

City Clerk Resigned from Office; Served Since 1976

CITY CLERK Rachel Sue McCready resigned Monday.

Rachel Sue McCready, who has served as the appointive Tawas City clerk for nearly five years, submitted her resignation Monday to City Mgr. Lowell Thomas. The resignation took immediate effect and was accepted Monday night by the city council.

Originally appointed to the office April 5, 1976, by former city manager, Reginald Bubblitz, she had also served as secretary to the former city manager and for Thomas.

When Bubblitz resigned October 16, 1978, as the city's chief administrative officer, the council appointed Mrs. McCready as the acting city manager and she served in both that position and as city clerk until Thomas' appointment in March 1979.

Under rules of the city charter, the city clerk is appointed by the city manager, subject to confirmation by the council.

A graduate of Michigan State University with a bachelor degree, she holds a master degree from the University of Michigan, both in the field of elementary education.

Besides her active participation in city affairs for the past five years, she has continued her work as a housewife and mother of four children. Her husband is Probate Judge William McCready.

Damaged Heating System Repaired

Freeze Closes Tawas School

Frozen water lines, balky engines on automobiles and other problems associated with extremely cold weather have resulted from record low temperatures during the New Year.

But the home heating problems of this frigid region were insignificant compared to the massive freeze up at Tawas Area High School, which caused cancellation of scheduled classes on Monday.

Students were to report to school Monday morning for resumption of classes after a two-week holiday, but water lines in the high school's heating system burst sometime Saturday night during the cold snap which saw the thermometer dropping to 20 degrees below zero.

Supt. Allan Dighera said Monday morning that the building had been inspected Saturday afternoon by custodians and the heating system was operating properly. When Floyd Janowiak inspected the building Sunday morning, he found that the water lines had frozen and burst, with water cascading on floors of the building.

Crews of three local plumbing firms, along with an electrician, Janowiak and members of the custodial staff, worked all day Sunday and were still at the job early Monday morning replacing the damaged lines.

Repairs were completed by 10:00 a. m., followed by testing of the lines. A massive cleanup of rooms was then started by the custodial staff.

Junior high school and elementary students returned to classes Tuesday. Repairs were completed Tuesday at the high school and grades nine through 12 were to report for classes Wednesday.

The school superintendent said that an attempt was being made to determine the cause of the freeze up. Unit ventilators in each room were in the process of being recalibrated by Johnson Controls and it is felt that cold air drawn from the outside through improper controls may have caused the lines to freeze.

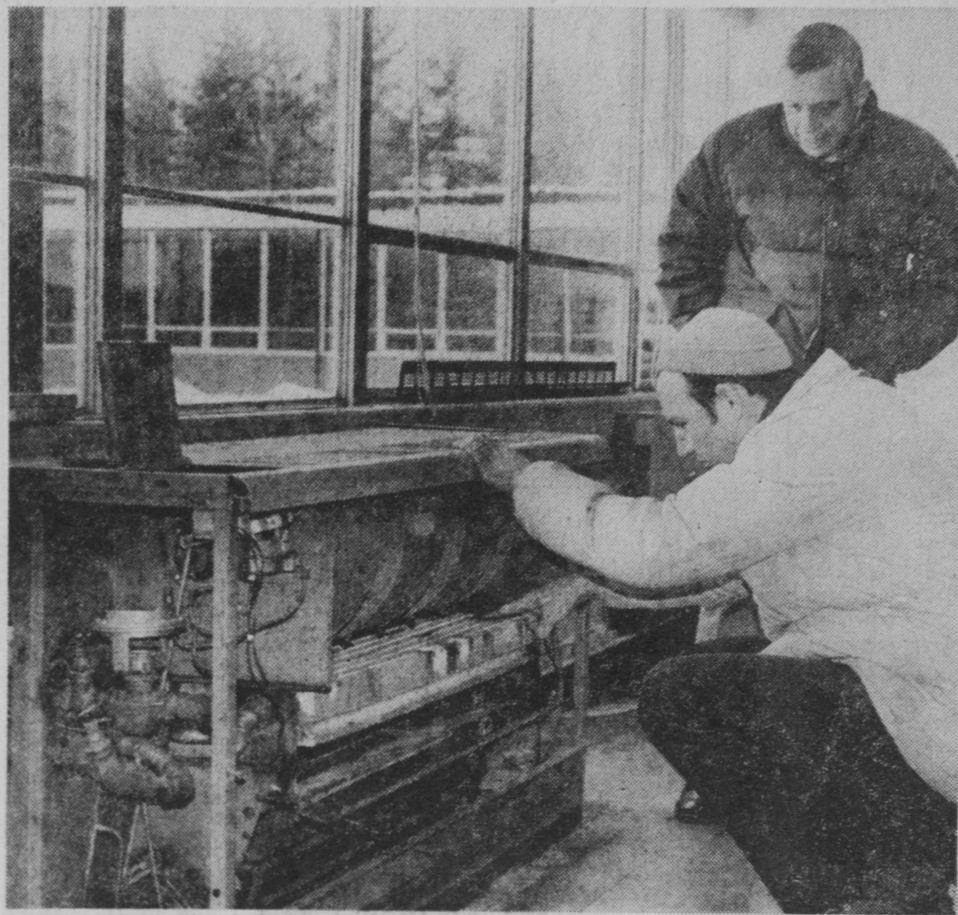

As a temporary measure, ventilators on exterior walls were covered with hay and snow.

No estimate of the cost of repairing the damage could be given by the superintendent, but it is expected that it will run into several thousands of dollars.

Meanwhile, a Tawas City Department of Public Works crew was using an air hammer to break through a section of Harris Avenue at Second Street near the Tawas City Elementary Unit to repair a frozen water line under the roadway.

Merlin (Red) Look, city superintendent, said this was the fourth water main to freeze here this winter.

The cast iron main under Harris Avenue has been a particular problem spot for freezing in past years, although this is the first time during the current winter that repairs have been made to the line.

