Fishermen Had Surprise Ice Capade on Tawas Bay

"The bobber on my line kept submerging and was being pulled back under the ice. I thought the bobber had filled with water until I looked toward shore and noticed the trees were 'moving'—then I knew we were in trouble."

This was the way Stanley Blury III of Tawas City recalled the start of a rather harrowing experience Friday afternoon. He and 12 other fishermen were rescued from a large field of ice which broke away in the bight of Tawas Bay.

Blury and his fishing companion, Roy Pipesh, who are both employed at Inglis Ford Sales, took the afternoon off for one "final fling" during the ice fishing season. There was a crack in the ice about six inches wide when they walked out on the bay from the Baldwin Township easement near Jerry's Resort.

"We were on the ice only a few minutes and began to catch perch when we noticed the ice was moving away from shore," said Blury.

A group of seven fishermen ran toward the United States Coast Guard boathouse, but the "crack" had enlarged to a width of about 100 yards.

"Our first thought was to jump into the water and try to swim to shore, but that would have been a mistake because of our heavy clothing—we would not have made it," said Pipesh.

One unidentified fisherman fell through the "rotten" ice, was pulled out of the water and joined the others in walking around looking for a place to get off the drifting floe.

A Tawas Beach resident, Margery MacMurray, 23, noticed the predicament of the fishermen about the same time a coastguardman from Tawas Point spotted the ice floe moving out into deep water.

The coast guard immediately launched a small boat and dispatched another boat to the mouth of the Tawas River where it was launched and sped to the outer edge of the field.

Seven fishermen were rescued by the small boat.

In the meantime, Miss MacMurray dragged a boat and motor about 300 yards across the beach and launched it in the water. She rescued four fishermen—two at a time—making two trips in the process.

A third Tawas Beach resident, Timothy Barbier, launched another boat and rescued the final fisherman.

There were no injuries, but several fishermen left their gear and fish on the floating ice when they were rescued.

The other local resident rescued from the floe was John Stewart of East Tawas. The group included one unidentified man from Oscoda and the remainder were from Bay City.

Blury said that two fishermen on snowmobiles had been near them earlier, but both had moved toward shore and escaped from being stranded on the ice. When the wind changed direction earlier in the day, a number of veteran ice fishermen returned to shore.

Pending Merger of Newspapers

Pending merger of The Tawas Herald with News-Press Publishing Company, Incorporated, publishers of The Iosco County News and Oscoda Press, has been announced jointly by owners of the two firms.

Nelson and Neil Thornton, partners of the Tawas City-based Herald operation, and J. Berkeley Smith and Neal R. Miller, officers of the East Tawas-Oscoda firm, reached tentative agreement Saturday on terms of the merger.

While details have yet to be formulated, this week's edition of the three publications, Iosco County News, Oscoda Press and The Tawas Herald, includes a common section, first step toward the eventual goal of the merger.

Completion of the publishing agreement could be finalized as early as the April 15 edition, but will be final prior to May 1.

Under terms of the tentative agreement, News-Press Publishing Company, a corporation, will assume operations of The Tawas Herald, the Thornton brothers becoming officers and shareholders in the corporation.

The new publication will be formed to incorporate the coverage now provided separately by The Iosco County News and The Tawas Herald. The Oscoda Press will remain an independent publication.

All present staff members of both firms will remain with the new structure. Areas of responsibility have not yet been defined.

But, the tentative agreement calls for continuation of operations at all three locations, East Tawas, Tawas City and Oscoda.

The joint statement by the Thorntons, Smith and Miller this week stressed that, when completed, this merger will provide the communities served with complete, comprehensive news coverage on all fronts, enhancing both the news and advertising value to readers and customers.

Oppose Proposed Dismantling of Iosco Inspection Department

Contractors Rally Against Change

Sixty building, electrical and plumbing contractors are emphatically opposed to an Iosco County Board of Commissioners proposal to contract inspection services with a private firm.

Numerous contractors present at Monday night's meeting voiced opposition to contracting for this service with a private firm. Some speakers pointed out that inspection fees would more than double, others were concerned over waiting for inspections by an outside firm. One would only compound the problem. Four persons are currently employed here.

This was the word at a special meeting of contractors Monday night at the East Tawas Community Building. Represented were contractors from all parts of the county.

The group plans to send a delegation to the April 8 meeting of the county commission to voice joint opposition.

All contractors of the county were notified March 27 of the meeting. The letter stated that commissioners were "looking for ways to improve services and to save taxpayers money and are considering alternative methods of providing building inspection."

PRESIDENT RECOVERING FROM WOUND

THIS PICTURE showing wounded Pres. Ronald Reagan being pushed into his car was flashed around the world and appeared in practically every newspaper in the country Tuesday. A shocked nation witnessed the attempted assassination Monday afternoon over national television, following the president's appearance at a political action conference at Washington, D. C. In answer to the nation's prayers, the president is on the road to recovery. The young gunman, who wounded three others in the attempt, is being held by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Hale Area Board Reinstates Marie Bellville to Tenure

Marie Bellville, a fourth grade teacher at Hale Area School for the past 13 years, was reinstated to full tenure Monday night by action of the board of education during a special meeting.

Prin. Dennis Guiser not to return her to complete tenure, came on a seven to two roll call vote.

Two emotional public hearings were held last year concerning the elementary principal's recommendation to the board of education. Following those hearings, Mrs. Bellville agreed to resign at the end of the 1980-81 school year to become a Title I teacher the next term.

However, that agreement permitted her to request the board, before June 1, to rescind her resignation following an evaluation and to be returned to tenure status. As a result, she will remain as a fourth grade classroom teacher.

Plenty of 'Free' Ice Cubes, but it was No Party for McMurrays

"We've got the ice if anyone has the booze for a party," quipped Roy J. (Bud) McMurray Saturday afternoon.

McMurray and his brother, John, viewed what could have been a very serious problem with a touch of humor—they were practically helpless to do anything else.

A field of ice measuring about one-half mile in depth and a mile in width crunched into the stone breakwall protecting the McMurray Bait Shop on the shore of Tawas Bay in Tawas City.

Pushed by a gale-force wind out of the southwest, the 2½-foot-thick ice field completely demolished a small boat dock and then ground over a break-wall of solid rock and concrete with impunity.

The ice field was temporarily stopped by a large maple tree in the yard which withstood the tremendous force exerted by the wind, but shattered pieces of ice came within two feet of the McMurray residence before it finally stopped.

Wind subsided by late afternoon and completely calmed Saturday night and there was no further damage. The danger apparently passed during Sunday's mild weather as the ice field began to settle and crack apart in the bay.

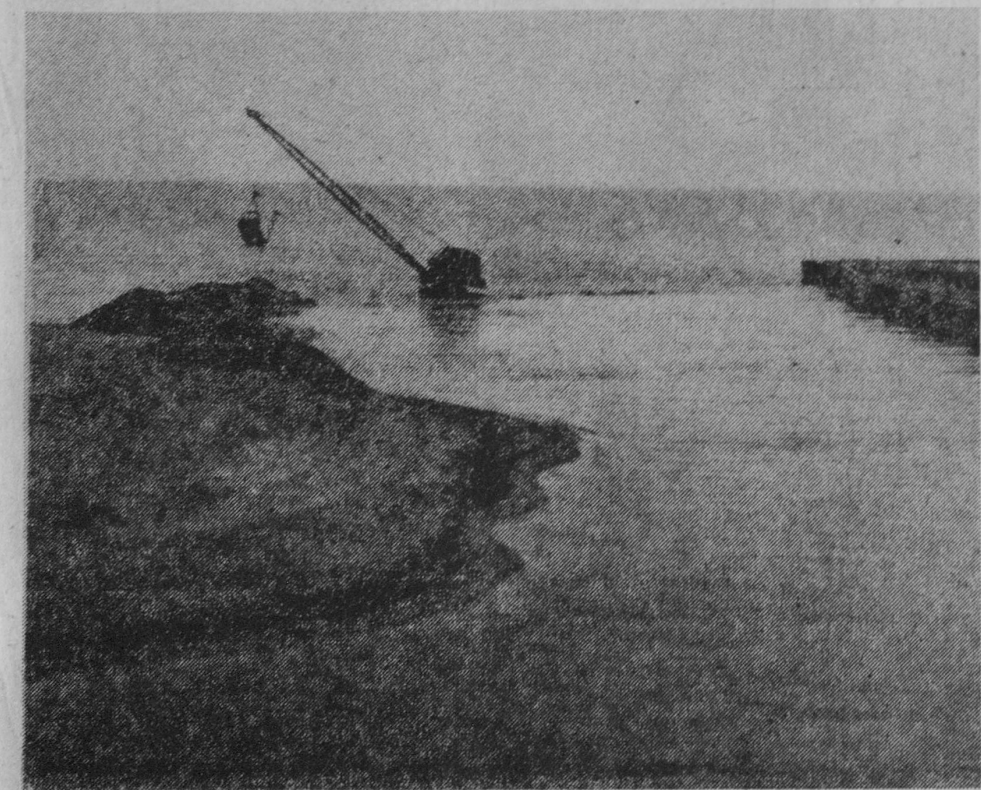

Huron by a wind from the northeast, a change in wind direction sent the ice floe back toward shore in the direction of Midway Restaurant, then veered northeast toward McMurrays.

This is the first time in the recollection of older Tawas residents that a floating field of ice has endangered property along the shore of Tawas Bay.

Normally, the same wind which causes a field of ice to break away in the bight of the bay sends it out into Lake Huron where it quickly disintegrates into smaller pieces.

"We were breathing a little easier Sunday morning," said the McMurrays.

Assisted by Kenneth Conn and his son from Tawas City, the McMurrays had spent late Saturday afternoon moving huge chunks of ice away from a concrete walk in front of the residence.

TAWAS CITY began its annual "bail out" at the mouth of the Tawas River over the weekend. Contractor for the project is Roland (Bud) Fahselt, whose dragline is shown dredging sand from the channel entrance. Work was completed Tuesday, well in time before the start of the smelt and perch migration up the river.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Learning Options for Iosco 4-H'ers

Using the sun's energy when landscaping or gardening is one of more than 200 learning options Iosco County youths can participate in during 4-H Exploration Days June 18-20 at Michigan State University.

