Say Spring Sports Should Go First

School Employees Protest Cut

Formal protest to cutting hours of cooks, secretaries and custodians as a means of reducing an operational deficit was read by a union representative at Monday night's meeting of Tawas Area Board of Education.

Cutting employment of non-certified personnel by one hour a day was among several actions taken by the board two weeks ago to reduce a $115,570 operational deficit expected at the end of the fiscal year on June 30.

The action concerning non-certified personnel cut the deficit by $10,784.

Under pressure of parents in attendance at its last meeting, the board of education elected not to include spring sports and extracurricular activities, totaling $12,500, in the items being cut.

That action was criticized Monday night in a position paper read by Betty Jenkins, secretary of Local 1545, AFSCME, representing noncertified employees.

The position paper stated that "No one citizen should blame the school board for financial problems that were created by the state withdrawing funds from the school district. Economic problems of the state and the country are things that some of the best economists in the nation cannot predict with accuracy for a 12-month period."

The union stated, however, that "this debt is one that is going to have to be solved by the local school district. We feel if you ask cooks, secretaries and custodians to cut their hours and monthly income by 12 1/2 percent on a debt incurred by the total school district, you will be doing us an injustice."

Mrs. Jenkins told board members that "this debt is as much your debt and every family in the school district as it is ours." She asked the board members to decrease their weekly hours and wages by 12 1/2 percent and contribute it to the school's debt, contending that the debt "belongs to each resident and should be carried to the end of the fiscal year when the total district can decide how it wishes to pay for it."

She said that asking noncertified personnel to pay the debt would be "asking some of us not only to pay our own taxes once for the school district, but rather twice—a burden we do not feel is fair nor a necessary action."

"Working one hour a day less, five days a week will cause a reduction in pay from $83.38 a month for some to $112 a month for others. When your income is around $10,000 a year, it is very difficult with today's inflation to just make a living."

The position paper stated that "when the board decided to keep spring sports, it realized that it was best to continue this activity for the good of the community. We feel, though, that by keeping spring sports over our cut in hours, was definitely a mix-up in priorities."

The union asked the board to reverse its decision and allow cooks, custodians, secretaries to continue working 40 hours a week.

In addition, the union listed a number of options which the board could take instead of cutting hours.

The first suggestion was to cut spring sports; the second was to discontinue employee payroll preparation by Bay-

Arenac; a third was to hire a school mechanic "instead of paying $22 per hour for labor, plus a saving of 40 to 60 percent on parts."

The union felt that the board had the option to ask the community to furnish volunteers for noncurricular activities instead of paying individuals. It stated that spring sports affects approximately 107 students out of a total enrollment of 594. The paper also stated that cutting custodial hours would adversely affect maintenance of school buildings.

Julia Rolston Observed 100th Birthday March 4

Julia Rolston, who came to this area when 15 years of age, celebrated her 100th birthday anniversary at a party given in her honor Thursday at Provincial House Nursing Home, Tawas City.

She was honored Sunday at a family gathering held at the home of her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Higgins of Randall Road, Tawas Township.

Still spry and able to get about despite being a centenarian, she was also guest of honor last week at a dinner held at Coyle's Restaurant in Tawas City. Richard MacKenzie, restaurant owner, presented her with a life gift certificate for dining at the restaurant and also provided cake and ice cream for all residents of Provincial House in her honor.

Born March 4, 1881, in Macomb County, she came to this area with her parents and moved to a village near Rose City, later known as the "Lost City of Damon."

She recalls that a farm wagon was used in the move, but the older children walked and helped to drive the herd of 18 cattle.

She and her first husband, Fred Morin, resided at Whittemore.

During Sunday's family gathering, Mrs. Rolston's great-great niece, Elizabeth Herrick, posed wearing a pair of baby shoes which had been made for Mrs. Rolston by her uncle, Isaac Lomason. The child is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Herrick of Grayling and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John (Jack) Herrick of East Tawas and Mr. and Mrs. Higgins.

Nominating Petitions Due April 6 for School Trustees

Tawas Area School District will hold its annual school election on Monday, June 8, according to action taken Monday night by the board of education.

Last day for filing nomination petitions for two vacancies on the board of education is April 6, 4:00 p. m., at the administration office, East Tawas.

Four-year terms of Barbara Miller and James Russo expire on June 30. Neither trustee indicated Monday night if re-election will be sought.

A discussion on school finances is to take place at the March 23 meeting of the board of education. A decision is to be made approximately 45 days prior to the annual election concerning the millage proposal to be placed before voters.

In other matters handled Monday night, the board approved recommendations concerning appointment of coaches to spring sports activities.

Positions approved included (See COACHING, page 6.)

Discontinue CAT Tests at School

In an economy move, Tawas Area Board of Education voted Monday night to discontinue its California achievement testing program for the coming term.

This series was adopted by the district two years ago to modernize its testing program.

Jerry Youngs, junior high school principal, suggested that the program be continued for grades one, three, six, seven and eight at a cost of $600 to the district. Several other suggestions brought the estimated cost down to $250, but the board voted four to three to suspend the CAT program for next term.

Voting in favor of suspending the program were Trustees James Russo, Thomas Huck, Barbara Miller and Susan Rieth. Opposed were Richard Anderson, Stanley Brockenbrough and Robert Curry.

Youngs also reported on results of the Michigan Educational Assessment tests which were given grades four, seven and 10.

The junior high school principal's report indicated that fourth and seventh graders had achieved higher than the state average in both reading and mathematics, but the 10th grade did not achieve as high as the state average.

Youngs said that 10th graders had made some gains since 1977 when students were tested as seventh graders, "but that group does not test well and a lot has to do with the students." He said that fourth and seventh graders had tested exceptionally well.

In other matters, the treasurer's report indicated the district was holding $15,000 in unpaid bills from January and February. This was attributed to the fact that, normally, the district has $250,000 in delinquent taxes at this time of year. In 1981, the district has $500,000 in delinquent property taxes. The county treasurer will soon be settling books with local units and a lump sum payment of delinquent taxes is to be made from the county's tax revolving fund.

Two Vacancies to be Filled by Voters on Hale A. Board

Two vacancies on Hale Area Board of Education are to be filled at the annual school election to be held Monday, June 8.

Trustees whose four-year terms expire at the end of the fiscal year include Harvey Rasch and Gerald Lewis.

Nominating petitions are available at the administration office and are to be returned by 4:00 p. m., Monday, April 6.

In other matters, a letter was read from Farmers and Merchants State Bank commending the school's art department and students for the caliber of work being displayed in the lobby of the bank's office at Hale. The letter stated that numerous favorable comments had been received from citizens.