East Tawas Council OK's Sharing New Bridge Cost

East Tawas Council Monday night approved city participation in financing a new two-lane bridge across the Tawas River at the intersection of Bridge Street with Nunn and Monument Roads.

The $325,000 project is to be financed under a joint program using 90 percent of critical bridge funding provided by the federal government, plus 10 percent split by the city and the county road commission.

East Tawas' cost of the project would be $20,000 and an identical amount would be paid by the road commission.

A spokesman for the county road commission said Tuesday that the project had been approved by the state for participation in the critical bridge program. Funds have presently been frozen by the federal government, but are expected to be released in the spring.

The new concrete bridge would be 90 feet in length and 28 feet wide with walkways for pedestrians. The skew of the bridge would be changed slightly to permit traffic to enter directly onto Nunn Road, which connects with M-55. A stop sign would be located on Monument Road.

The present bridge, more than 60 years old, is sound structurally but is narrow and dangerous.

Because of the danger to pedestrians, fishing is not permitted on the bridge under city ordinance.

In other matters handled Monday night, the city is to attempt to locate survey stakes on a parcel of property at Tawas Lake. During construction of the Tawas Lake sewer project, stakes establishing property lines of a lot owned by Lowell Aspin were covered by contractors.

Richard Confer volunteered his services as a member of the Tawas Lake Board, which is considering means to slow the aging process of the lake. His appointment was taken under advisement by the council.

The annual audit indicated the city ended its year with a general fund balance of $200,000.

The council authorized the city clerk to make application for state matching funds for the Newman Street water-front project. The $50,000 program includes widening sidewalks, installation of lights and benches at the foot of the street between US-23 and the Waterways Commission Dock.

Tawas City Council Adopts Written Employment Policy

Adoption of a personnel policy and rules for city employees required considerable debate by the Tawas City Council Monday night, but the finalized document was adopted after a number of amendments.

A comprehensive policy has been in the works for several months by City Mgr. Lowell Thomas. A vacation and holiday schedule for employees was adopted at the last meeting.

Thomas said the new comprehensive written policy was a first for the city and would be beneficial to employees as well as to the administration and council. In the past, council policies concerning employees were recorded in minutes of meetings, requiring research when any question arose.

In the past, the city had separate vacation policies for hourly and salaried employees, but the new written policy establishes one schedule. An employee with 20 years of employment would receive a net gain of eight more days of vacation than under the present schedule.

Under the old policy, an employee could not accumulate vacation days from one year to the next and either used those days during the year earned or the days were "lost." Under the new policy, the employee can carry over five days and be paid for five days of vacation not taken.

The paid holiday schedule has been increased from seven to 8½ days a year, adding the day after Thanksgiving and Christmas Eve.

The council continued the policy of giving employees 12 sick days a year if needed and an employee can accumulate up to 45 days. Once 45 days are accumulated, $10 is paid annually for each sick day accumulated over 45 days.

There had been no written policy concerning payment of sick days upon retirement and the new policy adopted by the council is to pay one-half of the accumulated sick days.

During discussion on several amendments to the sick leave policy, Merlin (Red) Look, city superintendent, expressed the opinion that the council was taking benefits away from two (See POLICY, page 2.)

Building Authority is Financing Agent

Because of a conflict with state law over the length of time permissible for municipal bond issues, Tawas City Council authorized utilization of the city building authority to handle construction of the new fire hall.

It had been assumed locally that a 40-year period for retirement of bonds to finance the construction, under the long-term, low-interest money to be provided by Farmers Home Administration, was permissible.

City Mgr. Lowell Thomas said, however, that this was in error as only 30 years are permitted to retire the bonds. The 40-year period was utilized in wording of the ballot approved by voters in November.

As an alternative, Thomas suggested utilizing the city's building authority established two years ago by the council. The building authority would have had charge of financing the city hall complex which was rejected twice by voters.

Thomas said there were advantages and disadvantages in going the building authority route. From a public relations standpoint, he felt it might be wise to utilize the building authority.

Members of the authority whose terms have not expired include Leonard Hosbach and Benjamin Brewer. The term of Carl Babcock has expired and an appointment would be required.

The city manager said that additional expense of handling the project through the building authority would be minor. A lease-purchase arrangement would have to be decided upon. He also pointed out that handling the financing in this manner would not change the city's debt limitation. Present small bond issues for sewer and water do not count against the city's debt limitation and the city has the capability of borrowing up to $1,500,000.

Members of the council felt that the project should not be financed under a 30-year period as the debt would be paid off with deflated dollars. However, paying off the project in 40 years rather than 30 years results in added interest of $60,000.

Coun. Hugo Keiser expressed the opinion that the lower yearly payment under the 40-year plan—about $1,200 less annually than if paid off in 30 years—could be utilized to make renovation to the present city hall.

Thomas said that the $175,000 being offered by FmHA for this project was the only money available through that source. Under the original city hall complex proposals, FmHA had offered to finance up to 1½-million dollars, but the remainder of that money is no longer available.

In other matters, the council adopted a resolution to include an information center in the Gateway Park project. Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission has increased its proposal grant from $42,000 to $80,000 to help finance both the park and an information center. The city is to contact Tawas Chamber of Commerce to determine if it would be interested in locating its office in the new building.

The city manager said he had made preliminary contact with Tawas Area School officials concerning construction of the building by vocational education students enrolled in building trades. He estimated that the city's cost of constructing the building would range from $20,000 to $30,000.

Commission Resolution Controls Iosco Spending

Closing the books on 1980, Iosco County Board of Commissioners last week adopted a resolution aimed at controlling spending along the lines of the new budget for 1981.

The resolution provides that no new employees are to be hired or promoted unless advance approval is given by the board of commissioners.