The purpose of 4-H Exploration Days is to give young people a chance to increase their skills and knowledge in a subject of their choice," says Betty Hooker, Iosco County program assistant.

Entitled "Sunenergy," this option will focus on how homeowners can save energy by taking advantage of the sun's rays. Participants will learn about how to place plants in sunny and shady locations to conserve household energy.

"Participants will tour home sites in the Lansing area to see how sun energy can be used for home-grounds energy conservation," Mrs. Hooker adds.

The cost of the three-day event includes meals, lodging and choice of learning option. Young people interested in attending Exploration Days should contact Mrs. Hooker at the Iosco County Cooperative Extension Service office, or call 362-3449 by Friday, May 1.

4-H Entomology More Than Just Collecting Insects

"Entomology isn't just 'bug collecting,'" says 18-year-old Ralph Lewis, "and it's surprising just how little most people know about the subject."

As a result, the Pueblo, Colorado youth decided to increase awareness of entomology by taking his collections to public functions and letting people try to identify them. While a member of the national 4-H entomology program, sponsored by Mobay Chemical Corporation, Agricultural Chemicals Division, Lewis also conducted experiments on the attraction of moths and other night insects to light. Using four different-colored lights - red, blue, white and black - in each corner of a room, he found the moths were drawn to the black light.

"I found that most insects cannot see light at the red end of the spectrum, where humans can, but insects can see light far up into the ultraviolet end of the spectrum where humans can't see," Lewis says.

His experiments in this research area earned him recognition last year as one of six national scholarship winners in the entomology program.

More than 65,600 young people from 49 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, participate in the entomology program. Like Lewis, they are involved in more than insect identification and classification. It includes collecting, mounting, labeling and displaying insects. As members progress, they study insect behavior in the natural or re-created habitat, social habits, prevention of infestations insect control and how insects affect our lives.

Members who excel in the program are eligible for county, state, sectional and national awards provided by Mobay. Medals of honor are presented to four members from each county; one 4-H'er from each state earns a $75 U. S. Savings Bond; 16 members are awarded expense-paid trips to National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Ill., and six national winners each receive $1,000 scholarships during Congress.

Contact your County Extension Office for more information about the national 4-H entomology program which is being sponsored again in 1981 by Mobay Chemical Corporation.

MAKING FAMILY LIFE MORE FUN

There may be more togetherness in store for your family if you get together with a number of other people and enjoy some of the new ways in which one of America's oldest youth organizations is growing.

Camp Fire, Inc., formerly Camp Fire Girls, now is open to boys as well, and has always had a place for interested adults who want to help as leaders, sponsors or advisors.

More than 500,000 young people all over the country are involved in this organization dedicated to fun, friendship and service to others.

Dr. and Mrs. Luther Halsey Gulick and a group of educators formed the organization in 1910. The Gulicks, who had children of their own, knew the importance of providing young people with informal educational opportunities. Out of their understanding of the special needs of children grew the Camp Fire program, based on the principle of "learning by doing." The law of Camp Fire is "Worship God, Seek Beauty, Give Service, Pursue Knowledge, Be Trustworthy, Hold Onto Health, Glorify Work, Be Happy." These are the attitudes and attributes most people would want for their children and themselves. Camp Fire helps children grow and develop integrating these ideals into their lives.

Camping is an important part of the program; there are day camps, resident camps and family camps which feature hikes, cook-outs, canoe trips, swimming and the like, but there are also programs dealing with creative arts, science, business, sports and games and citizenship. Exploring one's own culture and studying many different cultures is also important in Camp Fire. The organization works to help young people realize their potential, to function effectively as caring, self-directed individuals, responsible to themselves and to others. Camp Fire also tries to improve those conditions in society that affect youth.

The normal adult takes about 16 breaths a minute when awake, six to eight when asleep and as many as 100 under stress.

The Active Consumer The Active Consumer TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Intelligent self-treatment has an essential role in health care today. We can neither afford, nor do we have access to, unlimited professional health care for our minor ailments and injuries, according to a national consumer leader.

Sarah H. Newman of the National Consumers League and the Consumer Federation of America suggests doctors should encourage patients to self-medicate by giving them the kind of information which makes good self-medication possible. Mrs. Newman spoke at a symposium on self-medication sponsored by The Proprietary Association, a trade association representing the manufacturers of nonprescription medicines.

Moving proven medications from prescription to nonprescription status, she says, is a good idea because their costs will likely be lower. But the consumer leader advises caution in doing this and constant care to make sure that the full stop believing that "there is a medication for every unpleasantness."

1. A list of ingredients on the label.
2. Label directions which are precise, yet simple.
3. Information about possible side effects.
4. Information about interactions with other drugs or foods.
5. Knowledge of under what conditions a drug is contraindicated.
6. Knowledge of when to let the body heal without the aid of drugs.

Mrs. Newman adds this bit of advice: People should stop believing that "there is a medication for every unpleasantness."

Legal blindness is determined by a central visual acuity for distance of 20/200 or poorer in the better eye with correction, or a field of vision no greater than 20 degrees in its widest diameter. An estimated 47,000—one person every 11 minutes—become blind each year.

The leading causes of blindness, in the order of their frequency, are glaucoma, macular degeneration, senile cataract, optic nerve atrophy, diabetic retinopathy and retinitis pigmentosa. According to the American Association of Ophthalmology, these causes account for 51 percent of the nearly 500,000 who are declared legally blind.

The Association represents more than 5,300 medical doctors who specialize in diseases of the eye.

A THICK shelf of ice which was sent scudding out of the bight of Tawas Bay Friday by a wind from the northeast came dangerously close to damaging shore line property. The ice floe was turned back toward shore Saturday afternoon by a wind out of the southwest and crunched into a breakwall protecting McMurray's Bait Shop in Tawas City. The floating ice, with tons of pressure behind it, apparently was stalled by the breakwall and a large tree. The wind died away in the evening and the danger was over. These pictures offer graphic proof of the "close call" for the property owners.

sent to the commission on April 8 stated: "I have been served by the Iosco County Department of Building and Safety Inspection for almost six years and the local service and permit fees should be kept and set by our county commissioners. You will be directly responsible for creating a hardship to my livelihood as a contractor and a taxpayer."

Com. Carlton Merschel said he had been invited by Robert Toska, East Tawas electrical contractor, to attend Monday night's meeting "to listen in and get the feelings of contractors." Toska served as meeting chairman.

Merschel said that no decision had been made by the commission to change its present inspection arrangement. He said that "all salesmen tell only the salesman's side" and believed that contractors should send a delegation to the meeting. "We must learn what it is all about before making a decision," he said.

He emphasized that the commission was interested in reducing the budget gap. "Sterling is running a pretty good department and he may be able to come up with something to cut his department expense. We do not want him to bring up fees to the level of the state or the private firm."

Merschel felt it would be advisable to send a few representative spokesmen to the session, rather than to pack the gallery with all the contractors in the county. "Base your arguments on strong, solid information," he stated.

One contractor pointed out that local inspection fees had not kept pace with inflation, yet the commission was considering contracting for the work at a much higher rate.

A Cry Heard for 50 Years—

'THE RUN'S ON'

THE SINGING BRIDGE and the Big Ditch south of Tawas City have long been a major attraction for smelt dippers. The old bridge (pictured above) originally was constructed with a steel deck, causing tires on vehicles passing over the structure to "sing."—Tawas Herald Photo.

Not everyone who heads north for the smelt season knows the cause of all the excitement—the smelt themselves—were originally a salt water fish, natives of the Atlantic Ocean and planted in Michigan back in 1912 to furnish the food for landlocked salmon.

As a matter of fact, few fishermen know that Michigan experimented with the introduction of Atlantic salmon into its waters prior to 1912—long before Dr. Howard Tanner, now director of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, was successful in introducing the coho salmon to the Great Lakes in the early 1960s.

The smelt did not come directly from their native habitat in the Atlantic to Michigan waters, however. The United States Bureau of Fisheries, prior to 1912, had succeeded in landlocking them in fresh water in Green Lake, Maine, and it was from that lake that eggs were brought 69 years ago for planting at Crystal Lake near Beulah.

Other plantings were made at the same time, including one at Sault Ste. Marie, but nothing was ever heard from the others.

The Crystal Lake plant thrived and prospered, however, and it is from the smelt colony in that lake that Michigan's present population of the silvery fish has spread.

From Crystal Lake, where the smelt won fame in a few brief years by their incredible abundance during the spring run up Cold Creek, the smelt spread into Lake Michigan, then into Lake Charlevoix, Green Bay, Lake Huron and other waters.

The smelt runs get bigger and more numerous each spring, touching off zany antics by fishermen at popular dipping locations along the Lake Huron shore—particularly at the Singing Bridge south of Tawas City and the Tawas River.

By 1937, commercial fishermen of the Great Lakes began to worry as to the future of certain waters into which the predatory smelt had made their way. Commercial operators had good reason for this concern as the silvery fish was one of a number of contributors which ended commercial fishing in most Michigan waters.

By 1932, scattered catches were being reported in this area. It is noteworthy that entry of smelt into these waters that year coincided with the end of national prohibition and the return of legal 3.2 beer to slake the thirst of fishermen.

The principal fishing action remained in Benzie County for several years and numerous Tawas residents headed west each April to participate in the amazing smelt dipping phenomena. At first it was believed that the smelt only made spawning migrations at night, but it was soon discovered that once started, the run could continue during daylight hours.

Because of increasing numbers of dippers each season, authorities there established a set of formal rules for harvesting the silvery horde. A system of control was devised similar to the days of the Oklahoma land rush—a line of embarkation was established some distance from the creek and all fishermen were required to "toe the mark" until the stream was filled with a sufficient quantity of smelt. A signal was given by a siren or bell and fishermen—wearing clumsy hip boots and toting dip nets—made a mad dash to find choice dipping lo-ocations. Much hilarity was provided by drunken fishermen who stumbled headfirst into the cold stream.

A conservation department news release of the day stated: "Whatever the faults of the smelt, at least one thing must be said for them—they are hard to beat on the platter. Properly cooked they probably outrank any other Michigan fish in sweetness and delicacy of flavor, not excepting even the famed brook trout."

To most people, the above statement was stretching the imagination more than a little, but the smelt was something new to Michigan.