The board of education adopted a resolution commending Daniel Peters, athletic director, Coach Nelson Shellenbarger and members of the varsity basketball team for winning the district basketball tournament at Mio.

Discussion was held on administrative contracts for the next term and the matter was tabled for future consideration.

Authorization was given to the administration to contract with Bay-Arenac Intermediate District to perform preparation of payroll checks. This service had been provided by COORE Intermediate District, which has suspended the service.

Supt. Peter Holley reported that a survey indicates that projected enrollment in the district is fairly stable, although a slight decrease is expected next term.

All buses in the school's fleet passed a recent inspection by Michigan State Police.

It was announced that an in-service day for teachers would be held March 18 and parent-teacher conferences are to be held March 26-27.

WASHINGTON

In its 1980 "Family Issues Voting Index," the National Christian Action Coalition cites a biblical reference, Hosea 4:6, to say that we in America are "destroyed for lack of knowledge." I, too, believe that ignorance is a large part of the problem facing this country but while the Coalition considers lack of knowledge to be not knowing which politicians oppose their opinions, I think that "lack of knowledge" also means not knowing exactly what an organization stands for.

Consider the term pro-family as it is used to describe the political philosophy of some conservative groups that have become an increasingly dominant feature of the American political landscape.

Pro-family conjures up images of valued individualism, humanism, and close-knit families. In reality, however, it is used as a code phrase for an ideology that extends far beyond the scope of family issues, seeking to enact legislation that violates many of the constitutional principles established by the Founding Fathers of this country, most notably separation of church and state. And, despite the humanistic images pro-family brings to mind, many of the organizations based on this philosophy actually support legislation that would infringe upon the civil liberties and rights of American citizens.

Some of the self-styled religious, pro-family political organizations have delved into issues having very little to do with either preserving the sanctity of the family or religion. For example, pro-family groups have, in the past, taken strong stands on foreign relations bills to oppose economic sanctions against Rhodesia and to support Taiwan, the SALT II and Panama Canal treaties, tax cut legislation, and defense issues such as the B-1 bomber and the MX missile. While I feel that these issues are very important, I do not think that sectarian religious principles necessarily offer specific answers to them.

In addition, these groups, who supposedly believe in the worth of an individual, support actions in the name of family protection that would infringe upon the rights of women, children, minorities, and others -- all American citizens, all human beings. If some of these organizations have their way, public-interest lawyers would be prohibited from handling desegregation cases and attempts to provide parental control over corporal punishment in schools and to tighten child abuse statutes would be thwarted. Such actions, coming from groups labeled pro-family, are often inconsistent with the humanistic ideals they ostensibly espouse.

So as not to allow this country's basic constitutional principles to be "destroyed for lack of knowledge," I urge our citizens to make sure that the self-styled pro-family groups they support are truly founded upon the humanistic ideals deserving of their religious and family label.

Oil alternatives? Coal, nuclear or nothing

By John D. Selby

One result of the oil crisis has been to intensify the search for alternatives to oil as fuel, and we have heard some pretty wonderful things about everything from garbage to ocean tides as a result. But the bitter truth is two fold:

One, in our technology, there are things which absolutely require oil-based fuels, and:

Two, everything else, that is, anything now using oil which can be switched to electricity, should be.

FORTUNATELY FOR US, electric power can supply millions of energy units now supplied by oil if we make sure we have enough electricity. This replacement or "displacement" of oil therefore increases our self-reliance in energy matters and also, just as importantly, helps keep home American dollars that otherwise would continue to go abroad.

In this country, we burn about 9 million barrels of oil a day. Most of it is imported. Now, a million barrels of oil produces the same amount of energy as 85 big electric plants, nuclear or coal, and the more such plants we build, of course, the less oil we would need. But we have opposition to both kinds of electric plants, so let's build a solar generating plant.

Well, you could replace a million barrels of oil if you build enough solar plants. All you would need would be 3,000 square miles of solar panels for one plant, or the equivalent of 85 large power plants, which in turn only use up about 3,000 square acres of land, as against 3,000 square miles. So if solar won't do it, how about switching from growing food to growing fodder for ethanol production? All you would need would be about 270,000 square miles of ethanol crop land. I think that's more than we devote to food in this country.

John D. Selby has been president and chief executive officer of Consumers Power Co. since 1975. Before joining the Jackson-based utility, he worked in electronics, aerospace and nuclear energy for General Electric.

SO THAT'S OUT. How about the windmill. It can be done. Just build 600,000 windmills 100-feet each in diameter, and you've got your million barrels of oil! Of course you realize, that's still less than one-tenth of the daily requirement of energy.

So that takes us back to the coal plant and the nuclear plant, and that's where we've been for about 20 years anyway, trying to get those plants built to meet the increasing needs of our country's growing population.

But wait until you hear this one!

We have been trying to build coal and nuclear plants, but we haven't been building them after all. In fact, in the five years 1974-79 we actually cancelled the orders for the construction of 300 electric generating units. That's one-third the number that are actually in existence (680).

Why, with the world oil economy breaking our financial backs, are we not developing all of our domestic energy resources including coal and uranium?

THE ANSWER IS the government has been discouraging the construction of these plants...by the manipulation of the regulatory process. We need about 70 major permits to build an important power plant, and the people who oppose the plants for any reason are allowed in at every step of the permit stage to hamstring us. So the financial costs of delay are added to the perplexities of launching any new project, and the result is the massive slowdown of energy resource development.

The American voter made it obvious on November 4 that he has heard just about all he can stand to hear about the frustration of regulatory excesses in many walks of life, and he wants a clear signal delivered to the regulators that the energy companies have got to get on with the job, and so does everybody else! The job is to get America moving.

I think that significantly, as a result of that clear signal, there will be movement in that morass of government at the federal level that should, in the next several months, begin to produce far more sensible and realistic decisions in the regulatory area. Certainly that is what the people have required. I think in some ways they took the politicians by surprise, in that they saw clearly that regulatory issues as interpreted by the common man are basically political issues and in such issues, politicians are held accountable.

Braves Fell to Grayling in District

Tawas Braves' trek along the tournament trail was brief last week as the Grayling Vikings turned them aside, 85-58.

The Braves were only four points off the pace, 19-15, at the end of the first quarter, but the Vikings used their speed to build substantial margins in each of the next three quarters.

Tom Schriber meshed 22 points to lead Tawas and Jon Dunn turned in 10. Bill Roach of Grayling was the game's top scorer with 26.

The Braves ended the season with a record of 12 wins and eight losses. The Vikings advanced to the next round with a record of 16 wins and four losses.