In addition, the resolution states that no expenses exceeding a line item by five percent or $200 are to be incurred nor committed by any department. Lump sum appropriations are limited to a payment rate of 25 percent per quarter. Capital expenditures exceeding $100 are not permitted unless advance authorization has been given by the commission's finance committee.

In other matters, the commission established salaries of appointive officers.

Salary of the equalization director was set at $20,750, the undersheriff is to receive $18,500, the head of the building and safety inspection department is to receive $15,200, the electrical inspector is to be paid a salary of $14,100 and the plumbing inspector's salary was set at $11,750. Salary of the veterans' counselor was set at $2,600.

City Retains Laboratory to Analyze Sewage Sludge

Under orders of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Tawas City Council Monday night authorized hiring a Pontiac laboratory to conduct an analysis of sludge at the municipal wastewater treatment plant.

A letter from the DNR gave the city until January 5 to retain a laboratory and the analysis is to be completed by February 15 and submitted to Lansing.

The Pontiac firm is to analyze the sludge to determine the concentration of heavy metals entering the wastewater treatment system.

The state said this was necessary as disposal of sludge on land could lead to a leaching migration of heavy metals into the ground water. In addition, the system's discharge enters Tawas River and Tawas Bay.

At present, Tawas Plating Company is in the process of planning a pretreatment facility on its own property to handle discharge from its operation before it enters the municipal disposal system.

In the meantime, the state said that the city should study alternatives to disposal of sludge. A temporary solution, said the state, would be to construct an acceptable site for the stockpiling of sludge, which would eventually require transportation to a facility with incineration capabilities, or to make a disposal in an approved sanitary landfill.

The city retained Clow Corporation, Hydro Research Lab of Pontiac, to conduct the analysis. Cost to the city would be $270 per test.

Ski Trails Publicized by ACM Motor News

Cross-country ski trails in the Huron National Forest north-west of the Tawas received excellent publicity in the January issue of Motor News, published by Automobile Club of Michigan.

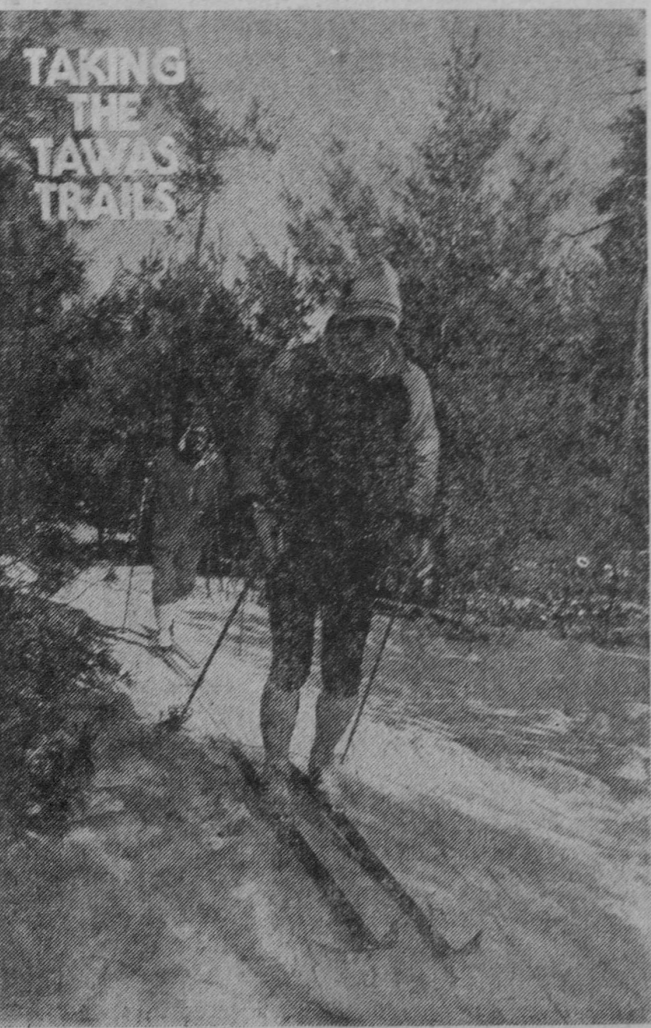

The feature article, illustrated with a full color photograph, was written by James Karshner, contributing editor of Motor News.

With Gary Nelkie, owner of Nordic Ski Shop at East Tawas as his guide, the author traveled over ski trails to Lumbermen's Monument, the high banks along the AuSable River to Cooke Dam, then back to Corsair Park and Silver Creek.

In recent years, cross-country skiing has become a popular winter sport in Michigan and no better scenic trails are to be found than right here in Iosco County.

Public Pays Tow Bills for Ships Stuck in Ice

Winter weather has closed the Great Lakes to shipping, yet several ships were bottled up in the St. Clair River last week jamming the passage between Lake St. Clair and Lake Huron.

Even the tugboats sent out to help the stranded ships got bottled up in a field of ice and the channel still may not be open by the time this column is printed.

Footed the bill for towing these ships out of the predicament will be the taxpayer—United States Coast Guard icebreakers were sent to the rescue. This corner believes the shipping interests should receive the bill for the tow—just as the citizen or the trucker would have to pay for wrecker service when vehicles get stranded on highways during a storm.

A move to keep Great Lakes channels open to shipping during winter months at public expense was turned down two years ago by the United States Congress; yet the public will be bearing the cost of sending helicopters and icebreakers to the rescue.

Shippers say that the lakes are freezing earlier than usual, but that statement is based entirely on last year's "open winter" when the Great Lakes remained clear due to the mild weather.

The fact of the matter is that the shippers pushed their luck with late-December runs, hoping for a repeat of last winter's late and light freeze. In so doing, the shippers endangered the lives of sailors, as well as the men of the coast guard.

There are alternate methods of shipping to be used during the winter months—namely, railroads—and the federal government is spending millions of dollars in an effort to keep the rail lines running. Now is the time to make use of that transportation avenue.