The first major run in the Tawas area did not occur until April 1934, when The Tawas Herald reported: "A small run of smelt up the Tawas River to spawning grounds has been reported by Conservation Officer Arthur Leitz. Local sportsmen, using nets near the mouth of the river, have made small catches. The fish are said to be of a large size."

"This is the first time a run of smelt has been noticed in the Tawas River, although an occasional smelt has been caught there before. It is thought that the present run would have been larger had it not been for the recent cold weather. Increasingly larger runs in future years are predicted."

True to prediction, the smelt runs became increasingly larger and brought hordes of downstate dippers here during the middle of April each year. A new tourist business boomed and the cash registers of local bars, restaurants and gasoline service stations played a merry tune as owners catered to the new flood of fishermen.

By 1937, the annual smelt run had become big business in the Tawas and favorite gathering places for fishermen awaiting the call of "the run's on" were the watering spas lining the Newman Street business district in East Tawas or taverns in Tawas City.

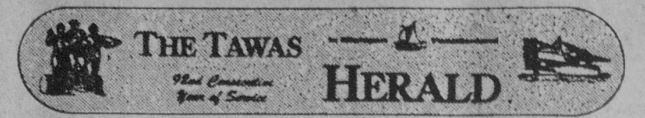

It became a traditional event in those years for one East Tawas fisherman—whose anonymity will be preserved—to officially kickoff the run by eating a smelt—live—before a crowd of gagging onlookers in the barroom of the old Holland Hotel.

Local hardware merchants contracted for the manufacture of wire mesh smelt nets well in advance of the season and did a land-office business. It was not uncommon for the entire year's supply of smelt nets and boots to be sold in a single Saturday night.

The war years brought an end to the huge crowds of smelt dippers to this region, although many took advantage of the

Iosco Proposals are a Paradox in Budget Thinking

In the rush to discover ways to reduce governmental spending, the Iosco County Board of Commissioners is studying the possibility of eliminating its building inspection and safety department and contracting with a private firm for this service.

ment for the old truism, "let the buyer beware." What started out as a small department now occupies a large building at Lansing. The department created a lot of new jobs for bureaucrats, but it has also added a greater expense to the person building a home and the red tape involved is monstrous. The public also pays its share through taxes.

In the meantime, the county board of commissioners is looking at still another way of cutting costs. In this instance, however, commissioners left their new trail and are looking toward establishment of a county landfill rather than to contract for the service with a private firm as presently provided.

This thinking offers a paradox which seems to be contradictory to the commission's own theory of saving tax money by eliminating a costly building department and to contract for inspection services. Lined up with the commission is the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and its corps of sanitary landfill inspectors.

This corner suggests that Iosco County should take another look at a contractual landfill before building a facility. It is rather doubtful if the county would ever save any money by operating its own landfill, but if some politician wishes to build a monument to himself, it might as well be a garbage dump.

Some Cities Get Double Dip in Tax Proposal

The Michigan Legislature ran like a rabbit last week in trying to escape the ferocious snapping jaws of an old hound dog—in this case, none other than Robert Tisch, the Shiawassee County drain commissioner—a demigod to some—who was hot on their trail. It is to be hoped that the legislature did not run into a political snare.

Since last November when voters again turned down his proposed constitutional amendment for the second time, Tisch's yowls have been heard from one end of the state to the other. Only this time, the faltering national and state economy added fuel to his fire and brimstone yappings; the legislature was finally forced to get off dead center.

As a result, the legislature quickly passed house joint resolution "G," the property tax reform proposal. This proposition will go to a vote of the people at a special election on May 19. The proof of the pudding concerning tax reform will not be known until after May 19. It seems certain that hard pressed taxpayers will adopt any relief offered, but lawyers and judges seem to have ways of "interpreting" legislation once it is passed. A good example would be the Headlee amendment adopted a few years ago, the merits of which were still being argued in court until recently.

Key points of the property tax proposal are:

- 1. A 50 percent homestead operating property tax reduction with a maximum reduction of $1,400 in 1981;
2. A 50 percent local income tax reduction, applicable to those units levying an income

- 3. A six percent maximum local revenue growth in property tax assessments;
4. Voter approval for all local tax increases;
5. Total reimbursement to local units of government of the 50 percent property and income tax reductions;
6. Sales-use tax increase to 5.5 cents per dollar from the current four cents per dollar;
7. Earmark lottery revenue for education.

Legislation may be enacted to assess agricultural and forestry property by its use value. That should prove interesting, by say the least. Because of the faltering economy and sluggish sales, it seems that the proposed increase in sales tax would fall far short of replacing the property taxes on homesteads lost to local units of government. It is a step in the right direction, however.

The six percent local growth limitation will provide future safeguards against tax increases resulting from inflation, but it should be pointed out that voter approval of local tax increases is already mandatory. The only exception is in a charter city where voter-adoption of a charter gives the city the option of levying up to 20 mills of taxes without a vote of the people.

As for earmarking lottery revenue for education, that was the original intent when Michigan first adopted its lottery system. Instead of fulfilling that original intent, the lottery revenue went into the general fund and was filtered down to schools and other state operational expenses.

One of the problems not addressed in the proposal is the inequality of tax assessing in Michigan and a general revision of school financing. Some downstate districts penalize industry by keeping valuations low on residential property and increasing the valuation of industrial property, contrary to Hale Church Will Honor John Webb Sr.

On April 26, First United Methodist Church of Hale will honor John D. Webb Sr. for all his years of dedicated service to the church and community.

Born at Sylvania, Ohio, on December 24, 1895, he was the youngest of eight children, seven boys and one girl. The family moved to Hale in April 1901.

About this time a handful of people were initiating plans to establish a Methodist Episcopal Church—as it was known in those days—at Hale. Also, in the summer of 1901, the first school, a one room building, was built where the present elementary school is located across the street from the church.

"Thanks to a Christian mother, I grew up with Hale's Methodist Church," states Webb. "The family was of pioneer stock and, like most of the people, we had a log home. Some were just shacks. The best of the timber in the area had already been harvested and now the settlers were clearing the land for farms, building fences and straight roads. The railroad station, one block east of the corner, was built in 1907 on a line ending at Rose City, part of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway."

Webb became Hale's first rural mail carrier, serving Rural Route No. 1 from 1916 to 1959, traveling for several years by horse and buggy. He took about six months out for military with the army during World War I and was stationed at Camp Custer near Battle Creek.

He married Luella VanWormer in 1920. She passed away in 1922 while giving birth to their son, David Aaron.

In 1927, John married Marie Boyer, a summer visitor to the resort area and a resident of Pennsylvania. They had five children, Rose Marie, Ruth, Virginia, John D. Jr. and Charlotte, to whom they gave a Christian home, along with David.

There are now 24 grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren. Mrs. Webb passed away in 1973.

The Webbs were deeply interested in all areas of the church program, especially Sunday school. He was Sunday school superintendent and church trustee for many years and church treasurer for 28 years.

Through the years, the many summer visitors to the church have remembered "that nice white-haired man" who always greeted them with a smile and a friendly handshake.

There is also a request for cards to be sent to the honoree, addressed: "Webb Day," First United Methodist Church, Hale, Michigan 48739. These cards will "bloom" on a thank you tree and will be placed in a scrapbook.

Baptist Women Guest Speaker April 5 at Two Churches

Geri Cerling, president of Baptist Women's Missionary Society, presided at the Tuesday, March 24, meeting at Tawas City First Baptist Church. present provisions of the state constitution. Those units then vote a higher millage rate for schools to take advantage of a provision in the state school aid bill.

The May 19 property tax proposal is a start in the right direction toward tax reform. But it does not address the growing resentment heard throughout the country, echoing the words of President Reagan concerning getting "big brother" off the backs of the people—that applies, too, to state government.

LOOKING BACKWARD—

Tanner Claims Perch Compete for Bay Space

15 Years Ago— March 30, 1966—Competition for space by fish, not a lack of food, was the main point emphasized by Dr. Howard Tanner, chief of the conservation department's fish division, in defending the department's recent liberalization of commercial laws on netting perch. Tanner was here Monday to answer local criticism directed at the recently adopted policy.

A millage proposition will be placed before Iosco voters asking approval of a measure to finance cost of a special education program for handicapped youngsters.

Attending an executive board meeting of Paul Bunyan Council, Boy Scouts of America, were Maynard VanOrnum, William D. Lyon, Dr. John D. LeClair and Serge V. Thomson, representing Iosco County.

Dr. L. A. Lambert, district health director, reports that a diligent search is being made for a new county nurse to replace Mrs. Harold Drengberg, who resigned January 1.

Receiving proficiency one ratings in the recent state solo and ensemble festival were Janet Sheldon and Dale Harwood, students at Tawas Area School. Both received above the 85 points required in piano proficiency.

25 Years Ago— March 29, 1956—Extensions of sewer mains along US-23 from the Bay Drive pumping station started last Wednesday. This is the first sewer project started this spring by the department of public works. When completed, it will serve the expanding Third Ward area of Tawas City.

"A good, warm thundershower right about now would help to get this construction under way," states Olaf Rose of Davison-Rose Builders, general contractors for construction of the new 625-student Tawas Area Junior and Senior High School. Rose said there was still too much frost in the ground for good working conditions, but a warm rain would remedy the problem.

Rep. Alley Appointed to Economic Dev. Task Force

State Rep. Tom Alley, West Branch, has been appointed by Speaker Bobby D. Crim to a special house task force charged with implementing major recommendations for economic development and diversification in Michigan.

This task force will build its work around three primary studies of the state's economy: The Mastin (special house) Committee report; the Burkhalter (special house) Committee report, and the Michigan Economic Action Council (MEAC) report. Speaker Crim said he wants the new task force to map a specific plan for putting the recommendations of the three studies into effect including proposals for various standing and joint committees. "I am pleased to be working on this special task force," Representative Alley stated. "I feel it is long past time to take some positive action in dealing with Michigan's economic situation. We must do all we can to end the current recession and assure that the state is not faced with this situation again. I know the task force will be able to propose some positive steps in this direction."

Rep. John Gingrass will chair the task force. Other members serving with Representative Alley are Representatives Nicholas Ciaramitaro, Mary Brown, Robert Emerson, William Keith, Donald Koivisto, William Ryan, Francis Spaniola, Gary Vanek and Joseph Young Jr.

The conference is held annually to acquaint leaders with new 4-H programs and activities and to honor them for their contributions to the Michigan 4-H youth program.

