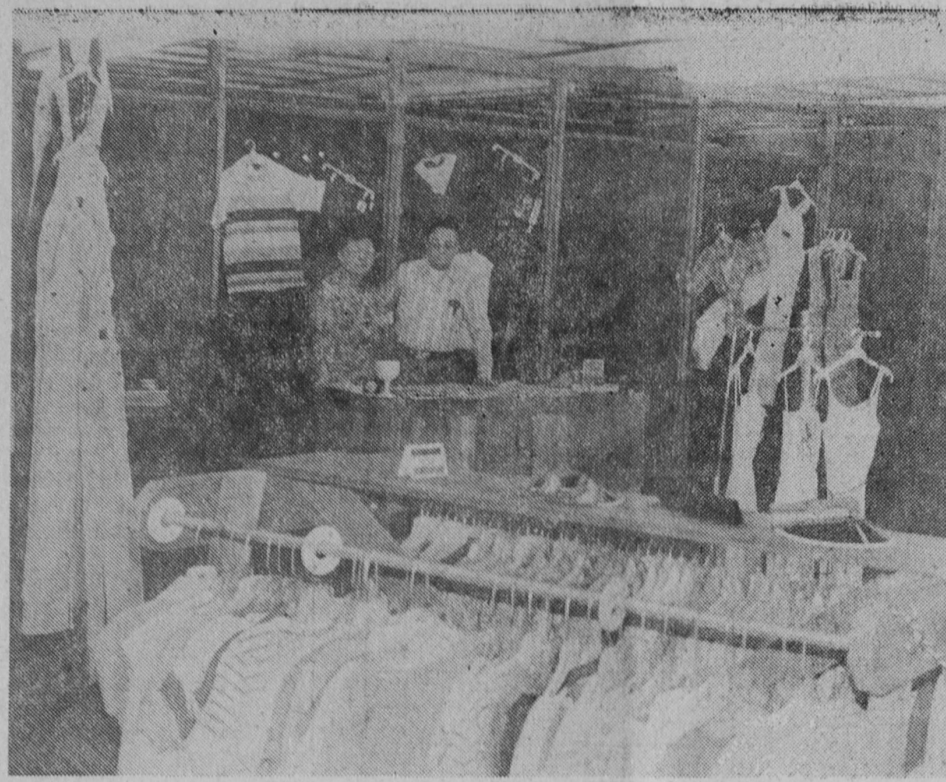

Boy Scout Troop No. 73 of Tawas City has gathered 35,108 pounds of waste paper and the 19 members have been awarded General Eisenhower Medals for war service. Scout Marvin Gingerich won first place with 66 hours worked on the nine Saturdays of the campaign.

A special program was held at Tawas City School Tuesday in observance of VE Day. Appropriate exercises were held which looked forward to a redoubling of efforts in all activities that contribute to winning the war. The Rev. Paul Dean of the First Baptist Church read the Scripture and offered prayer. Donna Moore sang "Say a Prayer for the Boys Over There."

Iosco County ranks highest among all counties of the state in the percentage of children on the school census who are in school. According to the Michigan Public Education Commission, 93.5 percent of Iosco's children on the school census are in school. The county should be proud of this record, which goes to disprove completely that many of our children have been dropping out of school at an early age and indicates that the educational facilities here have encouraged boys and girls to acquire a better education.

Lakewood Sues Rd. Commission

Lakewood Resort Developers, Incorporated, Oscoda, has entered an $84,400 suit against the Iosco County Road Commission concerning development of roads in the subdivision.

According to Lakewood's petition entered in Iosco Circuit Court, Conel Development, Incorporated, platted the subdivision in 1967 and it was approved by the road commission. Conel was required to file a performance bond guaranteeing completion of the roads in the subdivision.

The original developer purchased the bond and subsequently defaulted, Aetna Casualty and Surety Company paying $84,400 to the road commission, representing money to guarantee completion of the roads. The plaintiff subsequently completed construction of all roads covered by the defaulted bonds, to the specifications of the defendant, at a cost to the plaintiff in excess of $335,000.

According to the complaint, the road commission has refused to pay the $84,400 to the plaintiff.

Another case filed in Iosco Circuit Court last week was by Mary F. Dzuba versus LeRoy Clarence Krueger of East Tawas.

The complaint states that the plaintiff was riding a bicycle in a southerly direction along the west edge of Evans Street at East Tawas when the defendant's pickup truck made a left-hand turn onto Evans.

A collision resulted and the plaintiff, who claims injuries, asks damages in excess of $10,000.