Freeze Meals for Spare Time

With the holiday rush over and life slowing to a dull roar, now is the time to freeze meals ahead to have some spare time for things you have wanted to get done all fall!

Combine the good things growing in Michigan and a good cookbook and many meals will be right at your finger tips. An easy basic ingredient to start with is Michigan beef.

Michigan's farmers marketed about 474-million pounds of beef last year, worth 284-million dollars, according to the department of agriculture. Major producing counties are Jackson, Kent, Huron, Calhoun and Sanilac.

Many excellent recipes are available for preparing beef stroganoff, meatballs and Swiss steak. Stored in the freezer, these are easy meals to pop in the oven and serve with noodles, hot rolls and creamy Michigan butter. Frozen casseroles, such as Hungarian goulash and lasagna, or soups, chili and beef stew, are heated in minutes on cold wintery nights.

Freezing meals also has added incentives besides saving time each night: When making one batch, it is as easy to make two or three; when supplies are plentiful and there are bargains at the grocery, each meal costs less; and, of course, some recipes make larger amounts so it is practical to stock the freezer.

When freezing foods, cool as quickly as possible, wrap in a protective, moisture-proof container allowing one-half inch head space for expansion and freeze immediately. Remember to cut back on seasonings as they tend to get stronger.

Frozen cooked foods should be used within a short period of time and, once thawed, should never be refrozen.

Iosco Lists Building Applications

A manufacturing building permit to James Zuehlke in AuSable Township for $60,000, a permit to E. George Buchinger for a $10,000 residence in Oscoda Township, a permit to Kevin Provoost in Reno Township for a mobile home with construction fees of $7,550 and a permit to erect a sign by Stanley Jewelers at Oscoda for $50 were the only permit transactions during December by Iosco County Department of Building and Safety Inspection.

With interest rates and unemployment high, along with winter weather setting record cold temperatures, the outlook is very bleak for the building trade.

MC Facility Shows Better Finances

An improved financial picture at the Iosco County Medical Care Facility was noted last week as books were closed on the facility's 14th year of operation.

Dale Landon, who became the facility's new administrator in May, was quick to point out that the financial picture improved shortly before he took over the position.

The state finally caught up with its Medicaid payments to the county after a one month lag caused considerable problems with the facility's cash flow. The county board of Commissioners also made a $50,000 allocation to aid financing.

"The facility's cash flow is in excellent shape today and the occupancy rate for our 64 beds has been higher than projected in the budget," said Landon. The administrator also took note of the fact that the state had increased its rate of pay for Medicaid patients, although it was still $6 or $8 less than the actual per patient cost. The difference between the payments made by the state and actual cost of operation has proven to be a serious financial burden in recent years because of the state and federally-mandated services required.

Landon said that the state is expected to increase its Medicaid payments in April or May.

Financing of the medical care facility operation was also improved in November when voters approved levying up to one-half mill of taxes for five years. The levy will bring in $136,000 annually and Landon is confident that, with increased Medicaid payments and improved cash flow, the full amount will not have to be levied in the future.

The tax approved by voters replaces the levy authorized 15 years ago to finance the county's share of building the facility.

employees who had been hired under the old policy. The council felt, however, that a number of provisions had been adopted benefiting employees.

Other changes saw adoption of a new policy permitting an employee to use two sick days a year for personal matters. Up to three days of emergency leave would be granted in the event of a death in the immediate family.

Unanimous approval was given to a change in providing hospitalization insurance. Rather than providing full family Blue Cross insurance from the first day of employment, the employee has the option to pay the premium for the first 90 days. After 90 days, the city pays 50 percent of the premium and after six months the city pays 100 percent of the cost. The six months coincides with the city's mandatory probationary period for employees.

A number of other aspects in the policy included establishment of rules of conduct for employees, counseling and methods of dismissal.

SKING Facts & Fancies

THEN AND NOW

Legendary John Thompson, the Norwegian immigrant who skied over the Sierras for 17 winters carrying mail between Nevada and California, was nicknamed "Shoeshoe" Thompson by gold-rush miners who had never seen skis before. From these beginnings, cross-country skiing has emerged as a recreational and competitive sport in North America.

The earliest skis were probably made from smoothed-down bones of large animals. Today the most durable skis are constructed of fiberglass.

It all began in Scandinavia, where skiing today is carried on just as it is said to have originated some 4,000 years ago. Introduced into Central Europe at the close of the 16th century, it began as an organized sport in Norway in the last half of the 19th century and is now Norway's national sport.

This emphasis on skiing has helped to develop champions like Oddvar Braa, who won the 1979 Nordic World Cup with Norwegian equipment and is expected to win a gold medal at the 1980 Winter Olympics. Many competitors there will be outfitted completely with lightweight Norwegian ski equipment and clothes, the Norwegian Ski Council points out.

Skiing has been popular in the U.S. since the 1932 Winter Olympics at Lake Placid, N.Y. It was in the mid-1960s, however, that America rediscovered the "Norwegian secret" of a more relaxed time-cross-country skiing—and by the mid-1970s, it had become a major winter sport here, too.

WORD FROM WASHINGTON

DEMAND FOR HOUSING TO RISE SHARPLY

American home builders can look forward to brisk business throughout the 1980s since current figures indicate an unprecedented demand for new housing units, according to the Federal Government's top spokesman for housing, Jay Janis, Chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

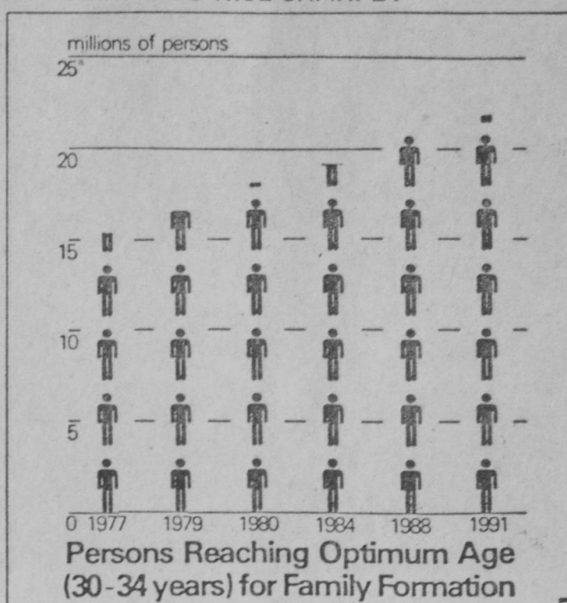

A record number of persons will reach the age of family formation during the decade, he says. At the same time increased lifespans, nontraditional living arrangements and a rising divorce rate will combine to push the housing need past the 22 million mark by 1990.