Hale Eagles Won District Tourney

Hale Eagles took the district basketball title Saturday night at Mio, winning over AuGres-Sims, 64-63.

The only Iosco County team to win in tournament play, the Eagles head for the regional tournament tonight (Wednesday) where they will meet North Star League foe, Posen, at Roscommon.

The Eagles had to put down a fourth quarter rally by AuGres to win the trophy. Tim Milan hit two free throws with two seconds left in the game to slice the Hale lead to only one point, but that was not enough to stop the Eagles.

Tom Sanders led Hale with 18 points, Ken Jansen had 14 and Dan Dear contributed 12.

Dan Cunningham was hit for the night with 20 points for AuGres, Miland had 15 and Mike Stanley hit for 11.

Gladwin Upset Oscoda

A charity toss by Shawn Raymond gave Gladwin's Flying Gs an upset, 59-58, victory over the Oscoda Owls in the district tournament final at Ogemaw Heights.

Joe Guckenberger meshed a 15-footer with 11 seconds left in the game to tie the score at 58 and Raymond was later fouled on his drive to the basket.

The Owls, finishing the year with a record of 18 wins and five losses, held a 24-18 margin at intermission. The Owls missed many golden opportunities to put the game away at the charity lines.

Baskets by Dan Bissonette and Eugene Hobart gave the Owls a 28-32 edge in the third quarter and the Owls held a 44-36 edge at one time in the fourth quarter.

Hobart was high scorer for Oscoda with 20 points and Crevier had 14.

Gladwin advances to regional action Friday night at Houghton Lake.

W-P Cards Eliminated by Grayling

Whittmore - Prescott Cardinals were smothered in Friday night's class C tournament action by Grayling, 86-58.

The Cards, finishing out the season with a record of nine wins and 12 losses, had three players scoring 10 points, Bill DeBoever, Randy Federspiel and John Pavlik.

Grayling, which defeated the Tawas Braves Wednesday night, held a 48-28 margin over the Cards in the first half. Grayling closed out its season Saturday night with a record of 17 wins and five losses when the Roscommon Bucks turned in a 64-54 upset to win the class C trophy.

Analyze Nutrition With Computer

How well do you eat? Does your diet provide the recommended dietary allowances for most nutrients? How many of the calories consumed come from protein, fat, carbohydrates and alcohol? How might you improve your diet? It is not easy for most people to answer those questions. But, there is a new computer-assisted program which can help. Titled Nutrition Spot-check, the program is being introduced during March - National Nutrition Month - by the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service in Iosco County. Nutrition Spot-check analyzes the nutritional content of the food eaten in a 24-hour period. Its aim is to help individuals improve their diet by evaluating the strengths and weaknesses of their 24-hour food recall.

Each person who submits a form will be notified of the times and places during late March where their completed Nutrition Spot-check analysis can be picked up. At these sessions, extension staff members or volunteers from Tawas Hospital Community Relations Committee will be available to interpret results and answer questions.

ENERGY BRIEFS

Tips on saving fuel and money from experts at Mobil 1, a motor oil that saves gasoline.

WATER WISDOM

Don't waste hot water. Showers require less hot water than tub baths, and you may even consider an inexpensive showerhead attachment that saves still more hot water. An aerator on your kitchen faucet will also help.

When running your washing machine, drier, or dishwasher, make sure you have a full load each time. Turn your dishwasher off when it reaches the drying cycle and let dishes dry naturally. (In winter, opening the dishwasher door after the rinse cycle will provide heated and well-humidified air while dishes dry.)

Do as much of your household cleaning as possible with cold water. Repair leaky faucets immediately. Make sure your hot-water heater thermostat is set no higher than 140° F; 120° F is even better and will save an extra 18% of energy.

For additional efficiency, have your hot-water heater well insulated. Check all other electric appliances for energy efficiency, especially when you purchase new ones.

Bill Would Revitalize Farming With Loans

State Rep. Tom Alley has introduced legislation designed to authorize loan guarantees to revitalize various farming businesses, including farmers.

The bill would enable farmers and other persons engaged in agricultural-related fields to secure from the Michigan Job Development Authority loans, bonds and other guarantees in order to expand, repair, promote and develop farming enterprises in this state.

"It is about time the state realizes the urgent need for programs to alleviate the present economic condition in Michigan," Alley said. "For too long, the state has been primarily concerned with the automotive industry and the industrialized needs of the people of Detroit. Agriculture is the most stable industry in Michigan, yet it has been virtually ignored as a potential source for reducing unemployment and creating jobs for the citizens of this state."

"Farming is a large financial operation and many times, a farmer may have most of his cash tied up into grain or herd production," Alley concluded. "The farmer should be allowed access to many of the same funding sources as large corporations. This bill only seeks to give the farmer his fair share."

THE WORLD OF TOMORROW

A Glimpse Of What We May Expect
A TOWN RUN ON THE SUN

The 3,500-watt (peak) solar cell array field (left foreground) is the main element of the world's first solar electric village power system.

At least one community in America is solar powered. The Papago Indian village of Schuchull, Arizona, gets all its electricity from generators run by the sun. The excess is stored in a huge, lead-acid battery.

Residents who used to rely on kerosene lamps for lighting now have electric lights to illuminate their nights.

The world's first, solar electric power system for a village provides sufficient electricity to power the town's 15 refrigerators, a community washing machine, sewing machine, and a 5,000 gallon-per-day water pump for the community well, plus lighting for the village's 15 homes, a church, feast house and Domestic Services Building.

When the sun isn't shining, electricity is drawn from storage in a battery system having 53 lead-acid cells in series. Lead, point out the experts at the St. Joe Lead Company which supplies lead for batteries, is a vital material for today and the future.

It has been predicted we may someday have many huge lead-acid batteries at electric utilities. These batteries may be able to supply great amounts of energy (on the order of 100 million watt hours) in periods of peak energy usage. The batteries can then be charged with inexpensive off-peak energy, thereby maximizing the efficiency of the electric utility industry.

Modern research and design has given the lead-acid battery more power at a lower cost than ever before.

Such batteries can help the sun keep a village bright and may help brighten the energy outlook for us all.

During discussion on the proposal, several board members questioned if the administration had pursued the offer that Look made at a recent meeting that head coaches were willing to defer collection of their salaries until after the end of the current fiscal year. Look's comment had been made when the board was discussing the possibility of discontinuing spring sports this year.

The superintendent indicated that the verbal remark was not binding as official permission would be required from the executive board of the union representing teachers. Total salaries to be paid to coaches of spring sports amounts to $7,384.