Life Style is Important

Factor Toward Good Health

All of us want good health. But many of us do not know how to be as healthy as possible. Health experts now describe life style as one of the most important factors affecting health. In fact, it is estimated that as many as seven out of 10 leading causes of death could be reduced through common-sense changes in the life style.

Beginning today, April 1, District Health Department No. 2 will be making Healthstyle available to the public. Healthstyle is a self-test which simply tells how well one is doing to stay healthy. It is different than most health quizzes in that it is simple and yet very practical.

To further assist those who take the quiz, a listing of community agencies that offer programs in any of the six areas covered in Healthstyle (exercise, nutrition, smoking, stress and alcohol and drugs) has been put together by the health department. Referral to or information on any of these agencies will be available by contacting the health department.

For example, if one finds exercise to be a deficient area as a result of taking the Healthstyle self-test, contact the health department for information about a program or programs available in the community concerning exercise. The local health department can be contacted by calling 739-3281 or 739-3861.

The Healthstyle campaign will continue throughout the month of April. Copies of the self-test can be obtained at the local health department office or by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the local health department office. Copies are also available at various sites throughout the counties. Call the local health department office for information on these locations. And remember, healthy people help themselves!

Tawas Women's Softball League to Reorganize

All women interested in playing softball this season should attend. A representative from each team must be present as new rules, starting dates and other important business matters will be discussed.

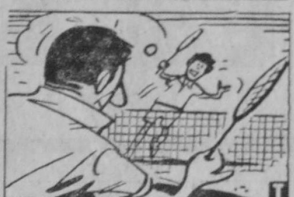

Anyone wishing more information may call Cheryl Riley, 362-6014, or Donna Sergent, 362-5811.

CETA Cut Reduces Energy Aid Staffing

NEWS OF SPORTS

Serving tennis players of all skills, the USTA celebrates its 100th year.

There's good news for American sports lovers. Tennis has again scored a net gain in both players and spectators. This is particularly appropriate this year, the 100th anniversary of the United States Tennis Association (USTA). Membership in the USTA, an association of all types of tennis players: recreational through professional, has risen to over 165,000. Compare that to the 1958 membership of less than 13,000. Moreover, last year's U.S. Open broke the world tournament attendance records by attracting a crowd of 364,370 through the gates.

In this Centennial year (1881-1981), the USTA, the governing body of tennis in America, is planning many festivities. Kicking off the year of celebrating will be the USTA Centennial Ball, taking place at the Waldorf-Astoria on May 21, 1981—exactly 100 years to the day since several men gathered at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York City to form the United States National Lawn Tennis Association. Free information about this distinguished group and what it can do for you, can be obtained by writing to USTA, 51 E. 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

First Come, First Served Basis

Major Change in FmHA Priority

Realtors and contractors should take note of a major change in Farm Home Administration housing funding priority, according to Philip H. Shaw, the local FmHA county supervisor whose office serves Ogemaw, Roscommon and Iosco Counties. In the past six months, FmHA funding for low and moderate income families has been based on providing a proper proportion of the funds to the various villages and cities in the three-county area according to a complex plan based on population and other factors.

However, according to Shaw, the funding will return to the first come, first served basis. This is a result of the current effort to deregulate the government programs. This major change is effective April 1 and all current applicants will be notified of their standing.

Shaw said that with a backlog of over 100 applications and likelihood on only funding half or two-thirds of them per year, there will continue to be a long waiting period for an applicant to get a loan.

However, he said, potential applicants should apply if interested and 'get in line'. They are now discouraged, however, of finding a house ahead of time since an FmHA appraisal will not now be done unless the loan can be funded promptly. Other changes, Shaw noted, are that there will be less priority of funding 'assumption' loans of FmHA accounts, unless there is a hardship involved.

Any question which applicants, contractors or realtors may have should be directed to the FmHA office in West Branch at 240 West Wright Street, or by phone at (517) 345-5470.

Smart shoppers can ease impact of rising food costs

Even though Americans spend a smaller proportion of their income for food than citizens of other nations, U.S. shoppers still feel the effects of inflation.

Shopping smart can ease the strain of higher prices, says Beth Tartan, author of more than a dozen cookbooks and a food consultant for R. J. Reynolds Industries, Inc.

"Especially in times of high prices," Tartan says, "it is important to buy for value. Much of the advice given today for smart food shopping is old, but as prices continue to rise, it becomes crucial," she says.

Some of her cost-cutting tips follow:

- Shop with a list and stick to it.
- Use leftovers, and learn how to use them creatively. The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates that 17 percent of food bought by Americans is thrown away.
- Look for specials at the grocery store in items normally purchased.
- Don't shop on an empty stomach. A practice that tends to increase purchases.
- Remember that cheapest doesn't always mean best. Shopping for value may mean spending a little extra for better quality. A less expensive item may be thrown away because it doesn't satisfy taste.

- Stock up on staple items when they are on sale.
- Seek new sources of food. Join a cooperative, if you have time to do some of the work usually required. Ask wholesalers if they'll sell to you in large quantities.
- Don't buy items if they are priced too high. Use alternate ingredients. Investigate pick-your-own orchards, vegetable farms and roadside stands.
- Don't assume fresh is always cheapest. Watch for items which cost less when in certain recipes.
- Upgrade your tea and coffee. It is less expensive to buy loose tea and coffee beans that you grind yourself.
- Use freezer space to a maximum to hold bargain items bought in quantity.
- Buy less expensive cuts of meat when possible, marinating it overnight to enhance taste and tenderness.

UNITED STATES FOREST SERVICE reminds landowners that a permit is required for all outdoor burning after the snow leaves the ground. The above map indicates locations where burning permits may be obtained in this county. The basic reasons for wildfires in the spring are unattended grass fires, fires which burn out of control and failure to obtain a permit and learn safe burning practices. When obtaining a permit, it is pointed out that burning is not permitted until after 5:00 p. m. and each permit holder receives basic regulations. Last year's fire season was medium to low but, with less snow during the past winter, the wildfire season in 1981 could be earlier and more serious than last year.

wartime food shortage by shipping tons of smelt to fish markets and stores of metropolitan areas.

One year during the war the smelt did not return from deep water of the Great Lakes for the annual spring spawning migration. For some undetermined reason, millions of the smelt died off and the shores of Lakes Huron and Michigan were littered with tons of dead fish.

The end of the war signaled the start of a new era and the silvery horde of smelt returned each spring. The Big Ditch and the Singing Bridge in Arenac County, along with the old Bear Track Inn, became familiar place names to several thousand dippers each spring.

Crowd control became an absolute headache for state police and Arenac County law enforcement officials — several miles of snow fences were used to prevent parking along US-23—but the influx of fishermen gave an economic shot in the arm to many local businesses, even some private property owners who established temporary parking lots.

Smelt runs on the Whitney Drain and the Tawas River drew state-wide interest each spring and, in April 1980, a noted Life Magazine photographer was here to take pictures on special assignment. The story never appeared in print, however, as the photographer was soon off to another part of the world to take pictures of the start of a war in South Korea.

Despite fluctuating numbers of smelt entering the streams each year, crowds continued to increase for the annual "carnival" in the Big Ditch, far outstripping the dwindling numbers of fishermen dipping in the Tawas River. All of the excitement seemed to be centered at the Singing Bridge.

A new breed of fishermen seemed to be concerned only with how much golden lager could be consumed or how much damage could be inflicted on property owned by natives bordering the Big Ditch. Drunkenness became so common that, one year, a dipper toppled over into the stream—dead of a heart attack or drowning—and his body floated for nearly 100 yards among thousands of unconcerned fishermen before it was finally brought to shore. An interesting footnote to the Big Ditch—more properly, the Whitney Drain—is the fact that this huge trench was dug on private property to drain inland farm fields. Despite the fact that the state later diverted water from the AuGres River to the drain at its upper end, the drain is still privately owned.

Because of increasing numbers of trespassers each season, one private property owner who enjoyed a good argument called upon state police from East Tawas to eject fishermen from "his" stream. The matter was not settled until the courts ruled that the Big Ditch was, in fact, privately owned and the man had the right to order trespassers off his property. Enforcement of property rights touched off a hassle each season, until state police stepped in to set the record straight.

Visiting fishermen finally became so obnoxious—firewood piles next to houses seemed to "melt away" during the smelt season, fence posts and even boats were tossed unceremoniously on huge bonfires warming fishermen and lawns were trampled—that property owners in the Singing Bridge area banded together and demanded relief from state and local authorities.

Michigan State Police and Arenac County Sheriff's Department beefed up foot patrols each season to bring some semblance of order and, finally, the state purchased a parcel of private property and established a public park at the entry of Whitney Drain into Saginaw Bay.

Around the second week of April, the Big Ditch and the Tawas River will again be lined with dippers and, after a few false starts caused by the cry—"the run's on"—a horde of fishermen will scramble into the cold water and begin furiously dipping for smelt. Some will learn the hard way that the sweep of the net must be downstream.

In the meantime, others will unlimber minnow seines in secluded sections of Tawas Bay—playing cat and mouse with conservation officers for their illegal activities. Once, many years ago, the smelt run in the Tawas River was diverted several hours one night until it was discovered that a net had been stretched across the mouth of the river.

Dead Creek, the "dinner bucket" and choice locations behind the Tosco County Jail will become popular places to dip smelt—just as they have for nearly 50 years. Before the dawn of another day, some of the fishermen will be "guests of the county" and will make an appearance in district court over what they seemed to believe was good fun only a few hours earlier.

How time has flown since April 5, 1935, when the Herald reported that 200 smelt were dipped in a single night—something unheard of at the time—or that "Postmaster Martin Musolf caught the largest specimen taken Monday night, measuring over 12 inches in length."

DIPPERS also crowded the banks of Dead Creek during the daylight hours when runs reached a peak. This picture was snapped behind the Tawas City High School before the course of the stream was changed.—Tawas Herald Photo.

Go Fly a Kite — Safely!

"Go fly a kite," says J. E. Wessels, Consumers Power Company's Tawas District manager, "but do it safely."

Wessels is urging parents and school officials to warn youngsters of the dangers of flying kites near electric lines and poles.

"Each year," he says, "accidents happen when kites become tangled in trees and wires. Children are injured trying to free them." He added that accidents also occur when a kite flyer uses metallic or wet string which can conduct current if it crosses an electric line.