Among the nontraditional living arrangements is the single-person household. These and homes occupied by persons unrelated to each other are expected to reach 97 million by 1990.

The design and construction of today's typical house has been profoundly affected by the middle class. The great migration from farms to cities earlier in the century, the specialization of labor, advances in transportation and communications, and general population mobility brought about the design change.

Only a few very large houses are being built, while the number of very small, old and crowded dwellings has also declined. Now that central heating, air conditioning and labor-saving appliances are widely available, large enclosures as a means of achieving shelter and protection have become obsolete.

By far the most common design for the single-family house in the U.S. is the wooden-frame structure. Such frames are finished with a single layer of brick (as in brick veneer), with shingles or with clapboard. Although houses with masonry walls of hollow cement blocks were built extensively during World War II, stone or brick masonry is now used—especially for larger houses.

This group is increasing rapidly. During the next decade, a predicted 43 million people will reach age 30, contrasted with 32 million who attained that age in the 70s.

Americans who were once part of the "baby boom" of the 40s and 50s are reaching the optimum age for family formation, says Janis. He notes that 43 million will reach the age of 30 during the 1980s, compared with 32 million in the 1970s.

Janis, who was Undersecretary of the Dept. of Housing and Urban Development before being named Federal Home Loan Bank Board Chairman, also points to Census Bureau figures that indicate by 1990 there will be 97 million households in the U.S., compared with 67.5 million in 1970. Half the marriages in the U.S. are ending in divorce, increasing the demand for housing units. Housing needs are also increasing due to the longevity of senior citizens.

Since 1930, Janis notes, the life expectancy of American women has increased about 25 percent, and that of American men by about 19 percent. Between 1970 and 1979, the number of persons over 65 grew from 20 to 25 million, or about 25 percent.

50th Anniversary In Full Swing

This year is proving to be a special time for more than two million young boys in the U.S. The Cub Scouts of America are in full swing with a wide range of activities saluting the 50th anniversary of their organization.

You may have noticed the unique Cub Scout exhibits in stores, museums, schools, and public buildings. Perhaps you spotted the blue and gold uniforms in the football parades or in the block vegetable gardens. It's all part of the Cub Scouts' golden anniversary celebration.

The Cub Scouts are everywhere. And in the next few months, the group will be busy promoting National Family Week, Scouting Energy Day, and "Scout Family" Togetherness programs. Some Cub Scouts will even spend a special day with the mayor and city council.

"Cub Scouting is truly unique," notes Mrs. Ann W. Nally, Anniversary Committee chairman. "It has not severed its ties with its past, but it has continually evolved to keep up with the ever-changing needs of America's boys and their families."

Mrs. Nally notes that more boys are joining the Cub Scouts during this Anniversary year than ever before. "All boys of Cub Scout age are welcome to join. Cub Scouting enables young boys to develop attitudes of good citizenship and strong leadership skills."

Kabobs With A Flair

Looking for something different to barbecue instead of hamburgers and frankfurters? "Heroic Kabobs" are the answer! The delicious combination of Italian sausage, green peppers and mushrooms is skewered for easy grilling. The secret to this tasty recipe is the simple sauce used to baste the kabobs. An envelope of fresh Italian spaghetti sauce mix adds the perfect blend of Italian herbs and spices and eliminates any guesswork about seasoning. Served on crisp rolls, with a fresh green salad and refreshing iced tea, you will surely be considered the "hero" of the day!

HEROIC KABOBS

- 1 envelope Spatini® Spaghetti Sauce Mix
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- 3/4 cup water
- 1/4 cup dry red wine
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 pounds Italian sausage, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1/2 pound mushrooms
- 2 green peppers, cut into chunks
- Hero rolls, split

In medium saucepan, combine fresh Italian spaghetti sauce mix, tomato sauce, water, wine and onion. Simmer, stirring occasionally, 15 minutes.

On skewers, alternately thread sausage, mushroom and green pepper; grill or broil, turning and basting frequently with sauce, until done. Serve on rolls; top with remaining heated sauce. Makes about 8 servings.

In 1980

Fatal Plane Crash, Capture of Fugitive, Fire—Headlined

Tragedies—the loss of four lives in an airplane crash and loss of a natural resource, private property and one life during a forest fire—were the blackest headlines of 1980 found in a review of the Tawas Herald front pages for the past 12 months.

The above two stories gained attention of national media and a third story—arrest of a federal fugitive at Oscoda—gained state-wide attention and, because of subsequent incidents, will continue in the news during 1981.

Most of the headline ink, however, was shared by a variety of governmental topics—from a shore line study, river mouth development to elections and budget cuts forced by the slowing down of the national economy.