A motion to follow recommendations on appointments to coaching positions was adopted by a four to two roll call. Voting in favor were Trustees Stanley Brockenbrough, Russo, Susan Rieth and Mrs. Miller. Opposed were Richard Anderson and Thomas Huck.

The board of education tabled action until next fall concerning installation of a telephone warning system when problems develop in the school's boiler system.

THE HOME WOODDRAFTER

DO IT YOURSELF AND SAVE

Box It And Store It

By The Wood-Working Projects Experts at Georgia-Pacific Corp.

If you've ever wondered what on earth to do with the extra papers, books, magazines or unfinished projects your family collects—or just how to get the kids to clean up their rooms—here's a project for you.

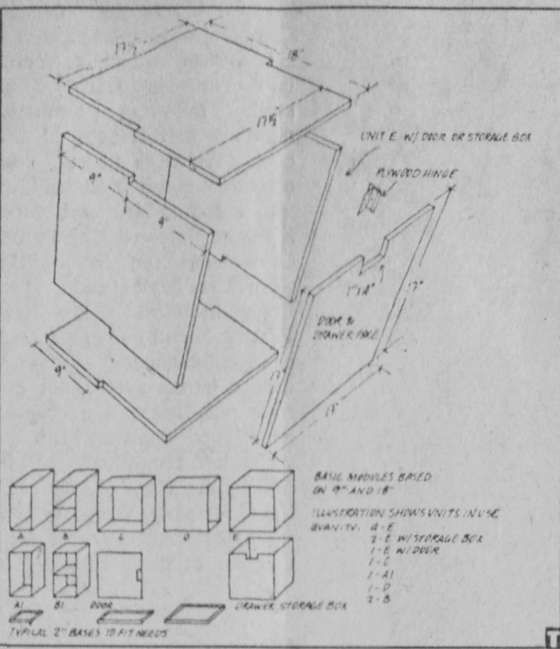

These easy-to-make box modules stack unobtrusively out of the way in 100 different, convenient storage combinations you will love. Some boxes can be open-ended, some made into drawers, some two-tiered and others complete with a door on the front.

You can have them tall, short, fat, thin—big enough for extra blankets, deep enough for records, deep enough to keep basketballs from rolling about. The variety is endless—and fun.

To begin, just obtain two panels of 1/2" x 4' x 8' interior grade plywood, good two sides, and 1 panel of 1/2" x 4' x 4' interior grade plywood, also good two sides. You'll also need glue, wood filler, fine sandpaper, 2d finishing nails and a clear sealer or interior semi-gloss enamel paint in a color—or two—of your choice.

By doing the work yourself, even if you're a rank amateur, you can save a lot of money. First, measure the pieces for one complete set of modules by following the diagram; cut the pieces from your 2-1/2 sheets of plywood.

Note that four sides of the large module are exactly alike, 18" x 17-1/2". Fit them together, glue and nail. The back will be 17" square, and the front, either open or fitted with a drawer face with a notch for your fingers to fit in. Or, turn it inside, add hinges on the sides and behold! You have an enclosed module with door.

Don't forget to sand each module thoroughly and use wood filler where necessary to fill nicks and cracks. Then you might want to consult your kids about what color to paint them. Let them indulge, maybe, with red inside (it will hide scuffs) and white outside for a shadowbox effect.

By the time you've finished the whole set, you may be ready to start on another. And so might the kids!

Building a combination of half-size modules, along with full-size drawer and door boxes, you can create storage that's perfectly tailored to your family's needs.

Participated in Global Shield

United States Air Force TSgt. Kenneth F. Best, whose wife, Joyce, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fairfield, East Tawas, has participated in Global Shield 81, the Strategic Air Command's (SAC) response to a simulated attack on the United States.

The service member is among the more than 100,000 United States Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps and Canadian personnel taking part in SAC's largest, no-notice, 20-day training exercise.

During one portion of Global Shield, more than 500 B-52 and FB-111 bombers and KC-135 tankers took off from 70 different locations in the United States and Guam within minutes of notification. This exercise is not related in any way to real world situations, according to a SAC spokesman.

Global Shield 81 is designed to test the command's capability to carry out emergency war orders to support United States policy if deterrence fails. This exercise has been constructed to measure SAC's response to a set of preplanned events leading up to a simulated attack on the United States, the spokesman explained.

ed the district to purchase its insurance under a competitive bid basis. At the present time, the school's insurance is split between three local carriers. The matter was referred to the budget committee for a study and recommendation.

A letter from State Rep. Tom Alley indicated that he was opposed to a distressed city bill in the legislative hopper at Lansing which would cost Michigan 40-million dollars. Because of cuts in school programs, Alley felt that the money should go to schools.

Supt. Allan Dighera said that even if the bill is defeated, Tawas Area School District probably would not receive any of the money. He was directed to write a letter opposing the bill because, as he termed it, "of the principle of the thing."

The board authorized hiring Julie Neuens, a 1980 graduate of Central Michigan University, to replace Julie Tobin as a special education teacher. Miss Neuens completed her student teaching at the Tawas City Elementary Unit.

Routine Matters Handled by Board of Commissioners

Only routine matters were handled during Wednesday's session of the Iosco County Board of Commissioners, but a letter from the state liquor control commission corrected previous information concerning Sunday liquor sales.

At its previous session, local liquor sales store dealers requested the county commission to adopt a resolution to provide for the sale of spirits for consumption off premises on Sunday afternoons effective March 31.

Because of conflicting statements in the state act, the county commission tabled the matter to await clarification. Latest word from the liquor control division is that action should not be taken by the county legislative body until after the effective date of the act.

Young Pianist to Perform March 18 at Oscoda HS

Appearing at the fourth Oscoda Community Concert Association concert will be Cecile Licad, one of today's most widely acclaimed young performing pianists. The distinguished board of judges of the Leventritt Foundation announced in January that it had named the 19-year-old pianist as the Gold Medal Award winner. The award of this prize marks the first time in 10 years that his coveted prize has been given. Miss Licad will receive $10,000 from the Leventritt Foundation, a three-year recording contract from Columbia Records and appearances with the world's foremost orchestras. Her first appearance as the Leventritt Award winner will be in September with the New York Philharmonic and Zubin Mehta. She will also appear with the Boston Symphony, Chicago

Symphony, Cincinnati Symphony, Cleveland Orchestra, Detroit Symphony, Los Angeles Philharmonic and others before going abroad to appear with the London Symphony. Miss Licad learned to read music at four, began formal training under Rosario Picazo at five and made her orchestral debut at seven. In 1971, she won the Manila Symphony Young Artists' Competition, and she continues to enjoy the enthusiastic support of her home country as the first piano scholar of the Philippines Young Artists' Foundation and as a scholar of the Philippine Music Promotion Foundation. Every summer, Miss Licad returns to the Philippines to perform public concerts for her countrymen. The concert will be Wednesday, March 18, 8:15 p. m., at the Oscoda High School Auditorium. Admittance will be by season memberships only.