Wessels listed these basic rules which will help kite flyers avoid trouble: Use dry string—not wire or anything metallic; use wood, paper or plastic in the kite—not wire or metal; fly kites on days when there is no threat of rain; avoid busy streets or highways; fly kites far from television and radio antennas; keep away from electric lines; if an electric line falls, stay away from it; call power company if a kite gets snagged in a line—do not pull the string or climb the pole or tower.

CETA Implements Summer Youth Training Program

Region 7B Employment and Training Consortium (CETA) Administrative Board of Directors voted Thursday to concur with the recommendations of the Region 7B Advisory and Planning Council to begin implementation of the 1981 Summer Youth Employment Program (SYEP). The board voted unanimously to fund the multifaceted 10-week youth program. The recent cuts in the CETA Public Service Employment (PSE) Program have no effect on the Summer Youth Employment Program.

The largest component of SYEP will be work experience. CETA eligible youth are assigned to work sites for the summer to gain experience and exposure in the world of work. Another major part of SYEP is vocational education. All consortium area schools will be invited to submit proposals to operate vocational education programs for CETA eligible youth.

The remedial reading program will be repeated again this summer with all area schools invited to prepare summer remedial reading and mathematics programs for CETA eligible youth. Consortium area schools will also be invited to operate tutorial programs for CETA eligible youth. The model being used calls for CETA eligible youth to tutor younger students in basic educational skills.

TALK PROGRAM SCHEDULE — Oakland County Prosecuting Attorney L. Brooks Patterson, left, and Iosco County Republican Committee Chairman Hugh Prescott pause Saturday night to look over the program that had brought Patterson to Iosco County. OAKLAND PROSECUTOR TELLS IOSCO GOP

Capital Punishment Deters Murder

By Neal R. Miller
EAST TAWAS — It was a grisly scene when L. Brooks Patterson, Oakland County prosecuting attorney saw it in September of 1979.

The girl was dead. Obviously beaten with a heavy instrument, her head was bashed in and her body was covered with puncture wounds from a barbeque fork. Her arms and legs were broken and the prosecutor was to learn later they had been slammed in a car door.

A day later two men were sitting in an Oakland County bar, discussing what they had done. Their conversation was overheard. Police were called. The men were arrested, one still wearing bloody clothing. A hammer was found in the other's auto trunk covered with hair and blood from the dead girl's head.

"When those two men were brought to my office for discussion, I asked them what their motive was," Patterson said.

"Do you know what they told me? One said he'd never seen anyone die before and he wanted to. The other said he wanted to kill as many people as he was old. He was 19."

That incident was the catalyst to cause Patterson to start work to bring capital punishment back to Michigan for cold blooded murder. "I said I would start a petition drive for capital punishment and that's exactly what I have done." And it was that petition drive to have a capital punishment question on the 1982 Michigan ballot that L. Brooks Patterson was stumping when he spoke to about 125 party faithfuls attending the Iosco County Lincoln Day Dinner in East Tawas Saturday night.

Currently Patterson is carrying his message to anyone who will listen and offering petitions to anyone who is willing to circulate them for him as he seeks signatures to put the capital punishment for cold blooded murder on the 1982 ballot. He even has established a mailing address — Capital Punishment, Box 1982, Pontiac, 48053 — for persons who might circulate petitions for him or who might be seeking a meeting speaker to talk about capital punishment.

Patterson is no newcomer to either petition drives or ballot issues. The attorney, who has been Oakland County prosecutor since 1972, culminated a five year fight with the Michigan Parole System by leading a successful petition drive to reform parole policies in 1979.

Mentioned as a possible U.S. Senate candidate, Patterson said following Saturday night's dinner that he was not closing any political doors, but that right now his effort

Our First Step . . .

As the first step toward the pending merger of The Tawas Herald and New-Press Publishing Co., Inc., publishers of the Iosco County News and Oscoda Press, this common section has been prepared for all three publications.

To the readers of The Herald, it will be an introduction to both the offset newspaper, prepared and printed on the News-Press equipment.

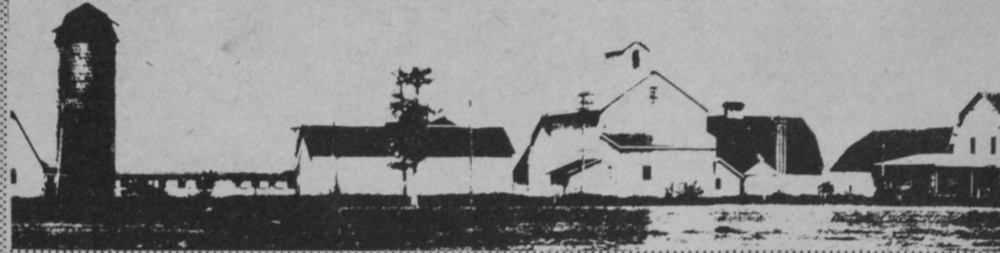

It is also a sample of the expanded coverage which will be available from this merger.

The weekly historical column, a regular feature from Neil Thornton, Herald editor, will be a welcome addition to the News and Press.

Herald readers in this section will be introduced to the expanded coverage on the outdoors and feature scene which will be possible with our joint, expanded staff.

Carl Schmidt and his---

SERRADELLA FARM

The weekly historical articles which have appeared in THE TAWAS HERALD will become a regular feature of the NEWS-HERALD and THE OSCODA PRESS. Written by Herald Editor, Neil Thornton, the series began the first week of January in 1976 as part of the bicentennial observance and has been continued for 272 consecutive weeks.

Man's allotted time on earth covers but a relatively brief instant when the history of civilization is considered; some leave footprints so deeply embedded in the sands of time that their works are recalled long after they have passed from this life.

Before footprints left by Carl E. Schmidt are eroded by time, the story of this internationally known industrialist, conservationist and a man truly of public affairs in Northeastern Michigan should be briefly recalled.

Schmidt, multi-millionaire owner of Serradella farm near Oscoda, died of a heart attack in December 1934, at his home, "Walhalla," on Cedar Lake. He had done more toward the resort development in this section of Michigan than any other individual. Born in Detroit on December 31, 1857, he was the son of a tanner, who set up business there after the expulsion of "Liberals" from Germany in 1848. As a young man, he went through the schools of Detroit and on to a scientific course at the University of Jena in Germany.

Returning to this country, he built up the parental business by introducing improvements in tanning and subsequently became an extremely wealthy man.

Said to be a friend and confidant of Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany prior to the United States' entry into World War I, Schmidt later became a leader in this country's war effort.

Schmidt served as police commissioner of Detroit under Mayor Hazen S. Pingree and later was appointed by Gov. Fred Warner to a land commission which formulated the law which led to the establishment of state forests. Through his foresight, he was also largely responsible in the action taken by the state toward the preservation of state rights in oil, gas and mineral resources on tax-reverted property, so important today because of new activity in oil and gas leasing.

In 1904, Schmidt's interests turned to buying lands in Northeastern Michigan and he moved permanently to his home on Cedar Lake in 1917.

His Serradella farm on Cedar Lake Road northwest of Oscoda was one of the chief interests of his later life and, for 20 years, this dairy operation was watched with national interest because of its experimental research for profitable crops that would grow on cutover sand plains.

Establishing his farm in 1909, hundreds of experiments were made with crops and the development of methods to build up the fertility of the soil. His curiosity to learn what Michigan land would and would not grow led to development of methods to enrich soil through plowing under of green crops of legumes every third year.

During this period, one of the finest dairy herds in the United States was established at Serradella farm, which had the latest equipment for its time and hundreds of people from all over the United States and many foreign lands visited it each year.

Many of the practices developed on this farm were adopted by Michigan Agricultural College (now Michigan State University), incorporated into its instructional program and are still in use today.

In January 1920, The Tawas Herald reported that the Serradella farm herd of 109 head of Holstein cattle had received its eighth successive certification under tuberculin testing. Dr. W.E. Coomer of Bay City expressed his admiration of the health conditions of the herd and the sanitary surroundings that were provided.

"The herd is maintained free of any contagious or infectious disease in a state of high production, of best quality products, as well as the best type of stock to improve the average production and type of the dairy herds throughout the country," stated the article. "Serradella farm has been shipping breeding stock to as far west as Kansas and Nebraska and east to New Jersey and Vermont."

Milk from this healthy herd was shipped to Saginaw and Bay City, especially for infant feeding; it supplied milk to all school children of Bay City, as well as the Greenbush Inn and other summer resorts. Inquiries for Serradella farm bred stock came in from all states of the union, Canada and South America.

An outing by Alcona, Iosco, Arenac and Alpena dairy farmers was held annually at the farm. In 1927, farmers attending the program had the opportunity to inspect the different buildings, machinery and fields, followed by lunch at the Serradella clubhouse.

In the afternoon, a parade by Serradella celebrities was headed by the farm's prize Percheron stallion, "Orby Boy", followed by a group of cows, including 'Dorcas Canary Rag Apple', a prize winning Holstein.

Experiments in cross-breeding saw Schmidt purchasing several American bison (buffalo) in an attempt to develop meat producing animals. The bison proved to be a star attraction at the farm, but attempts to develop a cross-breed proved unsuccessful.

Many labor saving devices in farm practice were first developed at Serradella, one of which consisted of a plow guided by cables and operated from a central power plant. The device proved practical at Serradella, but not elsewhere.

Schmidt scoured the United States and Europe for experts in animal husbandry and brought many of them to his farming operation near Oscoda. A small community grew up at the farm, which even had its own one-room school and a teacher for eight grades.

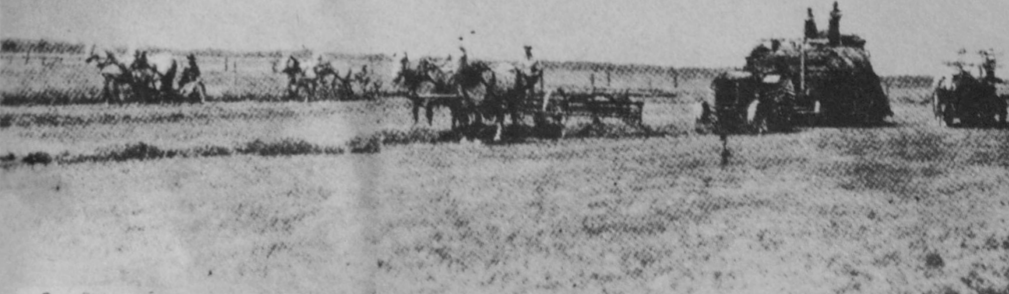

Over the years, Schmidt acquired considerable frontage along Lake Huron in Iosco and Alcona counties, which led to his development of the Greenbush Inn as one of the region's first resort centers.