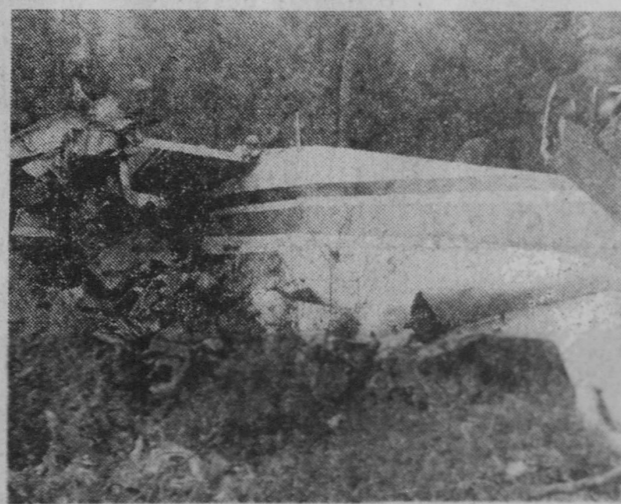

Other topics which gained headline ink on "inside pages," but important, nevertheless, ranged from a local woman's appointment as director of Asian operations for the Michigan Department of Commerce to the retirement of a circuit judge, appointment of a new circuit judge and district judge to such items as a citizen protest of a hypnotic show to be held at the local school.

All of the stories became a part of the county's history—to be remembered or forgotten, depending on importance—immediately upon publication.

There were reports on happenings which will have an effect on the future and will continue to create news—from dedication of additions at Tawas Hospital, extension of the runway at the county airport to the start of construction of new bridges and planning a new fire hall in Tawas City.

The worst tragedy in Iosco aviation history was recorded in the September 3 issue. Only one person survived the crash of a light plane near Iosco County Airport carrying a party of five persons headed for a fishing trip to Oscoda.

The banner headline on May

FOUR LIVES WERE LOST when this light plane crashed near the Iosco County Airport.—Tawas Herald Photo.

7—Biologist dies in blaze; Fire roars through national forest—fold of the destruction of 25,000 acres of federal and state forest land in neighboring Ogemaw and Oscoda Counties, coupled with a 300-acre fire the same day near Little Island Lake in this county. A number of other headlines followed the big fire story, namely that the federal government agreed to pay claims for property damage caused by the fire as it had been touched off intentionally to improve the nesting habitat of the Kirtland warbler.

Grant Goddard Jr., who gained notoriety here some years earlier for robbing the Whittemore branch of Farmers and Merchants State Bank, was back in the news in early October for eluding police and subsequent capture on a federal warrant. He later implicated his son in the slaying of a Glennie man, along with numerous burglaries and police are still trying to tie him in with the mysterious disappearance of an Oscoda woman in August.

Some of the other headlines were as follows:
 January 2: East Tawas and Tawas City reached agreement on a secondary sewage treatment facility application; January 9: Beckett, Raeder, Rankin retained by Tawas City to develop a shore line study; January 16: Tawas Area Board of Education requests citizens to become involved in school affairs by answering a questionnaire concerning future direction of the school district;

February 6: All residents of the county are urged to answer the federal census; Tawas City Council studies compromise site for new fire hall-library (the library portion was dropped later); February 12: Iosco Equalization Department works overtime to complete reappraisal of property for assessment purposes; February 20: Tawas City Council accepts federal-state cost sharing for two new bridges;

March 5: Nancy Hennigar, formerly of East Tawas, appointed director of Asian operations for Michigan Department of Commerce; March 11: Iosco County Board of Commissioners approves runway expansion at the county airport; Consumers Power Company agrees to make the largest package sale in the history of Michigan riverlands to the United States Forest Service;

April 2: Oscoda Area School voters renewed 10.3-mill tax levy for operation, but rejected two other proposals; April 20: Citizens Against the AuGres Drain held first organizational meeting;

May 14: Tawas Hospital broke ground for new medical arts building; Manley Bennett Company purchased 1,650-million-dollar bond issue to finance construction of new Bay Park Tower high-rise apartment building for the elderly at East Tawas;

June 11: Tawas Area School and Hale Area School voters approved school millage renewal requests; hearings were held by the state boundary commission on annexation proposals submitted by Tawas City;

July 16: Judge Allan C. Miller announced his retirement in September after nearly 20 years of service on the circuit court bench (J. Richard Ernst was later appointed circuit judge and Robert Hummel was appointed district judge);

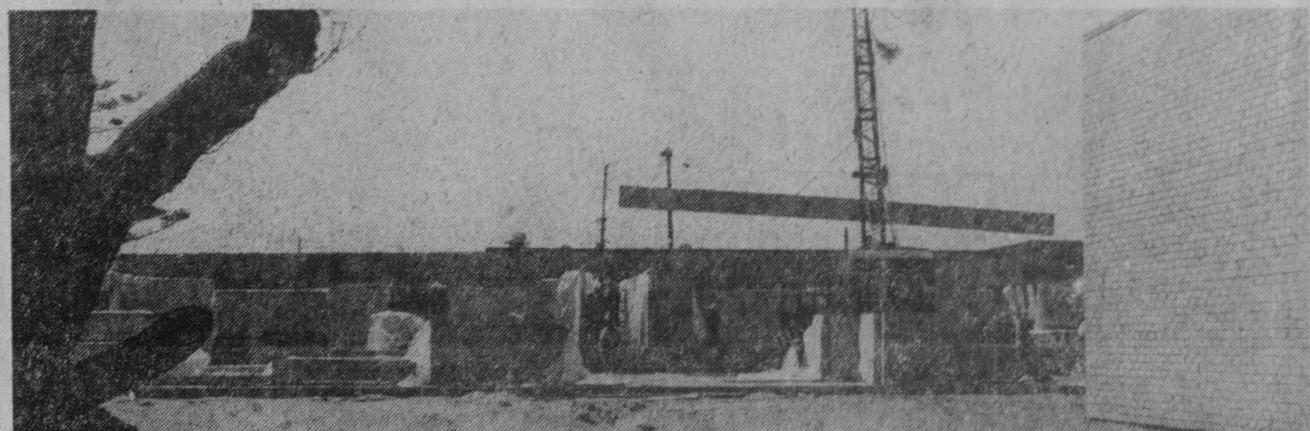

August 27: Tawas Hospital dedicates its new additions and equipment;

September 3: A recount of votes in the Fifth District found John Webb, incumbent commissioner, and Alfred Baker in a tie and Webb won in the luck of the draw; September 10: Lumbermen's Monument closed for major renovation project; September 24: Citizens protest scheduled show by hypnotist at Tawas Area School;

October 1: State arbitrator makes award in the county's contract with the sheriff's department personnel;

November 12: Oscoda Area School teachers returned to classroom after strike; November 26: United States Army Corps of Engineers approved Tawas City's application for permit on river mouth development;

December 10: Tawas Area School faces $141,596 budget cut due to slashes in categorical aid received from the state.