'Bielbys in the Bush'

Celebration of the nation's bicentennial in 1976 has helped to renew interest in genealogy—recording the history of the descent of a person or family from an ancestor or ancestors. Diagramming one's family tree is a time consuming, but interesting and rewarding endeavor as it often provides information of general public interest.

The remark is often heard from a younger generation that questions should have been asked of parents and grandparents concerning birthplaces, or that memories are now dim concerning events of an earlier era as told by older family members.

The late Lyle Bielby of Hale, who was a long-time school teacher in Alcona County and in Plainfield Township, left an interesting legacy to his children and grandchildren in the form of a handwritten manuscript detailing early-day pioneer life in Western Iosco County.

The manuscript, entitled "Bielbys in the Bush," was recently typed into a 46-page booklet and copies were made for each member of his family for future preservation.

Bielby was extremely interested in the history of Plainfield Township and has set down on paper experiences from his own life and recorded on paper the stories he was told by his parents and grandparents. The story also pinpoints such historic place names as the Emery farm, McCallum high banks on the AuSable, details of the Thompson farm and farming practices from the early 1900s to the mid-1940s.

In his preface, Bielby said that "during the autumn of my life, spent almost entirely in Plainfield Township, I grope for answers about local history and specific characters. Most people who knew the answers are gone and there is no written record of these events."

"With the aim of relating events, from my memory and written record, I hope to record some highlights during my years as a local child and adult. Descriptive words can never compare to the actual sight; written records are less fragile and may preserve the memories of my experiences here, reducing some unanswered questions from another generation."

Bielby was particularly interested in the Emery farm, which his grandfather, William Bielby, purchased in 1899 and then operated with his three sons, John, George and William Oscar. The latter was the father of Lyle Bielby.

The land originally was included in the 12,800-acre holdings of H. E. Emery, early-day Iosco County lumberman and the 320-acre farm was located along present-day Wickert Road north of Hale. Each son built a home on different sites along the road.

Besides farming, W. Oscar Bielby worked for the Louns in the operation of their railroad and a detailed description is given of the lumbering era in the McKinley area of Oscoda County.

LYLE BIELBY, farmer and long-time school teacher in the Hale area, was interested in the history of Plainfield Township and recorded stories heard in his youth concerning early-day lumbering and farming.

Oscar spent a winter cutting logs, the crew consisting of two sawyers and a swamper. "There was a continuous contest—who could do more? They would notch some trees before quitting at day's end so they could drop them before daylight the next morning. The swamper would clear roads for the horses and skidders. Each evening, the boss would call roll and ask the number of logs for the day. All teams would give their all to outdo the others. All received the same wages. Some men would quit if they were beaten and it was rumored that these were good men who went from camp to camp to set the pace for others," wrote Bielby.

In the summer, the young farmers would go to the woods and cut cedar posts, telephone poles or new ties and sell them to supplement their farm income. The work had to be done on rainy days so field work was not neglected.

The farm had about 50 head of Durham cattle, hogs, sheep and 12 horses. "Quality registered bulls were a must and two registered Percheron stallions were kept. A team of classy grey driving horses was primed with choice grain and often ran away wrecking the carriage."

He tells the story of a visit by the Oscoda Township treasurer to the Bielby farm. (That area of the county was originally set off as Thompson Township, later was attached to Oscoda Township and finally became a part of Plainfield Township.)

The treasurer had driven the 25 miles from Oscoda and an overnight stay was required. The township officers at Oscoda had not considered the fact that timber on the property had been harvested by Emery. Bielby's grandfather had paid $2,500 for the farm, but the annual tax bill was $640. With Emery's wealth and holdings, the township officer expected pay with no controversy, but things had changed. The senior Bielby refused to pay such a high assessment and a bargain was struck whereby the township treasurer accepted $320 and turned over a receipt as paid in full.

In those days, land from Long Lake north was for sale at $1.50 per acre and included small, isolated cedar and tamarack swamps. It was not considered a bargain and later reverted to the state when taxes were not paid.

Callers at the farm included T. L. Handy of Bay City, administrator of Emery's estate; William Green of Detroit, whose father owned the Green Hotel at Oscoda and had operated a stagecoach line between Standish and Alpena.

As the area north of Hale gradually filled in with settlers, the Bielby School was established. The early community in that area was occupied by such family names as Bielby, Keck, Staley, Riemer, Rodegeb, Dorsey, Hammond, Telley and Scully. A school was built in 1907 and some early teachers included Ida Scofield, Flora Slosser, Grant Shattuck, Otto Rahl, Edith Buck, two Glendenning brothers, Vivian LaBerge, Katherine Dillon, Helen Hale, Iva Bielby French, Goldie Guilford, Floyd Irish, Goldie Sheltenbarger, Ethel Schieffer and Violet Brown.

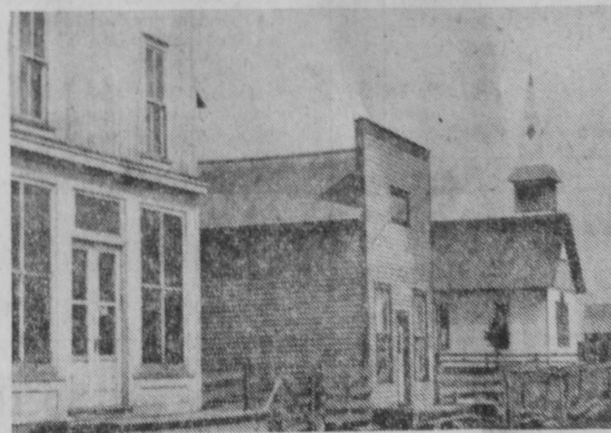

"All seven of the Bielby children were to attend school in the little building in the woods from 1909 to 1933. The roads were not plowed, there was no electricity and we had outside toilets. Water was pumped, left in a pail and drunk from a dipper."

In the winter season, the road in the area of school was pecked with jack rabbit tracks. "We would take a detour from home to school and set snares for rabbits. Often there were frozen rabbits on the school floor until dismissal."