Plans for US-23 as the Huron Shore Route saw Schmidt donating land in 1930 as the right-of-way for this scenic roadway. This new highway gave the opportunity for development of overnight cabin businesses all along the shore. Both sides of the highway were soon built up with a continuous row of summer homes.

Greenbush Golf Course was constructed by Schmidt in 1929-30 and it is said that he imported much of the materials used in its construction from Germany, even down to the black dirt used in greens.

Schmidt's interest in the Greenbush Inn saw development of a winter sports area bordering Cedar Lake with facilities for skiing, bobsledding, tobogganing, ice boating and skating. The winter resort, according to The Detroit Free Press in 1928, was comparable to St. Moritz, "most fashionable of all Swiss Alpine winter playgrounds." (After Schmidt's death, the toboggans were purchased for use at Silver Valley.)

ON THE JOB — Making hay at Serradella Farm saw two mowing machines, a hay rake and two hay wagons at work in this field. The farm apparently did not have a hay baling machine when this picture was snapped in the 1920s. The farm introduced the practice of plowing legumes under every three years to improve the sandy soil near Oscoda.

was being spent on his new petition drive.

It didn't take long after Patterson drafting his new petition to have action start on the capital punishment plan. "As soon as the petition drive started," he said, "two things happened — first the debate started and second, the opposition came out swinging."

Key to the debate is the question "will capital punishment stop murder?" Patterson says simply, "yes".

"I'll say that it will deter some, but not all murder, but isn't some a benefit for you and me?" he quizzed. Patterson contends that by raising the risk of crime — capital punishment for cold blooded murder — the smaller will become the number of persons who are willing to try the crime.

"There is research which shows that for each death of murder in a state with capital punishment, you will save the lives of eight potential victims," he said, adding that other research says 40, rather than eight lives, would be saved.

He also pointed to California studies conducted with prisoners who didn't kill witnesses who saw them commit their crimes. "They were asked why they didn't kill the witnesses," Patterson said, "and in more than half the cases they said it was because California has the death penalty."

Today 38 of the United States' 50 states have a death penalty — a penalty which was upheld as constitutional by the United States Supreme Court on July 2, 1976.

Patterson said he considers the death penalty to be a warning just as is a light house. "Anyone can point to a ship when it piles up on the rocks, but how many pass safely in the night unnoticed," Patterson said. He charges that even with a death penalty there would be murder, but contends that there also would be lives saved because of it.

Opposed to the death penalty plan is Michigan Governor William G. Milliken. "Governor Milliken said he is opposed because there are no reputable studies to show capital punishment deters murder," Patterson said. "I have a file cabinet full of studies that show capital punishment deters murder so I'm taking my case to the jury — the jury of Michigan and hopefully that jury will decide the case on the ballot in 1982."

Currently Michigan has a life term in prison without parole for murders and because of that Patterson says he often is asked why he would work for another law dealing with the death penalty in first degree murder cases.

"I won't stop because prisoners can escape as they did in Marquette," he said as he pulled another horror story from his file of death. In that case the escapee stole a car and took a woman prisoner as they headed for Wisconsin. The woman was executed, Patterson said, as she begged for her life. In Wisconsin the men killed a gas station attendant and drove through Illinois to Michigan where they killed another station attendant in Rochester. The men were stopped in Flint and caught after a shoot-out with police.

"They now are serving two concurrent life terms in Michigan and what do they care after the first one," Patterson asked, pointing out that in Jackson Prison five murders have been committed behind prison walls with the murderer getting second life terms.

"Today we are seeing stories on prison overcrowdings and possible prisoner release," the prosecutor continued. "But what about the flip side. What about the victim's family?"

"What we are doing is simply issuing a warning — if you kill you face death," he asserted. "If we save one life, it's worth the time and effort."

Energy Assistant Hours Listed

TAWAS CITY — Because of the elimination of CETA Title VI funding for low income energy assistance programs, staffing for Iosco County's programs has been cut to three days a week.

Beginning next Monday, a worker will be available to complete home heating assistance applications at the AuSable Township Hall in AuSable Township Mondays and Fridays from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and at the Plainfield Township Hall, Hale, Wednesdays from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

B&E's Reported To Sheriff

TAWAS — The Iosco County Sheriff Department investigated several breaking and enterings reported during the past week, including a breakin reported March 25 at the home of Carl Schaaf, 71, of Tawas City.

Schaaf is reportedly in Florida and the breakin was reported by a relative. Entry was gained by breaking a window on the rear door.

According to the sheriff report, the residence was ransacked and items including a stereo and small safe were stolen. A full account of what is missing from the residence will be completed when Schaaf returns to the area.

Two cabins in Plainfield township were discovered broken into last week, including the March 24 report from the cabin of Harold Allmacher, 57, of Detroit. The cabin was entered by breaking a window on the garage and because the owner does not live locally, it is unknown what was stolen during the incident.

On March 25, a cabin in Plainfield Township owned by Philip Jozwak, 29, of Livonia were broken into by breaking a window on the rear door. The cabin was ransacked, but it is not yet known what was stolen.

A cabin in AuSable Township owned by Donald Kenney, of Southgate was reported broken into Saturday by breaking a bedroom window. Cooking equipment, sleeping bags and food were stolen.

IRA means Individual Retirement Account

If you are eligible, Federal Income Tax Law now permits you, an individual wage earner, to establish a tax-sheltered retirement plan (IRA) through Oscoda State Savings Bank. You then are allowed a tax deduction for your contributions. You don't pay taxes on the contributions or the interest earned until you receive a distribution, generally at retirement and then probably at a lower tax rate than when you were working. A qualified individual may establish a separate IRA for his or her spouse. There are eligibility requirements and provisions for members of the Armed Forces reserves. DELINQUENT STATEMENTS — County Treasurer Edward Nelkie [right] along with Deputy Treasurer Margaret Avram, help organize delinquent tax statements with Grant Township Treasurer Dale Butzin. The delinquent statements were late in coming this year, causing the county to stall on settling tax statements with local municipalities. A meeting has been called for today, Wednesday, by the County Board of Commissioners to discuss the problems encountered during this year's tax process. — NEWS-PRESS PHOTO

Tax Settlement Stall Meeting Set Today

TAWAS — Problems encountered by the county treasurer and equalization director during the 1980 tax process will be aired today, Wednesday, during the regular meeting of the County Board of Commissioners. Several factors this year have served to stall the county in settling the tax roll situation with local municipalities this year. As of Monday, the county treasurer's office was in the process of settling with local units, but Treasurer Edward Nelkie refused to speculate as to exactly when the process will be completed.

In recent years, Iosco County has been a leader in Michigan in settling with local units usually being in the top 10 counties in the state to settle. This year it appears Iosco could be the last county of 83 to settle.

Settling is the process of balancing the tax rolls to determine how much has been paid and how much is delinquent in each municipality. When the county settles with a municipality, that municipality can be paid its full tax amount due, and the county can borrow money against delinquent taxes.

Taxes become delinquent March 1 of each year. By not settling with the municipalities, the county, municipalities and local school systems are all losing money which could be earned on interest accumulated by invested money, which can only be secured after settling has occurred.

This was the first year the new county computer has been used to run the tax rolls and statements. The computer is not a popular facility among some county department heads and it has been implied that the hold up with this year's tax process is the fault of using the computer.

Treasurer Nelkie has not been outspoken in his views recently concerning the computer, but has said he will turn in a detailed report of his position at today's meeting.

County Equalization Director John Rose has admitted that this year was a transformation year for the tax process and that mistakes were made in the use of the computer. However, Rose has defended the computer process and said that considering that this was a transformation year, things have gone fairly well.

Rose also has been hesitant to speak out about where he thinks the fault for this year's problems lie, but he said recently that he agreed with a statement made by Commissioner David George to the effect that there was not proper communication or cooperation between departments during the taxation process.

The commissioners are seeking answers in order to avoid any delay in the taxation process next year.

Also invited to the meeting were assessors from local units. Commissioner George has implied that he is not satisfied with the assessment in Oscoda and is thinking of voting against its acceptance.

OSCODA WEIR UNLIKELY DNR Maintains Position On Snagging Elimination

OSCODA — Elimination of salmon foul-hooking was discussed briefly at Thursday's Chamber of Commerce meeting, as Department of Natural Resources fisheries biologist Gary Schnicke told directors that eventual elimination of the program is the goal of the DNR.

"I believe that it is a question of timing," commented Schnicke. "The DNR is planning a gradual phasing-out of snagging over a number of years, when the attitude is right in the various communities," he added.

Schnicke said that the foul-hooking fishery will hopefully be replaced by a legitimate fishery for the salmon like that which occurred in the lower AuSable River last year, when large numbers of the fish remained in the river for some time before completing their runs to the dam.

"It wasn't that long ago that we (the DNR) were here in Oscoda speaking to local groups to promote snagging and convince you to accept it," said Schnicke. "But we feel that is has created so many problems, such as littering, trespassing, and behavior problems, that it has hindered our ability to function."

Schnicke also stated that the foul-hook fishery has seriously damaged the image of the salmon fishery, reducing the image of the salmon from a highly prize game fish in the lake to a commodity similar to carp once it enters the rivers.

Another problem has been the opposition to the snagging from large environmental and sportsmen's groups in the state, which have pressured the DNR to conclude the program.

Schnicke also related that the DNR does not plan to install a weir this fall at the mouth of Van Ettan Creek.

"At a cost of $24,000, it is very unlikely that we could afford to finance such an endeavor," said Schnicke.

He noted that one option being considered by the DNR, since the reduction in levels of chemical contaminants found in the salmon has allowed the commercial sale of the fish for consumption, would be to allow charterboat operators to catch and sell salmon commercially on the open market.

Trout Stamp Judging May 21

LANSING — Judging of this year's trout stamp entries will take place Thursday, May 21, instead of Friday, May 22, as had been previously announced, the Department of Natural Resources says.