A new medical arts building was completed at Tawas Hospital.

The late Albert Mallon of Tawas City, a long-time employee of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway, was extremely interested in the history of his native community. Thirty years ago, he encouraged the present editor of this newspaper to start a collection of early day photographs of the area in order to be prepared for the community's centennial observance, which was to take place in 1954.

Mallon took an active part in the project by searching through attics for old pictures, which were copied and placed on file. One of his "finds" was a 12-part series of booklets entitled "Art Work of Lake Huron Shore," which contained many fine photographic reproductions of scenes, homes and buildings from Bay City to Alpena in 1894.

Pictorial reproduction through printing was limited until the last years of the nineteenth century to wood engraving, etching or engraving on copper and steel and lithography. All three of these processes were developed to a high degree and many fine specimens of work in these processes survive today as art.

With the development of photoengraving, the results of the photographer's skill could be transferred to paper without the intermediary artist. In the 1890s, the gravure process, which made it possible to reproduce photographs with a minimum loss of detail, was introduced. Publishers took advantage of this development to market elaborate regional scenic publications, including "Art Work of Lake Huron Shore."

Following the death of Mallon's wife in 1980, the series of publications was rediscovered by family members and sold to a private individual for donation to the collection of the Iosco County Historical Society Museum at East Tawas. This will be an important contribution as the 12-part series contains many interesting views of the Iosco area.

Of particular interest are the many fine views of public buildings, which demonstrate the craftsmanship of local carpenters who worked with white pine lumber. Among the views are the Iosco County Courthouse, the East Tawas City Hall, Tawas City High School, the lifesaving station at Tawas Point, plus views of the mansions of lumber barons at AuSable and Oscoda.

Also included are views of sawmills at East Tawas and Alpena, along with log jams on the AuSable and Thunder Bay Rivers.

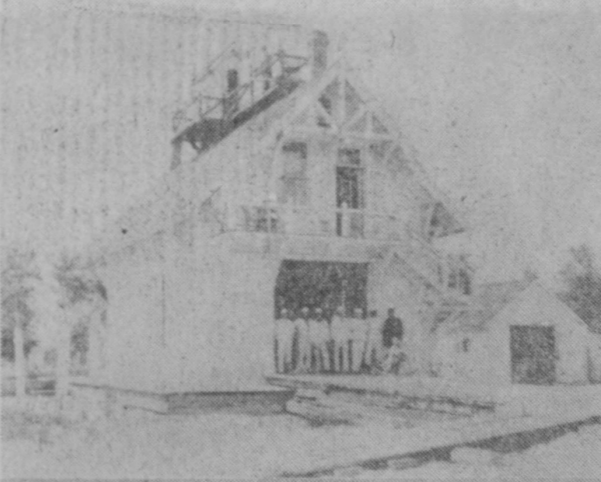

It is believed that the recently rediscovered art work is the only series surviving in the local area, although a complete set is contained in the collection of Clarke Historical Library at Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

ONE OF THE TOP STORIES of 1980 saw Consumers Power Company selling valuable acreage along the AuSable and Manistee Rivers to the United States Forest Service. It was the largest package sale in the history of state riverlands and the announcement in March was followed later in the year by the sale of another large block of riverlands to the State of Michigan.

Peaches 'N Cream Pudding Cake
Just try to say "peaches and cream" without your mouth watering! Satisfy that craving with this quick and easy dessert that combines those two compatible foods in a moist pudding and cake combination.
Peaches and canned pudding create a saucy base topped with cake. For an even creamier version of this dessert, cream cheese can be blended with the canned pudding.

1 can (17 1/2 oz.) Thank You Brand Vanilla Pudding
1 can (16 oz.) peach slices

Health Warning: Beware Of Sunlamps

It's the time of year when many are eager to get a head start on that summer tan—under sunlamps, at home or in those fashionable new "tanning huts" around the country.

Serious damage to your eyes can result from even relatively short exposure to sunlamps without adequate protection, according to the American Association of Ophthalmology (AAO)—medical eye physicians.

"Your eyes are quite vulnerable to the concentrated ultraviolet radiation from sunlamps," says Leonard Flom, M.D., an ophthalmologist. "Looking directly at a sunlamp, even for a few seconds, can result in a painful condition known as photokeratitis. Usually temporary, this causes the eye to burn and feel sandy or gritty under the lids. Medical treatment is required.

A longer direct exposure can actually scar the cornea of the eye and could permanently impair vision.

Burned eyes are a serious problem that is avoidable through simple precautions. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently reported more than 8,000 persons were treated in hospital emergency rooms alone in 1979 from sunlamp related injuries—most of them skin burns and eye irritations. FDA has established a new safety requirement for sunlamps—in homes or in tanning huts, health clubs and spas—which mandates protective goggles, among other provisions.

It's a bright idea to properly protect your eyes from sunlamp rays.

"Only these goggles can properly shield the eyes from severe burns, even vision damage," says Dr. Flom. "Sunglasses can not handle such concentrated ultraviolet radiation and, certainly, cotton balls will not do the job.

"Be sure cosmetics are removed before the next session under the sunlamp. Some contain oil which can cause special sensitivity to the radiation.

"Some medications also can increase such sensitivity, so don't hesitate to check with your physician before using a sunlamp if you are taking medication or believe you are particularly sensitive to ultraviolet."