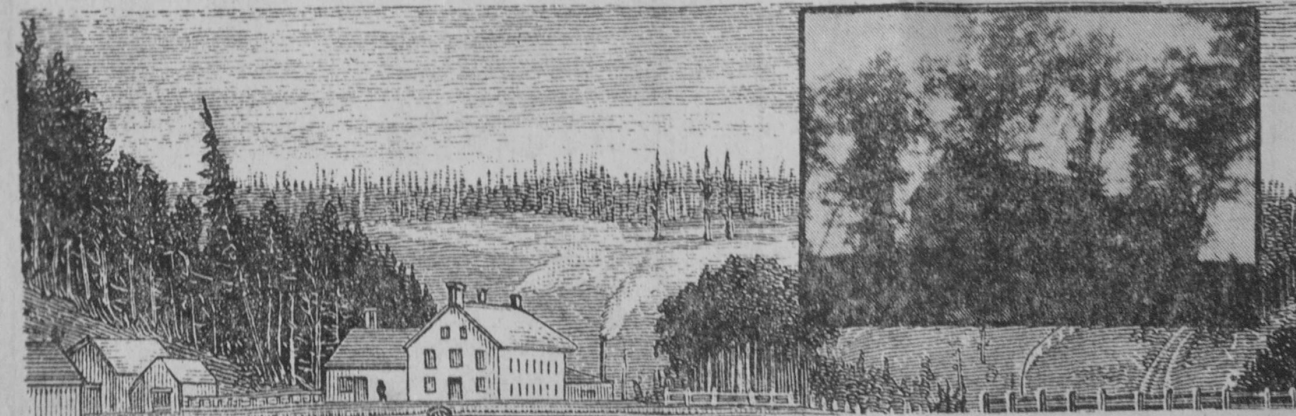

Being miles away from a doctor, there were often trying times for a family when children became ill. Bielby's brother, Chester, was four years old when he became very ill. A Doctor Englewright from Rose City was contacted and drove his horse and rig 16 miles to see him. He promptly diagnosed the ailment as acute appendicitis. The child was placed on the dining room table and the surgery was performed.

Bielby recalled that Glen Staley was hired by his father to build fences. "He was a tall, muscular lad, unassuming and steady. I trailed him as an eight-year-old spectator, but we could not find a common ground for conversation. Neither of us dreamed that he would die in Russia as a Polar Bear in defense of our country." The American Legion post at Hale is named in his honor.

Bielby walked to Hale to attend school from grades seven through 10, then completed high (See BIELBY, page 6.)

EAST ESMOND ROAD at the four corners in Hale looked like this when Lyle Bielby was a youth in Plainfield Township. He was born on Wickert Road (then Bielby Road) north of Hale and walked into town to attend junior high school and the first two grades of high school. He graduated from East Tawas High School and Iosco County Normal, later receiving his degree from Michigan State University.

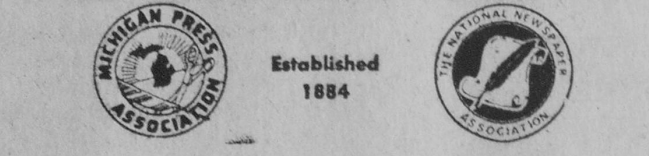

ONE OF THE INTERESTING PLACES that Lyle Bielby often visited in his youth was the old Thompson farm on the South Branch River. The inset shows the house as it appeared in the early 1900s. Originally, it served as the headquarters for T. F. Thompson, early-day lumberman. The property is now part of Huron National Forest, but not a trace of the buildings remains.

Iosco Should Get Its Computer on an Even Keel

It is time that a meeting be called of all involved department heads and commissioners to devise ways and means to place the county's expensive computer system on a sound operational basis.

Rather than look for scapegoats for problems which have developed during the initial year of operation, this corner believes that it would be best for the parties involved to sit down at one table and get the "computer ship" on an even keel.

Despite the fact that practically every department head was opposed to purchasing the computer system, a majority of the board of commissioners voted in favor of it. It now appears that the firm which sold the equipment "oversold" the simplicity of its operation.

It might be compared to the father who attempts to assemble a bicycle on Christmas Eve without first reading the instructions. Now that the equipment has been purchased, it might be a good idea to contract the services of a qualified programmer in order to perform the work for which it was originally intended—preparation of tax rolls and tax statements.

Once the county receives some expert advice on operation, the system could prove most beneficial and timesaving.

Tax Evader Schiff Belongs in Federal Prison

A person like Irwin A. Schiff is right where he belongs—in federal prison for willfully refusing to file a federal income tax return.

This is the man whose "income tax freedom kit" formed the basis for the recent Pontiac protest group, "We the People," now refusing to file federal income tax forms.

These naive protestors probably will end up in a mess of trouble, too, if they follow Schiff's thinking. Perhaps they should seek out the real reason why Schiff evaded paying his income tax.

It is one thing to protest high taxes and government spending, but it is another thing to take the law into one's own hands. Without taxes, there would be no government; without government, there would be no United States—and no matter how imperfect this government may be, it is still the best system yet devised for the protection of freedom.

In the Bible, James 1:5-8 (NIV) says, "If any of you lacks wisdom he should ask God, who gives generously to all without finding fault, and it will be given to him."

Wisdom in the biblical sense means knowing how to live, writes Dr. William Brownson, Jr., in his book, Applied Christianity. Studies in the Book of James. He goes on to explain this wisdom—and how to acquire it. Such helpful words on a number of subjects also can be found in Dr. Brownson's weekly messages on "Words of Hope," an international radio and television ministry of the Reformed Church of America. CAUGHT ON THE SPOT

Caught on the spot for a delicious yet economical and nutritious dining idea? Then count on the spot.

Considered Virginia's number one pan fish by marine sport fishermen, spot are among the dazzling variety of choice Virginia seafood that will enable you to eat like a king while pampering your budget.

Spot are common residents in and around Chesapeake Bay from April through October. The bulk of the commercial catch occurs between August and October when spot are in prime condition.

Some consider the spot's small size a disadvantage. Most landed are in the 8 to 10 ounce range. But compensating for the small size is its popularity as a delicious food fish, making spot highly prized in season by Bay area residents and visitors alike.

You can enjoy spot right in your own home. Spot are among the abundant Virginia seafood harvest shipped throughout the eastern half of the United States.

Here's a recipe that's not only right for your budget

STUFFED SPOT
 8 large spot (8 to 12 oz. each, deboned)
 1 lb. monterey jack cheese
 1 lb. backfin crabmeat
 1 lb. butter
 4 dashes lemon-pepper seasoning
 8 dashes paprika

Line the cavity of each fish where it has been deboned with 2 ounces of monterey jack cheese. Stuff the cavity with 2 ounces of backfin crabmeat. Wet a broiler pan with just enough water to keep the fish from sticking to the pan. Dress the fish with melted butter and sprinkle with lemon-pepper seasoning. Broil under medium heat (400° F.) for 4 minutes, then turn the fish over and broil for 4 more minutes. Sprinkle with paprika and garnish with lemon and parsley. Serve on bed of long grain wild rice.