May 22 has been scheduled as the third unpaid layoff day for state employees.

Ned Fogle, coordinator of the DNR's annual trout stamp contest, says judging will still be held in the Law Building Auditorium, 525 W. Ottawa, Lansing, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Entries will be on display to the public during the judging of the contest, which is expected to end at approximately 4:30 p.m.

Artists still have time to enter the competition, which is designed to select the featured artwork on the following year's stamp. Entry deadline is May 1.

The trout stamp is required for salmon or trout fishing, in addition to the regular resident or non-resident fishing license.

Winner of the contest receives a special plaque. Runners-up are awarded certificates of recognition.

For a copy of the contest rules, write to Trout Stamp Contest in care of the DNR's Fisheries Division, Box 30028, Lansing, Mi. 48909.

SECOND PLACE — Marty Engel of Oscoda shows off the little steelhead which took second place in Saturday's steelheader tournament on the AuSable River. Engel's trout was one of only two taken by 57 steelheaders, and was edged out of first place by one ounce. The fish weighed two and a quarter pounds. — NEWS-PRESS PHOTO

ONLY TWO TAKEN Steelheaders Enjoy Weather More Than Fish

OSCODA — With temperatures escalating to nearly 70 degrees, and most access roads dry and passable, a total of 57 anglers converged along the banks of the AuSable River on Saturday to compete in a Michigan Salmon and Steelhead Fishermen's Association fishing tournament.

Unfortunately, only the weather was cooperative as only two fish were taken during the day-long tourney.

The Metro-West Detroit area chapter of the steelheaders, with 40 fishermen competing, narrowly edged the Huron Shores chapter by only one ounce.

Competing anglers were found along the entire stretch of the AuSable from downtown Oscoda to Foote Dam, at least enjoying the beautiful spring weather if not seeing any action. They fished from seawalls, from riverbanks, wading onto gravel bars, and from boats.

Although the sunshine was plentiful and warm, persistent high winds plagued fishermen's efforts throughout the day.

Winning steelhead was taken by Ed Yankowski of Detroit, weighing in at a mere two pounds and five ounces.

The only other fish taken in the tourney was caught by Marty Engel of Oscoda. That steelhead weighed two pounds, four ounces.

Spring Here???

Anyone who has spent any amount of time in Michigan knows that the weather is subject to frequent and drastic changes in the spring and fall, but we can hope spring has arrived.

It seems only yesterday we were ice fishing on Tawas Bay, and now the ice is gone and it's time to think spring on the outdoor scene.

Even a shift back to more winter like weather would not likely chance prospects which are well into spring now.

Smelt Run Due

Water temperatures, which serve as the best indication of what to expect in the way of fishing, Sunday stood at 43 degrees in the AuSable River.

And, Tawas could be even higher than that.

Smelt are likely to run when temperatures hit about 45 — water that is — so the silvery horde could make its spawning run any time (if they don't before this goes to print).

Laker Action

Fishermen off Oscoda and Tawas Point have been taking enough lake trout and a few browns, indicating that both areas can expect a better than ever early spring fishery.

Hardly had the ice cleared the AuSable mouth and there was still ice in Tawas Bay when early trollers started picking up a few fish.

While no records were set in terms of number, it is about as early as trolling has proven productive, at least enough to warrant a trip out for fresh fish on the table.

Opening of the Oscoda and Harrisville lake trout derbies this week and followed in two weeks by the Tawas Bay brown trout derby should see a marked increase in both pressure and success.

We have long maintained, and it seems to be supported by reported results, that the number of fish taken is pretty much in proportion to the number of lures being placed in fish water.

As both Tawas and Oscoda grow in stature as fishing hot spots, we can look for more pressure and more fish.

Look for Steelhead

While steelhead fishing on the AuSable has been spotty, there are some who don't even try until the smelt start. Monday's warm rain, following the higher than normal week-end temperature, could well bring the steelhead into the AuSable and off the Tawas River as they follow the smelt for feed.

Turkey Stamps Available

Hunters who were successful in the spring turkey permit draw may now purchase the required turkey stamp at Tawas Point State Park.

It takes the permits from the Department of Natural Resources, a new sporting passbook with either small game or sportsmen's stamp and $7.25 to purchase the stamp.

The stamps will be available at the park from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

FROM AUGRES TO HARRISVILLE

Sportfishing Group Plans Regional Promo Project

OSCODA — The Lake Huron Sportfishing Association has begun organization of a regional promotion of the northeast Michigan sportfishing industry which will include Lake Huron shoreline communities from AuGres to Harrisville.

According to association chairman Calvin McLaren, representatives from AuGres, and Tawas, Oscoda, and Harrisville will combine efforts to assemble one promotional booklet which would be distributed at two or more fishing-oriented sportsmen's exhibitions in other states next winter.

The booklet would be primarily concerned with lake, river, and stream fishing in the AuGres to Harrisville area, but would include information about other area attractions.

Plans for the booklet estimate about 60 pages, with information and advertising about each area to be divided into separate sections. Sizes of each of the sections would be determined by the amount of advertisers' participation from each community.

Funding for the promotional project would be raised through the sale of advertising in the booklet, with the project cost and advertising revenue to be figured on a "break

Turkey Workshop

First time turkey hunters, and even those who have experience, might think about a trip to Roscommon Sunday to attend one of three workshops in the state on turkey hunting.

Sponsored by the Michigan Wild Turkey Federation, the workshop at Roscommon starts at 1:00 p.m. and runs through 4:15 and includes "expert" tips on calls, decoys, finding the wild turkey and about "everything a turkey hunter should know, but did not know who to ask".

There is a $2.00 fee for this mini-workshop, but should prove worth it, especially if it helps bag a tom.

Take Your Kid Fishing???

"Take your, or a kid fishing" has been the theme for National Fishing Day, and it is good advice.

But, an unfortunate variation of that theme involving a father and son from Northwest Michigan came to light last fall and was closed in the past week.

The father and his 15-year-old son were charged with the severe beating of a DNR officer when he attempted to make an arrest for spearing trout and salmon in an area stream.

It will be a while before that father takes his son fishing again. He will be "fishing" for the next 12 years from a cell in Jackson or some other state prison.

And, the son was placed on four years probation and assessed some pretty stiff (not too) fines and costs as the result of the assault on the officer.

IT'S THAT TIME AGAIN — Spring lake trout fishing, expected to be one of the best seasons in years, has already begun with occasional catches reported with increasing frequency during the past couple of weeks. John Hook of Oscoda displays two lunker lakers taken last Wednesday from the pier at the mouth of the AuSable River. The two fish, weighing in at nine pounds, one ounce, and seven pounds, one ounce, were taken on a Crocodile and a Jewel. — NEWS-PRESS PHOTO

NEXT WEEK'S HOROSCOPE
 BY SALOME

FOR RELEASE WEEK OF APRIL 6, 1981
 If your birthdate occurs this week
 The sweet promise of spring is scenting the air.
 Get winter inhibitions out of your hair.

Aries Mar. 21 - Apr. 19 Mars
 Hello, Spring Ram. While gambling in the present, don't gamble with your future. Some folks have a way of impressing you with their charm. While being impressed, examine anything that seems suspicious.

Taurus Apr. 20 - May 20 Venus
 Seeing red is only one way to react to an upsetting situation. But the smart Taurus bull would be better off backing away from it. Don't blame yourself for falling for the Big Lie. A Scorpio scores in romance.

Gemini May 21 - June 20 Mercury
 The stars point to a huge question mark in your sign.
 Ask yourself some penetrating questions about your aims and goals. Cupid's aiming at a Leo who could make the Cancerian Crab purr.

Cancer June 21 - July 22 Moon
 The stars indicate a strong spiritual curve this week.
 Positive thinking will work for you. This is a good opportunity to make a list of your plans for the next month. You have good things in your subconscious.

Leo July 23 - Aug. 22 Sun Come out of your den, Leo and Leona, and enjoy the good things waiting for you. Your business skills are really sharp. But although you love gold, be sure that what glitters isn't just yellow fritters.

Virgo Aug. 23 - Sept. 22 Mercury
 Being precise may be your cup of tea. This week, however, be prepared for some disruptions in your schedule. Turn these temporary tempests in your teacup to good use. Changes are favored.

Libra Sept. 23 - Oct. 22 Venus
 Your sign is the balancing scale. But this week, scale up your sights and demand that long-promised, long-deferred recognition of your efforts. Your stars indicate a favorable response to business contacts.

Scorpio Oct. 23 - Nov. 21 Pluto
 Romantic efforts might appear to be in vain this week.
 Some Scorpios could feel Cupid's sting instead of his arrows. Be patient. The stars indicate romance waits for you in spite of your doubts.

Sagittarius Nov. 22 - Dec. 21 Jupiter
 Regardless of what the weather is like outside, the stars indicate a warning for you inside. Keep cool even if a business situation flares up around you. Once the heat dies down you'll can step in and take control.

Capricorn Dec. 22 - Jan. 19 Saturn Neptune is trying to get your goat, Capricorn. But while that certain someone is letting their envy show, you can give his plans a pasting by sticking to yours.
 Single Capricornians may find amenable Aquarians.

Aquarius Jan. 20 - Feb. 18 Uranus
 Your tendency to get involved in everyone's problems becomes a big problem this week. Too many people want to take advantage of your good nature. Pick and choose whom you can really help.

Pisces Feb. 19 - Mar. 20 Neptune
 The sometimes extravagant side of the Piscean Fish's nature tends to show through this week. But if you want to keep your head above water, resist the tempta-

THE SACKETTS

Cowboy Orrin Sackett (Tom Selleck) finds Laura Pritts (Marcy Hanson) one of the visual delights of the Old West, in Part II of "The Sacketts," to be color-cast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies," MONDAY, APRIL 6.

The epic drama focuses on three brothers—Tell, Orrin and Tye Sackett—in the turbulent years when Anglo-Saxon and Spanish-speaking settlers fought one another in the emergence of the New Mexico Territory.

In Part II, Tell (Sam Elliott) and Cap Roundtree (Ben Johnson) fend off the vengeance-seeking Bigelow brothers while Orrin and Tye (Selleck and Jeff Osterhage) cope with a Spanish-hating bigot, a former friend turned enemy and the promise of romance in the challenging New Mexico Territory.