List Public Issues on Forest Lands

Wayne K. Mann, forest supervisor of the Huron-Manistee National Forests, announced today that a list of issues to be resolved in the forests' land management planning process has been prepared. "Issues," Mann explained, "are subjects or questions of widespread public interest relating to the management of national forest lands."

Twenty-five issues have been prepared by the forest interdisciplinary team. This list is a combination of issues or questions identified by the public. Mann indicated that a summary sheet also is available, which compares the issues and rates them as to their apparent importance.

An extensive effort was made to incorporate input from the public in the preparation of these issues. A series of nine meetings were held throughout the Lower Peninsula in December to air subjects of interest or questions about national forest management efforts. More than 1,000 packets of information were mailed to people showing interest in national forest management activities and comments received from the public were summarized into broad groups relating to the natural resources. This summary was returned to meeting attendees and others who had submitted responses to confirm that forest personnel had correctly heard what people had to say.

From this, the interdisciplinary team prepared the 25 issues that are now available. The issues cover a variety of subjects including the role of the national forests in supplying home fuelwood, how much of the forest should be designated as special management areas, what land purchase and exchange program would best benefit the public, among others.

Mann indicated that the list of issues can be obtained by writing: Forest Supervisor, Huron-Manistee National Forests, 421 South Mitchell Street, Cadillac, MI 49601, or by phoning Steven Chandler, planning staff officer, (616) 775-2421.

The travel writer and the supervisor visited the four special camp sites then in operation and motored from one lake to another. "We tramped along the shores of the AuSable, climbed its high sandy banks and gazed out over its beautiful waters."

The two men visited plantation areas and spent some time with the force of laborers engaged in plowing furrows a mile in length and eight feet apart where young trees were being planted. His article explained the elaborate system adopted for fire prevention, which included manned lookout towers surveying the forest area during dangerous fire periods.

Grose spent much time at the Silver Creek Ranger Station, which was the central headquarters where all reports were received and orders went out in the business of fighting forest fires.

"An outing in Michigan National Forest gives one a treat, not only in the out-of-doors life it offers, but in an educational way as well," stated the travel writer.

The tide of visitors lured to the national forest by such vacation articles, along with Michigan's improved network of roads—one could now reach Tawas from Detroit in a matter of seven or eight hours over the improved gravel roads—registrations soon passed the 100,000 mark annually. With improvements to camp sites and erection of such points of interest as Lumbermen's Monument, the crowds of visitors continued to swell with each passing year.

Today, an asphalt paved highway—M-65—cuts through the heart of the forest and the paved Monument Road leading out of the Tawas and River Road entering the forest from Oscoda, offer a comfortable ride to motorists enjoying the beauties of the AuSable River and the surrounding region now called Huron National Forest.

Ironically, this influx has been so great that the forest service has been required to take steps in recent years to protect the fragile soil supporting forest life—unthinking persons using off-road vehicles developed in recent times have gouged deep ruts into hillsides and erosion is a serious problem; others have destroyed growing trees for campfire purposes and others have vandalized the hundreds of rustic directional signs intended to provide easy motoring for the thousands of persons visiting the region.

Such areas as Silver Valley and the Gordon Creek campground, site of the Silver Creek CCC camp during the reforestation program of the 1930s, have been completely closed to motorists and open only to hikers during the summer months and to cross-country skiers during the winter.

The national forest enters a new era in the 1980s and it is not entirely clear at present what effect the high price of gasoline will have on the habits of the motoring public with respect to Northern Michigan.

The number of visitors to Huron National Forest may have peaked in 1960s and 1970s—which may not be all that bad—but lovers of the out-of-doors will be returning to enjoy the beauties of the forest, simply for the reason that once one has filled his shoes with sand from the majestic AuSable River, it is difficult not to return.

US Air Force Seeks Nurses

Opportunities for personal and professional growth await some 700 nurses who join the air force this year, according to the United States Air Force nurse recruitment officers at Dearborn.

"The air force nurse requirement has increased since last year," said Capt. Jerry G. Johnson. Though the majority of air force nurses will be serving in clinical positions, many are being sought to perform in such speciality areas as mental health, anesthesia, environmental health, operating room nursing and maternal-child health.

According to Captain Johnson, "The air force offers a very progressive nursing program. The program comes closest to the concept of wellness-directed nursing that is being taught in nursing schools today. Although active duty air force people are basically a healthy population, we provide for their health needs as well as those of their families."

Further information about air force nurse opportunities is available from Captain Johnson at 23400 Michigan Avenue, Village Plaza, Dearborn, MI 48124, or by calling 313-561-7018.