Fettuccini Herring Primavera

Tasting as elegant and cosmopolitan as it sounds, "Fettuccini Herring Primavera" may well rival the famous Roman pasta classic. Unusual, yes, but it boasts a graceful blend of European delicacies you'll be proud to serve to good friends or royalty.

Don't let the name scare you. This recipe takes a short-cut to create new meaning to classic simplicity. Our secret and yours: Vita Herring in Cream Sauce. Right there in the jar you'll find the basic flavor of the dish already expertly blended.

Saute the fresh broccoli and mushrooms in oil and toss with hot fettuccini. Presto, you're on your way to creating an enviable reputation which may well be tradition.

Supper, bravo, al dente, encore, encore.....

FETTUCINI HERRING PRIMAVERA
(Serves 4)

- 1 c. 1" fresh broccoli pieces
- 4 oz. can drained mushroom pieces
- 1/4 c. vegetable oil
- 2 c. chopped tomatoes
- 8 oz. fettuccini, cooked and drained
- 1 jar Vita Herring in Cream Sauce
- Parmesan cheese

Saute broccoli and mushrooms in oil until tender. Add tomatoes and cook for 1 minute. Toss fettuccini into vegetable mixture. Add jar of herring and heat entire mixture until warmed. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and serve.

English Herring Brunch

Brunch has become part of America's life-style in cuisine. Here, in our "melting pot" tradition, we've borrowed a couple of British favorites to create a tempting twist to your menu.

This "English Herring Brunch" stars the all-American favorite, scrambled eggs on an English muffin topped with a surprise—a North Atlantic splash of Vita Herring in Cream Sauce. Tasting is believing the magical combination of flavors. It's no longer tomato, muffin, scrambled eggs and herring. It is truly qualified as "English Herring Brunch."

Serve with steaming hot coffee. And, if the mood is festive, save some herring bits to serve on small pieces of crispy rye bread. Before or after the entree, cool herring bits are "naturals" with champagne.

ENGLISH HERRING BRUNCH
(Serves 4)

- 2 Tbl. margarine or butter
- 9 eggs
- 3 Tbl. milk
- 4 English muffins, split and toasted
- 2 medium tomatoes (room temperature)
- 2 12 oz. jars Vita Herring in Cream Sauce (room temperature)

Melt margarine or butter in skillet. Stir eggs with milk until thoroughly blended. Pour egg mixture into hot skillet and scramble lightly until eggs are set but still moist.

On top of each toasted muffin half arrange ingredients in the following manner: slice of tomato, 2 to 3 pieces of herring, scrambled eggs, and top with piece of herring. Serve immediately.

WOMEN on the MOVE

When the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, moves out on combat maneuvers in giant Chinook helicopters and fixed wing aircraft, it's an awesome display of power. Metal planes and nylon parachutes block out the sun.

The battle scars of the U.S. Army's quickest reaction force resemble a history lesson: Sicily, Salerno, Normandy, the Rhine River crossing and the Battle of the Bulge. Generals Omar N. Bradley, Matthew B. Ridgway and James M. Gavin, three of the 82nd's more familiar men, add to the legend.

But today's 82nd has its own special brand of troopers—women. They're in combat support units and they help make the 82nd go.

PFC Denise Armstrong, (right) with an arm full of wrenches, sockets and other tools, scrambles up the side of a 25,000-pound Chinook helicopter. She's checking it out and making repairs. Her duties include daily maintenance, periodic inspections and changing transmissions.

One of seven women in her unit, Denise is the only female helicopter mechanic.

Both Martina and Denise are examples of the increasing number of women who are finding fulfillment in non-traditional military roles. Today, "this man's Army" also means "this woman's Army."

The former Junior Olympic track star from Indiana does 50 pushups easily, moves 250-pound cargo chutes with some effort and 165-pound personnel chutes with very little effort. She also makes jumps from planes at least once a month, as all riggers do to back up the quality of their work.

Both Martina and Denise are examples of the increasing number of women who are finding fulfillment in non-traditional military roles. Today, "this man's Army" also means "this woman's Army."

Iosco SCS Encourages Habitat Improvement

Iosco County Soil Conservation District wants to encourage residents to improve wildlife habitat in this area. Planting trees and shrubs can do a lot for habitat improvement. Song-birds, in particular, will benefit from special plantings in yards.

Almost everyone knows about man-made attractors like feeders and birdhouses but should also consider some natural attractors of birds—trees and shrubs—that can grow to attract birds to homes and gardens.

Plantings can beautify the land and attract birds. Birds often feed on berries and many of their favorites are bright colored and decorative. Hedges and other dense shrubbery provide shelter and fit into landscaping.

Birds have simple needs—they look for places to feed, sing, court, nest, rest and hide. Mixtures of plants, shrubs and trees can provide many of these, even in small yards. Shrubs such as honeysuckle, autumn olive and silky dogwood have berries which provide food for birds. Yards that have only deciduous trees and shrubs can be improved by adding cedars, pines or spruce that provide winter shelter for birds.

Tree and shrub seedlings are available for sale from the Iosco Soil Conservation District. Call 362-2591 for more information. A wildlife packet is also available.

Nutritious Beef-Vegetable Soup

Nothing seems more satisfying to make on a cold winter day than a pot of homemade vegetable soup! What's more, there's a lot of nutrition in a bowl of hearty soup: Instant bouillon or bouillon cubes are a boon to today's soup makers.

HEARTY BEEF-VEGETABLE SOUP
(Makes about 2 1/2 quarts)

1 pound beef cubes for stew, cut into 1-inch pieces
 4 cup chopped onion
 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
 9 cups water
 3 tablespoons Wylers'® Beef-Flavor Instant Bouillon OR 9 Beef-Flavor Bouillon Cubes
 1 bay leaf
 1/2 teaspoon basil leaves
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 1 1/2 cups sliced carrots
 1 1/2 cups sliced celery
 1 (16-ounce) can stewed tomatoes
 4 ounces uncooked medium noodles

In large Dutch oven, brown beef and onion in vegetable oil. Add water, bouillon, bay leaf, basil and pepper. Cover. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer 1 hour 30 minutes. Add carrots, celery and tomatoes; cook 15 minutes. Stir in noodles; cook 10 minutes longer or until noodles are tender. Refrigerate leftovers.