Most experts consider one minute in a tanning hut equal to upwards of an hour in outside sunlight. So use a sunlamp which comes with clear instructions recommending distance and exposure times.

Use sunglasses when tanning outdoors. Here they are effective, particularly to protect that sensitive skin on eyelids and around the eyes.

Be sure your furniture is as safe as possible. The furniture industry has voluntarily spent many years and hundreds of thousands of dollars researching for ways to construct upholstered furniture that would be more resistant to cigarette ignition. Look for a UFAC (Upholstered Furniture Action Council) hang tag when you buy upholstered furniture. It means that the furniture is built to be more resistant to smoldering cigarettes and safer (not absolutely safe) than untagged furniture.

Be careful with matches and cigarettes. Be sure to put them out in non-combustible ash trays, keep matches in metal containers away from heat and children and warn everyone in the family against smoking in bed, or when drinking or drowsy.

Keep an eye on your electric appliances. Avoid running electric cords under rugs or over nails and hooks, keep lamps and appliance cords in good condition and limit the number of lights and appliances on each circuit. Use only 15-ampere fuses on lighting circuits.

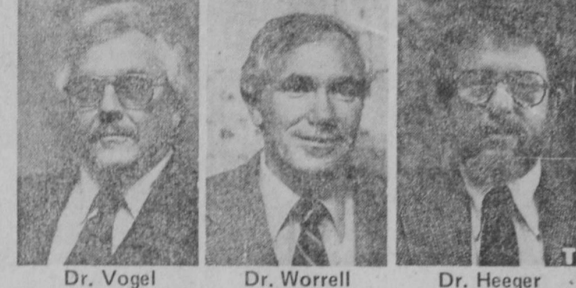

Keep your basement, storerooms and attic free from rubbish, oil rags and old papers and keep any smoldering ashes in hole-free metal containers.

Keep these hints in mind and you may be able to keep those home fires from burning at your house.

NEWS Of Education

Teachers Develop Materials That May Change Our Lives

Dr. Vogel Dr. Worrell Dr. Heeger

Synthetic metals—materials which have some properties of metals but don't occur in nature—are being created that may hold down electricity costs, make electric cars more practical (hence gasoline shortages less likely) and bring down the cost of converting sunshine into electricity.

At the University of Pennsylvania, which has one of the world's leading engineering and science faculties, professors are studying three uses for synthetic metals that may change our lives.

Lower-cost electricity. Dr. F. Lincoln Vogel, professor of electrical engineering and science at Penn, has created compounds of graphite that conduct electricity several times as well as copper can be created.

Electric cars. Dr. Wayne Worrell, professor of materials science at Penn, is working on high energy density battery materials which may make the electric car possible by 1990. The materials are disulfide sandwiches—two atoms of sulfur with a metal atom in between. Using the new materials, batteries can be constructed with 33% to 100% more energy per pound than most lead-acid batteries deliver today.

Solar electricity. Sunlight can be converted directly into electricity, but the solar cells that do this cost hundreds of dollars per square yard. That cost may change. Dr. Alan Heeger, professor of physics at Penn, and A.G. MacDiarmid, a professor of chemistry there, have formed new plastic materials that conduct electricity well along only one direction and may find many uses, including solar conversion.

"Large sheets" of these materials, Penn's news bureau announced, "could be produced inexpensively."

Dr. Vogel, Worrell and Heeger have teamed up to edit a new scholarly journal, "Synthetic Metals," to publish the increasing amount of data about these materials that may change our lives and the lives of our children.

Dairying is Important to State Agricultural Economy

Dairying is one of the most important segments of Michigan's agricultural economy, but consumers of dairy products do not always understand how milk is marketed. Clarifying this sometimes complicated process is the aim of a special milk marketing seminar to be held in this area Wednesday, February 4, 9:30 a. m.-3:00 p. m. The session will be at For-ward's Logmark Restaurant, West Branch, and is intended for farm women as well as non-farm women. Sponsored by the Michigan State University Department of Dairy Science and the MSU Cooperative Extension Service, the morning segment of the program features discussion on how milk is currently marketed and the relationship of the consumer to dairy industry. Speakers for this segment of the program are Glynn McBride, MSU Extension agricultural economist, and Necia Sharkey and Bonnie Lynch of the Michigan Division, American Dairy Association.

The afternoon program has concurrent sessions on new and traditional dairy products and farm management. The segment on dairy products will be conducted by Mary Zehner, MSU Extension consumer marketing specialist, and Gale Baumgardner, MSU dairy specialist. The session on farm management, which will explain how to develop and understand a balance sheet and cash flow to determine a dairy operation's net worth, will be conducted by Sherrill Nott, MSU Extension agricultural economist and MSU Agricultural Experiment Station researcher.

The primary concern in the milk marketing system is to provide the consumer with a fresh and wholesome product. As a result, milk is one of the purest natural foods available over the retail counter. These sessions will explain how this quality is maintained, the necessary costs—and subsequent prices to consumers—of keeping the dairy producer in business and the operation of the marketing system.

AuGres Farmers Petition for Drain

About 40 landowners of Arenac County have petitioned the county drain commissioner to establish a drainage district in the AuGres area but, this time, the cost of improvements to the lower AuGres River would be borne by the property owners.

In the past, the property owners sought to saddle the up-river Counties of Iosco and Ogemaw with a portion of the cost, basing that action on the premise that flooding was caused by water from the two upstream counties.

The project, under consideration for more than 30 years, was dropped in 1980 when the Soil Conservation Service withdrew its support due to objections from other Arenac County property owners, who would receive no benefit from the project.

Affected property owners have petitioned for a study on a proposed drainage district bordered by AuGres City to the south, M-65 on the west of the county's northern border and a line about 1½ miles east of the AuGres River.

Right of way would have to be secured before construction could begin. The project would be financed through a special assessment against property within the boundaries of the drainage district and could possibly include a county-wide assessment in Arenac County.