FISHERMEN RESCUER — Marge MacMurray, of East Tawas, stands in front of the boat she used to pick up four of the 11 stranded fishermen on Tawas Bay Friday. The fishermen spent more than an hour on ice which had broken away from shore before being rescued. — NEWS-PRESS PHOTO

Fishermen Rescued

EAST TAWAS — Despite official warning for the public to stay off remaining ice in Tawas Bay, 11 fishermen had to be rescued from the bay Friday afternoon, when the ice they were on broke away from shore. The fishermen were rescued by a Coast Guard boat and by a private boat operated by Marge MacMurray, of East Tawas. MacMurray said she saw the fishermen wandering around on moving ice from her home's back window on Tawas Beach Road in East Tawas.

She said she and her mother tried to motion the fishermen to walk in the direction of Jerry's Marina near Tawas Point because the way in the direction they were heading, the ice was breaking up farther down shore.

MacMurray said that at first she was not going to try and pick up any of the fishermen, but it looked as though the Coast Guard boat that arrived on the scene was having engine trouble. She picked up four men in two trips. The coast guard picked up six and another private boat at the scene picked up one more.

According to a Coast Guard spokesman, crewmen from the East Tawas station was notified of the stranded fishermen at 2:15 p.m. He said the fishermen reported being stranded since around 11:00 a.m.

Two of the fishermen were identified as local men, Stan Blury, Jr., 23, of Tawas City and Roy Pipes, 34, of Whittemore. Blury said that one of the fishermen fell through the ice when the group tried to walk in close enough to wade to shore. The soaked man was reportedly fishing from the water by the others present.

Blury said it was a frightening experience being trapped on moving ice for more than an hour and a half, adding, "We should have known better."

He reported that when he and Pipes went out on to the ice there was a long six inch wide crack they had to cross, but he did not believe there was any chance of the ice moving out.

"We were the last ones out there that's for sure," Blury said.

The Coast Guard is urging the public to stay off any ice that may remain along the Lake Huron shoreline.

History

Hans A. Boehme, manager of the inn, was internationally known in winter sports, having won numerous prizes in European contests in 1909, 1910 and 1911.

"It is a combination of wildness and modernity," said The Free Press. "Here is constant undeviating snow on the one hand; a 150-room modern inn on the other, with billiard room and a fireplace when the last toboggan zips down one of the four runways, each a mile in length."

Schmidt was the driving force behind all of these enterprises and, following his death in 1934, others were unable to follow his ground-breaking efforts.

"As long as Schmidt lived, so did Serradella in grand fashion," stated the Herald in 1941, when many of the farm buildings were dismantled. "But his death in 1934 brought serious change; other men tried to run the place, but none were able to make it pay. Of late, it has stood there somewhat as a lonely monument to the man whose money, genius and intelligence did so much for the development of this entire area. Now the bulk of the physical

Ferris Announces Honors List

BIG RAPIDS — Posting grade point averages of at least 3.25 on a 4.0 (all A) system, 19 Iosco County students were named to the Ferris State College academic honors list for the recently completed winter quarter.

They are: East Tawas: David Butler, Julie Elliott, Thomas Klenow, Richard Moss, Timothy Lesneski and Melanie Matthews.

Oscoda: Diane Cook, Teresa Fraser, Janet Green, Craig Koss, and Daniel Zolnai.

Tawas City: Lindsey Bielby, Joseph Cotter, Joan Hughes, Jo Ellen Johnroe, Cheryl Shillair, Tamara Suhanic and Gary Wood. Whittemore: Joy Ori.

ON DISPLAY — A parade of farm implements, draft horses and dairy cows was held at the Serradella Farm for visiting dairy farmers of the region. The farm had outstanding equipment in the 1920s and a number of innovations in farm practices were developed there.

property is to be taken down, once again clearing the acreage which Schmidt alone could operate successfully."

Schmidt's 25-room mansion on Cedar Lake, connected to shore by a tree-lined causeway, was destroyed by fire in March 1953. His Greenbush Inn was destroyed by fire in 1968.

His last remaining monuments are the Huron Shore Road, the resort highway which he pioneered and dairy industry methods which were developed at Serradella farm.

As a crowning blow, the records of Schmidt's lifetime, stored in a vault in the basement of the old bank building at Oscoda, were destroyed a number of years ago when the building was cleaned out and rented to a treasure hunting enterprise. This removed the possibility of a future definitive biography concerning one who was so important to this region's history; the value of his correspondence simply was not realized at the time.

Two from Iosco Get UM Honors

ANN ARBOR — Two Iosco County residents were among the 4,200 University of Michigan students recognized at the University's annual Honors Convocation last week.

They are Mark D. Hintz, of East Tawas, who is enrolled in the University's College of Literature, Science and Arts, and Gregg S. Leichtman, Oscoda, who is in the College of Engineering.

More than 5,000 awards were recognized for the 4,200 students, of which 4,127, including those from Iosco County, were class honors, recognizing an undergraduate academic record equal to at least half A's and half B's for two terms during 1980.

New Law Limits Windshield Shade

TAWAS — New state law amendments going into enforcement today, Wednesday, limit the darkening of front vehicle windshields and side windows adjacent to the driver or front passenger.

According to a state police release, the new law also prohibits gold or silver reflective film on all other vehicle windows. The law also states that a limit allowing darkening of windows to be set at 35 per cent of a total solar reflectance.

The violation is classified as a civil infraction which carries a maximum fine of $100 plus court costs.

Holland Bankruptcy Goes Back to Court

EAST TAWAS — Charging that provisions of the plan of arrangement have been violated, Peoples State Bank, East Tawas, is seeking new court action against the Holland House, East Tawas, to change its bankruptcy status so that a trustee may be appointed "to preserve the assets of this estate."

The matter will be in U.S. District Bankruptcy Court before Judge Harvey D. Walker May 5.

It was in October that the "plan of Arrangement" was presented in bankruptcy court by Holland House attorneys establishing how Hartford International, doing business as The Holland House, would pay off debts for a Hartford reorganization.

Involved in that program was a consideration by Peoples State Bank that its $500,000 lien against Hartford, whose president is Dean Parrish, would be reduced to a secured amount of $325,000.

According to the plan of arrangement the Holland was to be immediately listed for sale with hopes that the restaurant-bar-apartment-commercial shop business could be sold within 15 months.

In asking that the bankruptcy action be converted from Chapter XI reorganizational proceedings to Chapter VII proceedings, the bill of complaint seeking the change charged that Hartford International failed to immediately list the Holland for sale; that the organization failed to file financial reports as required in the plan of arrangement; that monthly payment installments to some of the debtors as outlined in the plan had not been made; that Hartford had failed to keep accounts payable under $7,500 during the period that Hartford International has been operating the Holland under the plan of arrangements; and, among other items, said that Hartford has caused "unreasonable delays including failure to account through an accountant is prejudicial to creditors and especially to (Peoples State Bank) who agreed to allow debtor-in-possession to operate so long as an account reviewed the debtor's operations and prepared monthly financial reports."

As a result, Peoples State Bank asks that proceedings against Hartford be converted from Chapter XI to Chapter VII of the bankruptcy code, and that action be entered for the appointment of a trustee.

Prior to Hartford becoming involved with a plan of arrangement for debt payment, Peoples State commenced foreclosure proceedings against the Holland and in August, 1979, Isosco County Circuit Court appointed a receiver to take over the Holland's operation pending foreclosure.

On January 24, 1980, the Federal Court bankruptcy judge signed an order putting Hartford back into possession of the Holland with Dean Parrish as its chief operating officer. Parrish has been in charge of Holland operations since that time.

BY ROAD COMMISSION

Bid Accepted on Elevator, Esmond Roads in Hale

TAWAS — Katterman Trucking Company of Hale was chosen among 12 bidders for road construction work on Elevator and Esmond Roads this spring pending a satisfactory review of the bid by the R.S. Scott consulting firm, according to Road Commission Engineer and Manager Allen Buchanan.

Katterman was chosen as low bidder among the dozen companies requesting a contract for repaving, guttering, curbing and addition of storm sewers on 800 feet of roadway on Elevator and 500 feet on Esmond from M-65 east.

The Road Commission's estimate for the project totaled $110,000 explained Buchanan, with Katterman's $106,162 being the lowest bid followed closely by another bid at $106,491. The high bid for the project reached $201,000.

Construction will begin on the road improvement project some time in April, reported the commission manager.

The Road Commission also signed a contract with East Tawas and the State Highway Department on bridge construction over the Tawas River at Monument and Nunn Roads. Bids will be let on the project in April now that right-of-ways have been acquired by the Road Commission.

In addition, the Commission reached agreement with U.S. Gypsum for the division of cost for improvements on Benson Road from Turtle Road south. Gypsum and Alabaster township will both pay 30 per cent of road improvement costs with the Road Commission providing the remaining 40 per cent of the $34,679 cost.

The work will improve drainage and provide a gravel surface along 2,000 feet of roadway.

In other action, the Commission approved a cost-accounting report to the state itemizing use of state revenue provided through Act 51. The financial report is required each year as an accounting of revenue usage in the county.

The board also discussed the conversion of four to six trucks to diesel fuel at a cost of $20,000 per truck. Purchase of a new truck would cost the Road Commission $50,000. However, no action was taken on the proposal pending the return of Commissioner Ralph White who has been in Florida.

The board heard a report from Buchanan on the status of the Arenac Gravel pit on Twining Road where the Commission has acquired rights to mine gravel for use on county roads. However, the pit must be drained of between six and 12 feet of water prior to mining.

The Commission has ditched the area prior to draining the pit but is awaiting a discharge permit from the Dept. of Natural Resources before the water can be moved into a county drain which will then empty into Lake Huron. The Road Commission hopes to mine 30,000 tons of the higher grade gravel for this year's use.

In other action the board received a petition from 38 residents of Burleigh township concerning the black topping of the remaining one and one-half miles of Keystone Road west of M-65. However, Buchanan noted that the project, estimated to cost the Commission $150,000 and the township $15,000, has been on the board's agenda for three years. The high cost combined with budget problems means the project will not receive high priority, reported the engineer-manager.

The board also took no action on the offer of the railroad right of way in Whittemore. Buchanan said the property was not adjacent to commission land and "sounds like something we are not interested in." Next meeting of the commission will be April 13.