Hospitalized Veterans Watch Building of New VA Hospital

Director Vincent J. Parrish of the Veterans Administration North Little Rock, Ark., Medical Center guides the wheelchair of VA patient Ron Syrja, a 100 per cent disabled Air Force veteran, as they make their way to the area where a new VA hospital is to be built. Some 1,200 patients will continue to be housed nearby in the 10 North Little Rock MC's existing buildings during the three-year construction project.

Going the extra step, the VA arranged to erect bleachers near the construction site so patients can comfortably observe daily progress of the new 1,000 bed facility.

Standing next to Parrish is James E. Eubanks, commander of the local VFW post which donated hard hats to protect VA patients and staffers. Don Wood, VA recreation therapist specialist, is on the right.

school at East Tawas, paying $1.50 a week for his board. He won three medals in track and, after graduation, returned to the Hale area where he was employed by Floyd Putnam, who owned a dump truck and helped construct Monument Road.

His brother, Earl, who was a school teacher, "persuaded me to attend Iosco County Normal, which I did in September of 1928. This was a cram course and over enrolled. Anyone who dragged their feet or could not do the work was dismissed—until the desired enrollment was established."

Bielby became a rural school teacher in Alcona County. "I was interviewed and given a teaching position in Hayes Township School District No. 1 at $95 per month." He married the former Alma Gauthier and he later taught at Black River and Spruce, spending 12 years in Alcona County.

During summer vacations, Bielby attended college to validate his teacher's certificate and purchased a farm across the road from his father in 1937. Bielby and his family returned to the Hale area in 1943 to operate the farm but he soon accepted a full time job teaching the fourth and fifth grades.

"There were 12 cows to milk, 50 sheep, horses, hogs and feeder cattle. We agreed to give it our all and the $1,700 salary from the school district would supplement our income."

Bielby performed his farm chores from 4:30 a. m. until 7:30 a. m., left for school at 8:00 a. m. and returned home at 4:00 p. m. working around the farm until 10 o'clock at night. "Since manpower was very short, very often I would be asked to drive a bus after school. This was done many times and there was no mention of reimbursement," recalled Bielby.

Schools were depressed during and following the war years. Rooms were overcrowded, teachers were under qualified and underpaid. Cars and buses were worn-out and unsafe. School buildings were outdated and inadequate. Bielby had 48 eighth grade students crammed into a medium-sized room. He completed work on his degree at Michigan State University in the summer of 1946.

During this time, Bielby took an active part in community life, serving as secretary of the sportsmen's club, was active as a Soil Conservation Service co-operator, president of the Hale Lions Club, fair board member and Plainfield Township trustee. He helped to raise the stock required for organizing Farmers and Merchants State Bank. He was also associated with his brother, Earl, in the real estate business.

The Bielby family moved to Hale in 1953 and his observations of the community as a child and later as an adult provide an interesting historical commentary.

In his conclusion, Bielby said, "These pages were not intended to be an autobiography, but written to record events of my day so they may be passed on to my children. With the loss of each generation comes a loss of local lore and history."

It would be an excellent idea for his children to make a photo copy of "Bielbys in the Bush" for preservation and use as reference material by the regional library or Iosco County Historical Society. Such material dealing with local history is worth preserving.

THE HOME WOODCRAFTER

DO IT YOURSELF AND SAVE

BUILD A BEAUTIFUL BUT DECEPTIVE PLANTER

An outdoor planter that can double as a tool shed? That's ingenious—and easy to build.

This planter can take up less space in your yard than you might expect. Its compactness is deceiving, though, since it's more than just a free-standing place for greenery.

On one side, a door opens wide enough to admit a collapsible power lawn mower, with additional space for storing all your garden tools.

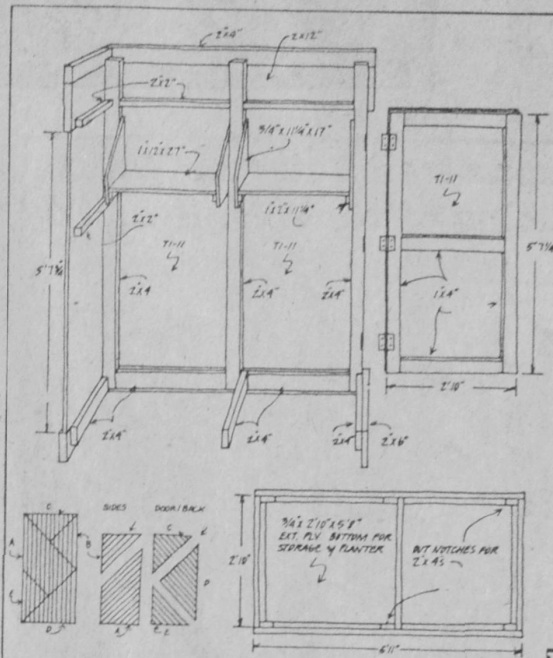

This attractive planter can bring organization to time you spend around the yard. Once you've put your implements away, you know where to find them again.

To begin the project, assemble these materials: two 2" x 12" x 5'11" pieces lumber; two 2" x 4" x 5'11" pieces lumber; two 2" x 6" x 5'11" pieces lumber; six 2" x 4" x 5" pieces lumber; two 2" x 12" x 2'10" pieces lumber; two 2" x 6" x 2'10" pieces lumber; four 2" x 4" x 2'3/4" pieces lumber; three 2" x 4" x 2'7" pieces lumber; three 2" x 2" x 2'7" pieces lumber; five 2" x 2" x 2'4-3/4" pieces lumber; two 1" x 12" x 27" pieces lumber; and four 1" x 2" x 11" pieces lumber.

Next, stand the planter and storage box upright. Cut Texture 1-11 siding, following the measurements in the illustration, and nail the section to the sides and end panel.

Build your 1" x 4" door frame and attach a T-1-11 door panel. Measure for hinges; chisel; and attach hinges, allowing for at least 1/4" clearance at both the top and bottom.

Then, install shelving and project ideas and plans, send implement hooks. Water-S1 to "Woodworks," Dept. proof or plastic-line the NAPS, Georgia-Pacific planter box, and you're ready to finish. Paint the nue, Portland, Ore. 97204.

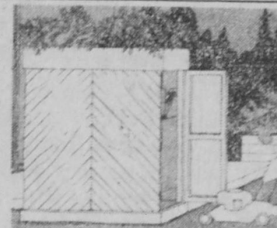

To assemble your project, follow the cutting and assembly diagrams, but note you should use treated lumber wherever it comes in contact with the ground.

These will serve as both floor braces for the storage area and the bottom of the planter. Then cut and notch a piece of 3/4" exterior plywood for the floor and planter and nail into place.

An attractive addition to any yard, this free-standing storage shed and planter can put more organization into weekends you spend around the yard.
